To secure a true line for the edges of the walk 2x4 strips shall be solidly staked down parallel to grade and on the true line of the walk, these strips to be removed when the walk is finished for use.

The concrete filling shall be tamped thoroughly till the water comes to the surface, then the finishing layer shall be immediately spread on in thin coats thoroughly rammed into the concrete, each coat being troweled until the water appears on the surface, the top surface being only troweled sufficiently to leave it smooth. The foundation shall be thoroughly wet while being rammed.

The joints for the blocks shall be made in the concrete and then in the finishing layer directly above those in the concrete.

Only Portland cement shall be used in the construction of walks and shall be in every respect the equal of the best grades of German Portland cement. The concrete filling shall be made from the same cement as the finishing layer.

And the owners and occupants of said lots and premises are hereby required to do the necessary grading therefor and to construct said sidewalk according to the provisions of this resolution, under the supervision of the street commissioner, said walk to be completed within 10 days from personal service, upon the owner or occupant of said described land, of a copy of this resolution, and in case of any default in the construction and completion of said walk, as herein directed, the street commissioner is hereby ordered to have said walk constructed, and payment therefor shall be required of the owner of said above described land, and the expense thereof assessed and levied upon said land in the same manner as other taxes.

Moved and supported that the above resolution be accepted and adopted.

Resolved, That the Common Council of the Village of Tecumseh does hereby require that a new sidewalk be constructed along that portion of the west line of Union street in this village which lies along and adjoining the east line of that parcel of land situate in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee county and State of Michigan, and described as follows:

House and south half lots 7 and 8, block 13, Hewitt addition.

Said walk to be 4 feet in width, on the established grade, of Portland cement, sand and gravel.

The trench shall be excavated to a depth of 10 inches at least below the established grade except for driveways and street crossings when the depth shall be at least 12 inches below the established grade.

The foundation shall consist of clean cinders or gravel entirely free from clay, thoroughly rammed to a thickness of at least 6 inches, except for driveways and street crossings which shall be at least 8 inches.

On the foundation shall be laid a concrete filling, thoroughly rammed to a thickness of 3 inches.

The concrete shall consist of not less than one part cement to six parts of clean, sharp sand or gravel.

On the concrete filling shall be laid a finishing layer one inch thick, consisting of one part cement and two parts of very clean, sharp sand. The said finishing layer shall in all cases be finished with a granular surface with a wooden float.

To secure a true line for the edges of the walk 2x4 strips shall be solidly staked down parallel to grade and on the true line of the walk, these strips to be removed when the walk is finished for use.

The concrete filling shall be tamped thoroughly till the water comes to the surface, then the finishing layer shall be immediately spread on in thin coats thoroughly rammed into the concrete, each coat being troweled until the water appears on the surface, the top surface being only troweled sufficiently to leave it smooth. Fire Incidents.

There has been several fires in Tecumseh in the past few days, and had it not been for the heroic work of several of our citizens, Tecumseh might not be on the map today. Fire started among shavings at the planning mill yesterday and several minutes of lively work were spent in fighting it.

The wheat field of Grant Schreder's burned also, having caught fire from the train. A pasture field just southwest of town, belonging to Fred Holmes caught fire from the afternoon train and was saved only by the assistance of several women, who reside in that portion of the village.

She Likes Good Things.

Mrs. Chas. E. Smith of West Franklin, Maine, says: "I like good things and have adopted Dr. King's New Life Pills as our family laxative medicine, because they are good and do their work without making a fuss about it." These painless purifiers sold at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store. 25c.

Doty pitched for the locals and held the visitors to two hits until the ninth. Of the five hits made off him during the entire game, only two were clean ones.

Haylor held the locals down well until the sixth when four singles and Todd's triple gave them four scores.

In the eighth Streeter walked, Wagner bunted, Gough fumbling the ball, Somerlott's sacrifice and Todd's two bagger scored two more. Haylor retired in the eighth in favor of Gough. Score:

Saginaw out batted and out played the Indians last Saturday, the game resulting 9 and 1 in their favor.

Green for the visitors was found for nine hits, but managed to keep them well scattered.

Lagoe started for Tecumseh but was hit freely, Todd replacing him and was also easy for the visitors.

Tecumseh's only score came in the third inning on Shippy's single and Vorpagel's three bagger. Score:

REMINISCENCES

CONCERNING OUR EARLY SETTLERS.

It is with pleasure that the Herald publishes reminiscences of the life of so prominent a man, as Hon. Perley Bills. It seems well that these chronicles of our early prominent citizens, who were so instrumental in making Tecumseh what it is should be preserved.

Having been requested to give a glimpse of Hon. Perley Bills, my thoughts revert to my childhood days, when Mr Bills was one of the most prominent citizens of old Tecumseh, and one whose rare personality has left an ineffaceable impression in many ways, on the Lone town of his adoption.

Mr. Bills was a native of Southern Vermont. His father Hiram Bill, was of that sturdy New England stock, who tried to cultivate what soil they could find among the rocks of the Green Mountain State and where the Bill family were neighbors, and friends of my grandfather John Stoughton Strong.

After Mr. Bills graduated from an eastern institution, he concluded to move westward to what was then called "New Connecticut," or "The Great Western Reserve," and settled fourteen miles from the present beautiful city of Cleveland in a little town named Strongsville for my grandfather, who was the founder of the village.

Prof. Bills taught for sometime in the Strongsville Academy, and made it his home at my grandfather's. He was a man of fine ability, and a good instructor, also a teacher, who did not believe in his pupils being spoiled, for my father, uncles, and cousins often felt something more patent than the power of moral suasion at certain times when Perley Bills was school room "King."

In 1837, Prof. Bills became the Professor of the Tecumseh University, which for many years stood in the park opposite the present east Branch school building.

Prof. Bills was a perfect gentleman, one who gained the respect of those under his charge. He was a very particular man, and one to whom slang expressions were foreign. One glance of his keen black eyes would rebuke the rough, and tumble man of today.

Whenever you met Mr. Bills you met a gentleman of the old school type, courtly, and dignified though not devoid of humor. His wit was of the best, and cleanest kind. He was never rough, and boisterous. Mr. Bills was not only a fine instructor, but a talented lawyer, a most genial host, and a Christian in the best, and truest sense of the word. When Mr. Bills passed away, a "great man had indeed fallen," one of Tecumseh's greatest friends who was always interested in our schools, our churches, and the people within our gates.

HARRIET STRONG SNYDER.

MRS. C. R. MOTT

The remains of Mrs. C. R. Mott, mother of Rev. Edward Mott, who died at her home in Cleveland, will arrive at Raisin Center late this afternoon where the burial will take place in the Raisin Valley cemetery. Mrs. Mott resided here a few years ago and her death is mourned by numerous friends in this vicinity.

EASY TO CURE CATARRH

You can do exactly what G. J. Sterers did by using Hyomei. Read this:

"After having suffered from chronic catarrh for years, for which I tried various remedies without success, I became almost discouraged. After reading about Hyomei, I decided to make one more effort to rid myself of the dread disease, and to my great delight I found the use of two bottles of the Inhalent sufficient to produce a complete cure. I now take pleasure in recommending this remedy to all sufferers from catarrh."—G. J. Sterers, Crown City, Ohio.

We don't simply say Hyomei will cure catarrh, but we say that C. A. Wright & Son, the druggist guarantees it to cure catarrh, or money back. He does more—he guarantees it to cure asthma, bronchitis, hay fever, coughs and colds. A complete Hyomei outfit, including inhaler, costs only $1.00, and extra bottles, if you afterwards need one, will cost but 50 cents. Hyomei is a pleasant dry air treatment. You just breathe it in, and as it passes over the inflamed membrane, it kills the germs of catarrh, and allays all inflammation.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince any one.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Men Past Sixty in Danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr. Rodney Bennett, Rockport, Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate gland and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am now 91 years old."

The little attacks of stomach trouble and stomach disorders will undoubtedly lead to chronic dyspepsia unless you take something for a sufficient time to strengthen the stomach and give it a chance to get well. If you take Kodol in the beginning the bad attacks of Dyspepsia will be avoided, but if you allow these little attacks to go unheeded it will take Kodol a longer time to put the stomach in good condition again. Get a bottle of Kodol today. Sold by all druggists.

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Tecumseh People To Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Tecumseh.

S. Erskine, barber, living on Evans st., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "For ten years I was troubled with dull, dragging pains in my back, always more severe after hard work or if I lifted anything. I was also annoyed at night by the too frequent action of the kidneys which caused me to get up a great number of times, thus greatly disturbing my rest. The secretions were highly colored and deposited a great deal of sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally brought to my attention and I began taking them. They did me a world of good and I felt better and stronger than I had for a long time. I hope others having kidney trouble will try Doan's Kidney Pills and receive the same results as I did."

For Sale by all Dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.

Napoleon and the Cobbler.

On Napoleon's arrival at Mars-la-Tours the mayor, a farmer, tried in vain to make the speech he had prepared. Bowing and scraping, he stood fascinated by Bonaparte's scrutinizing black eyes—an unhappy squirrel in the gaze of the rattlesnake. Close behind the trembling mayor stood an old shoemaker, in figure a true Don Quixote, clad in his working dress. "Why don't you speak, you fool?" he muttered from time to time to his leader. At last his patience gave way. He pushed the mayor aside, advanced, with his left hand removed his greasy cotton nightcap, which his right lifted the horn spectacles from his nose, made his bow and delivered the oration: "Emperor, you are on your way to thrash the Prussian rogues once more. I hope soon to see you return crowned with glory, and I have nothing more to say, but that Caesar and Alexander were botches in comparison with you."

The emperor laughed and inquired of the old man whether he had any sons. "Yes; four are in the army—two of these in the guards." Their names were taken down, and the honest shoemaker soon saw them raised to the rank of officers and found himself provided with a comfortable pension.

Gladstone's Peculiar Eyes.

Gladstone had peculiar eagle-like eyes. At a dinner at which he and Professor Blackie were present the two men were opposite, and when Gladstone gave in a forcible way his idea that Homer was no longer recited, but chanted, the professor cried out, "Mr. Gladstone, I don't believe a word of it!" Then he rose to argue the matter and said one sentence, but got no further. He had met Gladstone's gaze and seen his outer eyelids widened to their fullness in a steady glare, and his tongue stumbled, and he sank back into his chair in confusion. The writer concludes:

"Go to the zoo for it. Take your umbrella. Make your way to the place where eagles, vultures, falcons and such like creatures blink on their perches. Select a bird. Stare at him with insult and you will see the outer lids expand as Mr. Gladstone's did. Poke at him with your umbrella. The filmy vertical lids through which he looks at the sun and opens to paralyze his prey will part, and then you will see what Blackie saw and understand his feelings."

Hay Fever and Summer Colds.

Victims of hay fever will experience great benefit by taking Foley's Honey and Tar, as it stops difficult breathing immediately and heals the inflamed air passages, and even if it should fail to cure you it will give instant relief." The genuine is in a yellow package.

A Mild Laxative For Baby's Bowels

Doctor Points Out Dangers of Pills and Cathartics

"Salts, purgatives, and violent cathartics are dangerous when given babies, children or delicate women," says a well known doctor. "Neither should they be given medicines containing narcotics for stomach or bowel troubles."

It would be well for mothers to heed this warning and keep on hand a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for baby and herself and for any member of the family that has need of a laxative or a stomach remedy. It is safe and pleasant to take and has cured old people of chronic constipation and dyspepsia of many years' standing, and yet is harmless for a baby as many a happy mother can testify. It brings natural daily movements, sweetens the stomach, aids digestion and stimulates the torpid liver to proper action. The children like it. Lafe Weathers, the popular hotel man in Indianapolis, says: "The children like it, we all use it and would not be without it in the house." Mrs. Mattie Crouch, Tiptonville, Tenn., cured her 8 months' old baby of indigestion with it. Mrs. Almon Willis, Jamaica, Vt., says it saved her baby's life. Mrs. A. S. Cunningham, Fresno, Calif., says she can't keep house without it. It cured her little son of rheumatism and stomach trouble.

Mrs. Flora Hebrew, Bow Creek, Kan., says: "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin cured my little girl of constipation. I cannot recommend your splendid remedy too highly for children."

Mrs. Mary E. Young, Burlington, Ia., writes: "I cheerfully recommend it to mothers as the best laxative for children."

Mrs. Alice Miller, Canal Dover, Ohio, has used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin with splendid results as a laxative for children.

All druggists sell it at 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Pepsin Syrup Co., 101 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill., will send a free sample to any one who has never used it and will give it a fair trial.

THE BLACK TRACKERS

Wonderful Keenness of These Natives of Australia.

USED TO TRACK CRIMINALS.

These Men Are Veritable Bloodhounds and Have a Natural Instinct For Running Down Desperadoes Who Are Fleeing From Justice.

A criminal in Australia knows that his chances for escape are nearly hopeless if a "tracker" is put upon his trail within a day after the crime is discovered. A "tracker" is a native black man having a natural instinct for running down criminals fleeing from justice. These men are veritable bloodhounds, and their strange power is possessed by no other race in the world.

So implicit is the confidence felt in them by the police that when a black starts out upon a man hunt the officer who goes with him merely follows in his wake. He does not question him or in any way interfere with him, but, leading his own horse, allows the guide to go in whatever direction he pleases, no matter how apparently reasonless his course may seem.

The most successful trackers are in Queensland, near the edge of New South Wales. They will travel any distance, animated by no feeling of hatred for their quarry, but only desirous of proving their expertness. The reward they ask is absurdly small for the long and difficult trails. A few shillings or some cheap bracelets, rings, and so on, quite satisfy them. They have no idea of the value of money. Rum is their great weakness.

Once a tracker was employed to locate some valuable trees for a timber man. He had to travel some forty miles through a forest so dense that it was necessary to cut his way through with his tomahawk. All he asked for was a bottle of rum, while the timber merchant derived over £2,000 from the sale of the trees.

The following description of a man hunt will convey a clear idea of the dangers and hardships to be endured:

In this particular case the tracker was a splendid specimen of manhood. The usual loin garments of kangaroo skin he had exchanged for a light covering of cotton cloth provided by the police. He led a horse, so as to make time in the open country districts where the runaway's footsteps could be seen from a horse. The hunt was very earnest, because the fugitive had stolen some cattle. In Australia the crime of cattle stealing is most severely dealt with and considered a serious offense.

The offender was a well seasoned bushman, cunning and acquainted with the tactics of the trackers. Furthermore, he had two days' start of his pursuers.

To accompany a chase like this is awesome, the utter silence and desolation of the woods is so depressing. Then, too, the trails are deceptive, often leading to a deserted wood camp beneath a foliage so dense that it is impossible even to catch a glimpse of the sky. Darkness closes in very quickly in the mountain regions, and by nightfall the tracker and his employer were glad to reach an "accommodation house," or rancher's home, where such as these were usually welcomed and allowed to put up for the night. At this house the officer tried to hear tidings of his man, but no one had seen him.

All the next day the black fellow led along as swiftly as possible. The way was extremely rough, and mile after mile was covered through wild silences until a stranger would surely think the guide was playing a losing game. At no time could they ride, and it was with great difficulty that they reached a sort of clearing, where the horses were tied and camp struck for the night. Tearing huge strips of bark from the trees and wrapping blankets around them, each lay on the concave surface of one for a bed and rested.

At noon the next day a bushman's cabin was reached, and there the tired horses were tethered. The hunters then proceeded on foot. Another night in the forest, and the fourth day found these intrepid hunters making their way through underbrush peculiar to Australia, called "lawyers and barristers," because its thorns and brambles catch one at every turn. Once the guide hesitated, turned back and struck off in another direction down an embankment, the rest tumbling after him.

A wild chase that must have been! Two white men following the apparently mad actions of a black fellow into places so remote that it would have been impossible to find the way out of them alone, but such is the confidence in that country in the faithfulness and ability of a tracker. He now crawled for the greater part on his hands and knees, minutely examining twigs and branches for signs of a freshly broken passageway for the fugitive. He was about ten feet ahead of the others when he gave a subdued exclamation of delight.

"I catch white feller quick!" he said and pointed to a scrap of cloth clinging to a broken twig. Four hours more and a river was reached. There in the damp earth of the bank two footprints were plainly seen.

The tracker leaped into the river and struck out for the opposite side. Emerging upon the other bank, he ran, dripping, for twenty feet or so, following footprints that had again stopped at the water's edge.

Then the trailer paused. He was plainly puzzled. What had become of the cattle thief? Had he recrossed the river or swam down as far as he could and landed on either bank, then struck into the woods again? After sharply examining the ground the troubled guide swam back and landed a few yards below his party. By his actions they saw that he had found the tracks again. The criminal had indeed crossed the river, but where had he gone after that?

Trust a tracker to solve riddles of that sort! Suddenly he began uncovering the leaves and twigs between him and the other two men until he reached them. They were sitting beneath a huge eucalyptus tree.

"White feller no foot black feller!" he said, smiling, wet and breathless. Then it was seen that the fugitive had carefully covered up his tracks by walking backward. Strange to relate, these tracks terminated under the very tree where the party were seated. But apparently the man hunt was finished. The game had vanished into space!

The tracker dashed into a thicket and hastily secured a strong, pliable vine, used by the natives to scale tree trunks too smooth to climb. This he threw about the tree and began to ascend it. The others looked on in astonishment. Up went the black until thirty feet in the air; then those below noticed that the main trunk of the tree had been broken off years before, forming a crotch for the new branches that had sprung up on either side.

A most astonishing thing happened. Reaching down into the hollow of the half dead tree trunk, the tracker seized something, at the same time shouting to the officer beneath: "Boss, boss, I catch white feller! He play possum!"

Out of the opening appeared a man's head, and a more wretched object could never have been seen. He was tousled, dirty, gaunt, half starved.

In due course he paid the penalty of his crime. He said that, knowing a tracker would be put upon his trail, he had hoped to give him the impression that he had been drowned while swimming the river.

Trackers have a horror of traveling after dark, being constantly in fear of meeting the bunyip, a fearful monster with glaring eyes, which they believe to be the spirit of an old aboriginal king who roams around the swampy land at night to catch black men. You can frighten trackers half out of their wits by telling them you will send the bunyip after them. They also believe that a giant lives on mountain tops, waiting to kill them with a club; hence they never sleep on top of a mountain or near a swamp, always pitching their brush tents, or mimis, near a dry and level spot. Their only religious belief is that a big god who has been asleep for ages will one day awaken and eat up the whole world.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Englishman's Letter.

"Whenever I get a letter with a string of unnecessary instructions for delivery on the envelope I know it is from an Englishman," said the tall girl. "He is so used to covering every scrap of space with the complex directions that prevail in his own country that he cannot understand how the simple address 'Miss Smith, 39 Blank Street, City,' will ever take a letter to its destination. In order to insure safe and expeditious delivery he adds 'East Side' or 'West Side' or 'Manhattan' or 'United States' or something else equally superfluous. The only really happy Englishman I have met in a long while was one who made the acquaintance of a girl who lives over on Staten Island. He was tickled to death when he gained permission to write to her and found she had a long address. He made it a good deal longer than it need be. He wrote '—— Avenue, Stapleton, Staten Island, Richmond County, New York, N. Y.' with irrepressible glee. He said the address was the first thing he had seen in America that made him feel at home."—New York Sun.

According to Request.

The treasurer of the Newburyport waterworks sent out his annual bills one year by mail. In the corner of the envelope was the customary request, "After five days return to Newburyport waterworks, Newburyport, Mass." What was his surprise to have a woman come into his office five days afterward and pass him an empty envelope, with the remark, "Here is your envelope, but what you want of it is more than I can see."—Lippincott's Magazine.

GRAND STAND AND BLEACHERS AT STATE FAIR GROUNDS, DETROIT

SPELLMAN'S PERFORMING BEARS.

One of the greatest attractions for the coming state fair, which will command no little attention, is the Spellman bears, numbering seven, all trained and in charge of Mrs. Frank P. Spellman. It is the most talked of and interesting animal act in the world. Mrs. Spellman thoroughly understands her bevy of bears and has them under perfect control at all times. They do all kinds of tricks and stunts willingly. The New York Hippedrome is the biggest theater in the world. Mrs. Spellman's bears were on the program in this great Hippedrome several months. This act is absolutely free and will take place in front of the grand stand every afternoon and evening. They have been taught to ride in an automobile, and every morning they will be taken down town from the state fair grounds in a big machine and will ride about the streets of Detroit. They seem to enjoy auto riding, as they lean back in the car, paying little or no attention to anyone they pass, unless some mischievous boy attempts to bother them, when they will reach out their paws to protect themselves. This is a wonderful act, free to everybody, and should be seen to be appreciated.

THIS YEAR IT WILL BE THE MIDWAY.

The world's fair at Chicago in 1893 named the amusement feature of the big show the Midway. Since that time new names have been coined. The Glade, the Pike, the Wanderlust, etc. have gone their way. Each year when the new name has been coined it has been necessary to educate the people as to its meaning. The word Midway is known to everyone as the amusement row—the place to go for a good time, where something is constantly doing—and that is the name which will be used this year at the state fair.

The location of the Midway this year will be one street south of that of a year ago, being in direct line with the street railway depot, commencing just east of the Administration building. This space was originally intended for the Midway, but, not being easy accessible to the center of the electrical equipment, the shows were located further north.

It should be of interest and satisfaction to the exhibitors of livestock, and to the public as well, to know that during the state fair of 1908 most careful attention will be given to sanitary conditions. Every precaution will be used to see that the grounds are kept in the best of condition, and all places will be most thoroughly disinfected. It has been decided to use the celebrated disinfectant "Kreso" for this purpose. In th livestock department all stables, pens, barns, ect., for the exhibition of animals will be thoroughly disinfected before they are occupied, and a constant supervision in this respect will be carefully given throughout the entire meeting. This will prevent any contagious disease among the stock. It will also destroy all foul odors, making it both healthful and pleasant for the visitors in every respect. This forms a safeguard to the visiting public and to the exhibitors of livestock as well.

STATE BANDS AT THE FAIR.

Arrangements are being made for the engaging of bands to furnish the music at the coming state fair. For rome time past the bands from large cities have been engaged, and this year it is very apparent that the money spent for music will go to the bands located in the smaller cities out in the state.

An effort will be made to eliminate everything of a gambling nature from the state fair grounds this year, and if any gambling devices are found operating on the grounds they will be very promptly removed. It is the intention of the management to have the coming state fair free from fakes, gambling and all impositions of every description and nature.

A great effort is being made this year to cut down one-half the number of the passes which have been issued on previous years. The pass list last year ran very high and naturally robbed the society of many dollars to which they are entitled. This year only those who are absolutely entitled to the same will be taken care of.

MAKING A WHITE CITY.

The state fair buildings are undergoing a great transformation scene this year. All the buildings are receiving a coat of white paint, which adds very materially to their attractiveness. To cover these buildings with paint requires a large force of men and many barrels of paint. While the work was commenced early in the season, it will not be completed before Sept. 1st.

STATE FAIR VISITORS.

Those who contemplate attending the state fair from out in the state will be interested in knowing that they can check their wraps, umbrellas, lunches, packages, etc., just inside the gate of the main entrance. This year this will be in direct control of the state fair, and every patron may depend upon fair treatment. Packages will be absolutely safe and carefully handled.

$2,000 EACH NIGHT.

One of the principal attractions at the coming state fair in Detroit, Sept. 3rd to 11th, is the great Pain's fireworks and spectacle and Manhattan Beach display of fireworks.

"Sheridan's Ride and the Battle of Cedar Creek" is the most stupendous, thrilling and realistic war spectacle ever presented by the great fireworks king, Henry J. Pain. The characters represented are: General Sherman and General Wright, U. S. A.; General Lee and General Early of the Confederate army, staff officers, signal corps, civilians, etc. The synopsis and incidents are: Camp Fire—Negro melodies and special divertisements. Discovery of spy; papers found. Signals from the mountains. Distant firing. Signaling. Confederates open fire on buildings. United States troops move forward. Papers found. Despatch of messenger. Troops retreating. Artillery in distress. Distant movements. All is life and animation. "Sheridan is coming!" Sheridan and staff dash on; the rout is turned into victory. Final, tableau.

The history of this great battle is well known to many of our readers, and no doubt many will witness its repetition in fireworks at the coming state fair.

In speaking of this great spectacle as produced at Manhattan Beach, the New York World says:

"Pain's great war spectacle, 'Sheridan's Ride,' depicting in a thrilling and truly realistic manner the 'Battle of Cedar Creek,' between the Union and Confederate armies, opened last night to 15,000 delighted spectators in a blaze of glory and gunpowder. With the early dawn comes the Gen. Early Confederate troops. They sweep down from the mountain sides, and crush the unsuspecting Federals as they sleep. Then follow the most terrible, realistic scenes of the demoralization in war. The terror stricken soldiers are rushing in the rear with but few men among them to try and stem the tide. All is retreat. Just when the destruction seems complete, Gen. Phil Sheridan dashes among the fleeing soldiers—having madly dashed to his stricken army from Winchester, twenty miles away. 'Come on boys, we're going back.' Wild cheers greeted this command. Before nightfall the battle had been fought and won by Sheridan's boys in blue."

Every performance of Pain's spectacle of "Sheridan's Ride" will be followed by a gigantic $1,000 program of Pain's Manhattan Beach fireworks.

STATE FAIR RAILROAD RATES.

The Michigan Passenger association, which governs the granting of special rates on all railroads, has decided that the rate of fare this year for the state fair at Detroit, Sept. 3rd to 11th, will be one and two-thirds one way fare. That means that if the regular railroad fare from your station to Detroit and return is $3 (seventy-five miles), the rate to the state fair this year will be going $1.50 and returning $1, or $2.50. Last year the rate was three cents per mile on most of the roads, and the railroads gave a rate of one-half fare, which for the distance mentioned above the fare would have been $2.25 for the round trip, and in order to get that rate it was necessary to buy a state fair ticket at fifty cents, which was attached to the railroad ticket. It may be seen that the rate is twenty-five cents higher this year, but the state fair coupon will be eliminaed from the railroad ticket.

Admission tickets to the state fair will be placed on sale in most of the newspaper offices in the state at the rate of thirty-five cents each, or three for $1. These will go on sale early in July and will be withdrawn Aug. 29th.

This is the first time in the history of the state fair that tickets have been placed on sale out in the state at reduced rates. Orders for tickets, if received prior to Aug. 29th, will also be filled by mail on receipt of the above price by I. H. Butterfield, secretary, Detroit, Mich.

The races on the state fair grounds will be the fastest in the history of the association. $5,000 have been expended entirely rebuilding and resurfacing the track, and it is today considered one of the fastest and best tracks in the United States, and with $12,000 hung up for purses and the entries which have already been received, it is apparent that the best races ever held in the state of Michigan will be seen on the state fair grounds during the next state fair.

Superintendent Tyler and Superintendent Watkins of the cattle and horse departments of the Michigan State Fair have arranged for a livestock parade, which will take place during the fair. It will be one of the best parades ever seen on a like occasion. These gentlemen are thoroughly familiar with what will please the livestock men of the state and are leaving no stone unturned to bring on something for attraction and interest.

There will be plenty of opportunity for the visitors at the fair this year to secure good meals. Ten churches in the city of Detroit have secured space and will furnish meals and lunches to state fair visitors. It goes without saying that church societies take great pride in furnishing good meals at reasonable prices, and they have assured the management of the fair that this year they will be better than ever.

There is a saying that people are as "homely as a mud fence." Did any one ever see a mud fence or know if there is such a thing?—Atchison Globe.

Rev. Blanch Young and mother leave in a few days for Flint and Holly and other Michigan cities to spend the remainder of their vacation.

Word was received of the death at Stanton, Mich., of Mrs. Martha Boynton, widow of Rev. J. Boynton. Mrs. Boynton was an aunt of the McNeil sisters of this place.

The People's Unitarian church of Onsted, observed the twelfth anniversary of the founding of their church last Sunday. Mr and Mrs. Harding, Mr. Tansley, Edna Gaston, and Metta McKinney of this place furnished the music and Anna Ferguson gave two recitations. Dr. Julia P. Greene of Adrian, gave the welcome address in the morning and in the afternoon gave a reading, What Unitarianism Stands For. Miss Young was unable to be present as expected on account of the illness of her mother.

The following is taken from the Jackson paper.

Hanover, Mich., Aug. 1—Fire started it is believed by boys smoking, destroyed the barns of Andrew Whiting, Mrs. G. W. Tuthill, J. R. Aldman and E. R. Lamont late this afternoon. The fire started in the Whiting barn and rapidly spread to the others. The Whiting and Lamont barns were full of hay so the total loss will reach several thousand dollars. The insurance on the Whiting barn had just expired. Mr. and Mrs. Whiting were residents here a few years ago and attended our church here, we are sorry to hear of their misfortune.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Frank Hurst has gone to join his wife and baby at Elk Rapids where he will take a short vacation from his work.

The Indians won the last game on Tuesday from Battle Creek, winning by a score 9 to 7. Freeland started to pitch for battle Creek and was hit hard. He was replaced in the seventh by Loughlin, who could not stop the run getting. Battle Creek could do but little with Brannick, the Indian's pitcher until the sixth. Score:

"Bo" Slear brought his men down from Jackson for one game on Wednesday and the Indians took them into camp with a score of 4 and 2.

The locals scores came in the 3rd and 4th innings on a double by Fox, Streeter's three bagger, Wagner's and Todd's singles and Somerlott's sacrifice. In this inning Wagner and Todd successfully worked the squeeze play.

In the fourth a base on balls, an error and two singles gave them one more run. Only 6 hits were made off Holmquist while Dammon for the visitors was hit hard. Score:

Is Pe-ru-na Useful for Catarrh?

Should a list of the ingredients of Peruna be submitted to any medical expert, of whatever school or nationality, he would be obliged to admit without reserve that each one of them was of undoubted value in chronic catarrhal diseases and had stood the test of many years' experience in the treatment of such diseases. THERE CAN BE NO DISPUTE ABOUT THIS WHATEVER. Peruna is composed of the most efficacious and universally used herbal remedies for catarrh. Every ingredient of Peruna has a reputation of its own in the cure of some phase of catarrh.

Peruna brings to the home the COMBINED KNOWLEDGE OF SEVERAL SCHOOLS OF MEDICINE in the treatment of catarrhal diseases; brings to the home the scientific skill and knowledge of the modern pharmacist; and last but not least, brings to the home the vast and varied experience of Dr. Hartman, in the use of catarrh remedies, and in the treatment of catarrhal diseases.

The fact is, chronic catarrh is a disease which is very prevalent. Many thousand people know they have chronic catarrh. They have visited doctors over and over again, and been told that their case is one of chronic catarrh. It may be of the nose, throat, lungs, stomach or some other internal organ. There is no doubt as to the nature of the disease. The only trouble is the remedy. This doctor has tried to cure them. That doctor has tried to prescribe for them.

BUT THEY ALL FAILED TO BRING ANY RELIEF.

Dr. Hartman's idea is that a catarrh remedy can be made on a large scale, as he is making it; that it can be made honestly, of the purest drugs and of the strictest uniformity. His idea is that this remedy can be supplied directly to the people, and no more be charged for it than is necessary for the handling of it.

No other household remedy so universally advertised carries upon the label the principal active constituents, showing that Peruna invites the full inspection of the critics.

The Village Attorney, called attention to an error in the amount, of the sidewalk tax of Mr. F. E. Bradley and asked correction of the same, whereupon, after report of the Clerk who had fully investigated the matter, and on recommendation of the Finance Committee, the following resolution was adopted:

RESOLVED, That the Village Treasurer is hereby authorized and directed to credit Mr. F. E. Bradley upon payment of his sidewalk tax with an amount which shall leave the tax to be paid three-fourths of the correct measurement of the walk, at 11c per square foot, (or $24.88), plus interest thereon since the laying of said walk.

The Water Committee recommended that H. Brewer & Co. be permitted to use meters in their new factory.

Moved and supported that the recommendation of the Water Committee be accepted and adopted. Carried.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted

RESOLVED, That owing to the extreme drought deminishing the water supply, and the very serious danger from fires, all use of village water for sprinkling of streets and lawns by individual consumers, is hereby prohibited except for two hours each day, viz: Between seven o'clock and eight o'clock in the forenoon and six o'clock and seven o'clock in the afternoon, this to apply to all consumers whether paying flat rate or on meter: And that in case of any failure in the strict observance of this restriction, the committee on waterworks is hereby directed to forthwith cut off the supply of water to the parties so offending: That these restrictions shall continue until further action of the Council: That the Clerk shall, by distribution of hand bills, give notice of the adoption of this resolution to the citizens of this village at earliest possible time.

Moved and supported that the bond of Davis Brown in the sum of $1000.00 with H. Brewer and Co. as sureties be approved and accepted. Carried.

Moved and supported that the Clerk be instructed to purchase six water meters. Carried.

Moved and supported that the bills as read be referred to the Finance Committee. Carried.

The Finance Committee reported favorably on all bills as read with the exception of sidewalk bills of Robert Orr and W. D. Ross and recommend that those two bills be paid when they furnish a gaurantee to the Village.

Moved and supported that the report of the Finance Committee be accepted and the Clerk instructed to draw orders for the several amounts. Carried.

His Gentle Reproof.

The London newspapers used to make a distinction between a simple notice of a death, for which they charged 5 shillings, and a brief obituary, for which they demanded seven and sixpence. One day Dr. Thomas Hume called at the office of a morning journal and silently placed upon the counter the announcement of the death of a friend, together with 5 shillings. The clerk glanced at the paper, tossed it to one side and said gruffly, "Seven and six!" "I have frequently," answered Hume, "had occasion to publish these simple notices, and I have never before been charged more than 5 shillings." "Simple!" repeated the clerk without looking up. "There's an added line, 'universally beloved and deeply regretted,' isn't there? Seven and six." Hume produced the additional half crown and laid it deliberately by the others, observing in his most solemn tone, "Congratulate yourself, sir, that this is an expense which your executors will never be put to."

Worth It.

A certain gentleman who is of a jovial disposition is also very big and stout, his weight being somewhere in the neighborhood of twenty stone. On leaving a friend's house one evening he was just about to hire a cab to take him home when his host offered him the loan of his carriage. The visitor accordingly dismissed the cabman, tendering at the same time a shilling for the uncommenced journey. To his astonishment, cabby asked for another sixpence.

"What do you mean?" demanded the gentleman angrily. "The fare would only have been a shilling if I had actually gone all the way."

"That's right enough," cabby replied, with an ingratiating smile, "but just think o' the fright me an' the 'orse 'ad when you 'ailed us."—London Mail.

LETTER

WRITES AN INTERESTING ACCOUNT OF HIS TRAVELS SINCE JOINING THE ARMY.

Fort Russell, Cheyenne, Wy,
July 16, 1908.

Dear mother and all:

Just received your letter and will say, I am always glad to hear from home.

This has been a busy time here as I am on target practice every day.

We get up at 4 o'clock, eat breakfast and get to the target range and begin firing at sunrise, continuing until 12 when dinner is called.

Col. Taylor, then allows four hours rest in the P. M.

A soldier besides drilling target practice and doing guard duty, has to pay respects to his country, every morning.

First call at 5:15 then at 5:30 the cannon fires when the flag is raised and all soldiers fall out for roll call and the trumpeter blows respect to the colors.

At 6 o'clock P. M. all fall out and trumpeters sound the colors, gun fires and the band plays, "Star Spangle Banner."

Lights out at 9 o'clock. We have just had muster this morning, when we prepare as for heavy marching, step outside where Major Blatchford looks us over.

Every man besides being clean in person with clean clothing must have his rifle in good condition and leave his locker tidy, for after inspection outside, the Major goes through each room.

We have the name of being the cleanest, best drilled company in the Regiment.

Our officers get the credit, for they are all fine men.

Our captain treats his men with the greatest respect and is always doing some kindness, which makes us all cheer heartily for him when we get the chance.

That is the only tree that grows here but is better than the miles of dusty prairie after leaving the Fort.

We have three flowing wells which send water twenty five feet in the air. Cheyenne is not so fortunate however, for the small stream, which supplies water often dries up in the hot weather, causing much suffering among the cattle

We have about eight hundred soldiers and and two hundred officers beside their families.

We are getting ready for a two hundred mile hike up the mountains so will take this along and write again soon.

Camp Bennet, Crawford, Wy.,
July 20, 1908.

You will see by the heading we have arrived at new quarters.

I wish you might be here to enjoy the sights with me.

We are ten thousand feet above sea level and of course the air is so light we don't run far at a time, without being glad to sit down and get our breath.

We are surrounded by mountains, Jack Rabbits, Mountains Lions, etc, the latter more dangerous, and the captain has issued orders that no man should leave camp without a firearm.

Two of our men started up the mountain after a rain, the other eve, and soon a dense fog came up.

The captain became worried, called the company together and started a search.

We marched along firing our rifles once in awhile. Fortunately they had pistols with them and answered.

We then built a huge bonfire, sending light up the mountains for a mile or two and they finally came straggling in and we all returned to camp thankful we were all together.

It has taught us a lesson and no one goes out now excepting on sunshiney days.

Rains are not the only things we enjoy however.

Last eve we had a hail storm doing great damage to tents and frightening the horses so they broke loose and ran for shelter.

The only way to get them together was to give the stable call. As all cavalry horses are trained to obey orders, they soon came up by twos and threes and huddled about the trumpeter expecting to be fed.

This morning we had a real snowball battle which sounds rather funny for July.

We are being joined every day by other Regiments and also medical staff and hospitable corps.

The signal corps from Fort Omaha putting up telegraph lines from the camp to Denver and surrounding cities.

They also use wireless telegraphy and I have been helping them some. I would like to transfer, so I could help them and stand a chance of a position when I serve my time.

But the captain doesn't like to transfer. He says when he gets a company drilled and they behave as well as the most of his men do he don't approve of transfers.

He is a good fellow however and is always ready to help and perhaps I may hope

Well I guess I have told you everything of interest excepting that I am well and happy.

And as ever your loving son.
GEORGE WITHERELL.

SHOWERS

Came Tuesday Night, and Brought Relief to the Masses.

Many were Heavy Losers from Damage Caused by Lightning.

Temporary relief from the long continual hot spell came Tuesday night about 6:30 when the warm west wind finally succeeded in blowing up a storm and which continued through the greater part of the night. While it brought its benefits to the masses, to some it brought trouble.

Frank Davidson, east of Tecumseh, Chas. Lyttle near Pennington's corners, and Patrick Hughes of Macon, were perhaps the heaviest losers. Lightning struck a tree about ten rods from Mr. Davidson's house, killing three cows. A horse belonging to Mr. Lyttle was struck and killed. The barn on the farm of Patrick Hughes near Macon was struck by lightning during the first storm and was completely destroyed with contents.

FIRE

Three Barns and Two Stacks of Straw Belonging to John Grey, Burned to the Ground.

Caught from Traction Engine While They were Threshing.

Three barns and two stacks of straw beloning to John Grey, a mile south of Tecumseh were burned to the ground Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Grey was threshing and sparks from the engine set the stacks and barns on fire.

PENMANSHIP LESSENS

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince any one.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Home of Swamp-Root.

Men Past Sixty in Danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate gland and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am now 91 years old."

If a woman imagines a man is good enough for her she knows that he is good enough for the best woman on earth.

Just because a man wears white pants about his farm work, is no sign that his milk is always pure. Handsome is that handsome does.

To feel strong, have good appetite and digestion, sleep soundly and enjoy life, use Burdock Blood Bitters, the great system tonic and builder.

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Tecumseh People To Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Tecumseh.

S. Erskine, barber, living on Evans st., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "For ten years I was troubled with dull, dragging pains in my back, always more severe after hard work or if I lifted anything. I was also annoyed at night by the too frequent action of the kidneys which caused me to get up a great number of times, thus greatly disturbing my rest. The secretions were highly colored and deposited a great deal of sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally brought to my attention and I began taking them. They did me a world of good and I felt better and stronger than I had for a long time. I hope others having kidney trouble will try Doan's Kidney Pills and receive the same results as I did."

For Sale by all Dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.

WHO OWNS THE STATE FAIR?

There seems to be some misunderstanding in whom the ownership of the Michigan State Fair is vested. It is owned by the Michigan State Agricultural society, organized under the laws of the state, and anybody can become a member on the payment of $1, and when that person becomes a member, he or she has just the same rights, so far as the state fair is concerned, as any living person. When we say anybody can become a member we mean, in the broadest sense of the word, any man, woman or child, no matter what age or color. It is a fair for all the people, governed by the people, and it always will be. It is, therefore, apparent that every person living in Michigan should take an interest in making a success of this great fair. Your officers are working hard to make it a credit to the state, and they need the assistance of all of you. Just think what a mighty influence the state fair would yield if every loyal citizen would do his share to make it a success.

If you have anything that you think is worthy of exhibiting, send it to the fair. You may secure some valuable premiums. If you have nothing to exhibit, arrange to attend the fair, and urge your friends to attend.

EDITORS' DAY IN SEPTEMBER.

Tuesday, Sept. 8, is to be Editors' day at the Michigan State Fair. That was agreed upon at a conference between George T. Campbell of the Owosso Argus; G. H. Mitchell of the Birmingham Eccentric and President Fred Postal and Business Manager James Slocum of the Agricultural society. The committee in charge on the part of the editors consists of Mr. Campbell, Mr. Mitchell, Daniel Dyer of the Caseville Critic and Milo W. Whitaker of the Jackson Patriot. Mr. Dyer originated the idea, but was unable to be present.

President Postal and Mr. Slocum will do their part of the entertaining. The editors and their families will be shown everything there is in the big fair grounds, from the prize stock to the Midway, from the big cheese to the airship.

In the afternoon a section of the grand stand will be reserved for them, and they will be witnesses of what promises, with the new stake events, to be splendid racing. The society will be hosts at dinner after the races, then in the evening the guests will have seats at the big fireworks spectacle, "Sheridan's Ride."

A VISIT TO THE MOON.

Is Such a Thing Within the Bounds of Possibility?

Can men visit the moon? In any age but the present, says Professor Ernest Green Dodge, A. M., this question if seriously asked would have been answered by a chorus of jeers. So far beyond the pale of possibilities has the visiting of other worlds always appeared that writers of fiction have felt free to treat the idea sportively, describing thrilling journeys through space in impossible vehicles.

Nevertheless the thought of exploring distant planets, pausing en route to view the farther side of the moon, so tantalizingly turned from us, is one that fires the human imagination most profoundly. The worst that can be said is that it now looks as difficult to us as the crossing of the great Atlantic must once have appeared to the naked savage upon its shore. The impossibility of the savage became the triumph of Columbus, and the day dream of the nineteenth century may become the achievement even of the twentieth.

A body on the earth's equator is traveling with the earth's rotation at a speed of more than a thousand miles an hour. If relieved of gravity it would not fly suddenly off, like a cannon ball, and disappear into space. For several seconds its rise from the surface of the earth would be so slow as to be practically imperceptible owing to the small difference between a straight tangent line and the earth's slow curvature. Gradually, however, its apparent upward velocity would increase so as to lift it some sixty-five yards the first minute and more than a hundred miles the first hour. It would travel 239,000 miles, the distance between the earth and the moon, in ten days, and if suitably exposed to the earth's attraction, acting as a brake, while screened from that of the moon, its landing could be made gentle and safe. Strangely enough, the unturning attitude of the lunar surface in relation to the earth makes the return voyage absolutely impossible save by a tedious roundabout journey of many months, involving the circumnavigation of Mars.

The query may now arise, "What is the moon good for, even if man succeeds in reaching it?"

We know it to be a barren, rocky world, without air or moisture, unspeakably cold at night and below the freezing point even at noon. However, men could abide there for a time in thick walled, air tight houses and could walk out of doors in air tight divers' suits. Scientists would find in the lunar wastes a fresh field for exploration. Astronomers could plant their telescopes there, free from their most serious hindrance, the earth's atmosphere. Tourists of the wealthy and adventurous class would not fail to visit the satellite, and costly hotels must be maintained for their accommodation. Then it is quite probable that veins of previous metals, beds of diamonds and an abundance of surphur might be discovered on a world of so highly volcanic a character.

The foregoing may seem filled with "the stuff that dreams are made of," yet most of the assertions are based on the hard facts of mathematics and physics. History is not always particular to follow the precise path laid out for it by prophets, yet in the long run it never fails to achieve larger things than the seer dared to predict.—New York World.

Potter Wasps at Work.

The family Eumenidae, or solitary wasps, consists of some curious workers. Some are miners and dig tiny tunnels in the earth; some are carpenters and cut channels in wood and then divide the space into chambers by partitions of mud; some build oval or globelike mud nests on branches or twigs. This home may be partitioned into several tiny rooms, into which are put various small insects captured by the mother wasp and upon which the young wasps feed.—St. Nicholas.

While Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup is especially recommended for children, it is, of course, just as good for adults. Children like to take it because it tastes nearly as good as maple sugar. Its laxative principle drives the cold from the system by a gentle, natural, yet copious action of the bowels. Sold by all druggists.

MICHIGAN BUILDING ON STATE FAIR GROUNDS.

THIS BEAUTIFUL BUILDING WAS AT THE ST. LOUIS WORLD'S FAIR, TAKEN DOWN AND REMOVED TO STATE FAIR GROUNDS, DETROIT.

35,000 CHILDREN.

Children's Day at the Michigan State Fair.

It is estimated that at least 35,000 children will avail themselves of the invitation of the Michigan State Fair to be their guests Friday, Sept. 4th. This day has been set aside as Children's Day, and every child in Michigan under the age of twelve years who comes to the gate that day will be admitted free, no ticket being required. Most of the schools open the following Tuesday, and this will be the last gala day for the young people before they settle down to hard school work.

A program, prepared expressly for the little folks, will be announced later which provides for one continuous round of pleasure from morning until night. The little folks are not interested in horse racing, so there will be no racing on that day, and in order that they will be home in the evening, there will be no fireworks display that night, but there will be enough going on to make it a happy, busy day for the children. Jack Dallas, the most daring airship navigator in the country, will make two flights in his big airship, sailing about the grounds, high in the air, though always within view.

This is the first time since the location of the state fair in Detroit that children have been admitted free, and no doubt it will be one of the liveliest, merriest days of the big fair, because they will be on pleasure bent, and there will be something doing every minute.

IMPLEMENT DEPARTMENT LOOKS BRIGHTER.

V. V. Green, superintendent of the implement and machinery department of the Michigan State Fair, reports that space which has been assigned to his department is well taken, and present indications are that every foot of available space will be gone before the fair opens. The 1907 machinery exhibit was very large, in fact it was supposed to be as extensive as could ever be made; but this year it is very apparent that the number of exhibits will be greatly increased, and there are a number of new things never before shown which will be seen at the coming fair. There is no department of the state fair that is of such educational interest to the farmer as the machinery department. Superintendent Green, who is secretary and treasurer of the Union Transfer and Storage company of Detroit, is thoroughly versed in the handling of all kinds of machinery, having spent the greater portion of his life at that business, and it may be depended upon that he will maintain the highest possible standard in his department, which will be appreciated by the farmers of the state.

GREAT CHANGE IN FOUR YEARS.

Four years have brought about great changes in the state fair grounds at Detroit. Where this beautiful white city now stands was only a barren space of farm lands. The great transformation scene has certainly been wonderful. To all appearances one would think the great improvements had been going on for years. The grounds are covered with large and commodious buildings, which have been built with permanency in view. The grounds have been graded, walks and roads built, and shrubbery, which was planted four years ago, has since done much toward beautifying the grounds, making them a credit to the state. The work of making improvements still progresses, a large number of men being employed at this time and will be until the opening of the great show, that the grounds may be in the holiday attire.

The grounds lie just west of the Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee railroad and the Pontiac and Flint Interurban railway and attract great attention from the thousands of passengers who pass the grounds daily, and who can form only a favorable opinion of this great enterprise which is doing so much along educational lines for the people of Michigan.

Arrangements are being made with the International Stock Food company of Minneapolis, Minn., to have Dan Patch pace one mile against his own time, making an earnest endeavor to break his record, which is the fastest in the world today, 1:55¼, and it is thought that on the new fast track at the state fair grounds it will be possible for him do so. Mr. Savage says that Dan is in strictly first class condition, and he believes he will go faster this year than ever before.

Ample provisions have been made for the accommodation of thousands of visitors who will visit the fair from Sept. 3rd to 11th. All hotels and boarding houses are preparing to take in extra people.

THE BIGGEST EVER.

A New Feature of the Coming State Fair.

Secretary Butterfield of the state fair says that never were the prospects so encouraging as this year for exhibits, and he has held this office for the past fifteen years and is in a position to know. Entries are coming in earlier, and more of them. The interest in the big fair seems to increase each year, and the great difficulty now is to take good care of all the exhibits with the present facilities. It was thought when the present buildings were erected that they would answer all purposes for years to come, but there is already a lack of buildings to house all exhibits which are shown.

Exhibitors and visitors will be especially interested in knowing that this year a catalog containing a list of all the entries, the number, the owners, location, attractions, places where meals are served, prices, race program, Midway attractions, arrival and departure of trains and, in fact, everything the visitor wants to know about the big fair will be issued. These may be had on the grounds.

Entries on livestock close much earlier this year, in order to get the list in the catalog, the closing date being Aug. 10. Secretary Butterfield will be very glad to furnish all and any information desired regarding the coming fair.

AIRSHIP FLIGHTS BOTH DAY AND NIGHT.

One of the attractions of the coming state fair at Detroit, Sept. 3rd to 11th, will be the flights of the great Strobel airship, which will not only fly about the fair grounds twice every day, but will also leave the fair grounds, fly around the city hall, eight miles distant, and return to the grounds, a trip of sixteen miles.

The two daylight trips will be made when the weather conditions are favorable, it being understood that successful flights cannot be made when high winds prevail, hence no set time can be made for the start. One flight will be made about the grounds each night, and the big ship will be followed by a searchlight.

The ship will be in charge of Jack Dallas, the most daring airship navigator in the country, and one of the only two men who have ever attempted to make night flights. Dallas made daily flights at Jacksonville, Fla., all last winter, and made for himself an enviable record, having made successful flights when it was thought almost impossible to make the start on account of high winds.

The tent in which the airship is housed is 40x80 and 30 feet high, which will give one an idea of its size. The airship starts upon its flight from its resting place in the big tent and, after flying about the grounds for a time, returns without assistance and lights in its resting place.

The airship will be on exhibition to visitors during the entire fair.

NEARLY KILLED THEIR KEEPER.

One of the best Midway attractions at the state fair last year was the Mundy animal show, which is the second largest independent animal show in the country. The second day of the fair, while trying to separate two of his lions engaged in a fierce fight, Prince, his largest lion, turned on Mr. Mundy, sinking his fangs deep into his thigh and left arm. The fight was fierce, and, having only a small whip at his command, he was unable to cope with the enraged beast. While pinioned on the floor of the cage, with the fangs of the lion imbedded in his right hip, he was handed a chair, but the lion broke this in an instant. An iron bar was thrust at the lion, prying his jaws apart, and Mr. Mundy was liberated, removed from the cage and taken to the hospital. His recovery was very slow, and he was laid up for five months. Today he carries a useless left arm, and on his right hip is a deep pit, as large as a teacup, as a result of the attack.

Mundy has two wild animal shows on the road. Last year his small show was on the Midway. This year he has contracted with Manager Slocum for his big wild animal show, and he will be first on the Midway. Mr. Mundy will be in charge.

$5,000 WORTH OF CEMENT WALKS.

The Michigan State Fair association is building $5,000 worth of cement walks, leading from the entrance near Woodward avenue to the grand stand, and also about the grounds. These walks are broad and will accommodate many people. In case of damp weather they will be a great convenience for the visitors who travel from one part of the grounds to another.

STRIKES FIRE ON A TRAIN.

Three Men Killed and Eleven Injured in Alabama.

LOG POT ACROSS THE TRACK.

Assailants Poured Out Volleys From Ambush When Passenger Train Bearing Non Union Men Failed to Be Ditched by Obstruction—Troops Hurried to Scene—Eight Negroes Arrested.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 10.—Three men were instantly killed and eleven injured, two of whom will probably die, when striking miners fired into a passenger train on the Birmingham Mineral railroad at Blochton in the morning at 2 o'clock. The dead:

CONDUCTOR JOE T. COLLINS.
O. Z. DENT, deputy sheriff.
WILLARD HOWELL, non union miner.

The injured: Major F. H. Dodge, superintendent of safety, Tennessee Coal company, wounded in hand and leg; E. E. Cox, superintendent of the mines, Tennessee Coal company, slightly wounded in knee; A. E. Cross, chief clerk superintendent's office, wounded in arm and knee; J. C. Johnson, deputy sheriff, slightly wounded; A. C. Bryant, deputy sheriff, slightly wounded; J. B. Cornett, deputy sheriff, wounded in back; W. H. McAuley, soldier, slightly wounded; M. A. Pearson, soldier, wounded in left shoulder; J. C. Martin, wounded in head, back and arm; A. J. Myer, laborer, wounded in leg; Robert Sigmon, wounded in arm and breast.

The train was a special bearing non union men to the Brocton mines under guard of soldiers and deputies. On the outskirts of the town the engineer suddenly saw a log across the track and at once a fusillade was fired into the train. The engineer did not stop, but let the cowcatcher throw the log off the tracks and put on full speed.

Dogs Put on Trail.

The place where the attack was made was in a cut, the ground being on a level with the lower part of the windows. The assailants, behind the rocks above, poured down a murderous fire directly into the windows and at the engineer. Practically every window in the train was broken, and shots struck all parts of the engine and cab. The train proceeded to Blocton, and the dead and injured were returned to Birmingham. Dogs were hurried to the scene and took trails through the woods directly to the union headquarters. Eight negroes were arrested, and other arrests are expected.

Conductor Collins came here from Washington, D. C., four years ago. The body has been sent to Frederick, Md., for bureal.

Governor Comer held a conference with Lieutenant Colonel Hubbard, commanding the militia, and another company hurried to Blocton. All is reported quiet here at present.

The trouble has caused widespread indignation, and a general demand is being made that more vigorous steps be taken looking to the preservation of order. While no disturbances have been reported in the district, other than the Blocton affair, the situation is regarded as the most grave since the inauguration of the strike, over a month ago.

London, Aug. 10.—King Edward will leave this afternoon on his annual visit to Marienbad, where he will rest after his long and arduous social duties during one of the most strenuous seasons London has witnessed in years. Exceptional interest is taken in the trip, as King Edward will meet Emperor William at Cronberg, Prussia, Tuesday, and Emperor Francis Joseph at Ischl, Austria, Wednesday, on the way to his favorite watering place. That the visits to the two emperors will not be wholly private in character is suggested by the fact that Sir Charles Hardinge, permanent under secretary to the foreign office, who always accompanies the king on diplomatic missions, will be present on both occasions. King Edward's aim, it is believed, is to endeavor to convince the German and Austrian emperors that the British policy is not aimed at the isolation or injury of any other power.

Nine Fishermen Perish.

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 11.—The Gloucester (Mass.) fishing schooner Maggie and May, Captain Erick McCathran, was run down and sunk by the German school ship Freya, Captain Hass, sixty miles southeast of Halifax, and Captain McCalhran and eight of the crew of the schooner were drowned. Four men were rescued. A dense fog prevailed.

CANDIDATES NOMINATED.

Primary Returns in Illinois Are Nearly Complete.

RETURNS CAME VERY SLOW.

No Accurate Estimates Could Be Made Even Twenty-Four Hours After Polls Closed—Democrats Nominate Adlai Stevenson and Republicans Charles Deneen For Governor—Results All Estimated.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Illinois Democratic state ticket:

Endorsed for United States senator—Lawrence B. Stringer.
Nominated for governor—Adlai E. Stevenson.
Lieutenant governor—E. A. Perry.
Secretary of state—X. F. Beidler.
Auditor—Ralph Jeffreis.
Treasurer—J. B. Mount.
Attorney general—R. C. Hall.

Republican state ticket:

Endorsed for United States senator—Albert J. Hopkins or George E. Foss.
Governor—Charles S. Deneen. (Returns incomplete.)
Lieutenant governor—J. G. Oglesby or F. L. Smith.
Secretary of state—James A. Rose.
Auditor—J. S. McCullough.
Treasurer—Andrew Russel.
Attorney general—William Stead.

The result of the primary election, as far as it is accurately known in regard to the state officers, is given in the foregoing lists.

Never since political returns were carried by messengers on foot, by ox teams and canal boats have definite figures been so greatly delayed on any Illinois voting as in the primaries of Saturday.

Twenty-four hours after the polls closed it was impossible to give accurate returns on the vote for senatorial endorsement, or the gubernatorial nomination on the Republican ticket. The vote was so close, and the returns so scanty, that accurate statements in relation to these two contests were impossible.

The returns on the Democratic ticket were even more slow than those on the Republican candidates. They, however, seemed to run in one direction, so that an estimate of the result was possible.

The vote for the Republican senatorial endorsement in Chicago and Cook county was: Senator, A. J. Hopkins, 40,358; William E. Mason, 39,917; George E. Foss, 50,252, giving Foss a plurality over Hopkins of 9,894. In the state outside of Cook county the contest seemed to be fairly even between Hopkins and Foss, with Mason falling far to the rear.

The general returns were perhaps a shade in favor of Hopkins, but whether his vote in the other counties will enable him to overcome the strong lead gained by Foss in Cook county (Chicago) is not yet known, and it will probably be another twenty-four hours before a positive statement can be made on the result.

As to the Democratic senatorial endorsement, Stringer won easily in every county in the state so far as heard from.

Big Rifle Shoot Begins.

Cleveland, Aug. 10.—The annual rifle shoot by members of the state guards and the United States army and navy began at Camp Perry, the national range, today. Lieutenant Colonel Robert K. Evans, general staff, is executive officer in charge of the range. The shoot by the national guard of Ohio for the state championship will continue until Thursday. On the 14th the National Rifle association contests will begin and continue until Aug. 24, when the national match between the various state guards and the army and navy will begin. All told, there will be sixty-nine events. Every state, the Philippines and Hawaii will send competing teams except Florida, Idaho and Nevada. The tournament will be, it is claimed, the largest ever held in this country.

Trains Kill Two Men.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 10.—An unidentified man supposed to be a hobo stealing a ride out of the city, fell under and was crushed to death by the wheels of an out going Wabash freight train. The accident occurred near Dearborn avenue, Eighteenth ward. Samuel Russell, twenty-four years old, employed by Millenbach Bros., a teamster living at 766 Hubbard avenue, met fatal injury under the car wheels of a Michigan Central train at the Michigan Central crossing of Hubbard avenue.

ADMITS SON STOLE JEWELS.

Officers Recover $5,000 Worth of Jewels Stolen From Mrs. E. A. Bowd of Lansing While at Detroit Hotel—Precious Stones Had Been Mailed to Address Officers Refuse to Reveal.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 10.—Mrs. Bennett, an aged woman admits her son Benjamin, night wathchman at the Normandie hotel, stole the $5,000 worth of jewels from the room of Mrs. E. A. Bowd of Lansing while the latter was a guest at the hotel. She says that the jewelry was in the mails and on its way to the owner when the package was intercepted by the police.

Mrs. Bennett sobbed as she told her story at the police station. When first approached, she flatly denied that she knew anything whatsoever about the theft. Several times in her conversation, when she felt inclined to reveal the truth, members of the family advised her to remain silent.

"I might as well tell it all," she finally burst out. "The police know it, and what is the use of keeping it still?"

Then Mrs. Bennett told of her son bringing the jewels to the house at 675 Jos. Campau avenue and of his hiding them in a ball of yarn.

"When Benjamin confessed, I did not know what to do with the jewels," she said. "I wanted to return them to Mrs. Bowd, and I though the best way to do it was to send them through the mails. I took the jewels down to my daughter's house, and we addressed them to Mrs. E. A. Bowd, care of the Normandie. Then I gave the package to my granddaughter, and she dropped it in the box.

"I wish that I had died twenty years ago and this disgrace would never have been brought upon us," the mother continued. "Ben has always been a good boy, and they may send him to the penitentiary," and she buried her face in her hands.

A few days ago Mrs. Bowd's husband offered a reward of $1,000 for the recovery of the missing valuables.

Carefully wrapped, sealed and addressed to a person whose name is being suppressed by the police, the diamonds stolen from Mrs. Bowd in the Hotel Normandie, July 30, were recovered from a mail box on Jefferson avenue by police detectives.

Bennet, the night porter at the hotel, after three times foiling members of the detective force, finally broke down and confessed the whole affair when he was shown the proofs that Messrs. Downey and Fox "had it on" him and that he would not be allowed to walk out of the station for the fourth time after being brought in on suspicion.

Charles Schneider, a bell boy at the hotel, has also been taken into custody and charged with complicity in the crime, though Bennett was the actual robber. Schneider, it is stated by the police, accepted some of the stolen property from Bennett.

May Rehabilitate Fort Mackinac.

Mackinac Island, Mich., Aug. 10.—Senator William Alden Smith has promised to have the war department rehabilitate old Fort Mackinac and garrison troops there. Predicated upon this, the business men have under consideration a proposition to bond the city to enough to seat from 3,000 to 4,000 persons. Senator Smith has already discussed this project with the war department. "It is the one historic spot in this country," he said, "that has been under three flags, and it should be preserved."

Fleet Officers Welcomed.

Auckland, N. Z., Aug. 10.—Admiral Sperry, commander in chief of the United States Atlantic fleet, and his officers received official welcome to Australasian waters today at the hands of Prime Minister Sir Joseph George Ward on behalf of the government. The landing was made at the newly erected quay at the foot of Queen street. Grouped about the prime minister were the members of the cabinet and other officials. Immense crowds saw the reception.

Four Children Die in Fire.

New York, Aug. 10.—Four children lost their lives and five persons were seriously injured in a fire which practically destroyed a five story tenement building on East One Hundred and Twelfth street this morning.

CRACK SHOTS.

Several National Guard Men Will Attend Contest at Camp Perry.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 10.—As a result of the trial shooting at Camp Wagner, the following members of the Michigan national guard were selected to compete in the annual national contest to be held at Camp Perry, Ohio: As regulars, Lieutenant B. Meade of Calumet, Private L. F. Parmley of Kalamazoo, Captain W. Kalinbach of Grand Rapids, Sergeant W. H. Canbay of Cheboygan, Captain Charles A. Howard of Grand Rapids, Captain P. Patterson of Sault Ste. Marie, Corporal Fred Houser of Ann Arbor, Private Frank Mie of Owosso, Lieutenent A. B. Farley and Sergeant E. A. Lampier of Kalamozoo, Captain C. A. Mathews of Sault Ste. Marie and Sergeant F. M. Saunders of Ishpeming; as alternates, Sergeant G. Breisford of Big Rapids, Lieutenant Charles Lahmann of Owosso and Lieutenant Daniel Parnell of Sault Ste. Marie were selected.

The team will practice here until Aug. 19, when they will depart for Camp Perry. The following officers were elected: Team captain Brigadier General Carl A. Wagner; team coach, Colonel G. B. McCaughn of Owosso; range officers, Major Carl R. Stewart of Grand Rapids and Major H. H. Britton of Ypsilanti; team spotter, Major M. J. Phillips of Owosso.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Absent from home for ten years, Gerrit Brace, a cowboy, recognized his parents in the audience when a wild west show exhibited in Muskegon, and a happy reunion followed.

The expense to Oakland county of the trial of two liquor cases last week was more than $900. James Simon of Rochester was not acquitted, but the jury disagreed. B. V. Woodward of Pontiac was acquitted.

Leland is to have a Chautauqua course beginning Monday, Aug. 17 and closing Saturday, Aug. 22. S. E. Blackwood, who has had charge of the details, has secured exceptionally high talent, and if this course meets with success, it will be an annual feature, these Chautauqua assemblies being held in but few points in the state.

W. B. Warren, fifty-eight years, a city employe of Battle Creek, was probably fatally injured by being struck by a Grand Trunk passenger train. Warren was walking on the double track right-of-way and thought the train was approaching on another track than the one he was walking on. His right arm and his hip were broken, and he is believed to have received internal injuries that may cause death.

Two Police Officers Murdered.

Methuen, Mass., Aug. 10.—Covered with bruises, indicating that they had been beaten to death in the performance of their duties, the bodies of Charles H. Emerson and Frank McDermott, members of the Methuen police department, were found on the outskirts of this town after a search of several hours. The two officers were sent out at night in an effort to catch petty marauders. It is believed that while the two officers were following the man or men they suspected of thieving, they were attacked from ambush.

Roosevelt Will Aid Farmer.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 10.—With a view to bringing about better social, sanitary and economic conditions on American farms, President Roosevelt has requested four experts on country life to make an investigation in the whole matter and report to him with recommendations for improvements. The report and recommendations with any additional recommendations which the president himself may desire to make, will be incorporated in a message which the president will send to congress probably early next year.

Lad Killed by Cave-in.

Albion, Mich., Aug. 10.—Harry Greenman, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Tate Greenman of this city, lost his life, and his two little playmates, Roland Greenman, a cousin, and Floyd Merritt, narrowly escaped the same fate as the result of a cave-in at a gravel pit, where they were at play. An overhanging ledge of earth became loosened and fell upon the lads. Workmen rushed to the rescue and succeeded in uncovering Roland Greenman and the Merritt boy at once.

Willieboy's Wading...

By LULU JOHNSON.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Willieboy was having the time of his young life. He had made the startling discovery that the joys of wading through the water without getting his feet wet were as nothing to the greater joy of wading through water which came over the top of the rubber boots.

The cold water was refreshing to feet tired and burning from the double heat of thick felt lining and impervious rubber. Then, too, the gurgling sound produced by the movement of the foot within the boot and the pull of the water as he pushed forward—each was a separate joy.

This joy, alas, was threatened with extermination by the unexpected approach of his sister. Willieboy turned his back upon the shore and affected a deep absorption in the expanse of the lake.

It was barely possible that Nell might not recognize him if he kept his back turned. So he stared out over the lake with an intenseness that proved his undoing, for his sister was attracted by the motionless little figure and stopped to see what held the child's attention for so long.

Both she and Arthur Bannister paused and strained their eyes in an endeavor to discover what the interesting object might be, and, failing to see anything unusual in the appearance of the lake or the general view, they turned their attention to the small figure.

Detection would have been instantaneous if Willieboy had not taken the precaution to exchange coats with a neighbor boy early in the morning.

More than once the ruse had led to escape in some adventure, since the owner of the coat was able to prove an alibi. This time it proved futile, however, and Willieboy's own indiscretion proved his undoing.

Peeping from the corner of his eye, he saw that the lake shore as far as the next turn was deserted, and unwisely he decided that Nell and Arthur had passed around the curve and out of sight.

He was chuckling at his own cleverness when the smile froze upon his lips, for as he turned he confronted his sister, whose voice rose in shrill command that he come out at once.

"Won't," declared Willieboy.

"You'll get a whipping if you don't come out this instant," said Nell firmly.

Willieboy smiled knowingly as he shook his head. Whether he came or not, punishment was now inevitable, so he might as well enjoy his fun to the utmost before he came forth to be soundly thrashed.

"You'll catch your death of cold," warned Nell, and Willieboy smiled afresh. The home treatment for colds was a delicious compound in which molasses figured largely, and Willieboy enjoyed having colds, even at the cost of pain in the throat and a feeling as though Maggie had put a flatiron on his chest.

"Are you coming?" demanded Nell as Willieboy's smile widened.

"No," said Willieboy, with impolite brevity.

"If I have to come and get you"—warned Nell.

Willieboy was moved to unseemly mirth and even Arthur smiled beneath his mustache at the idea of Nell in her pretty spring frock wading into the muddy waters of the lake after her truant brother.

But Willieboy was again his own undoing, for his calm defiance now moved Nell to tears, and Bannister slipped off his coat.

"William," he thundered, "if you don't come ashore this instant I'll come after you!"

Willieboy eyed him for an instant as though to size up his determination, and the delay was fatal, for without another word Bannister strode into the water.

Slowly Willieboy backed away until he reached the edge of the bank beyond, where the bottom shelved sharply downward. There was a cry from Nell, an exclamation from Bannister, and Willieboy went over backward into the deep water of the channel.

Down, down he went, the boots preventing his rising again to the top, and the cry of terror which he sought to voice became a mere bubble before it reached the surface. Then he felt something strike him, a hand grasped his collar, and Willieboy knew no more until he woke in his own little bed at home and looked up into his mother's eyes, red rimmed from weeping.

"Did he get me?" demanded Willieboy. His mother nodded.

"Arthur always gets what he goes after," said Willieboy contentedly. "If he'd waited I was coming in."

The boy dropped off to sleep again. But Nell, coming down the hall, heard the words, and she flushed softly. Arthur Bannister had a habit of getting what he wanted. At times it seemed to Nell as if he wanted her, and the thought brought a soft flush to her cheeks and a happy smile to her lips.

But in the days that followed the rescue of Willieboy it seemed as if Bannister had changed his mind, for, though he was a frequent caller and his eyes glowed with admiration as they rested upon Nell, he did not speak the words that hovered upon his tongue.

Still more significant was the fact that he no longer maneuvered to rid himself of the presence of Willieboy when that trouble brewer appeared upon the scene.

One afternoon the boy was sitting upon Bannister's lap as the latter waited for Nell to come downstairs, and with the curiosity of youth Willieboy was pursuing his investigations. The recent rescue of a pretty girl from the lake and a subsequently announced engagement between the rescued and rescuer had roused the boy's curiosity.

"We can't be engaged, can we?" demanded the child.

"Not very well," admitted Bannister, with a laugh.

"But you saved me," persisted the boy. "We ought to be engaged! Why don't you be engaged to Nell instead? That would be nicer."

For an instant Bannister forgot that he was speaking to a child.

"That was a bad day's work for me, Willieboy. I'm glad I saved you, but now my hands—and tongue—are tied."

"Willieboy!"

The child started at the odd note in his sister's voice. "Don't bother Mr. Bannister any longer," she continued. And as Willieboy fled Bannister sprang to his feet, with a glad light in his eyes. He knew that she had heard and understood. Willieboy's rescue did not stand between them, after all.

A WALPOLE ANECDOTE.

To Save the Woman's Life She Couldn't Recall Who Told It.

"I heard a very funny story the other night about Horace Walpole," said Mrs. Blake. "I wish I could remember who told it. Henry, can you remember? Was it Mr. Sellers?"

"No," said Blake stiffly; "it wasn't Sellers."

"I wonder if it could have been Mr. Windsor?"

"No," repeated Blake; "it wasn't Windsor."

Before Mr. Blake had a chance to express an affirmative or negative opinion of that hazard as to the source of the Walpole anecdote Mr. Barton came in. Mrs. Blake, being by that time sure of herself, tried on him her recipe for winning universal affection.

"Oh, Mr. Barton," she said, "I am very glad to see you. I have hardly stopped laughing since I saw you the last time."

Mr. Barton, a cadaverous man with solemn eyes, looked rather foolish.

"Indeed?" he said. "May I ask what about?"

"Over that funny story you told about Horace Walpole," said Mrs. Blake.

"M-m-m—Horace Walpole?" stammered Mr. Barton. "I am afraid you must have got me mixed up with somebody else. I don't know the first thing about Horace Walpole, and if I did know anything funny about him I couldn't tell it. To tell a funny story is beyond my powers. Even if it was funny to start with it wouldn't be by the time I got through with it."

Mrs. Blake's spirits were somewhat dashed by her fiasco in finding an owner for the Walpole story, but she bore up courageously, and later when Mr. Markham came in she drew him out of earshot of Mr. Barton and dilated on the pleasure his story of Horace Walpole had given her. Mr. Markham was not cast in the funeral mold that gave to Mr. Barton his grave aspect, but he protested himself totally incapable of telling a funny story about Horace Walpole or anything else.

"For the love of the Lord," he said, "don't make a fool of yourself again by trying to get some other idiot in there to father that Walpole story. I told you that yarn myself."

Mrs. Blake stood still, with carving knife poised in air.

"You?" she said incredulously. "And it was so clever too."—New York Times.

ELIJAH AND THE RAVENS.

A Story Which Did Not Fit This Particular Minister's Case.

North Carolina probably never produced an abler preacher than Dr. Francis L. Hawkes, who once was pastor of Grace Episcopal church, New York. Short, thick set, swarthy, black eyed and black haired, he was a striking personage. He was not only a great pulpit orator, but considered the best reader in the New York episcopacy. His rather luxurious family deterred him from accepting a bishopric, which would have otherwise been tendered. One day a delegation from a Buffalo church waited upon him and invited him to accept a pastorate in that city.

"Well, gentlemen, other things being satisfactory, the question of acceptance narrows down to a business matter," said Dr. Hawkes. "What salary do you offer?"

"Dr. Hawkes," said the spokesman, "we recognize that you have a high reputation and are willing to be liberal. Our recent pastor received $2,500, but on account of your standing we have decided to offer you $3,500."

"My good man," cried the doctor, "do you know what salary I am receiving here?"

"No, sir."

"I get $15,000 and this parsonage, and, as I have an expensive family, I do not see my way clear to accept your offer."

The spokesman looked rather sheepish, but made another essay.

"If we had known that, sir, we would undoubtedly have looked elsewhere, but you should remember that the work of the Lord must be done, and, as for providing for your family, you know the story of Elijah and the ravens."

"Now, my friends," responded the clergyman quizzically, "I have made the Bible my study ever since I was twenty-eight. I have read it through carefully and prayerfully over 100 times. I remember the raven incident perfectly, but nowhere can I find any reference to the Lord's providing for young Hawkes."

Both Guilty.

The man who prided himself on his keen perceptions watched the witness on the stand with intensity and nodded his head vigorously at the closing words of the bewildered witness.

"That man's concerned in it," said the keen observer to his friend. "Didn't you notice how his eyes shifted around?"

"How about this next one?" inquired the friend.

"He's guilty of something," asserted the keen observer. "No man stares at people in that bold, defiant way if he has a clear conscience."—Youth's Companion.

A FRIGHT IN MIDAIR

Going Up in a Balloon and Coming Down in a Parachute.

THE AGONY OF A FIRST TRIP

Experience and Sensations of an Acrobat Who Took the Place of a Professional Aeronaut in an Emergency. The Dash Through Space.

I once went up in a balloon and came down in a parachute. Something went wrong, and all the money in the world doubled would not induce me to make the experiment again.

One grows strangely accustomed to dangers as an acrobat, and when it was suggested that I should earn $25 in as many minutes by taking the place of a parachutist who had fallen ill at the last minute I jumped at the chance.

It was at a large country fair. The laughing crowd had probably never seen a balloon go up. As the great silk bag gradually swelled a silence fell upon the onlookers.

The sick parachutist's manager patted me on the back and said it was money easily earned. I agreed then.

"Keep cool," he said, "and, whatever you do, don't look down except to judge your distance from the earth. You see that tower? It is about a thousand yards away. When you are that distance up pull the check string and shut your eyes."

A dull murmur rose as the ropes were cast off and I felt my feet leave the ground. The upward movement was gentle, and a great cheer came up to me until the band drowned it.

I hardly heard the cheering or the band. The involuntary murmur still rang in my ears. Perhaps my nerves were upset, possibly it was intuition, but from the moment I was drawn up from the ground I felt the conviction that grim trouble lay ahead.

Ignoring the oft repeated instructions, I looked down. How slowly the balloon went up! Could it be possible that I had not gone more than a hundred yards? The giant overhead became a living thing, intent on torturing the puny mortal who had trusted his life to it. I knew I dared not leap before I was high enough, for the parachute takes 100 feet sometimes to open.

I shut my eyes and tried to count to kill time, but the figures became jumbled, and I looked down again. A swallow skimmed past underneath. Far below there was a sea of upturned faces, and the music floated up distinctly. The balloon seemed to have stopped rising, and for an eternity I tried to gauge the height.

Again the band stopped, and I was in a silent world. The crowd of breathless specks far beneath was getting full value for its money. The only noise I heard was the beating of the blood through my head. I was afraid. It was the first real fear I had ever felt in my work.

When the supreme moment came I pulled the string without realizing what I was doing.

What years I lived in those next few seconds. An appalling nausea and a wild desire to live came with the first terrible rush, and my heart stood still as I looked eagerly aloft. The ropes of the parachute had twisted, and I was falling to instant death.

Grasping the ropes in a clutch of steel, I shook them frantically. Half the huge parachute bellied out with a noise like a pistol shot, and the speed of the fall was lessened with a jar.

Again I shook the death trap. The ropes were sliding at a snail's pace, and bit by bit the parachute was opening. Still I fell far too fast. I could not breathe, and my hands seemed to be refusing to hold on.

Bang! The last fold had opened out, and I was saved. Dizzy and numb with fear, I held on tightly, wondering whether I should faint before I touched the ground. That, and that only, was my thought as I sailed through the space. I had almost lost consciousness when my feet touched the ground gently. And then I collapsed.—Buffalo Times.

A Drawback.

"My!" exclaimed little Billy as he gazed at the lithograph. "I'd like to be a giraffe. Just think how easily you could 'rubber' over the baseball fence."

"That's all right," replied Tommy, "but there is another time when you wouldn't want to have a neck like a giraffe."

"When is that?"

"Why, in the mornings when your ma begins to scrub your neck with soap and water."—Chicago News.

Objectionable.

"I don't see why Goodley should be so unpopular with you all. He never speaks ill of any one."

"No, but he's one of those very smug fellows who can say 'Oh, yes, Jones seemed very happy when I saw him last,' and say it in such a way as to give the impression that Jones was horribly drunk."—Philadelphia Press.

A Spoiled Compliment.

Little Elmer—Mamma says you are a duck of a doctor. Pompous M. D. (greatly pleased)—Indeed! How did she come to say that? Little Elmer—Oh, she didn't say it just that way, but I heard her tell papa you were a quack.—Chicago News.

Ruskin's injunction to his servants: "Call me from my study whenever there is a beautiful sunset or any unusual appearance in the sky or landscape."

Cost of Courtesy.

The adage "Courtesy costs nothing" would if true offer sufficient reason to insure its observance by practically every member of the commercial community, it being fairly obvious to most of us that courtesy is an excellent lubricant for the machinery in business. To be always courteous in business, however, requires a very considerable expenditure of mental effort, which very few of us are capable of sustaining at all times.—Magazine of Commerce.

Bismarck's Love of Nature.

Speaking of the country and the long walks he took daily, Bismarck said he loved nature, but the amount of life he saw awed him, and it took a great deal of faith to believe that an "all seeing eye" could notice every living atom when one realized what it meant. "Have you ever sat on the grass and examined it closely? There is enough life in one square yard to appall you," he said.—Lady Randolph Churchill.

MAN SHOULD NOT DIE

There Is No Physiological Reason For Death.

THE BODY IS SELF RENEWING

Perfect Diet and Mode of Living Would Insure Exact Balance Between Bodily Waste and Renewal and Would Mean Physical Immortality.

"The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death," said the Scriptures, yet if some man attempted seriously to reassert this ancient truth today we would look upon him as a mad prophet indeed. Yet the time will come when men will be able to believe this promise of the Bible, although they may never see it literally fulfilled.

Death some day will be acknowledged to be as unnatural in the economy of the creative plant as are sin and suffering. But whether or not in some millennium period mortal man will be able to forego the gross process of physical dissolution in becoming a spiritual body is a purely metaphysical question that does not enter here. What does interest us is the question, occupying the greatest scientific minds today, whether the body as such cannot be retained in perfect condition indefinitely.

Thomas J. Allen, M. A., LL. D., writing in a similar strain, says: "The human body is not like a machine which must wear out by constant disintegration, for it is self renewing. It is a simple, scientific fact that we get an entirely new body every few years, estimated at from three to seven. Every day is a birthday, for the process of waste and renewal never ceases. Perfect balance betwen elimination and renewal would avoid permanent waste."

There is no doubt that when we become more enlightened and understand perfectly the laws that govern and determine our physical lives and when we conform to these religiously life will be immeasurably prolonged.

The decay of the body as evidenced in old age is unnatural. The aesthetic within us recoils in merely contemplating its approach. We feel that there must be something self perpetrative in the change when the strong color in a healthy man and the fresh beauty in a pure woman take their departure, when the bloom on the cheeks fade, when the brilliant light within the eyes grows dim and the full, red lips become pale and fallen.

Medical science has pointed out the physiological cause of these conditions. Probably the time will come when it will be able to point out the manner of avoiding them.

We know that the body grows old because of the existence of an imperfect balance between the waste which the body accumulates and the amount it is able to throw off. During youth the balance is perfect, because the body has more than its normal vitality and strength to throw off the waste matter, but as we grow older this perfect balance becomes destroyed from one cause or another.

The strength that should go to eliminating impurities from the body is not husbanded, but rather squandered in different ways. Then, too, we eat and drink those things that cause excessive waste. An impure diet composed of foods containing uric acid, such as meat, or of drinks containing poisons, such as tea and coffee, taxes the eliminative powers, and when the time comes when these give way a state of imperfect elimination has set in, and the wastes in part are deposited in the system, settling in the arteries and joints of the body and accumulating until they become obstructive elements.

The blood stream circulates imperfectly, and when once this condition exists bad functioning of every organ of the body results, and old age and death gradually ensue.

Mind, too, has a great deal to do in hastening or retarding the unpleasant signs of physical decay. Mental science has satisfactorily demonstrated that mean, narrow, selfish and unpleasant thoughts act destructively on the tissues of the body, while thoughts of a wholesome and positive character act constructively.

And when the curtains of "the windows of the soul" are drawn, when the temple's door is closed and a final silence is within, when the spirit passes the threshold to take up a newer and finer edifice of its own creation, science assures us that the body lives on. Here at least physical immortality is an assured fact.

Theology has irreligiously taught us that the body returns to inanimate dust. The religious answer of science is that it returns to God. The latest word in the field of biology is that all nature, including the all mother soil, is animated and hallowed with the divine principle of life.

More than this, matter is indestructible and eternal. There is not an atom that can be lost in all the universe. For this reason our bodies do not really die. They are in the care of the angels of the elements.

The peculiar cellular arrangement that formed them into a beautiful body may be caused to disintegrate through the action of the oxygen upon it, time may change the position of the atoms composing it, but the latter still contain within themselves the sacred and eternal principle of life as much as does the soul, and they exist only to enter into new and perhaps more beautiful combinations of life.—Health.

The Devil's Advocate.

In connection with the Roman Catholic ceremony of canonization there is an official called "the devil's advocate." When the church is ready to proceed with the steps preliminary to the canonization, an able man is appointed to assail the memory of the candidate and to bring against him all possible charges, which the other side must satisfactorily dispose of. This accuser is known as the "devil's advocate," and not until he is silenced by the disproof of his charges can the canonization be accomplished.

They Own the Soft Impeachment.

In an address to the Canadian club in Montreal, Mr. James Bryce said: "I do not think it would be advisable for me to say much, for I have the good fortune to be a Scotchman myself. I won't pursue the theme of what contributions Scotchmen should be able to make to Canada's literature and science, for the very simple reason which was given by a friend of mine, who said, 'I never argue with Scotchmen that they are a great nation—they admit it.'"

Flint won the second game of the series today by a score of 4 to 3.

The game was an exciting one throughout but Weeder had a little the best of it, the Indians being unable to get on to his curves. Shippy featured with several fine plays, especially a fine running catch.

Doty was in the box for the Indians but was batted hard by the visitors. Krapp started the ball rolling for Flint in the second inning when he drove the ball in to the left garden. It bounded over the fence thus giving Krapp a home run. Flint scored two again in the third on Weeder's single, a sacrifice, Doty's error, Fulton's single, a wild pitch and an outfield fly and one in the sixth on Hildebrand's double and Krapp's single.

The Indians scored one in the third when Shippy singled, stole second and scored on Weeder's error; again in the sixth on Streeter's single and Fox's two bagger. Score:

The Indians won from Lansing Sunday by a score of 10 to 6. Holmquist was in the box for the Indians and after allowing five runs for the Senators in the second inning settled down and not another hit was registered against him during the game. Lansing won two games from the Indians yesterday, the first by a score of 5 to 1 and the second by a score of 3 to 2. Hughey pitched splendid and was never in danger. Lagoe started to pitch for Tecumseh but was replaced by Brannick before the first inning was completed. Fox featured with a running catch Pierce and Lagoe were the opposing pitchers in the second game. In the ninth inning after being called out at third on an attempted steal, Fox attempted to assault the umpire and was taken from the grounds by the police but was later released. Fox featured in the second game with a home run.

MAD STEER

Made Things Lively at Clinton.

For two days past McAdam & Co. had been trying to drive a steer from the Gadd farm, north of Clinton, to their slaughter house, but to no avail. Tuesday the animal got away and returned home, and Wednesday broke the rope and in a mad condition made things lively in town. Mason Richmond was walking down town Wednesday afternoon with a bundle under his arm and not seeing the animal started to cross Litchfield street on Jackson street, when the infuriated steer, which was resting under a large tree in Alonzo Mills' yard, made a dive for him. He was missed, however, but badly frightened, and with shrieks of horror everyone left the street. The animal was finally placed in Richmond's barn.

MIDSUMMER MEETING TOWN FEDERATION CLUB.

At Howland Cottage Sand Lake.

Two loads and some private conveyances were well filled with club folks, and forty ladies sat down to a picnic dinner, three tables being twice laid for them.

After dinner, and a short business meeting, the ladies were invited to the hotel dance hall, where Mrs. Fred Wood kindly arranged a little musical program for their entertainment.

Several fine numbers were given—Mr. Ellsworth Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Krone of Richmond, Ind., and Mrs. Watts of Adrian forming a new quartet whose singing was enjoyed by about a hundred people from the nearby cottages. It was an appreciative audience and many encores were responded to in solos and duets.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in visiting and boating and all voted it a very enjoyable occasion.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. John F. Hicks, November 7.

ROUND ABOUT US.

Leon Peterson, a 9-year-old Brooklyn boy, went into the pond below the Jefferson mill last Wednesday and pulled out Elizabeth Bessey, a 13-year-old girl, who was drowning.—Onsted News.

The sale of the cement plant took place as advertised Tuesday and was purchased by John W. Bennett of Ann Arbor. The whistle of the plant sounded for the first time in several months, a few hours after the sale closed.—Saline Observer.

On Friday someone shot a horse belonging to Chas. Mudge, living on the Pentecost farm near Devils lake. The animal ran as far as Pentecost village before it finally dropped in its tracks. The officers are investigating to find out who shot the animal and arrests may follow.—Adrian Times.

Lightning during Tuesday nights storm struck the barn of Mrs. G. J. Nisly, tore off some shingles, but did not fire the building. At the farm of Francis Gould south of town, a bolt came down near the house and tore a new lawn swing which was standing under a large tree, all to bits, but did no damage to tree or anything else. Several barns in the northwest part of the county were burned.—Saline Observer.

While threshing was in progress on the farm of Charles Smith in London township last Friday, the strawstack caught fire from the engine and soon spread to the barn, destroying it, with contents, consisting of about 20 tons of hay, a new binder, etc. It being very dry, the fire spread rapidly and was soon blazing in an adjoining field. The wind was in the opposite direction at the time and the house was saved. The loss was about $1,000.—Milan Leader.

Ward Lyons, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Lyons and a grandson of Ex-Supervisor Harshman, was struck on the head by a pitched ball during the game here Saturday. At the time he did not appear to be much hurt and resumed his place in the game until the finish. During Saturday night, however, he got worse and his condition became serious, causing great anxiety to the family and his numerous friends. He is improving at present, however.—Petersburg Sun.

Backward, turn backward, oh, time in your flight; make me a kid again, just for tonight; with the freckles and warts I possessed long ago, and the dear little stone bruise that grew on my toe. Give me back my old bite with its dog-fennel ball, for the kind I fly now always lands me in jail. Back to the river once more let me roam till the gloaming arrives, and when I get home take me out in the woodshed and there let me dance to the tune father played on the seat of my pants.—Ripley, O., Bee.

Deputy Sheriff Shaw, in company with Sheriff Cooper of Hudson, left Monday evening for Joliet, Ill., to see about Mr. Stone, who endeavored to pass a bogus check upon one of the merchants in town, and who succeeded in passing a check on a merchant at Hudson. He tried the same game in Joliet and was taken into custody. The officers from here identified him as the man they wanted, but were obliged to wait until he had a hearing and had served his time there. Sheriffs Shaw and Cooper returned yesterday.—Bliss field Advance.

While seated on the top of the stage coach with the driver during a trip from Silverton to Ouray a few years ago, a young easterner became exceedingly nervous. As they were traveling along a hillside, with a ravine several hundred feet deep within a couple of feet of the road, the young tenderfoot suddenly turning to the driver, asked: "Do people fall over there very often?" A broad grin spread over the driver's face as he rolled his wad of tobacco from one cheek to the other, and, looking up with a merry twinkle in his eye, exclaimed: "Naw; only once."—Ex.

Carlton, the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. James Runciman had a narrow escape from death and was seriously injured in a runaway Wednesday. He was doing some work with a team and had stepped onto the wagon tongue when he slipped and fell at the horses heels. This caused them to kick and run, and Carlton was struck on the head and neck by their flying hoofs several times. The wagon, which was a heavy farm one, ran over him, and he was dragged nearly thirty rods before the team was stopped. His injuries consist of a number of broken ribs and many bruises, and it will be quite a little time before he will be able to be about.—Chelsea Standard.

Wednesday afternoon Misses Lena and Mabel Lockwood, Ila O'Dell and Orman Babcock had an experience they do not wish to repeat. They went over back of Charles Patterson to wade in Evans Creek, where the water as they supposed was shallow. Mr. Patterson heard one of the children scream in a little while and ran to the water, in time to see Lena Lockwood and Ila O'Dell going down the second time. He rescued both of them as they came up, however, and found they had fallen into a hole 13 feet deep. The girls were pretty well scared.

OBITUARY

EDMOND WILLIAMSON.

Well Known Resident of Tecumseh Dead.

Edmond Williamson, a well known and respected citizen of Tecumseh died Sunday morning at 7 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. James Potter. He has been ill for several weeks and although the end was sudden it had been expected. Death was due to erterio felericos. Mr. Williamson was 83 years old and is survived by only one child at whose home he died, when his wife died several years ago he made his home with his daughter where he remained up to the time of his death.

The funeral will be held from the house Tuesday afternoon at 1:30, Rev. Ward officiating. Burial at Brookside.

ORSON AUSTIN.

Old Pioneer, Aged 90 Years, Dead.

Orson Austin, died Friday night at 8:30 of acute catarrhal gastritis, aged 90 years. He was a soldier of 1860-'65 in the 1st. Mich. Light Artillery, Co F. He was a man of excellent habits and sturdy constitution and continued to be active in his accustomed pursuits until long past the age at which men ordinarily drop out of the ranks of the workers. The funeral was held from the home of Mr. Crosby, in the east part of town, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock under the auspices of the G. A. R. with burial at Brookside. Rev Ward officiated. He leaves three sons of Wisconsin to mourn his death.

MRS. NOEL AVERY.

Mrs. Noel Avery, a former resident of this place died last week of cancer. She lived here about a year ago with her daughter Mrs. May Gould. They moved to Harrison, Clare county where she lived at the time of her death.

Hog Went Mad.

A hog belonging to Milburn Keysor, who resides in the west part of town, went mad Sunday, and had to be shot. A few weeks ago Mr. Keysor had a large hog die and it is thought it was mad. When this one commenced to act peculiar a veterinary was called who declared the animal was mad and it was shot at once.

New Commercial School.

The Commercial and Short-hand department of Hillsdale College will open September 8, in rooms expressly constructed for commercial classes, under the principalship of Prof. M. T. Skinner, who has had the best of training and wide experience in organizing and administering Commercial schools. Mrs. L. W. REMINISCENCES

Written by Mrs. C. A. Stacy, of the Naming of Tecumseh and Her First Fourth Spent Here.

In reading Mrs. E. B. Wood's interesting history of the early settlements of Tecumseh reminds me of many incidents that occurred after my coming twelve years after the first settler, which I had nearly forgotten.

Her speaking of the discussion the settlers had regarding the fitness of the name Tecumseh, for the town, shows their decision to have been a very appropriate one, as he was not only a friendly Indian but was the chief of the tribe, who lived, hunted and died and was buried on these grounds where we now dwell, their burying ground being a part of the now Stacy farm, lying between the house and the creek.

In 1856-7 during the building of the house, in grading up the grounds and ploughing a ditch on the south side of the road for improvement of the lot and road, was raised a quantity of bones representing a race larger than anyone living here. Physicians were notified to come and see if they were worth saving. Drs. Baldwin, Patterson, Hamilton and Palmer decided they were worth preserving and took them away with the understanding that they should put up one skeleton for Mrs. Stacy to put in the garret of their new house, when it was finished.

The Drs. said the arm bones were two inches longer than James Eddy's the tallest man then living in the town.

Among the bones was found a piece of a blanket, some feathers and with them the bones of a dog which indicated that a chief's bones were among them, which was reasonable to suppose were the bones of Tecumseh himself.

For many rods in front of the house and along the creek there is still a different sound of wagons passing, like the going over a bridge, doubtless, from the remaining bones still in the ground.

For a description of my first 4th of July in Tecumseh, I will refer to my diary of the date.

July 4, 1839. We had company from the east, uncle John Walker and cousin John Beckwith, also cousin Marvin Nash and wife. I was a good deal surprised the day before on seeing them drive up, to our gate accompanied by Alphonso, we had a good visit with them. They left about 9 o'clock a. m.

At 11 o'clock I went to the Episcopal church, where the people of Tecumseh met for the celebration. Then the most interesting part of the exercises were performed. After the ladies were all quietly seated in the body pews, the procession of gentlemen came in, seated themselves and the exercises commenced. First with sacred music by the choir, then a prayer was made by the Rev. M. Blood, followed by music by the Tecumseh Band. Mr. Champion then read the Declaration, music followed. An oration was delivered by Alphonso. The choir sung another selection and the exercises were closed by a benediction from the Rev. Mr. Pratt.

I then went with Alphonso to the Peninsular House and partook of an excellent dinner prepared by Mr. Blanchard

Not long after the party was politely requested to repair to the parlor where we saw married Mr. Charles Hewitt to Miss Mary Tibbitts.

In the evening we rejoined the party at the new Michigan House and took tea with them, spent sometime in the ball room and got home twenty minutes before the clock struck twelve.

It was the first celebration I ever attended in Michigan also the first I have ever had the pleasure of attending with Alphonso. I enjoyed myself well.

DIED.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry McClure died at their home this morning, aged one week.

SPECULATION MUST CEASE

There's a Sure Cure for Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds and Catarrh, so Why Should People Speculate.

Remember, Hyomei will cure the above named diseases or C. A. Wright & Son's drug store will give you your money back. Go to them and ask for a Hyomei outfit, which consists of a bottle of Hyomei (a very liberal supply) and a pocket inhaler that will last a life-time. The whole outfit only costs $1.00, and if at any time afterward you need another bottle of Hyomei to use with your inhaler, it will only cost you 50 cents. Ask them about it. They will recommend it.

"I think your Hyomei is a grand medicine; it has done for me what doctors could not do, and I've tried everything. I had such a bad cough, and nothing I took did me any good. I tried your inhaler, and I never had anything help me so much or so quick. Wishing you long and prosperous lives, I remain, your true friend, Saba Sheline, Metz, Ind."

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are of en the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Men Past Sixty In Danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate gland and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am now 91 years old."

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Tecumseh People To Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Tecumseh.

S. Erskine, barber, living on Evans st., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "For ten years I was troubled with dull, dragging pains in my back, always more severe after hard work or if I lifted anything. I was also annoyed at night by the too frequent action of the kidneys which caused me to get up a great number of times, thus greatly disturbing my rest. The secretions were highly colored and deposited a great deal of sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally brought to my attention and I began taking them. They did me a world of good and I felt better and stronger than I had for a long time. I hope others having kidney trouble will try Doan's Kidney Pills and receive the same results as I did."

A CHEMICAL FURY.

The fury of the chemical world is the element fluorine, although, strangely enough, it exists peacefully in company with calcium in fluorspar and also in a few other compounds.

Although this element was known and named a good while ago, it long resisted the efforts of chemists to isolate it—that is, prepare it in a pure state, unmixed chemically with other substances—for the instant the compound containing it was torn apart the free fluorine attacked and combined with whatever substance composed the vessel containing it. It was finally isolated by the great French chemist Moissan.

Fluorine is a rabid gas that nothing can resist. It combines with all metals, explosively with some, or if they are already combined with some other nonmetallic element it mercilessly tears them away from it and takes them to itself.

In uniting with sodium, potassium, calcium, magnesium and aluminium the metals become heated, even to redness, by the fervor of its embrace. Iron filings slightly warm burst into brilliant scintillations when exposed to it. Manganese does the same. Even the noble metals, which at melting heat proudly resist the fascinations of oxygen, succumb to this chemical siren at moderate temperatures.

Glass is devoured at once and water ceases to be water by contact with this gas, which, combined with its hydrogen, at the same moment forms the acrid, glass dissolving hydrofluoric acid and liberates ozone.

Glaciers.

It has been demonstrated that the glacier does not move in one block, but flows, accommodating itself to the channel in which it moves. Professor Tyndall planted a row of sticks in a straight line across a glacier, and after a few days the line had become a crescent, with the concavity upward, showing that the middle of the glacier moved faster than the sides, just as in a river the stream is stronger in the center.

Nervous Break-Down

Nerve energy is the force that controls the organs of respiration, circulation, digestion and elimination. When you feel weak, nervous, irritable, sick, it is often because you lack nerve energy, and the process of rebuilding and sustaining life is interfered with. Dr. Miles' Nervine has cured thousands of such cases, and will we believe benefit if not entirely cure you. Try it.

"My nervous system gave away completely, and left me on the verge of the grave. I tried skilled physicians but got no permanent relief. I got so bad I had to give up my business. I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. In a few days I was much better, and I continued to improve until entirely cured. I am in business again, and never miss an opportunity to recommend this remedy." MRS. W. L. BURKS, Myrtle Creek, Oregon.

Your druggist sells Dr. Miles' Nervine, and we authorize him to return price of first bottle (only) if it fails to benefit you.

The operation lasted over an hour but when completed proved to be a mass of fibre, decayed, and the sac about the size of a bean. His eyes having troubled him for sometime it was feared that he would be blind. But now his eyes are already better. Since writing we have learned that another abscess or tumor has been found and the operation will be done to-day in Ann Arbor.

While Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup is especially recommended for children, it is, of course, just as good for adults. Children like to take it because it tastes nearly as good as maple sugar. Its laxative principle drives the cold from the system by a gentle, natural, yet copious action of the bowels. Sold by all druggists.

How to Cure Your Piles

Due Often To Carelessness or Neglect and Stubborn to Cure

"The knife is not always necessary to cure even desperate cases of piles," says a physician whose years and experience make him an authority. "Indeed," he says further, "I have known some very aggravated cases of long standing cured by a simple home remedy that restored to the bowels easy natural daily movements."

And the doctor is right, as many letters from cured people in various parts of the country prove. If sufferers from piles, rectal tumors and ulcers would try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin they would often save themselves the terrible pain and danger and the heavy expense of a severe surgical operation.

Piles are often due to constipation and are always aggravated by it. Easy natural movements of the bowels such as are invariably produced by this famous laxative without pain or gripe do much to restore a normal, healthy condition to the bowels and thus cure piles.

M. H. Miller, Mowequa, Ill., says: "I have been troubled all my life with piles brought on by constipation. I tried many doctors and numerous remedies, but found no relief until I used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I have used it as a laxative and stomach remedy for the past nine years and have no more trouble with piles." H. N. John, Minneapolis, Kan., says he suffered for four years with piles which were so bad that he could not work. Four bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin cured him, and he says he has not been bothered since.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a safe sure remedy for constipation, restoring easy natural daily movements in the worst old chronic cases, yet so mild and pleasant to take mothers give it to their babies with splendid results. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Pepsin Syrup Co., 202 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill., will send a free sample to anyone who has not used it and will give it a fair trial.

Prepare For G. A. R. Encampment.

Toledo, O., Aug. 10.—With the location, just made, of the department of Oregon, the entire forty-four departments of the Grand Army of the Republic now have headquarters in this city for the forty-second national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic to be held here Aug. 31 to Sept. 5. The reports from departments show that about 30,000 men, who average sixty-seven years of age, will be in the line of parade.

Catholic Socities in Convention.

Boston, Aug. 10.—With a solemn high mass sung in the cathedral of the Holy Cross, the seventh national convention of the American Federation of Catholic Societies opened in this city. There were fully 3,000 people in attendance at the religious services. The sermon was delivered by the archbishop of the diocese, Most Rev. William H. O'Connell, D. D., and seated in the sanctuary were Bishop James A. McFaul of Trenton, N. J., and Bishop Regis Canevin of Pittsburg, Pa., besides several monsignors and some fifty visiting priests from all parts of the country.

Her Mild Ambition.

"You expect your boy to become a good man?"

The mother's face fell.

"He is not a brilliant child," she made answer doubtfully. "No, I think I shall have to be content if he attains only a moderate success—becomes a very rich man, say, or something like that."—Puck.

A Scratch.

"How does Mrs. Sleigh get on in the club?"

"Oh, she always comes up to the scratch."

"Of course she does—the cat!"—Kansas City Newsbook.

TWO AUTOISTS KILLED.

Machine Went Over Embankment Near Toledo.

Toledo, O., Aug. 10.—When an automobile plunged over a steep embankment on the Mitchaw road, two and a half miles west of Sylvania, Charles W. Pohlmann, a wealthy Cleveland importer and merchant tailor, and Father George Vahey, pastor of Columbkill's parish, Cleveland, were instantly killed beneath the car. Mrs. Pohlmann, her daughter, Florence, and F. C. Dietzel, a Cleveland dentist, were in the touring car, but were saved from injury by the high back of the tonneau.

The automobile landed at the bottom of the embankment, bottom side up. The priest's head was crushed between the edge of the car and a huge stone. Mr. Pohlmann, who was driving the machine, was entangled in the steering gear, the wheel crushing into his chest. Death came to Father Vahey instantly, and Mr. Pohlmann lived less than a minute. Pohlmann's neck was probably broken and his chest crushed.

F. C. Dietzel struggled from under the tonneau, assisted the women out and then examined the bodies of the two men in the front of the car. Realizing the men were dead, the dentist seated the women on the bank and ran half a mile to the home of Stephen Eley, where he found four or five men who were willing to return to the wreck with him. In the meantime Miss Pohlman had fainted, and she was carried to the Eley farmhouse and doctors summoned from Sylvania. Mrs. Pohlmann refused to leave the scene until the dead body of her husband was released from the wreck.

EACH SEEKS TAFT'S SUPPORT.

Faction Leaders In West Virginia Go to Him.

Hot Springs, W. Va., Aug, 10.—The acute Republican problem in West Virginia is being made the subject of a conference at Hot Springs. Both the Swisher and Scheer factions are represented. Swisher is the regular Republican nominee for governor, and Scheer is running for the same office at the head of an independent Republican faction. Each wing has made application for the support of the Republican national committee, and the pilgrimage to Mr. Taft's headquarters is for the purpose of getting a decision.

Efforts have been made by each faction while Mr. Taft has been here to get him to identify himself with one side or the other, but he has positively refused to become involved.

The matter of campaign arrangements for West Virginia is one which comes directly under the jurisdiction of Frank H. Hitchcock, who is expected to reach Hot Springs the first of this week. The delegation representing the state who are here includes Senators Elkins and Scott, Representatives Hughes and Gaines and Messrs. Swisher and Scheer.

BRYAN'S NOTIFICATION.

This Important Event Takes Place at Lincoln Wednesday.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 10.—For the third time in his political career, W. J. Bryan will be notified on Wednesday of his nomination for the presidency of the United States by the Democratic party. It will be the chief political event of the present week. The notification ceremonies will take place on the grounds of the state capitol here and will be attended by John W. Kern, Mr. Bryan's running mate; Norman E. Mack, chairman of the Democratic national committee; members of the notification committee, and many other prominent Democrats.

Congressman Henry D. Clayton, who was chairman of the convention at Denver which placed Mr. Bryan in nomination, will deliver the notification speech, to which Mr. Bryan will respond in a speech setting forth the issues of the campaign. Mr. Bryan will give a dinner to the notification committee in the evening.

Chairman Mack is expected here early in the week, immediately after a meeting of the various heads of the sub committees of the Democratic national committee at which tentative plans for the campaign will be formulated.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Ways and means of financing the Democratic campaign have just been discussed at length at a meeting of Chairman Mack of the national committee; Governor Charles N. Haskell of Oklahoma, treasurer of the committee; Colonel Moses C. Wetmore of St. Louis, chairman of the finance committee, and Millard Dunlap of Illinois, formerly treasurer of the national committee. No definite decision was reached, and the question of raising a fund of sufficient proportions to maintain an effective campaign will be brought at once for solution at a meeting of the various heads of the sub committees.

Some people only believe half of what they hear, and then invariably select the wrong half.—New York Telegram.

WONDERFUL SIGHTS VIEWED

Officers of the American Fleet Visit New Zealand's Wonders.

GUESTS OF PRIME MINISTER.

Attend Ceremonies of Opening of New Government Bath—Also Pay Visit to Assemblage of Maori Tribesmen. Natives Dance and Give Them Priceless Heirlooms.

Auckland, N. Z., Aug. 13.—Wonderful sights were seen by Rear Admiral Sperry and the contingent of officers of the American fleet, who spent today at Rotorua and adjacent places in the thermal district—New Zealand's wonderland it has been aptly named—as the guests of Prime Minister Ward and a delegation of members of parliament.

Besides attending the ceremonies incident to the opening of the new governmnt bath and receiving a hearty, though unique, welcome by a great assemblage of Maori tribesmen, an opportunity was afforded the Americans of visiting many of the strange freaks of nature in the neighborhood—great and small geysers, the roaring steam pit at Tikitere and the multicolored lakes of hot, cold and temperate water.

The village of the Maoris was also an attraction to many of the officers, who keenly enjoyed the sights they saw there. Even the nearby cemetery, where lie the bodies of many Europeans killed in the eruption of 1886, was not forgotten, for many of the Americans made respectful visits there.

After the ceremonies of inaugurating the new bath had been completed, the Maoris in large numbers, dressed in their weird costumes, greeted the American admiral and his officers. The Americans greatly enjoyed the strange scene and were charmed by the suppleness and grace of the dancers.

HELD FOR MURDER.

Hassin Nemmer, the Turk, Charged With Killing Shashem Boy.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—Hassin Nemmer has been held by a coroner's jury on the charge of murdering Tuffa Shashem, a Syrian lad, whose body was recovered piecemeal a fortnight ago from various places, including Mud lake and the drainage canal.

Witnesses told stories which pointed strongly toward the guilt of Nemmer. According to the testimony, he was a degenerate. He had threatened "to kill the Shashem family and drink its blood." Tuffa Shashem was last seen alive entering Nemmer's room. Nemmer on that night was seen in the place where the dismembered body was found later. He was carrying a bundle of considerable weight. Blood stains were found on articles in his room.

Nemmer is a Turk. He is also a devout Mussulman. Nemmer insists that he is innocent of the crime charged against him.

Six Killed by Gun Explosion.

Toulon, France, Aug. 13.—Six persons were killed and eighteen injured in a gun explosion aboard the gunnery school ship Courrenne, off Les Salins d'Hyeres. The accident occurred while a number of recruits were receiving instructions in handling a 164 millimeter gun, the breech of which blew out. Three of those wounded are in a desperate condition.

Armory Collapses; One Killed.

Calumet, Mich., Aug. 13.—The Calumet Light Guards' old armory fell, killing Otto Malli, aged forty-three, father of a family of three children. Three other men sustained painful injuries, but will probably recover.

PLUNGED ON WITH PILOT GONE

Grand Trunk Train Goes Miles Without Engineer.

HE HAD FALLEN FROM CAB.

Fireman Finally Discovers His Absence—Charles Strong Lies Unconscious in Battle Creek Hospital. Had Been in Grand Trunk Service Twenty-Five Years.

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 13.—Dashing along at the rate of sixty miles an hour, minus its engineer and with the fireman all unconscious of the terrible peril in which he and 300 passengers rode, the Grand Trunk flyer, eastbound, careened, guideless, for four miles.

Then the fireman discovered that no hand was on the throttle; that the engineer was lost. He threw on the air and brought the train to a stop.

Four miles back, his body broken and his head a frightful mass of wounds, lay Charles Strong, the engineer.

It was reported at Nichols hospital, whither he was removed, that he has a mere chance for his life. How the accident occurred is unknown, for Strong has never regained full consciousness.

The fireman gives the following detail:

"I went to the back of the tender to throw some big lumps of coal forward. Strong was up on his side of the cab, watching the track ahead.

"We had left Battle Creek behind and were approaching West Penfield, where there is an easy curve.

"Up on the coal pile, I braced myself for the curve. We took it as usual, and I went on with my work. When I finished, I went back to the cab—Strong was gone.

"He wasn't out on the runboard. He may have leaned out of the window or from the gangway to look for a hot box."

The flyer backed up until the engineer was found. He was carried to the nearest station and rushed in an undertaker's wagon to Battle Creek. His left arm and left leg are broken, one shoulder crushed and skull fractured.

He has been in the Grand Trunk service twenty-five years without an accident.

Veterans Forego Primaries.

Marshall, Mich., Aug. 13.—At the eighteenth annual reunion of the Calhoun county veteran battalion here Wednesday, over 200 old soldiers being present, it was voted to let the primary election, Sept. 1, go by default and accompany the department commandery of Michigan in a body to the national encampment at Toledo, Aug. 31, by special train, as escort to Department Commander Foote. Addresses at the camp fire Wednesday afternoon were made by Judge Winsor and Mayor Leedle of Marshall, Colonel O. A. Janes, Detroit; Captain E. P. Allen, Ypsilanti; Rev. C. E. Hoag, Battle Creek, and Congressman Townsend and Gardner.

Leaped Into the Sea.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 13.—Curtis M. Barker, son of K. C. Barker, mayor of Detroit when King Edward, then the Prince of Wales, visited this city a half century ago, has been drowned in California, in almost the exact manner in which his father met his death in local waters thirty-three years ago. Barker leaped from his yacht into the sea during a fit of mental derangement. He was out cruising, as his father had been more than a generation ago. The chief point of difference between the two accidents is that whereas the son jumped into the waves of his own accord, the father fell into the water during a stroke of apoplexy.

Train Struck Street Car.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 13.—A fast Grand Trunk passenger train, inbound, struck a Harper avenue street car at the track crossing of that street near Van Dyke road, outside the city limits. The car was smashed and the passengers hurled in every direction. The conductor and motorman of the car and four passengers were hurt, only one seriously. The engineer of the train was not hurt.

Will Take Thaw to Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Aug. 13.—Harry Kendall Thaw has been adjudged a bankrupt by Referee in Bankruptcy W. R. Blair. No date has been fixed for the first creditors' meeting. It is stated on the best authority that Thaw will be brought to his native city during the bankruptcy proceedings.

DEFINITELY DECIDED NOW.

Taft to Make No Speech Outside of Cincinnati.

WON'T TOUCH STATE AFFAIRS.

Republican Nominee Will Not Mix in Local Contentions—Secretary Wilson, Secretary Straus, Governor Hughes and Dr. John Wesley Will Deliver Addresses.

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 13.—"Everything was as harmonious as possible, and no one was laid across my knee and spanked."

This was W. H. Taft's genial remark in concluding a detailed account of his all day conference Wed- with Frank H. Hitchcock, Republican national chairman, and Arthur I. Vorys, his chief of staff.

Chairman Hitchcock announced after the first conference, which continued for three hours, that it could be stated in a formal and official manner that Mr. Taft would make no speeches outside the city of Cincinnati during the campaign. On his way from Hot Springs to Cincinnati, the last of the month, Mr. Taft will make a side trip in Ohio, the arrangements for which have been completed, but the details are withheld for the present. No political speeches will be made on this trip.

It was also officially announced that Mr. Taft would continue the policy he has already adopted and followed of not mixing in local political contentions in any state, or of taking any part whatever in behalf of any candidate for nomination for a state office. This announcement is intended as an answer, first, to the demand that Mr. Taft decide the merits of the contestants in the West Virginia split and, second, that he express a preference for or against Governor Hughes in the New York state gubernatorial situation. Taking up the narrative of the day's work, Mr. Taft said:

Maine and Vermont.

"We went over the situation in every state where it is recognized that a vigorous campaign must be made. Particular attention was given to Maine and Vermont, not because of any doubt as to the situation in these states, but because the election is held earlier than in other states. Governor Hughes, it was stated, undoubtedly would be one of the speakers in these two states, in addition to his acceptance of an invitation to open the Ohio campaign at Youngstown Sept. 5. Secretary James Wilson of the department of agriculture has consented to speak in Vermont and Maine, likewise Secretary Straus of the department of commerce and labor and Rev. Dr. John Wesley, pastor of the Metropolitan Temple, New York.

"We went over and discussed," continued Mr. Taft, "the distribution and division of work of the various bureaus of the national campaign organization. We discussed and arranged the details of the campaign in Ohio."

Between the two conference which were held with Mr. Taft, Mr. Hitchcock was closeted with Senators Elkins and Scott and Mr. Swisher, nominee for governor, all of West Virginia. Mr. Hitchcock listened to the situation as presented, but said he gave no indication of any action on his part.

Prominent Detroiter Dead.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 13.—Richard R. Elliott, historiographer of Detroit, and a resident of the city since 1834, is dead at his home, 57 Piquette avenue. He was nearly eighty-five years old.

Baldwin Meets With Mishap.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Captain T. S. Baldwin made the first official speed trial of his military dirigible before the army board at Fort Myer Wednesday. When within a mile of the finishing line, a secondary wire connecting the coil of the engine with the commutator broke, and the motor stopped. The accident prevented any possibility of making the speed required by the contract, but Captain Baldwin has two more trials in which to demonstrate its speed.

Plan to Receive Athletes.

New York, Aug. 13.—This city will take on a gala appearance the day the American Olympiad victors return. At a special meeting of the board of aldermen a resolution was adopted asking the mayor to issue a proclamation ordering the national colors to be displayed on all public buildings. All citizens will also be requested to decorate their houses and places of business. There will be a big parade in honor of the occasion.

MITCHEELL SEES ROOSEVELT

He and Others Call at Oyster Bay to Discuss Matters.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 13.—The guests at Sagamore Hill Wednesday included State Senator Raines, author of the liquor license law which bears his name; John Mitchell, whose present activities in behalf of labor are in the capacity of manager of the trade agreement department of the National Civic federation, and Ralph M. Easley, chairman of the executive council of the same general body.

Senator Raines came to see the president upon a personal matter involving two army officers. Naturally, politics in general were touched upon. Later the senator expressed the entirely personal opinion that the president looked with favor upon the political status of Governor Hughes, but Mr. Raines was quick to add that the chief executive was taking no part in the campaign for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in New York state.

The visit of the former president of the United Mine Workers had incited considerable interest because of the activity in the national campaign of Samuel Gompers. But Mr. Mitchell, upon leaving Sagamore Hill, said that politics were not mentioned. Mr. Easley and he, he said, came to Oyster Bay to invite the president to address the National Civic federation at its annual meeting in New York city on Dec. 14, or some time about the middle of the month. President Roosevelt, he said, did not accept the invitation because he was in doubt whether he would be able to keep the engagement if made. The plans of the federation's trade agreement were also discussed.

NOTHING MARRED PROCEEDINGS.

Festivities at Lincoln Moved Off Without Mishap.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 13.—The ceremony of notification to William Jennings Bryan, Wednesday, was conducted without a single incident to mar the proceedings. The police arrangements were excellent. Realizing that the request of police force was not sufficient to cope with the great crowd, the adjutant general of the state, at the request of Mayor Frank Brown, ordered out the Second Nebraska regiment, and with their assistance perfect order was maintained.

The speech of Mr. Bryan concluded the ceremonies, and he and Mr. Kern retired to the capitol, where they held a public reception.

Last night Mr. and Mrs. Bryan entertained the members of the notification committee at a dinner at their home at Fairview. The party was served by Mrs. Ruth Bryan Leavitt and Miss Grace Bryan, daughters of the host and hostess; Mrs. Spangler and Mrs. T. F. Allen, niece and sister-in-law, respectively, of the Democratic candidate, and Mrs. Winger.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 13.—Chairman Mack of the Democratic national committee has authorized a denial of a report that the national committee had received a fund of $3,000,000 left over from the last Democratic campaign. The report is without foundation, Mr. Mack said.

INDORSE DEMOCRATS.

Colorado Federation of Labor Declares That Republicans Have Insulted Labor.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 13.—The Colorado Federation of Labor, in convention, by a viva voca vote, has endorsed the Democratic party in the national campaign.

The endorsement was given after the reading of a long communication from President Samuel Gompers and members of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, in which the Republican party was declared to have "insulted" labor and the Democratic party to have given the laboring men all that was asked of it, and calling upon laboring men generally to support the party which had favored them. On motion of P. J. Devault of Denver, the communication was "received and concurred in."

The convention was thrown into turmoil when some of the delegates charged that the convention had been jobbed and the federation pledged to support the Democratic party contrary to the wish of many members, but efforts to procure a reconsideration of the action was unavailing.

Their First Fire.

Mt. Clemens, Mich., Aug. 13.—The new fire department got its baptism of fire Wednesday when the Mt. Clemens Steam Laundry went up in smoke. It is believed to have been struck by lightning, for it was just after a dazzling flash that flames were seen issuing from the building. The laundry was one of the principal industries of the town.

SEEKING A SIGN.

By MILDRED COLEMAN.

Copyrighted, 1905, by Associated Literary Press.

"Look out!" warned Letty. "It's the worst sort of luck to spin a chair around like that."

Travis, who had been twirling a light chair, hastily set it down on all four legs. This was not that he feared the hoodoo, but the consternaton on Letty's face indicated her discomfort. And to make Letty unhappy was furthest from his thoughts.

"Don't set it down!" shrieked Letty. "You must turn the chair the other way until you wind the bad luck again."

Dutifully Travis "wound up" his evil fortune and turned to the girl.

"Look here, Letty," he pleaded; "let's forget signs for a minute and get down to something more interesting than superstitions. You told me last Friday that I might have my answer today."

Letty's face colored softly.

"It's such bad luck to propose on Friday!" she asserted solemnly.

"So it seems," agreed Travis, "as it has kept me in suspense since then. You know that I love you, dear, and that it has always been my great wish to win you for my wife. Is the answer 'Yes,' Letty?"

Travis, looking into the half veiled eyes, could read therein the struggle the girl was having with her own heart and then the gradual submission of her shyness to her love. He could almost see the formation of the word that would bring to him the happiness he sought when with a little cry of terror Letty sprang to her feet, her eyes dilated with tears and her hand pressed against the heart that beat so rapidly.

"Can't you hear it, Jim?" she cried.

"I'M GOING TO MAKE ONE LAST EFFORT."

save the faint flare of brass instruments could he hear.

"It's a funeral," explained Letty, "a military funeral, and they are playing a dead march."

"You would scarcely expect them to play a waltz," reminded Travis. "Dead marches are written for funerals, you know."

"But think of the omen," persisted Letty. "Jim, if I should say 'Yes' one of us would die before the wedding."

"It's awfully kind of you to save my life," said Travis, with a smile that found no reflection in his heart. "It's really good of you, Letty, but I'm perfectly willing to take chances."

"I am not," was the answer in deadened tones. "Don't you realize what a bad omen it is, Jim?"

"It certainly is a bad omen if it means that you will not marry me just because a funeral procession happens to be passing down the next street," agreed Travis.

He did not argue. Letty was adorable, but she was wedded to a belief in signs, and it now looked as if his avowal of love had been rendered fruitless by the funeral procession at the very instant when he had read his triumph in her eyes. Letty loved him—that he knew—but it was useless to argue when she was so obsessed by the fear of the omen.

It was two weeks before Travis renewed his suit. In the interval he had come and gone, as usual. He and Letty had been to the theater and driving, but not a word had Travis breathed of the subject that was nearest to his heart.

He found the girl that Friday afternoon sitting pensively in the window seat.

The soft breeze from the south blew into the room the fragrance of the blossoms, and the mellow sunlight glinted on the velvety green of the growing verdure. It was an ideal day, and Letty responded sensitively to the promise of new life.

Almost before she knew that he had entered Travis had reached her side and had taken her hand in his strong grasp.

"I'm going to make one last effort to win my happiness, Letty," he said softly. "I have tried to accept your dictum, but I cannot see the value of your superstitions. Won't you reconsider, dear?"

Letty's face matched the tints of the pink and white apple blossoms she had pinned in her blouse as with half averted head she sought to combat her superstitious fears.

From the next room came the rasping sounds of a phonograph, and the record was "When We Are Married." It had been Letty's favorite in the old days, and her eyes brightened as the familiar strains were borne in upon her consciousness.

When to this was added a second sign as an itinerant band struck up the wedding march from "Lohengrin" her doubts were fully dispelled. With a little cry of gladness she held out her hands to Travis, who caught them in his own.

A few minutes later a determined tapping at the door roused them from their dream of bliss. Letty's brother, Bob, stuck his tousled head inside the door.

"I say, Mr. Travis," he began diffidently, "you couldn't let me have that quarter now, could you? The boys are going down to the store to get the baseball uniforms, and if I had that quarter I could go with them."

"Mr. Travis does not owe you a quarter," said Letty sharply. "If you want money ask mother for it."

"Sure, he owes me a quarter," maintained Bob stoutly. "I was comin' down the street, an' he told me if I'd put that old record in the phonograph an' start it up pretty soon after he came in he'd give me a quarter. He was talkin' to the bandman on the corner"—

"The bandman? And he told you to do that?" asked Letty, with interest.

Bob nodded as he received a coin from Travis, and then he vanished from the room.

"Since you must have a sign I made my own," explained Travis, anxiously searching her face.

"And I'm glad you did," said Letty simply, her face still aglow with happiness.

Making Himself Secure.

After the funeral of an old woman in a remote Yorkshire hamlet her sons and daughters made a vigorous search for her will, but without success, although they knew that she had prepared one shortly before her death.

"What's ta done wi' it, Jock?" the eldest son asked the youngest, who, being unmarried and a great dunce, had always hung on to his mother's apron strings. "Tha's been in t' house all this time, wi' nobody to watch thee, an' it looks a bit fishy. Hast'ta burnt it?"

Jock violently refuted the charge.

"Why, Ah nobbut 'ad it in my 'ands once," he declared.

"Ah, then, tha allmits there wor a will?" cried the eldest brother triumphantly.

"Of coorse there wor!" Jock frankly confessed. "She gave it to me t' day afore she died, but Ah couldn't read a word of it, so Ah took it art an' buried it to keep it safe. Ah'm not going to let any brothers an' sisters get ahead o' me. When Ah've learnt to read for me sen Ah shall dig that will up, but not a day earlier!"

And they had to "have the law on him" before he would divulge the hiding place of the document.

In Praise of Tea.

Kienlung, the Chinese poet, was a prolific writer, and of all his poems his immortal "Praise of Tea" is most widely remembered. Written in exquisite characters, it decorates half the old cups, plates and fans of his period. Thus it runs:

"Place upon a gentle fire the tripod whose color and form tell of a far antiquity and fill it with water of molten snow. Let it seethe till it would be hot enough to whiten fish or to redden a crab. Then pour it into a cup upon the tender leaves of a selected tea tree. Let it rest till the mists which freely rise have formed themselves into thicker clouds and until these have gradually ceased to weigh upon the surface and at last float away in vapor, then deliberately sip the delicious liquor. It will drive away all the causes of disquietude that come to trouble us. You may taste and you may feel, but never can you express in words or song that sweet tranquillity we draw from the essence thus prepared."

Mast Bread.

In Saxon and mediaeval times, even after the introduction of wheat and other cereals, there can be little doubt that acorns were regularly used by the poorer peasants for the purposes of making bread, and not only in seasons of scarcity, but as a general article of food. Oak trees were then chiefly valued because of the acorns which they produced.

In Anglo-Saxon records for the year 1116, which is described as "a very calamitous year, the crops being spoiled by the heavy rains, which came on just before August and lasted till Canflemas," it is expressly mentioned as an aggravation of the "heavy time" that "mast was also so scarce this year that none was to be heard of in all this land or in Wales."

The days of mast bread are happily gone forever, and even barley bread, in common use during severe winters not so many years ago, has now everywhere given place to that of "the finest wheat flour."—London Spectator.

THE MASTERPIECE.

The "summum bonum" of a man's life—who shall say when or what it is in any given case? It becomes almost a work of supererogation to attempt to designate any single act or performance as the one most valuable in any man's career. Reduced to the ultimate, it becomes, after all, only the expression of an individual opinion, save in those striking instances in which by general consent a certain achievement is recognized as the man's greatest work. No one would deny that in "Paradise Lost" Milton attained the highest expression of his mentality, that Wellington achieved his greatest fame when he won the field of Waterloo, that Bacon's "Novum Organum" is his greatest accomplishment and that "Don Quixote" exceeds anything else that Cervantes ever did. In other life records one act may appear equal to another at different stages in the man's development, or to one observer the influence of one deed may far outweigh that of another, and contrariwise. This difficulty has been exceedingly hard to overcome and without any attempt at dogmatism, but with the earnest desire to ascertain the truth as far as may be possible, has the decision been made in the disputable records.

Having been arranged in this manner, the records give an average age of fifty for the performance of the masterwork. For the workers the average age is forty-seven and for the thinkers fifty-two. Chemists and physicists average the youngest at forty-one; dramatists and playwrights, poets and inventors follow at forty-four; novelists give an average of forty-six, explorers and warriors forty-seven, musical composers and actors forty-eight, artists and divines occupy the position of equilibrium at fifty, essayists and reformers stand at fifty-one, physicians and surgeons line up with the statesmen at fifty two, philosophers give an average of fifty-four, astronomers and mathematicians, satirists and humorists reach fifty-six, historians fifty-seven and naturalists and jurists fifty-eight. As may be noted, there is a rearrangement of the order at this time, but the thinkers, as before and as would naturally be expected, attain their full maturity at a later period than the workers.

The corollary is evident. Provided health and optimism remain, the man of fifty can command success as readily as the man of thirty. Health plus optimism read the secret of success; the one God given, the other inborn also, but capable of cultivation to the point of enthusiasm.—W. A. Newman Dorland in Century.

Smoothing It Over.

Irate Individual—I'm going to square matters with you right now! You've been telling it around that I lie!

The Other Man—Nothing of the sort. All I have said about you is that you are habitually unveracious.

Irate Individual (calming down)—Oh, I don't mind that, if that's all. I acknowledge I do get that way once in awhile. But how can a fellow help it when everybody insists on treating him?—Chicago Tribune.

A Scrap of History.

"And as an concequence," remarked the great commander with a sly twinkle, "they are hard at work pressing the redcoats."—Woman's Home Companion.

Mrs. Tyrus Cobb had a little more strenuous reception than was planned, upon her first appearance at the grounds in Detroit. The bride of the champion batter sat in the stand with his mother Sunday watching her husband for the first time. She was not discovered by the crowd until Ty smashed out a three-bagger, where upon he looked towards her. The thousands took the cue and when the game was over Mrs. Cobb found she could not leave the grounds as every entrance was blocked by a crowd. At length a carriage was called and the Georgian with his bride, mother and sister, after a half hour's waiting escaped through a little doorway in the right field fence.

Lansing out hit the Indians at Lansing Tuesday and had men on in every inning, but Holmquist was cool under fire and a bad bound of a hit which later turned into a run gave the Indians a victory by a 3 to 2 score. Hughey went to bat for Hogan in the ninth and pitched the last inning. Two double plays by the Senators at critical times and a stop by Shippy which spoiled a run were the fielding features. Score:

The Indians inability to hit when hits were needed yesterday lost their game for them at the hands of Flint by a score of 4 to 3. Weeder pitched a good game until the last few innings when he weakened and allowed three runs in the last two innings. Lagoe struck out seven men in the last five innings. King had his hand injured in the third inning and was replaced by Fox. Score:

ADRIAN FAILED TO GET BAY CITY FRANCHISE.

Average of the Independents Compiled.

Tuesday noon a meeting was held at Bay City for the purpose of disposing of the Bay City baseball franchise. Adrian was very anxious to land a birth in the Southern Michigan League but failed to be represented at the meeting. Owosso, Muskegon and Mt. Clemens bid strongly for it.

It looks as though this would be Adrian's last chance to get a franchise as Tecumseh promises to stick and everything else seems solid.

So many requests have been made that the number of games won and lost by the Adrian Independents be figured up that the average of the team has been compiled for the first time. The total number of games played has been 40 and of these the locals have won 28, and tied 1.

STORM.

Great Deal of Damage Done by Wednesday's Storm.

The severe storm of Wednesday caused quite a good deal of damage around town. A tree was struck by lightning near the power house and falling on the wires broke them all down. A tree was struck near Robert Stretch's house and split down the centre. Half of it fell against the telephone pole knocking it over and both falling on the house. Both telephone and electric light wires were broken down.

The pennant pole at the ball grounds was also struck and shattered. Other damage was done to fruit trees, blowing some of them over and shaking the fruit off from others.

ALL RUN DOWN.

Miss Delia Stroebe, who had Completely Lost Her Health, Found Relief from Peruna at Once.

Read What She Says:

MISS DELIA STROEBE, 710 Richmond St., Appleton, Wis., writes: "For several years I was in a run-down condition, and I could find no relief from doctors and medicines. I could not enjoy my meals, and could not sleep at night. I had heavy, dark circles about the eyes.

"My friends were much alarmed. I was advised to give Peruna a trial, and to my joy I began to improve with the first bottle. After taking six bottles I felt completely cured. I cannot say too much for Peruna as a medicine for women in a run-down condition."

Peruna Did Wonders.

Mrs. Judge J. F. Boyer, 1421 Sherman Ave., Evanston, Ill., says that she became run down, could neither eat nor sleep well, and lost flesh and spirit. Peruna did wonders for her, and she thanks Peruna for new life and strength.

HORACE WELLER CELEBRATES

His 90th Birthday To-day.

ONCE A PROMINENT BUSINESS MAN, NOW RETIRED.

Hale and Hearty and May be Seen on the Streets of Tecumseh Any Day.

Mr. Weller is one of the few who reach this age.

There are very few people at the age of 90 years able to give truthful utterance to this sentiment of Longfellow's but Mr. Horace Weller is one of the few.

We all desire to live long; but no one desires to be old, and while Mr. Weller can count many years of life, he has had the happiness of never growing old.

He has always been a great reader, interested in politics and able to attend to all of his own affairs. Some one has said one cannot be truly happy until after his sixtieth year. If this is true, Mr. Weller has had more than his share of happiness. He is an enthusiastic Mason and in an early day was the leader in the Masonic partics that were the events of the season in Tecumseh.

Born in New York state, August 14, 1818. For 25 years he engaged in the dry goods business at Seneca Falls.

Then while traveling through the west passed through Tecumseh and was so charmed with the place decided to settle here, which he did in '63, engaging in the grocery business occupying the store that Ben Pulver now ownes. In '73 he retired from active business life.

Mr. Weller was one of the most active men in soliciting subscriptions for the building of the Opera House, and much credit is due him that we have one.

We are sure every member of the "One Big Family" rejoices with Mr. Weller that he has been able to live so long and useful a life and with the Herald wishes him much happiness in attaining, what so few of us do, the 90 birthday.

MAD DOG

HIRAM GOVE BITTEN,

Taken to Ann Arbor for Treatment.

About a month ago a dog belonging to Ernest Updyke, a farmer living west of town bit two hogs belonging to Hollis Whelan. One of the hogs was taken sick and died quite suddenly and it was then supposed that it was mad. Later the other hog began to develope suspicious symptoms such as foaming at the month. Mr. Whelan then called a veterinary, who declared the hog to be mad. Hiram Gove, a son of Arthur Gove was bitten in the hand by the same dog and Tuesday morning was taken to Ann Arbor to receive the Pasteur treatment. The dog was shot.

Wednesday a dog went mad on the Smith farm and a horse, a cow and dog were bitten. Later both dogs were shot.

FINDS CATTLE DEAD.

Wesley Keysor Makes Startling Discovery.

Wesley Keysor, a farmer residing a short distance from this place, made a startling discovery on his farm Sunday morning, when he found eight of his young cattle lying dead in a field where they had been pasturing. He had not been near his cattle for several days until Sunday when he went to salt them. He found the bodies of eight young cattle in a bad stage of decomposition. From their appearance it was supposed that they were struck by the lightning during the severe storm Tuesday night

Mr. Keysor's loss is about $350. He carried some insurance on the cattle with a farmer's insurance company.

THE STRENUOUS LIFE

Pulls so Hard on the Stomach it Must Have Help.

The stress and strain of the strenuous life in both city and country makes stomach troubles. Five people suffer today where one did ten years ago with sick headache, dizziness, flatulence, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleeplessness and the many other symptoms of indigestion.

All who are suffering with stomach troubles, and that means at least two out of three in Tecumseh and other towns, should use Mi-o-na stomach tablets Nothing else is as safe, yet effective; nothing else can be so thoroughly relied upon to relieve all troubles from indigestion as Mi-o-na.

So reliable is Mi o na that C.A. Wright & Son's drug store with every 50 cent box they sell, give a guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy cures.

Excellent Health Advice.

Mrs. M. M. Davison of No. 379 Gifford ave., San Jose, Cal., says: "The worth of Electric Bitters as a general family remedy, for headache, billousness and torpor of the liver and bowels is so pronounced that I am prompted to say a word in its favor, for the benefit of those seeking relief from such afflictions. There is more health for the digestive organs in a bottle of Electric Bitters than in any other remedy I know of." Sold under guarantee at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store. 50c.

SEEKING A SIGN.

By MILDRED COLEMAN.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"Look out!" warned Letty. "It's the worst sort of luck to spin a chair around like that."

Travis, who had been twirling a light chair, hastily set it down on all four legs. This was not that he feared the hoodoo, but the consternaton on Letty's face indicated her discomfort. And to make Letty unhappy was furthest from his thoughts.

"Don't set it down!" shrieked Letty. "You must turn the chair the other way until you wind the bad luck again."

Dutifully Travis "wound up" his evil fortune and turned to the girl.

"Look here, Letty," he pleaded; "let's forget signs for a minute and get down to something more interesting than superstitions. You told me last Friday that I might have my answer today."

Letty's face colored softly.

"It's such bad luck to propose on Friday!" she asserted solemnly.

"So it seems," agreed Travis, "as it has kept me in suspense since then. You know that I love you, dear, and that it has always been my great wish to win you for my wife. Is the answer 'Yes,' Letty?"

Travis, looking into the half veiled eyes, could read therein the struggle the girl was having with her own heart and then the gradual submission of her shyness to her love. He could almost see the formation of the word that would bring to him the happiness he sought when with a little cry of terror Letty sprang to her feet, her eyes dilated with tears and her hand pressed against the heart that beat so rapidly.

"Can't you hear it, Jim?" she cried.

"I'M GOING TO MAKE ONE LAST EFFORT."

save the faint flare of brass instruments could he hear.

"It's a funeral," explained Letty, "a military funeral, and they are playing a dead march."

"You would scarcely expect them to play a waltz," reminded Travis. "Dead marches are written for funerals, you know."

"But think of the omen," persisted Letty. "Jim, if I should say 'Yes' one of us would die before the wedding."

"It's awfully kind of you to save my life," said Travis, with a smile that found no reflection in his heart. "It's really good of you, Letty, but I'm perfectly willing to take chances."

"I am not," was the answer in deadened tones. "Don't you realize what a bad omen it is, Jim?"

"It certainly is a bad omen if it means that you will not marry me just because a funeral procession happens to be passing down the next street," agreed Travis.

He did not argue. Letty was adorable, but she was wedded to a belief in signs, and it now looked as if his avowal of love had been rendered fruitless by the funeral procession at the very instant when he had read his triumph in her eyes. Letty loved him—that he knew—but it was useless to argue when she was so obsessed by the fear of the omen.

It was two weeks before Travis renewed his suit. In the interval he had come and gone, as usual. He and Letty had been to the theater and driving, but not a word had Travis breathed of the subject that was nearest to his heart.

He found the girl that Friday afternoon sitting pensively in the window seat.

The soft breeze from the south blew into the room the fragrance of the blossoms, and the mellow sunlight glinted on the velvety green of the growing verdure. It was an ideal day, and Letty responded sensitively to the promise of new life.

Almost before she knew that he had entered Travis had reached her side and had taken her hand in his strong grasp.

"I'm going to make one last effort to win my happiness, Letty," he said softly. "I have tried to accept your dictum, but I cannot see the value of your superstitions. Won't you reconsider, dear?"

Letty's face matched the tints of the pink and white apple blossoms she had pinned in her blouse as with half averted head she sought to combat her superstitious fears.

From the next room came the rasping sounds of a phonograph, and the record was "When We Are Married." It had been Letty's favorite in the old days, and her eyes brightened as the familiar strains were borne in upon her consciousness.

When to this was added a second sign as an itinerant band struck up the wedding march from "Lohengrin" her doubts were fully dispelled. With a little cry of gladness she held out her hands to Travis, who caught them in his own.

A few minutes later a determined tapping at the door roused them from their dream of bliss. Letty's brother, Bob, stuck his tousled head inside the door.

"I say, Mr. Travis," he began diffidently, "you couldn't let me have that quarter now, could you? The boys are going down to the store to get the baseball uniforms, and if I had that quarter I could go with them."

"Mr. Travis does not owe you a quarter," said Letty sharply. "If you want money ask mother for it."

"Sure, he owes me a quarter," maintained Bob stoutly. "I was comin' down the street, an' he told me if I'd put that old record in the phonograph an' start it up pretty soon after he came in he'd give me a quarter. He was talkin' to the bandman on the corner"—

"The bandman? And he told you to do that?" asked Letty, with interest.

Bob nodded as he received a coin from Travis, and then he vanished from the room.

"Since you must have a sign I made my own," explained Travis, anxiously searching her face.

"And I'm glad you did," said Letty simply, her face still aglow with happiness.

Making Himself Secure.

After the funeral of an old woman in a remote Yorkshire hamlet her sons and daughters made a vigorous search for her will, but without success, although they knew that she had prepared one shortly before her death.

"What's ta done wi' it, Jock?" the eldest son asked the youngest, who, being unmarried and a great dunce, had always hung on to his mother's apron strings. "Tha's been in t' house all this time, wi' nobody to watch thee, an' it looks a bit fishy. Hast ta burnt it?"

Jock violently refuted the charge.

"Why, Ah nobbut 'ad it in my 'ands once," he declared.

"Ah, then, tha admits there war a will?" cried the eldest brother triumphantly.

"Of coorse there wor!" Jock frankly confessed. "She gave it to me t' day afore she died, but Ah couldn't read a word of it, so Ah took it art an' buried it to keep it safe. Ah'm not going to let any brothers an' sisters get ahead o' me. When Ah've learnt to read for me sen Ah shall dig that will up, but not a day earlier!"

And they had to "have the law on him" before he would divulge the hiding place of the document.

In Praise of Tea.

Kienlung, the Chinese poet, was a prolific writer, and of all his poems his immortal "Praise of Tea" is most widely remembered. Written in exquisite characters, it decorates half the old cups, plates and fans of his period. Thus it runs:

"Place upon a gentle fire the tripod whose color and form tell of a far antiquity and fill it with water of molten snow. Let it seethe till it would be hot enough to whiten fish or to redden a crab. Then pour it into a cup upon the tender leaves of a selected tea tree. Let it rest till the mists which freely rise have formed themselves into thicker clouds and until these have gradually ceased to weigh upon the surface and at last float away in vapor, then deliberately sip the delicious liquor. It will drive away all the causes of disquietude that come to trouble us. You may taste and you may feel, but never can you express in words or song that sweet tranquillity we draw from the essence thus prepared."

Mast Bread.

In Saxon and mediaeval times, even after the introduction of wheat and other cereals, there can be little doubt that acorns were regularly used by the poorer peasants for the purposes of making bread, and not only in seasons of scarcity, but as a general article of food. Oak trees were then chiefly valued because of the acorns which they produced.

In Anglo-Saxon records for the year 1116, which is described as "a very calamitous year, the crops being spoiled by the heavy rains, which came on just before August and lasted till Candlemas," it is expressly mentioned as an aggravation of the "heavy time" that "mast was also so scarce this year that none was to be heard of in all this land or in Wales."

The days of mast bread are happily gone forever, and even barley bread, in common use during severe winters not so many years ago, has now everywhere given place to that of "the finest wheat flour."—London Spectator.

THE MASTERPIECE.

The "summum bonum" of a man's life—who shall say when or what it is in any given case? It becomes almost a work of supererogation to attempt to designate any single act or performance as the one most valuable in any man's career. Reduced to the ultimate, it becomes, after all, only the expression of an individual opinion, save in those striking instances in which by general consent a certain achievement is recognized as the man's greatest work. No one would deny that in "Paradise Lost" Milton attained the highest expression of his mentality, that Wellington achieved his greatest fame when he won the field of Waterloo, that Bacon's "Novum Organum" is his greatest accomplishment and that "Don Quixote" exceeds anything else that Cervantes ever did. In other life records one act may appear equal to another at different stages in the man's development, or to one observer the influence of one deed may far outweigh that of another, and contrariwise. This difficulty has been exceedingly hard to overcome and without any attempt at dogmatism, but with the earnest desire to ascertain the truth as far as may be possible, has the decision been made in the disputable records.

Having been arranged in this manner, the records give an average age of fifty for the performance of the masterwork. For the workers the average age is forty-seven and for the thinkers fifty-two. Chemists and physicists average the youngest at forty-one; dramatists and playwrights, poets and inventors follow at forty-four; novelists give an average of forty-six, explorers and warriors forty-seven, musical composers and actors forty-eight, artists and divines occupy the position of equilibrium at fifty, essayists and reformers stand at fifty-one, physicians and surgeons line up with the statesmen at fifty two, philosophers give an average of fifty-four, astronomers and mathematicians, satirists and humorists reach fifty-six, historians fifty-seven and naturalists and jurists fifty-eight. As may be noted, there is a rearrangement of the order at this time, but the thinkers, as before and as would naturally be expected, attain their full maturity at a later period than the workers.

The corollary is evident. Provided health and optimism remain, the man of fifty can command success as readily as the man of thirty. Health plus optimism read the secret of success; the one God given, the other inborn also, but capable of cultivation to the point of enthusiasm.—W. A. Newman Dorland in Century.

She Likes Good Things.

Mrs. Chas. E. Smith of West Franklin, Maine, says: "I like good things and have adopted Dr. King's New Life Pills as our family laxative medicine, because they are good and do their work without making a fuss about it." These painless purifiers sold at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store. 25c.

Smoothing It Over.

Irate Individual—I'm going to square matters with you right now! You've been telling it around that I lie!

The Other Man—Nothing of the sort. All I have said about you is that you are habitually unveracious.

Irate Individual (calming down)—Oh, I don't mind that, if that's all. I acknowledge I do get that way once in awhile. But how can a fellow help it when everybody insists on treating him?—Chicago Tribune.

A Scrap of History.

"And as a consequence," remarked the great commander with a sly twinkle, "they are hard at work pressing the redcoats."—Woman's Home Companion.

Mrs. Tyrus Cobb had a little more strenuous reception than was planned, upon her first appearance at the grounds in Detroit. The bride of the champion batter sat in the stand with his mother Sunday watching her husband for the first time. She was not discovered by the crowd until Ty smashed out a three-bagger, where upon he looked towards her. The thousands took the cue and when the game was over Mrs. Cobb found she could not leave the grounds as every entrance was blocked by a crowd. At length a carriage was called and the Georgian with his bride, mother and sister, after a half hour's waiting escaped through a little doorway in the right field fence.

Lansing out hit the Indians at Lansing Tuesday and had men on in every inning, but Holmquist was cool under fire and a bad bound of a hit which later turned into a run gave the Indians a victory by a 3 to 2 score. Hughey went to bat for Hogan in the ninth and pitched the last inning. Two double plays by the Senators at critical times and a stop by Shippy which spoiled a run were the fielding features. Score:

ADRIAN FAILED TO GET BAY CITY FRANCHISE.

Average of the Independents Compiled.

Tuesday noon a meeting was held at Bay City for the purpose of disposing of the Bay City baseball franchise. Adrian was very anxious to land a birth in the Southern Michigan League but failed to be represented at the meeting. Owosso, Muskegon and Mt. Clemens bid strongly for it.

It looks as though this would be Adrian's last chance to get a franchise as Tecumseh promises to stick and everything else seems solid.

So many requests have been made that the number of games won and lost by the Adrian Independents be figured up that the average of the team has been compiled for the first time. The total number of games played has been 40 and of these the locals have won 28, and tied 1.

STORM.

The severe storm of Wednesday caused quite a good deal of damage around town. A tree was struck by lightning near the power house and falling on the wires broke them all down. A tree was struck near Robert Stretch's house and split down the centre. Half of it fell against the telephone pole knocking it over and both falling on the house. Both telephone and electric light wires were broken down.

The pennant pole at the ball grounds was also struck and shattered. Other damage was done to fruit trees, blowing some of them over and shaking the fruit off from others.

ALL RUN DOWN.

Miss Della Stroebe, who had Completely Lost Her Health, Found Relief from Pe-ru-na at Once.

Read What She Says:

MISS DELLA STROEBE, 710 Richmond St., Appleton, Wis., writes: "For several years I was in a run-down condition, and I could find no relief from doctors and medicines. I could not enjoy my meals, and could not sleep at night. I had heavy, dark circles about the eyes.

"My friends were much alarmed. I was advised to give Peruna a trial, and to my joy I began to improve with the first bottle. After taking six bottles I felt completely cured. I cannot say too much for Peruna as a medicine for women in a run-down condition."

Pe-ru-na Did Wonders.

Mrs. Judge J. F. Boyer, 1421 Sherman Ave., Evanston, Ill., says that she became run down, could neither eat nor sleep well, and lost flesh and spirit. Peruna did wonders for her, and she thanks Peruna for new life and strength.

Man-a-lin the Ideal Laxative.

New Treasurer of Democratic National Committee.

Charles N. Haskell, Governor of Oklahoma, has been chosen as treasurer of the Democratic National committee. He has a special interest in that Oklahoma is the only state in the Union in which the safety of deposits in banks is guaranteed by law as recommended by the Democratic platform. He has given much study to the subject of finance and is a lawyer, although he has not confined his operations altogether to his legal practice, but has been active in the industrial developement of Oklahoma, especially in the building of railway lines. Gov. Haskell was formerly Promoter of the Lima Northern R. R. and at that time was a frequent visitor at his brother Geo. Haskell, who was then a resident of Tecumseh.

SAND LAKE.

Dr. and Mrs. Stafford and Dr. and Mrs. Wood of Adrian are spending the week at Sand lake.

The Misses Lydia Price and Sena Drew, who have been guests at the Teachout cottage, returned to Tecumseh Saturday.

Mrs. Wm. Kies and son Joseph of Elkhart, who have spending the summer at their cottage on the North Shore, have returned home.

New Commercial School.

The Commercial and Short-hand department of Hillsdale College will open September 8, in rooms expressly constructed for commercial classes, under the principalship of Prof. M. T. Skinner, who has had the best of training and wide experience in organizing and administering Commercial schools. Mrs. L. W. Skinner, in charge of the short-hand and typewriting, is an expert in her field and has had long experience in teaching. The subjects will include bookkeeping, banking, short-hand (Chartier, Pitmanic Graham, gg Grudae systems), typewriting, correspondence, commercial arithmetic, penmanship, business practice, etc. The college library, gymnasium, literary, musical and Christian associations, elocution, drawing, painting, athletics, lectures, and other features of general college life, offer rare advantages for commercial and short-hand students. For tuition and other information, address "Secretary of the College," or Prof. M T. Skinner, Hillsdale, Mich.

Why James Lee Got Well.

Everybody in Zanesville, O., knows Mrs. Mary Lee, of rural route 8. She writes: "My husband, James Lee, firmly believes he owes his life to the use of Dr King's New Discovery. His lungs were so severely affected that consumption seemed inevitable, when a friend recommended New Discovery. We tried it, and its use has restored him to perfect health." Dr. King's New Discovery is the King of throat and lung remedies. For coughs and colds it has no equal. The first does gives relief. Try it! Sold under guarantee at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store. 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

HORACE WELLER CELEBRATES

His 90th Birthday To-day.

ONCE A PROMINENT BUSINESS MAN, NOW RETIRED.

Hale and Hearty and May be Seen on the Streets of Tecumseh Any Day.

Mr. Weller is one of the few who reach this age.

There are very few people at the age of 90 years able to give truthful utterance to this sentiment of Longfellow's but Mr. Horace Weller is one of the few.

We all desire to live long; but no one desires to be old, and while Mr. Weller can count many years of life, he has had the happiness of never growing old.

He has always been a great reader, interested in politics and able to attend to all of his own affairs. Some one has said one cannot be truly happy until after his sixtieth year. If this is true, Mr. Weller has had more than his share of happiness. He is an enthusiastic Mason and in an early day was the leader in the Masonic parties that were the events of the season in Tecumseh.

Born in New York state, August 14, 1818. For 25 years he engaged in the dry goods business at Seneca Falls.

Then while traveling through the west passed through Tecumseh and was so charmed with the place decided to settle here, which he did in '68, engaging in the grocery business occupying the store that Ben Pulver now owns. In '73 he retired from active business life.

Mr. Weller was one of the most active men in soliciting subscriptions for the building of the Opera House, and much credit is due him that we have one.

We are sure every member of the "One Big Family" rejoices with Mr. Weller that he has been able to live so long and useful a life and with the Herald wishes him much happiness in attaining, what so few, of us do, the 90 birthday.

MAD DOG

HIRAM GOVE BITTEN.

Taken to Ann Arbor for Treatment.

About a month ago a dog belonging to Ernest Updyke, a farmer living west of town bit two hogs belonging to Hollis Whelan. One of the hogs was taken sick and died quite suddenly and it was then supposed that it was mad. Later the other hog began to develope suspicious symptoms such as foaming at the month. Mr. Whelan then called a veterinary, who declared the hog to be mad. Hiram Gove, a son of Arthur Gove was bitten in the hand by the same dog and Tuesday morning was taken to Ann Arbor to receive the Pasteur treatment. The dog was shot.

Wednesday a dog went mad on the Smith farm and a horse, a cow and dog were bitten. Later both dogs were shot.

FINDS CATTLE DEAD.

Wesley Keysor Makes Startling Discovery.

Wesley Keysor, a farmer residing a short distance from this place, made a startling discovery on his farm Sunday morning, when he found eight of his young cattle lying dead in a field where they had been pasturing. He had not been near his cattle for several days until Sunday when he went to salt them. He found the bodies of eight young cattle in a bad stage of decomposition. From their appearance it was supposed that they were struck by the lightning during the severe storm Tuesday night

Mr. Keysor's loss is about $350. He carried some insurance on the cattle with a farmer's insurance company.

HARD CHEST NUT COAL

How to tell how much coal a box or bin holds get the number of cubic feet on the inside of your box or bin and multiply by 25 the number of lbs. in a cubic foot will give you the number of lbs. you have in your box or bin.

FRAYER REUNION

Enjoyed by Fifty Guests.

The Frayer family reunion was held Wednesday at the home of Charles Tunison, north of Tecumseh Fifty guests were present and everyone reported a most enjoyable time. A business meeting was held in the afternoon at which it was decided that the reunion should be held next year at the home of Truman Peters. The following officers were elected:

President, Martin Frayer.

Treasurer and secretary, Frank Tunison of Adrian.

GOV. FRED M. WARNER

at Tecumseh, Tuesday, August 18, at 9 A. M.

Governor Fred M. Warner and Lieutenant Governor Patrick H. Kelley will be in this city Tuesday, August 18 at 9 a. m. and will give an address to the citizens of Tecumseh and Lenawee county. It is hoped that a good crowd will be out to greet Gov. Warner and the Lieutenant Governor. Everyone is cordially invited.

THE STRENUOUS LIFE

Pulls so Hard on the Stomach It Must Have Help.

The stress and strain of the strenuous life in both city and country makes stomach troubles. Five people suffer today where one did ten years ago with sick headache, dizziness, flatulence, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleeplessness and the many other symptoms of indigestion.

All who are suffering with stomach troubles, and that means at least two out of three in Tecumseh and other towns, should use Mi-o-na stomach tablets. Nothing else is as safe, yet effective; nothing else can be so thoroughly relied upon to relieve all troubles from indigestion as Mi-o-na.

So reliable is Mi o na that C. A. Wright & Son's drug store with every 50 cent box they sell, give a guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy cures.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Men Past Sixty in Danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate gland and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am now 91 years old."

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Tecumseh People To Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Tecumseh.

S. Erskine, barber, living on Evans st., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "For ten years I was troubled with dull, dragging pains in my back, always more severe after hard work or if I lifted anything. I was also annoyed at night by the too frequent action of the kidneys which caused me to get up a great number of times, thus greatly disturbing my rest. The secretions were highly colored and deposited a great deal of sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally brought to my attention and I began taking them. They did me a world of good and I felt better and stronger than I had for a long time. I hope others having kidney trouble will try Doan's Kidney Pills and receive the same results as I did."

THE CHARTER OAK.

Bells Tolled and Funeral Dirges Played When It Fell.

The charter oak of Hartford was a white oak. The story goes that when James, duke of York, ascended the throne of England and sent Andros to take away all colonial charters Connecticut alone refused to surrender hers. Andros was furious over this defiance, and Oct. 31, 1687, he returned to the assembly hall of Hartford with a body of soldiers and demanded instant surrender of the charter, which lay in a box on the table. A hot discussion followed. Finally Andros stretched out his hand to seize the disputed paper. Then the candles were suddenly extinguished, and the people who had gathered on the street outside rushed in a disorderly crowd into the hall. There was a period of wild confusion in the dark, and when the candles were finally relighted no charter was to be found. It had been removed by Captain Wadsworth and concealed in the oak, which ever afterward bore its name.

The oak was even then old. "When the first settlers were clearing their land the Indians begged that it might be spared. 'It has been the guide of our ancestors for centuries,' they said, 'as to the time of planting our corn. When the leaves are the size of a mouse's ears, then is the time to put seed into the ground.' The Indians' request was granted, and the tree, afterward becoming the custodian of the lost charter, became famous for all time. It fell in a windstorm Aug. 21, 1856, and so deeply was it venerated that at sunset on the day of its fall the bells of the city were tolled and a band of music played funeral dirges over its ruins.

At the time of its fall its circumference one foot from the ground was twenty-five feet, and it was estimated to be over 600 years old.—Kansas City Star.

Proud.

"So you enjoy seeing your boy play football."

"I should say I do," answered Farmer Corntossel. "It makes me right proud to see him out there an' realize that he is the young feller I was once able to whip."—Washington Star.

SPELLMAN'S PERFORMING BEARS

The most wonderful troupe of performing bears in the world direct from the New York hippodrome, may be seen free every afternoon and evening. They will be taken about the streets of Detroit every forenoon in a big automobile.

GRAND DISPLAY OF FIREWORKS The latest and best creation of Henry Pain, the world-renowned fireworks expert and originator of outdoor spectacles, is a dramatic and realistic rendition of "Sheridan's Ride or the Battle of Cedar Creek." None who come to the fair should miss seeing this MARVELOUS PATRIOTIC SPECTACLE. Commences Saturday night, September 5, continuing for five nights. Every evening following the battle scene, there will be given a brilliant collection of fireworks, embracing some of the most startling designs ever brought to the state. Thousands of dollars were spent in providing this display.

REDUCED FARES ON RAILROADS All railroads have granted reduced fares for those coming to the state fair, and visitors who leave the trains down in the city are carried direct to the main entrance for one five cent fare. Everything looking to the safety and comfort of visitors has been installed on the grounds.

SHOOTING THE SUN.

Simplest Way of Locating a Ship's Position at Sea.

The average transatlantic traveler displays very little interest in the navigation of the vessel beyond watching the ship's officers, sextant in hand, making observations, says a writer in Travel Magazine. Very few have any idea of the process by means of which the modern navigator is enabled to accurately place the ship's position at a stated time on the chart. Out of sight of land a ship's geographical position is determined either by keeping a careful record of the course steered and the distance run, known as dead reckoning, or by the combined use of chronometer and sextant—that is, by observation of the heavenly bodies. The operation of finding the latitude and longitude of observation can be performed in a number of ways, of which the simplest and most convenient is by measuring the altitude of the sun above the horizon at noon, as is indicated on the vernier of the sextant and spoken of at sea as "shooting the sun." An arithmetical computation by the aid of logarithms is thus quickly made which shows exactly how far the ship is north or south of the equator, or, in other words, the latitude.

Finding the longitude, however, is a somewhat longer process. An observation is made either in the forenoon or afternoon, the chronometer time of the horizon contact of the sun's image being noted. A calculation is then made which gives the exact time at the spot where the ship happens to be, and, as the chronometer carried aboard shows the exact time at Greenwich, the prime meridian of longitude, the difference between the two expresses in hours and minutes (easily convertible into degrees and miles) the distance east or west of Greenwich.

Having thus, roughly speaking, found the latitude and longitude, a dot placed on the chart at the exact point where the lines of latitude and longitude cross denotes the ship's position.

DID NOT KILL SELF.

Finding of Jury In Schlimmer Case Denotes Foul Play.

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 13.—The jury in the inquest into the death of Charles Schlimmer, the Michigan Central fireman who was found dead near his home with a bullet hole through his head, a week ago Tuesday, has brought in a verdict stating that the man met his death by a bullet fired by someone unknown to them, and that he did not commit suicide. No warrant was issued, and the prospects are that none will be unless new developments are secured by the police.

The body of Schlimmer was exhumed and an autopsy performed by Dr. Williams. It was found that the bullet which caused death was of a 32 caliber, but entered the head about an inch and a half back of the right ear, and was in such a position that the man, in the estimation of the physician, could not have fired it himself. The hole was a large, ragged one, and the leaden ball had been torn to pieces penetrating the skull. Part of it was lodged between the sections of the brain and the remainder was scattered through the wound.

The hole was not powder marked, nor the hair singed. Pieces of the skull were carried into the brain by the missle.

At no stage of the proceedings did the testimony warrant a finding of death by suicide. The stories of Dillon, Cliskey and Sullivan, told on the stand and to the police previous to the inquest, were conflicting.

Child Frightened to Death.

Marshall, Mich., Aug. 13.—The seven-months-old daughter of Mrs. Earl Shull was frightened to death here following the narrow escape of its mother by drowning. Mrs. Shull and Miss Henderson of Mount Pedro, O., her guest, were thrown into the river when a rowboat, in which they were seated, tied to the dock, filled with water as the latter attempted to reach over the side to grasp the dock. Frank Krauss, who was passing in a launch, managed to rescue the women, but both collapsed on the dock, and the child, frightened at the condition of its mother, also collapsed and died.

Find Babe's Body in River.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 13.—The body of a fully developed girl baby has been found floating in River Rouge. After an examination, County Physicians Stapleton and Grimes assert the child was thrown into the water while alive. The naked corpse was discovered at the foot of Clay avenue, near the mouth of a sewer. The doctors say that it was but a few hours old. There were no marks of violence except a slight abrasion on the right knee. Drowning apparently caused death.

King's Visit Highly Important.

London, Aug. 13.—The visits paid by King Edward to Emperor Williams at Cronberg and to Emperor Francis Joseph at Ischl, while not likely to lead to any formal diplomatic transactions, are considered highly imporant in official circles as affecting the relations of Great Britain, Germany and Austria-Hungary. There have been many reports concerning the conversations of the monarchs and the representatives of the foreign offices of the three countries, but officials in London said that meet of these statements could be dismissed as without particular value. It is quite enough for them that the relations have so improved of recent months that for the second year in succession King Edward has found it possible to visit the two emperors and discuss with them whatever in European politics was interesting at the moments, discussions which they believe must end in still better understandings.

Venezuela In Deplorable Condition.

San Juan, P. R., Aug. 13.—Dr. C. W. Vogel, surgeon in the United States health and marine service, has just sailed on the steamer San Juan for New York. He takes with him a report of his investigation of the bubonic plague in Venezuela, where, he said, conditions are deplorable. The Venezulan officials and merchants, according to Dr. Vogel, declined to give him any information, and the foreign consuls were also reticent. The surgeon said President Castro ordered the suppression of the true state of affairs, though he admitted that the plague existed.

Fifty Autos Burn Up.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—More than fifty automobiles and taxicabs were destroyed in a fire which consumed a one story brick building at 1710-1718 Indiana avenue, occupied by C. A. Cooy & Co. as a garage. The fire started with an explosion and spread so rapidly the building was almost entirely destroyed before the arrival of the firemen. The total loss is $500,000.

Predicts Bountiful Grape Crop.

Dowagiac, Mich., Aug. 13.—C. E. Dunham, manager of the Southern Michigan Fruit association, predicts a bountiful grape harvest, the estimate being 3,000 cars for the belt. During the bustest part of the season the association expects to ship seventy-five carloads a day.

Catholic Convention Ends.

Boston, Aug. 13.—The American Federation of Catholic Societies finished its seventh annual convention by re-electing Edward Feeney of Brooklyn president, selecting Pittsburg for next year's meeting and completing its platform.

GRAND JURY TO LOCATE BLAME.

Begins Investigation of Race Riots in Springfield.

MANY TROOPS KEEP ORDER.

Negroes Take Refuge in Arsenal. Two Hundred Fear to Stay in Their Homes—Others Flee and, Penniless, Wander Through Country and Make Trouble For People Along the Way.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 17.—A special grand jury is to investigate the rioting and began deliberations today under the direction of State's Attorney Frank Hatch of San Ganon county. The scope of the inquiry will be wide, and an effort will be made to fasten responsibility for the disturbances on individuals who are under suspicion.

Two deaths of injuries sustained in previous mob fights, the attempted cutting of the fire alarm wires, the exoneration of Private J. B. Klein, Company A, First Illinois infantry, by a court of inquiry for the killing of Earl Nelson at Kankakee Saturday and the pursuit of a mob by guardsmen were the chief Sunday developments in the race war in Springfield.

Wire Cutting Frustrated.

The attempt to cut telephone and fire alarm wires leading into the city hall was not successful. A policeman saw three men on top of an outbuilding, trying to reach the lines overhead. He turned in an alarm to the headquarters of General Wells, commanding a provisional brigade, and the latter despatched a wagon-load of soldiers to the scene. They arrived before the trio had done any damage. The wire cutters fled, leaving their nippers behind. They escaped.

"Private J. B. Klein had been placed as one of a guard of the baggage car on the first section of the Illinois Central train which brought the First infantry to Springfield. At Kankakee, four young men, according to the report, climbed to the front platform and attempted to enter the car. Klein barred the way, using the only weapon available, a bayonet.

The arsenal is crowded with negro refugees from Springfield and surrounding towns. About 200 men, women and children are sheltered in the building and sleep on the floor, or in chairs. They endure the hardships of these quarters rather than face the prospect of staying in their homes, beset with momentary fear of attack.

Use Wagons For Troops.

Colonel Sanborn and General Wells, commanding two provisional brigades which have been formed here, increased the mobility of their forces by using farm wagons. General Wells had ten vehicles and Colonel Sanborn as many more.

"Just as good as horses," said General Wells. "When we get an alarm, I just order my 'Shafter cavalry' into the wagon and they are off in no time."

At a conference in the governor's office, steps were taken to notify the negro residents of the suburban districts to come into the state arsenal. The scattered settlements extending around the outskirts of the city present too great a field for even the big body of troops here now. The authorities are a bit worried by the conditions in the outside sections.

Scores of negroes have left Springfield, either on foot or by trolley cars, the latter class riding as far as their means permitted and then striking across country. These tramping companies, aimless and penniless, are causing some complaint from the communities through which they pass.

Honors For American Prelates.

Rome, Aug. 27.—Cardinal Gibbons has left here for Switzerland. He was accompanied by Mgr. O'Connell, bishop of Washington; the Rev. Louis O'Donovan of Baltimore and Mgr Germano Straniero, who in 1886, as papal ablegate, brought him the cardinal's red hat. A number of friends were at the station to see the cardinal off. Just before leaving he was informed that the pope had granted his request and had appointed the following ecclesiastics as domestic prelates to the pontiff, entitling them to be called "monsignor": Rev. T. S. Lee, rector of St. Matthews, Washington, D. C.; Rev. James F. Mackin of St. Paul's, Washington; Rev. George Devine of St. Johns, Baltimore; Rev. William E. Starr of Corpus Christi, Baltimore. A higher honor, it was announced, has been reserved for the Right Rev. O. B. Corrigan, vicar general of Baltimore.

EVANS GOES ON RETIRED LIST.

"Fighting Bob" Tuesday Concludes 48 Years of Service.

MOHONK LAKE TO CELEBRATE.

Naval Hero and His Family Are Spending Summer There—Many Prominent Persons to Be Present, Including Governor Hughes and Former Secretary of the Navy Paul Morton.

Mohonk Lake, N. Y., Aug. 17.—On Tuesday evening Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, "Fighting Bob," will have concluded forty-eight years of service in the United States navy, and at the age of sixty-two he will go on the retired list. The admiral, unable to use one foot because of the illness which compelled him to leave the fleet in San Francisco harbor—a reminder of the wound received at Fort Fisher forty-three years ago—but mentally alert and vigorous, is at Lake Mohonk House, where he and his family are spending the summer.

The guests of the hotel are planning a celebration befitting the official close of a remarkable naval career. Elaborate exercises have been arranged. J. Edward Simmons, president of the New York chamber of commerce, will preside and deliver an address, and Andrew S. Draper, commissioner of education of the state of New York, on behalf of the guests, will present to Admiral Evans a magnificent loving cup provided by popular subscription. Letters from the president of the United States, many admirals of the navy, and other distinguished men will be read. The hotel will be attractively decorated, and in the parlor, where the exercises will be held, will be two flags: One, the flag that floated over the Iowa when that vessel, under the command of Admiral Evans, took part in the battle of Santiago; the other the flag of the Connecticut under which the admiral made the voyage from Hampton Roads to San Francisco.

REAR ADMIRAL R. D. EVANS.

Several Prominent Men.

A distinguished audience will be present to do honor to the hero of the occasion. Among those already present or expected are: Colonel H. L. Scott, commandant at West Point; Rear Admiral R. R. Ingersoll, Commodore E. O. Benedict, Chief Engineer William L. Baille, U. S. N.; Colonel Robert M. Thompson and General Anson G. McCook, U. S. A.; Governor Hughes of New York and Paul Morton, former secretary of the navy.

Washington, Aug. 17.—With the retirement from active service next Tuesday of Rear Admiral Evans, the United States navy loses one of the most picturesque figures that every trod a quarter deck. Forty-five years have gone by since Evans, as a young ensign, received his baptism of fire at Fort Fisher, during the civil war. During that span of years he has served his country gallantly, well earning the reward of rest which a grateful people give.

It has been his fortune to command the greatest fleet of fighting ships ever assembled under the American flag.

Entered Academy in 1860.

Born in Floyd county, Va., Aug. 18, 1846, sixty-two years ago, he came to Washington five, at the age of eleven, with his uncle, a newspaper man, upon the death of his father, Dr. Samuel Andrew Jackson Evans. Securing an appointment to the naval academy from the territory of Utah, he entered that institution Sept. 15, 1860. He was graduated in 1863 and served with honor throughout the remainder of the civil war. He became a lieutenant in 1866, a lieutenant commander two years later and a commander in 1876. He reached the grade of captain in 1893, and as such officer served through the Spanish-American war, commanding the battleship Iowa at the battle of Santiago. He was promoted to the rank of rear admiral in 1905.

Boy Accidentally Kills Himself.

Pontiac, Mich., Aug. 17.—Pulling his shotgun toward him by the muzzle, Fred J. Nite, a farmer, living one mile west of here, received the charge in his abdomen and died in a few minutes. Young Nite had been shooting blackbirds with a companion about the same age, and the boys were in a boat when the accident occurred. A flock of birds flew over them, and young Nite grabbed for his gun, which was discharged as he drew it over the edge of the boat.

Don't Eat Too Much Meat.

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 17.—The state board of health issues the following: "Grains, fruits and vegetables; these, with plenty of cold water to drink, constitute the proper food for hot weather. Eggs and a very limited amount of meat may be used. But meat three times a day and seven days a week is killing people. Cut out meat and see how much better you feel at the end of a month."

Detroit has a representative aboard the United States flagship Minnesota in nineteen-year-old Edgar Johnson, who enlisted a year ago last April, and is now enjoying a trip around the world. Hope college, at Holland, will be visited next month by one of its three Japanese graduates, Rev. Motoirtero Ohgimi, who has been engaged in evangelistic work in the Orient for twenty-six years. Rev. While sleeping on a sidetrack in the Bay City Pere Marquette yards, Wesley Williams, a former railroad employe, was run over by a freight car shunted by a switch engine and instantly killed. Williams had lost one arm and had a paper which showed that he had been soliciting from railroad men for funds with which to obtain an artifical hand.

Frank Hagen, a well known and wealthy farmer, near Ann Arbor, was held up by a man at a lonely spot on the Travers road while on his way home from the city. Hagen accuses Charles Bachtle, a former employe, and Bachtle is in jail. Hagen says Bachtle threatened his life with a big stone unless he gave up his money. Instead of delivering, Hagen jumped from his wagon and notified the police, who arrested Bachtle.

Three small boys, coasting down a hill at Grand Haven in a cart, collided with a moving Grand Rapids, Grand Haven & Muskegon interurban car at the foot of the hill. Abraham Wildhoff, six years old, was instantly killed and fearfully mangled. His body was wound around the truck and motor in such a manner that a wrecking car had to be brought there from Fruitport before the car could be moved and his body extricated.

While digging on his lot, a summer cottager at Hess lake, a resort three miles southeast of Newaygo, experienced some astonishment when his spade struck against the bones of what seems to have been a whole family of Indians. The circle of heads was complete, even to a supposed pair of twins. A comparison of the Indian skulls with that of the average American leaves no doubt in the mind of the finder and his friends that the discovered skeletons were once an Indian household.

Will Wage Fight In Northwest.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—A campaign to swing the northwestern states into the Democratic column is outlining by the Democratic national committee, and Chairman Mack is contemplating a trip to the west to rally the leaders of the party along the Pacific coast to vigorous action. Reports received at Democratic headquarters here indicate, the leaders say, that Montana and other states in the Rocky mountain region form a promising battleground for the Democrats. John H. Atwood, head of the speakers' bureau, said that he would be prepared to send many well known speakers into the western territory to wage a lively campaign in every debatable district. Chairman Mack expects to make his western trip during the latter part of September.

CATCH ALLEGED COIN MAKERS.

United States Officials Make Three Arrests at St. Ignace.

EVIDENCE AGAINST BROTHERS

Complete Counterfeiting Outfit Found in Homes of Herman, William and August Schimmelpfennig—Capture Was Melodramatic—One Has Practically Made a Confession to the Officers.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 17.—United States Secret Service Agent Elmer A. Gormon, who was recently placed in charge of the Michigan district, has just returned to Detroit after apprehending and placing under arrest three men charged with being members of a gang of counterfeiters who have flooded the country in the vicinity of St. Ignace, Mich., with spurious coins.

The three brothers arrested are now being held in the St. Ignace jail, awaiting the action of the grand jury. The men under arrest are Herman, William and August Schimmelpfennig, ages thirty-seven, twenty-nine and twenty-five, respectively.

The arrest of the three men is considered one of he most important that has been made in this section of the country in many years. Mr. Gormon, before leaving St. Ignace, says he succeeded in obtaining from Herman a practically complete confession. The officer now has in his possession a large quantity of counterfeiting material taken from the houses occupied by the three men. Dies, molds, metal, acids and all of the receptacles and articles used in the manufacture of bad coin are now in the office of Agent Gormon in Detroit. The material will be held as evidence until the trial of the prisoners begins.

Details of the apprehension of the three brothers are melodramatic in the extreme. In relating the story of the capture, he said:

Melodramatic Affair.

"After I was convinced that the time was ripe to make an arrest, I was driven to a place called Moran, twelve miles from St. Ignace. I was accompanied by City Marshal Frank Grondin, and as we drove into the little camp, the latter said: 'There's one of the fellows we want, standing near that saloon.' I hustled out to him and placed him under arrest. He offered no resistance.

"The man at first stoutly denied any knowledge of counterfeiting operations, and when I asked him where he lived, he gave vague answers. I soon learned the location of his home, however, and we were driven immediately to that place."

Arriving at the spot where the three brothers reside, the officers found three small shacks. All the brothers are married, and it was in August's place that the counterfeiting is said to have been carried on.

William and August, the other brothers, unaware that anything exciting was transpiring in their midst, were quietly at work in a garden in the rear of the three cottages. After satisfying himself that there was no counterfeiting material in Herman's place, Officer Gormon ran out and confronted the other two men. They threw up their hands at the point of a gun and, after a severe sweating, are said to have admitted their complicity in the nefarious business.

"Jig Is Up."

"Well, I guess the jig is up," August, the youngest member of the trio, is alleged to have said, "and you'll find the stuff over in my place."

When the officers searched his house, they found all of the material, including files of an expensive kind, which were used in shaping the coins to represent good money.

Molds and dies, which were used in manufacturing the coins, were found hidden in a stove. Agent Gormon searched for several hours before finding this bit of evidence, as all of the brothers remained uncommunicative.

Qualifies As Candidate.

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 17.—Lieutenant Governor Patrick H. Kelley has filed sufficient petitions with the secretary of state to secure a place on the primary ballot. Senator Carl Keyes of the Fifteenth district and F. R. Ming of the Cheboygan district have qualified for the primary. All primary petitions to be filed with the secretary of state or with county clerks must be in the hands of these officials by 4 o'clock this afternoon. It is not sufficient that the papers be deposited in the mail at that time.

Sally, T. C.

By W. F. BRYAN.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Sarah Henrietta Westervelt was the name entered in the register of the ivy clad church, and in her baby days she was called Sally. But from the day her Cupid's arch of a mouth learned to frame intelligent sentences Jack Hardy had dubbed her the "town crier."

The nickname was so apt that it stuck, being reduced for simplicity's sake to T. C. Even during those stern minutes in the library with her father he often dropped the sober Sarah for the more universal T. C.

T. C.'s nickname was due to her genius for the dissemination of bits of gossip best forgotten. Her mind seemed naturally to empty itself of all information, and young Hardy altered an old saw into "What goes in T. C.'s ear comes out of her mouth."

As T. C. grew in understanding the habit got her more firmly in its grip. Instead of learning to appreciate the value of reticence, her wider scope of knowledge served only the better to equip her for the gathering of sundry bits of gossip which she would blurt out at the most inopportune occasions until not only her family, but her friends, came to regard her with an affection that was not unmixed with terror.

T. C., being a sensitive little soul, grieved in secret and made earnest vows that she would tattle no more.

HE GATHERED HER TROUBLESOME LITTLE SISTER TO HIS BREAST.

It was to Jack Hardy that she always went for sympathy and advice when these revelations and their consequences hung heavy over her head. Though Jack had given her the odious nickname, he made partial atonement by never employing it.

To him she was "Peterkin," and, though frequently he was a sufferer from her disclosures, he was ever ready with advice, sympathy or candy, as the occasion seemed to demand, for he alone apparently realized that her fault was temperamental and not the result of maliciousness.

T. C. fairly worshiped Hardy, yet all the little intimate details of his courtship of her sister Nell leaked out along with the rest of her chatter, and there were times when Hardy's forbearance was put to a hard test. It was characteristic of the man that even the personal experience did not abate his sympathy for T. C., not even when he proposed to Nell and was given a negative answer.

When Nell made hysterical reference to another girl he felt that he had T. C. to thank for this, yet his office still was her haven of refuge, and she stoutly denied that she had said anything about some other woman.

Hardy's questions had to be discreetly framed if he did not wish the fact of his rejection to become common talk, and he could not press the investigation. Instead he sought absorption in work, but the practice of a country lawyer seldom proves absorbing, and Hardy grew thin and white while he waited and hoped for a clearing up of the trouble.

He was sitting idly at his desk one afternoon when T. C. poked her head into the doorway and, finding that he was alone, entered boldly.

"What is it, Peterkin?" he asked, printing a kiss on the child's troubled face. "Have you been telling the minister what your father said when he was asked to contribute to the chancel fund, or did you explain to the guests at the party that the salad was made with canned lobster?"

"Worse 'an that," was the doleful declaration as T. C. snuggled against the broad shoulder. "The school committee visited this afternoon. Mr. Sprague asked us what love was, and I told him it was the way the principal acted with Miss Saunders. They all laughed, but Miss Squires got red in the face, and I was expelled. It is the truth," she added defiantly. "He kisses her when he thinks no one can see him, and she calls him 'Georgie.' I wouldn't call any man with whiskers 'Georgie,' like a little boy."

"Wait until you grow up," admonished Hardy. "But, see here, Peterkin, I know Mr. Torrance very well. Perhaps I can beg you off if you promise to keep out of his love affairs in future."

"You just bet I will!" declared T. C. with unction. "Lovers are funny people. There's Nell just crying her eyes out because you carry some other girl's picture in your watch."

"What do you know about that picture?" asked Hardy tensely. "Did you tell Nell about that?"

"I saw it one day when you left your watch on the desk," explained T. C. "I didn't tell Nell. I just said it was funny that you had another girl's picture in your watch when Nell's new pictures are so much prettier."

"Look here, Peterkin," he proposed. "You take this dime and find a place where you can get ice cream soda. Don't be in too much of a hurry to drink it. Better get two. Meantime I'll slip over to the house and sort of prepare them for the news that you are expelled."

T. C. gurgled a delighted assent, and presently they emerged from the office building, and T. C. went skipping along to the candy store, while Jack made for the Westervelt home.

Nell was sitting on the shade plazza as he came up the path. As she saw him she rose to her feet, but it was too late for a graceful retreat. He sprang up the steps and caught her hand.

"Don't go in," he pleaded. "Let's sit out here. It is more pleasant."

"Shall I call father?" she asked. "He is in the library."

"I hope to see him before I go," declared Hardy meaningly. "But first I want to speak to you."

Nell flushed at the suggestion, but she resumed her place in the rocker, and Jack drew a chair to her side.

"When I asked you to marry me you said something about another girl," he began, plunging directly into the subject. "At the time I suspected that T. C. might be able to explain the allusion, but I did not dare question her too closely lest I give forth more information than I obtained. She let it out today. Was it because of that other girl in my watch that you refused me, Nell?"

"No woman cares to be counted second best," was the defensive reply. "Have you changed the photograph again?"

"I have not changed," he said slowly, "but I want you to see it."

He held the watch toward her with the back case open. She saw the likeness of a gentle faced woman who somehow suggested an earlier period in spite of the modern photography. Silently she passed it back to Hardy and waited for an explanation.

"This is my father's watch," he began. "The picture is that of my mother. When she died we had only an old painting of her. Father had it copied, and they made a splendid job of it. That is why I have another woman's picture in my case. When you spoke of 'the other woman' I could not know that Sally had been investigating my watch. She found it on my desk one day. I just learned this and understood your feeling of resentment."

"I supposed that you knew and had no explanation to offer."

"And you will give me another answer now?" he asked as he gained possession of her hand.

An hour later a freckled face thrust itself above the hedge of the Westervelt lawn; then, seeing Hardy on the piazza, T. C. came boldly forward.

"Did you fix it, Jack?" she demanded. Hardy blushed.

"I was fixing another of your scrapes," he explained. "Nell, Peterkin has been expelled from school, but I have promised to see Torrance in her behalf. Meanwhile I have promised that she will not be scolded."

"I couldn't scold her this afternoon," said Nell as he gathered her troublesome little sister to her breast. "You make a great deal of trouble for people, T. C., sometimes, but then again you set them right."

"I'm not to blame that there isn't any stopper to my brain," was the aggrieved explanation. "Jack knows that. That's why he fixed things for me all right."

"You're a dear," said Nell and Jack in chorus, and for once the town crier had the comfortable feeling that she was appreciated.

Going to School in Burma.

Shortly after the native college was opened at Rangoon the head, the Rev. Dr. Marks, says in the Church Family Paper that the king of Burma came to him and asked if he would teach some of his sons. When he agreed the king asked, "What ages do you like them at?"

"From twelve to fourteen."

"Bring all my sons between twelve and fourteen to me."

Nine princes came in.

Four came to school the next day, each riding on an elephant and with two golden umbrellas. Each also was escorted by forty soldiers. Afterward the whole nine came, so there were nine princes, nine elephants, eighteen golden umbrellas and 360 soldiers.

Unlike Mary's lamb, Dr. Marks says, the elephants stayed outside, but when the princes came into the schoolroom all the other boys threw themselves flat down with their faces to the ground. It was forbidden for any one to stand or sit in the presence of princes.

Dr. Marks found this state of things very inconvenient and put the matter to the princes. They talked the situation over and made up their minds what to do.

"You fellows may get up," one of the princes said. "You need not be frightened."

"After that," says Dr. Marks, "we had very little difficulty on the score of etiquette."

Freaky Mental Notes.

"Have you ever noticed what strange memoranda man's mind makes?" asked the observant inquisitor. "You have met people who cannot remember 2424 except as a number which they call 'twice 1212.' That's an ordinary case, but I think I got across a champion freak mind the other day when I was looking up a man who has been dead for some fifteen years. I got to his neighborhood and began questioning the old timers. 'Yes, I remember Charley Johnson well enough, sure I do,' said one old fellow. Then I wanted to know what Charley Johnson's trade had been. 'H'm, Charley Johnson's trade?' answered my informant in a perplexed tone. 'Charley Johnson's trade? Well, darn it, what was his trade now? What did Charley do, anyway? Just wait a minute. I know that there is something here in the house that will remind me what his trade was. Just let me look around a minute. Let us see, what was it now? That's right, that's right; there I have it. Charley was a baker. That's right. You see that there picture over there? It has some Dutch writing under it. That reminds me of Dutch cake and makes me think of it that Charley was a baker.' Now, what do you think of that? Why couldn't that freak mind just as easily remember that Charley was a baker as remembering the laborious process for refreshing its memory?"—Philadelphia Record.

Dreamers.

There was never so much need for real dreamers as there is today. The business man, caring only for "his beef, his beer and his pew in eternity," will laugh scornfully and want to know how his balance sheet would appear did he give way to dreaming, forgetting that his operations originated years ago in the vaguest visions; also that happiness is not a necessary compliment of a heavy cash box.—London Academy.

Can't Afford Him Now.

Lily Bell—No, Rufus, Ah cain't marry yo' jest yet awhile. Y'll hab to wait. Rufus—Why for mus' I wait, Lily Bell? Lily Bell—'Cause three of the families mammy washes for done quit her, an' now she sca'cely makes 'nough to support me an' paw.—Judge.

A GLIMPSE OF TANGIER

The Oddities of This Famous City of the Moors.

ITS QUEER, WINDING LANES.

No Wheeled Vehicles Are to Be Found There, and the Street of the Christians, the Main Thoroughfare, Is Only Twenty Feet in Width.

First impressions of a city like Tangier are difficult to give because of their enormous confusion. It is a variegated and kinetoscopic picture that one recalls of events since one's arrival, full of motion and color, but devoid of order or sequence. It is as hard to arrange one's ideas as to assemble one's coins of American, English, Spanish and Moorish mints, reduce them to pesetas and centimos and get back the right change when making a purchase.

From the pier one passes into and up the main thoroughfare, or Street of the Christians, and here your first idea of Tangier itself begins. Bare legs, flowing robes, red fezes, white turbans, donkeys, mules, men, women, children and produce pass before the eyes, and a babel fills the ears.

The Street of the Christians is the widest in town, averaging twenty feet. Others are ten, eight or as little as six. All are paved with rough cobblestones, and of course there is no room for sidewalks. Wheeled vehicles there are none, either in Tangier or elsewhere in the country. Men and donkeys jostle and push each other without ceremony, but with a certain comity and mutual respect that comes of long and close association. While your head is turned a donkey with water casks protruding from both sides of his back will bump them against you, sending you careening against another patient beast laden—always overladen, it may be said—with bags of grain.

Houses are of masonry plastered outside and usually calcimined with a slightly bluish tint to reduce the glare otherwise of unrelieved white. Mostly they are two and three stories in height, many with such windows as they have opening upon an inside court and only narrow peepholes looking out upon the street. This, taken together with the narrowness of the highways, makes it hard to distinguish architectural landmarks as you go about. From either side of the Street of the Christians queer lanes branch out and wind and cross and double and end with tantalizing frequency in a blank wall. Finding one's way is beset with difficulties and following directions hopeless.

Soon after arrival I decided to visit the American consulate. I fixed it upon the map as about two minutes' walk and dismissed my Moorish guide with scorn when he offered to accompany me. An hour later I was thankful merely to find myself again on the Street of the Christians and had forgotten all about the American consulate. The next day I was humble enough to let the guide show me the way.

Guides here are numerous, but, outside of a narrow limit, worthless on account of their slight acquaintance with English or any other tongue except Spanish and their native Arabic and their inability or disinclination to do for you what you want. Their main object seems to be to take you on donkey rides when you would rather walk and divide your pesetas with the drive or steer you into cafes, where they order coffee which you do not want, but for which, as an American and therefore a millionaire, you are expected to pay.

On the other hand, one cannot well do without these guides, because he cannot ask a question of two words on the street or even pause to read a sign before he is surrounded by a dozen interpreters—interrupters would be better—donkey drivers, street venders and beggars, each of whom thinks himself entitled to half a peseta for merely offering his services.

So, after all, it is as well to be bled by the guides, because while they are with you they drive off the other parasites, wishing to preserve your pesetas for their own better purposes, and it is a question of suffering at the hands of one rather than otherwise supporting the whole town.

As an instance of the cosmopolitan character of the town, the owner of my hotel is an Englishman whose wife is a Spaniard born in Tangier. The French, British, German and Spanish governments maintain separate postoffices, but all take the money of the others. The first letter I mailed I took to the German postoffice, tendered English money in payment and got back Spanish in change. If one has occasion to send considerable mail it pays, I have been assured, to buy stamps in Moorish money, because all coin is accepted at its face value at the postoffices, but Moorish is so depreciated for commercial purposes that it can be secured upon the most favorable terms of all from the money changers.

Every "dog of a Christian" in Morocco is living here by the tolerance of a people which is little different now from what it was a thousand years ago, when the Moslem hordes swept across northern Africa and into Europe until halted by Charles Martel on the field of Tours. This tolerance, it is true, is one of long standing in the coast cities and likely to continue, but it must not be forgotten that it is a tolerance none the less and that these people are capable of both vild and wonderful deeds when aroused, as the record of their invasions and the civilization of Andalusia attests.—Arthur H. Warner in New York Post.

The Tarantula.

Whether the tarantula is ever a death dealer or not is a disputed point. However, there seems to be no doubt that the bite of this spider-like creature inflicts one of the most painful wounds that the human body can endure. Stolid Indians who have borne the tortures of the sun dance without flinching have been known to roll upon the ground and shriek in agony when bitten by a tarantula, which leaves a livid scar that never grows dim. It is possible that the tarantula bite sometimes proves fatal, although it is difficult to find a well authenticated instance of this kind.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

She Knew.

Applicant—No, ma'am; I couldn't work in a house where there were children. Mrs. Keephouse—But we advertised for a girl who understood children. Applicant—I do understand 'em, ma'am. That's why I won't work where they are.—Illustrated Bits.

writes P. S. Baxter, Kyneville, Fla.

Mr. Baxter writes: "My wife suffered with Sciatic Rheumatism for seven years. She was in a very bad condition. After using "5-Drops" for three months it made a permanent cure. This was several years ago and she is still well.

STOPS THE PAINS caused by Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Kidney Trouble and kindred diseases.

"5-DROPS" taken internally rids the blood of the poisonous matter and acids which are the direct causes of these diseases. Applied externally it affords almost instant relief from pain, while permanent results are being effected by purifying the blood, dissolving the poisonous substance and removing it from the system.

BIDED HIS TIME.

The patience of certain Indian traders is almost beyond belief. However, as a virtue is seldom a simple and single hearted affair, but usually consists of a mixture of several motives, it is safe to conclude that greed mingled with a good share of obstinacy goes to make up the measure of these peddlers' patience. It thus becomes only a passive form of the persistence which belongs to the skillful trader everywhere. A. D. McCormick in "An Artist in the Himalayas" gives an account of a transaction in which he had a part.

He was camping in the mountain region, and merchants were continually coming to his tent in the hope of disposing of their wares. They did not seem to mind if their goods were not bought.

"Only just look at this beautiful worrik, sahib," said one.

"I am too busy," replied Mr. McCormick.

"Oh, I don't mind. I'll wait."

At the end of the day there was the trader.

"I want to show sahib this beautiful ring."

"I don't want any ring," insisted "sahib." "Go!"

"But, sahib, I sell this ring very cheap."

"I tell you I don't want it!"

"I wait, hazor (highness). If sahib only see the ring he will buy."

The next morning he was seated about 100 yards from the tent, gazing into space. Two hours later he was in the same position. At nightfall he was still there. Mr. McCormick could stand it no longer. "Show me the ring!" he called. "What do you want for it?"

"Oh, hazor, it is a beautiful ring! I made it my-self!"

"Here, you old scandal, this isn't a stone—it's a piece of glass!"

"Well, what do you want for it, you swindle?"

"Fifty rupees."

"Make tracks quick! I wouldn't give more than ten!"

The next day the merchant reappeared, offering the ring for 45 rupees; the day after he came down to twenty; the third his price was ten.

"Sahib sa'i he wou'd give ten!" he insisted.

Mr. McCormick finally in desperation handed out 10 rupees, and the trade went away smiling, having fairly bored his way to success.

The Source Told All.

"What'd Jimmy give yer fer yer birthday?"

"This here brass ring."

"How'd yer know it ain't nothin' but brass?"

"He give it ter me."—Cleveland Leader.

The contract has been let for fire escapes on the high school, Maccabee hall and opera house. The escapes are to be of iron with a rail on each side and wire netting to prevent the children falling through. We notice other people are also taking steps in the same direction Dundee is now having their fire escapes made in Toledo for the Opera house.

Mr. Charles S. Strong of Prairie Depot, Wood County, O., was a Sunday guest of his cousin, Mrs. Hattie Strong Snyder. Mr. Strong is president of the Home Saving's Bank of that town. He has erected three fine business blocks in Prairie Depot, and is the owner of what is called the "Finest residence" in Wood County. Since Mr. Strong spent the year of 1874 in this village in the employ of Strong & McNair he has been a resident of many places but he always considers Tecumseh as the gem home town of our country.

REMINISCENCES

Written by Mrs. N. H. Howland in Remembrance of Early Friendship Between Quincy Wood and B. L. Baxter.

In reminiscences of early settlers to one written by Mr. Tiffany of the late Hon. B. L. Baxter could well be supplemented by a little poem which was written by J. Quincy A. Wood and inscribed to Mr. Baxter who was his early and lasting friend.

Quincy Wood lived just west of town in the brick farm home on the turnpike now known as the Thomas Boyd farm—B. L. Baxter, his brother Walter J. Baxter and Quincy Wood were all working their way through college and built themselves a log hut in the woods just about where the Cincinnati Northern R. R. crosses the Stitt farm and here they lived one winter and perhaps more by cutting cord wood and clearing up the land in that section.

Studying Greek and Latin at night by the light of a burning rag in a dish of lard and eating frozen pork and corn bread at meal times. Of these times, Quincy Wood says: "The muse she was our common mother and filled our chalices with dew."

Surmounting all these hardships all three of these men became distinguished in various ways and the friendship formed in their early struggle for an education which they could not have had except by their own effort was always cherished.

As late in their lives as '95 the Sauk Rapids, Minn., Sentinel published the following beautiful poem by Quincy Wood dedicated to his early friend

Where are they of the present school opportunities, who can love so long or write so well.

BY J. QUINCY A. WOOD.

There lives within my memory old
A worthy Name, revered by me;
His inner Life has ne'er been told,
And I would tell it worthily.

A worthy Name in strife and peace,
Of love and song and precept bold;
And e'er his life and mine surcease,
I'll run through his a Thread of Gold.

He was my junior in the birth,
But my Preceptor in all things:
A man of finest moulded earth,
With soul of eager soaring wings.

In Song, he was my elder brother,
In precept, my discourser true;
The Muse—she was our common mother,
And filled our chalices with dew.

We sipped at Poesy's Chrystal fount,
Together toiled; together slept;
We saw Fame on his shining mount,
And turned our eyes away and wept.

No cloud obscured his youthful day,
No vapor chilled his tempered fire;
No song of bird on summer spray,
Was sweeter than his tender lyre

He loved all pure and lovely things,
And voiced them in his faultless strain;
He gave to Thought poetic wings,
Nor deemed such pastimes wholly vain.

His Muse was like the woodland spring,
Whose limped currents flow unknown,
And to the silent shadow sing,
And to its fronded fountain lone,

He was heroic in his faith;
He spared no strength, nor pains, nor time;
The powers of Evil felt his scath;
For God and Truth he stood sublime.

In conflict, swift and eloquent,
His tongue and pen bore equal sway,
And with a stubborn logic rent
The mis-conceptions of his day.

His Charity was large and free;
He tried professions by their deeds;
From no encounter did he flee,
Where Truth and Human Rights had needs.

In peace, a gentle loving soul,
In strife, a brave, but generous foe;
He warred against th' Inebriat's Bowl,
And dealt it many a sturdy blow.

A worthy Name, revered by me,
Deep written on my memory old;
Than his, no Inner Life could be
More worthy of a Thread of Gold.

August number of the Atlantic Monthly, the first issue to appear under the imprint of The Atlantic Monthly Company, is full of fresh and inviting material. Charles D. Stewart, the well-known author of "The Fugitive Blacksmith," writes "The Story of Bully," a stirring and full blooded tribute to one of man's most useful servants, the ox. The description of the tug of war in which Bully conquered his rival is as fine a piece of descriptive writing as has appeared for many months. A touch of foreign travel interest is added by the annual letter from France by Stoddard Dewey, and a brilliant descriptive article by Mary A. Chamberlain on "Life in an Indian Compound." Lucy S. Consult contributes a striking essay on "Voices," which, with the verse and an unusually sprightly Contributors' Club, completes an issue of exceptionally varied attractiveness.

Fourth Prize—Film negative Album, value $1.00.

To the next five best. One dollar worth of Kodak merchandise as selected

GOV. WARNER SYMPHONY IN GRAY.

Gov. Warner arrived in his auto at 9 o'clock this morning. His speech was given in front of T. C. Harris' store. Mr. Warner is a fine looking man of middle age, dressed in gray clothes, and crowned with gray hair. His auto, following the color scheme, was also in gray. We will refrain from saying that the speech was in gray also. His first argument was in favor of third term for Governor, citing Gov. Deneen of Illinois, who has just been elected Governor again and when he serves his time will have served Illinois eight years. He next touched upon the two cent fare, the taxation of railroads and the taxation of electric light and telephone companies.

He also took up the subject of the primary school fund. At the close of his remarks he was heartily cheered by the crowd. He was followed by Lieut Gov Kelley who, the minute you saw his smile you would recognize his nationality and know his name was Kelly. He gave the more effective speech of the two. Possibly the speakers may have drawn an inspiration from the surrounding scenery but if they had, they would have given a baseball speech instead as baseball shirts were gally floating from the windows of the Barrett House and the baseball sign in front of them. But all in all the people seemed to thoroughly enjoyed the speeches of both Gov. Warner and Lieut. Gov. Kelly.

The little son of Ernest Updyke was taken to Ann Arbor Friday forenoon to receive the Pasteur treatment. He was bitten by their dog which went mad. Hiram Gove, who is in Ann Arbor receiving treatment, was bitten by the same dog. The dog was taken to Adrian and shot about two weeks ago.

New Commercial School.

The Commercial and Short-hand department of Hillsdale College will open September 8, in rooms expressly constructed for commercial classes, under the principalship of Prof. M. T. Skinner, who has had the best of training and wide experience in organizing and administering Commercial schools. Mrs. L. W. Skinner, in charge of the short-hand and typewriting, is an expert in her field and has had long experience in teaching. The subjects will include bookkeeping, banking, short-hand (Chartier, Pitmanic Graham, gg Grndae systems), typewriting, correspondence, commercial arithmetic, penmanship, business practice, etc. The college library, gymnasium, literary, musical and Christian associations, elocution, drawing, painting, athletics, lectures, and other features of general college life, offer rare advantages for commercial and short-hand students. For tuition and other information, address "Secretary of the College," or Prof. M. T. Skinner, Hillsdale, Mich.

Sports Day at Manchester.

Manchester held their sports day Saturday, Aug. 15. Although they were rather unfortunate in their choice of a day on account of the threatening weather still a large crowd attended.

The morning was spent in speeches by prominent men and music by the Clinton and Manchester bands.

In the afternoon races and dancing were enjoyed. The balloon ascension was a failure. The balloon had risen but a short distance in the air when a rent in the bag appeared and the gas began to pour out. The aeronant saw his danger and immediately cut loose. He alighted on the sloping roof of a house and fell from there on the roof of the porch The crowd held their breath expecting to see him seriously hurt but fortunately he escaped with a few bruises. Fire works and a dance were the features of the evening. Boos' Orchestra of Jackson furnishing the music. Everyone report a good time.

Discouraging for Sunday School Committee.

How often do we have it proved to us, that after we know we can possess a certain thing, it loses its value, and never was it better demonstrated than at the Sunday school excursion of Aug. 14. Out of a membership of 500 scholars, there were just 33 half fare tickets sold, certainly discouraging for those who have been placed in charge.

Cosner-Page.

Miss Florence Page of Tecumseh, and Anderson Cosner of Angola, Ind., were united in marriage by Dean Channer at Christ church rectory in Adrian on Thursday afternoon. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A Page of this place and her many friends extend their best wishes. The groom is an employes of the Lake Shore railway.

Mr. and Mrs. Cosner will make their home with the parents of the bride for the present.

CURES COUGHS AND COLDS

Hyomei Gives Relief in 10 Minutes—Cures Over Night.

Everybody knows, or ought to know, that Hyomei is recognized among scientists as the specific for Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis and Hay Fever, but there are a great many people who do not know that Hyomei will cure a cough or a cold in less than 24 hours.

But everyone should know that the soothing, balmy and antiseptic air of Hyomei when breathed over the raw and inflamed membrane of the nose and throat will instantly allay the inflammation, and will effect a prompt cure.

Complete Hyomei outfit, including inhaler, costs only $1.00 at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store, extra bottles, if afterwards needed, will cost but 50 cents.

Joseph M. Harbaugh, Heldredge, Neb., writes: "I have used your Hyomei in my family for two years or more, and find it one of the best remedies we ever used for a cold or sore throat. We find that it gives quick relief in cases of catarrh."

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Men Past Sixty In Danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate gland and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am now 91 years old."

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Tecumseh People To Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Tecumseh.

S. Erskine, barber, living on Evans st., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "For ten years I was troubled with dull, dragging pains in my back, always more severe after hard work or if I lifted anything. I was also annoyed at night by the too frequent action of the kidneys which caused me to get up a great number of times, thus greatly disturbing my rest. The secretions were highly colored and deposited a great deal of sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally brought to my attention and I began taking them. They did me a world of good and I felt better and stronger than I had for a long time. I hope others having kidney trouble will try Doan's Kidney Pills and receive the same results as I did."

For Sale by all Dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.

THE TURNED UP MUSTACHE.

The German emperor, William II., is generally regarded as the inventor of the turned up mustache. This is true only as far as introducing it as a fashion. It was invented at the court of Philip IV., about 1625. That monarch was the first to wear his mustache turned upward. From the Spanish court the fashion spread over all Europe. Charles I. of England, Philip's brother-in-law, and many members of the Austrian Hapsburgs adopted it. It came to Belgium and was introduced into Germany by the Spanish soldiers during the Thirty Years' war.

It was also found in Sweden as well as in France under Louis XIII. Under Louis XIV. the beard went out of fashion, and during the time of Rococo the elegant world knew only clean shaven faces until the French revolution brought the mustache again into use. But nowhere except in its Spanish home did the mustache rise so extravagantly as with the German emperor and his imitators.

In Spain all kinds of artificial means, such as bandages and coverings, were employed to compel the mustache to keep this unnatural upward position, and in looking at the paintings of Velasquez or Murillo one can easily understand that without such coercive measures a true full blooded Spaniard could never have realized his ideal mustaches.—Minneapolis Journal.

In the days of Burke, Pitt and Fox members of the house of commons used to relieve the tedium of debate by sucking oranges and cracking nuts while lying full length on the benches, and Brougham made his great six hours' speech on law reform in 1828 with a hatful of oranges by his side for refreshment. Joseph Hume found solace in pears, which he took from his bulging pockets and munched by the hour, leaning the while against his favorite post. No wonder oranges were so popular, since their vender (one of them, at any rate) was a picturesque girl who used to sit with her wares in the lobby, attired in a "sprigged muslin gown with a gauze neckerchief" or in the glory of "clean white silk stockings, Turkey leather shoes and pink silk petticoat, becomingly short."—Westminster Gazette.

Why Suffer?

If you suffer pain from any cause, Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills will relieve it—and leave no bad after-effects. That's the important thing. Neither do they create a habit. More often the attacks become less frequent, or disappear altogether. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have no other effect except to relieve pain and quiet nervous irritation.

"We are never without Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. My husband and son, aged 15 were always subject to sick headache until we began using these Pills, and they have broken them up entirely. Don't think they have had to use them for six months. I recommend them to every one. A few weeks ago I heard an old lady friend was sick. I went to see her. She was down with LaGrippe, and nearly crazy with awful backache. I gave her one of the Anti-Pain Pills and left another for her to take in a short time. They helped her right away, and she says she will never be without them again. Last winter my husband was taken with pluetisy on both sides, and I know he would have died if it hadn't been for the Pills. In less than half an hour he was sweating, and went to bed and slept."

We were among the favored ones who received a bouquet of the beautiful Egyptian Lotus blossoms which were sent here by Mrs. Wm. Greening. We were made more than joyful over their beauty and perfume.

Hay Fever and Summer Colds.

Victims of hay fever will experience great benefit by taking Foley's Honey and Tar, as it stops difficult breathing immediately and heals the inflamed air passages, and even if it should fail to cure you it will give instant relief." The genuine is in a yellow package.

How to Cure Constipation

Simple Home Remedy That Is Safe and Pleasant.

Few people escape constipation. Catching cold, over eating, worry, lack of exercise, failure to answer promptly the calls of nature, diseased or weakened system or strong medicines may cause it. The too common practice of taking salts or pills or some such violent cathartic has always done more harm than good. They make the bowels act quickly and violently simply because they irritate them, and leave them in a worse condition than before.

What is needed is a mild easy herb laxative, that gives regular daily movements in all cases, yet does not pain or gripe, and which will strengthen the bowels and tone up the system instead of depleting it.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin taken at night before going to bed will bring an easy pleasant natural movement in the morning even in the most obstinate cases and without any bad effects. No pain, no gripe and it is so safe and pleasant to take, mothers give it to their babies with splendid results. It is an aid to digestion and tones up the system as well as cures bowel trouble. Dr. L. M. Covey, Savannah, Tenn., writes: "I get better results from it than any Pepsin I ever used." Dr. T. Jones, Osgood, Mo., says: "I consider Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin the best of all laxatives." Mrs. Almon Willis, Jamaica, Vt., says: "I truly believe it saved my little boy's life." Rev. A. J. Fletcher, Rutherford, Tenn., says: "I am 60 years old and your Syrup Pepsin has cured me of dyspepsia and bowel trouble."

W. D. Jackson, Burns Station, Tenn., says: "I was afflicted with constipation and dyspepsia for nine years, and found no relief until I used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin." All druggists sell it at 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

We are glad to send a free sample to any reader of this paper who has never used it and will give it a fair trial. Write today to Pepsin Syrup Co., 303 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill.

WREN SHERMAN IS TOLD.

Elaborate Program Will Be Carried Out at Utica Tuesday.

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 17.—No event in the history of Utica has brought forth decorations so elaborate or plans so extensive for a single day as those for Tuesday, when Congressman J. S. Sherman will be officially notified that he has been nominated by the Republican party for the office of vice president. All this part of the state will help to celebrate the event.

The festivities will begin at 7 a. m., when a salute of nineteen guns will be fired, to be followed two hours later with a parade through the principal streets. At 11 o'clock the notification committee, escorted by the Conkling Unconditionals, a marching club, will proceed behind a band of 100 pieces to the home of Mr. Sherman, on Genesee street.

The notification exercises will take place about noon.

A platform has been erected at the Sherman home, where the decorations are elaborate. Senator Julius C. Burrows of Michigan, the chairman of the notification committee, will address Mr. Sherman, and the latter will respond. Secretary Root, a warm friend of Mr. Sherman, will also deliver an address, as will Mayor Thomas Wheeler of Utica, Charles S. Symonds, chairman of the citizens' reception committee, and President M. W. Stryker of Hamilton college. These and invited guests will be entertained at luncheon following the ceremonies.

During Tuesday afternoon at Utica park a program will be given, including a state league baseball game, races and a balloon ascension. Music will be rendered by a chorus and bands. The visitors and Mr. Sherman will pass in review in front of the grandstand, prior to the field sports.

At 6 o'clock Mr. Sherman will give a dinner to the notification committee and invited guests at the Yahnundasis Golf Club House. At 7:30 band concerts, an electrical display, a fancy drill by the Conkling Unconditionals and fireworks will add to the scenes of gayety.

PASSING ON THE BALDWIN BALLOON.

Government Officials Will Next Witness Aeroplane Tests.

Washington, Aug. 17.—Today the board of signal corps officers who have been conducting the airship tests at Fort Myer are in session to pass finally upon the Baldwin motor balloon, which fulfilled the endurance requirement in Saturday's flight of two hours' duration.

Orville Wright is expected to arrive here Tuesday. His aeroplane will probably arrive on the same day, and it is likely that one or two preliminary flights will be made during the week.

The Wright brothers' contract with the government is for a heavier-than-air flying machine, and the specifications call for a more pretentious construction than Captain Baldwin's motor balloon.

For a speed of forty miles an hour, twice that required of the dirigible, the Wright brothers will receive $25,000. A 10 per cent bonus will be paid for each additional mile, while the machine will be rejected if the maximum speed is less than thirty-six miles.

Orville Wright will fly the machine in the official trials, but he will be required to take an assistant with him, in addition to sufficient fuel for a flight of 125 miles. An endurance test will be required, in which the machine must remain in the air for an hour, and under perfect control.

TAFT IS GOING FISHING.

Will Be Guest of Middle Bass Club, Near Put-in-Bay.

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 17.—Candidate Taft and party will leave Virginia Hot Springs Friday, Aug. 28, for a week's fishing in Lake Erie, at the end of which he will go to Cincinnati Sept. 5th or 6th, to remain until election day.

Mr. and Mrs. Taft will be the guests of the Middle Bass club, the headquarters of which are on Middle Bass island, a short distance out in Lake Erie from Put-in-Bay. The club claims distinction for having had as members Presidents Hayes, Garfield and McKinley and being the host on a number of occasions of President Cleveland. Mr. Taft is fond of fishing and has been induced to believe that the change for a week from the mountains to the lake will put just the proper edge on his condition of fitness for the front porch work he is to do in his native city.

Arrangements are nearing completion for the one political event in which Mr. Taft is to participate before leaving here, the rally of Virginia Republicans next Friday. John A. Nooh and H. T. Voorhees of Staunton, Va., in charge of the arrangements, have informed Mr. Taft that the railroad excursions alone will bring 5,000 Virginians to the mountains to hear Mr. Taft speak.

There are nettles everywhere, but the smooth, green grasses are more common still.—Mrs. Browning.

HOPE TO CLEAR LENNON GIRL.

Friends Inclined to Believe Duffy Guilty One.

LAWYER ENGAGED FOR HER.

Reported Unfortunate Saginaw Young Lady Has Given Revised Account of Death of Her Babe—Authorities Abandon Search For Third Person in the Case.

Saginaw, Mich., Aug. 20.—With the advent of a lawyer into the case of Miss Myrtle E. Lennon, being held in the Central police station here without a warrant, pending the clearing up of a mystery of the drowning of her babe in the Saginaw river on the night of Aug. 6, it has assumed an entirely different aspect. Fred L. Traverse has been secured by friends of the young woman to take care of her case, and, following several extended conferences with her, he announces himself as satisfied that there will be no doubt of securing her acquittal of the charge of murdering or being accessory to the death of her infant child, should such a charge be made against her.

While Chief Kain and the prosecuting attorney's office refuse to give out any definite information which would lead to a conclusion as to the guilt of Joseph Duffy, it is pretty clearly understood, not only in police circles but outside, that the police believe they have a chain of evidence which would convict Duffy, and which will free the girl.

It is hinted that during the past few days Miss Lennon has given a revised account of the occurrences on the night on which the child was drowned, a story which the authorities believe to be the true version of the affair, yet a story which conflicts greatly with her first telling of the affair, to which it is believed she held simply to shield Duffy.

The belief is fast gaining ground that Miss Lennon had the baby with her when she met Duffy on the eventful night she left the hospital and had not lost it over the rail of the bridge as she first claimed. If this is so, it is intimated that it suggests a possible reason why the authorities felt sure enough of their ground to make a complaint of straight murder against Duffy when it became necessary to make a complaint to hold him against the writ of habeas corpus which his attorney swore out for him a week ago.

Another thing which is important is the fact that the police have given up any search or any possibility of there having been a third person connected with the case.

Heavy Bail Demanded of Campbell.

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 20.—Arraigned on three counts, two charging embezzlement and one forgery, Robert Campbell was examined before Justice Jenks in police court. On the embezzlement charges he waived examination and was bound over to the circuit court. On the forgery charge he demanded an examination. Evidently Justice Jenks intended that Campbell should have no chance to repeat his performance of forfeiting his bail bond, as he fixed the total amount of bail for the three charges at $27,000. Campbell went back to jail.

An Otter Breeding Farm.

Menominee, Mich., Aug. 20.—Lewis and Edward Parrett, Palestine farmers, have been granted permission by State Game Warden Pierce to catch live otter for an otter breeding farm they intend to lay out on the shores of Hayward lake, ten miles east of Stephenson, this county. The Parretts already have a small number of the little valuable fur bearing animals in captivity. This will be the only otter farm in the state. Otters are becoming scarcer each year, and the value of their furs corresponding ly increasing.

Explosion Won't Be Probed.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 20.—The explosion aboard the steamer Leelanau, which caused the death of Mrs. Isabelle A. LaBonte and injury to many other persons, will not be investigated. The vessel, which operated on Leelanau lake, near Traverse City, was not on navigable waters of the United States, as designated by the law, and does not come under the jurisdiction of the federal steamboat inspectors, according to a telegram received from the local inspectors of the Grand Haven district by Captain C. H. Westcott, supervising steamboat inspector at Detroit.

HALF MILLION WELCOME 'EM.

Arrival of Fleet at Sydney Signal For Demonstration.

VESSELS REACH THERE TODAY

Australian Port Was Reached in the Early Morning—Thousands Staid Up All Night in Anticipation of Arrival—Guns Boom Salutes—Officials Exchange Visits.

Sydney, N. S. W., Aug. 20.—Early this morning a thin veil of smoke on the horizon signalled to the watchers on the coast the approach of the American warships, and at 5:35 official notification was sent out that the fleet had been sighted. It was yet twenty miles ouside of Sydney harbor, but this word, which had been awaited eagerly by tens of thousands, stirred Australians like a call to arms, and almost instantly those who had not already left the city to take up points of vantage along the bays were moving in droves to line the quays, the rooftops and other places on the harbor front, to watch the coming of the warships of the new world.

The day broke bright and clear, and so intense was the interest in the American ships of war that half the populace remained awake the entire night, and thousands and thousands of them, long before the night was over, were on their way to the hilltops outside of the city limits, where they congregated seemingly in unbroken lines along the coast from Bondi Beach to Manly.

Beautiful Sight.

It is estimated that hardly less than half a million people assembled to give the visitors a royal welcome. Sydney harbor, with its innumerable bays, coves and branches, never looked more beautiful, nor did the American sailors ever witness a more inspiring sight than that which met their eyes as the white ships came through the cannel, past the great headlands, into Port Jackson.

A hundred thousand people, the greatest single assemblage of all, gathered on the south heads, where a magnificent view of the whole scene was to be had. Hundreds of craft of all kinds moved up and down even at that early hour, decorated in every conceivable manner with flags and bunting.

In perfect alignment, the flagship Connecticut leading, with Rear-Admiral Sperry on the bridge, the warships came out of the horizon. Passing in through the Sydney heads in double column, at intervals of 400 yards, the ships looked to have a world of speed and power under their glistening sides. The fleet was attended by convoy steamers and was greeted with a roar of salutes from the forts as it steamed slowly along. The thousands ashore and afloat added their cheers to swell the noisy welcome, and countless British and American flags were flung to the breeze.

The American ships boomed forth a salute to the forts and the port, and as soon as they were safely moored at their anchorage, official visits were exchanged.

HURRAH FOR JOHNSON!

Minnesota Democrats Cheer For Over an Hour, Then Nominate Him.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 20.—The Democratic state convention stampeded for Governor Johnson and nominated him for re-election with a rush, after a remarkable demonstration lasting over an hour. When the roll call of counties was made for nomination, Aitkin county yielded to Ramsey county (St. Paul), and Mayor D. W. Lawler of St. Paul took the platform, and at the conclusion of ten words he mentioned the name of John A. Johnson.

One of the wildest demonstrations ever seen in a Democratic state convention in Minnesota ensued. Hennepin county (Minneapolis) tore up its standard and started a wild march about the hall. Everybody else then seemed to join in. Some delegates grouped themselves on the stage about the picture of Governor Johnson. Band music added to the pandemonium, and candidates yelled and cheered for Johnson. Minute after minute sped by, but still the delegates yelled excitedly, waved banners, carried the picture of Governor Johnson about the hall and put on a duplication of the demonstration given to Bryan at Denver.

As soon as the effervescence had subsided sufficiently, the governor was named unanimously for gubernatorial candidate.

AGAIN FLEEING FROM THE TOWN

Springfield Negroes In Fear as Troops Are Withdrawn.

MORE REFUGEES IN ARSENAL.

Adjutant General Scott Declares There Is No Ground For Alarm. Special Grand Jury Has Examined Two Score Witnesses—No Returns Have Been Made.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 20.—Fear and terror prevailed in the homes of Springfield negroes. The departure of four regiments of infantry, two more organizations having been sent home today, has caused consternation among the colored residents.

"The mob will be here sure if these soldiers go away," they say. Delegations have been organized and sent to the state, county and city officials to prevent against a relaxation of the military regime. The auhorities are making efforts to quiet this feeling, but only partially succeed.

Scores of the terror stricken blacks have sought refuge in the arsenal. The exodus of negroes, which has begun to abate, has been renewed. The children and aged who were driven to the open suffered heavily, and it is feared that many of them will succumb to the hardships.

Adjutant General Scott insists that there is no good ground for the fear of the negroes.

This opinion has been endorsed in other quarters. It is asserted that 1,500 men can easily hold the advantage that the larger body of troops has gained, and the addition of the cavalry has increased the mobility of the troops to such a degree that the presence of the full force is absolutely unnecessary.

The special grand jury has examined nearly two score witnesses, but has made no returns of the proceedings. Unusual precautions as to secre- and testimony of the persons who cy have been taken, and the identity have appeared to give information against rioters have been carefully guarded.

Another coal mine has been closed because the whites and negroes refused to work alongside each other under ground.

BLAME HAINS BROTHERS.

Coroner's Jury Returns Verdict In Case of William Annis.

New York, Aug. 20.—After being out twenty-two minutes, a coroner's jury brought in a verdict that William E. Annis, who was killed last Saturday at Bayside, L. I., came to his death as the result of pistol wounds inflicted by Captain Peter C. Hains, Jr., U. S. A., aided and abetter by Thornton Hains, his literary brother.

Only two witnesses were called, C. H. Roberts of Flushing, who testified that he was standing on the club house float when he heard the report of a pistol shot and saw Captain Hains, in a kneeling position, clinging to the drooping body of Annis as he emptied the contents of his revolver into it, and Coroner's Physician W. G. Frey, who testified that Annis came to his death from the bullet wounds.

Before the inquest, John F. McIntyre, chief counsel for the Hains brothers, made the following statement to the press:

"In answer to the statement made by Mrs. Hains that she was made to sign a confession of her connection with William E. Annis while under the influence of drugs, I wish to say that my clients and their distinguished father have told me that there were four witnesses present when the confession was made, one of them being a prominent New York lawyer. These witnesses will testify at the trial.

"When Captain Hains was called back from the Philippines, he questioned his wife regarding rumors he had heard about her, and he became convinced that his suspicions were wrong. Later, he said, facts developed which made him demand the confession from his wife, and she made it.

"Captain Hains denies that he sent letters to Annis challenging him to a duel. Stories to this effect are absurd."

That both Captain Hains and his brother, T. Jenkins Hains, were suffering from some form of emotional insanity will probably be the defense offered in their trial.

HEARD WIFE SHOOT SELF.

New York Man Rushes Into House and Commits Suicide—He Dies Kissing Her.

New York, Aug. 20.—Believing her husband was about to leave her forever, Mrs. Edward H. Hacker committed suicide by shooting herself. Her husband, who had bade her good-bye after a series of altercations and started from the Hague court apartment house, where they lived, heard the shot and ran back to their flat.

Upon beholding the lifeless body of his wife he was overcome with grief and remorse, and, locking the door of the apartment, he picked up the revolver with which she had killed herself and ended his own life by shooting himself three times. When the superintendent of the building and employes broke down the door they found husband and wife dead, Hacker with his arms clasped about his wife's neck and his lips close to her cheek, as though he died while trying to kiss her.

For a day and a night Hacker and his wife had been quarreling. They had been married a little less than two years, and it seems that Hacker was insanely jealous of his wife.

Hacker was employed by the McCall Pattern company and is said to have been well-to-do.

DISCUSSING ISSUES OF THE CAMPAIGN.

Number of Prominent Men at Luncheon With Roosevelt.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Several men prominent in national Republican politics are gathered in Oyster Bay today as the guests at luncheon of President Roosevelt. They include Chairman Frank H. Hitchcock of the national committee and James S. Sherman, candidate for vice president. Among the subjects under consideration are certain important issues to be discussed during the campaign.

New York, Aug. 20.—At the Republican headquarters Wednesday there was a conference between Chairman Hitchcock, Charles F. Brooker of Connecticut and William L. Ward of New York, both members of the executive committee of the national committee; George R. Sheldon, the treasurer, and Governor J. Franklin Fort of New Jersey. They talked over the question of finances and the division of work between members of the advisory committee, the personnel of which will be announced probably on Saturday.

In addition to the advisory committee of nine members which will aid Treasurer Sheldon and Assistant Treasurer Fred C. Upham, Chicago, in collecting funds, there will be a financial committee in each state and territory. Each national committeeman has been empowered to select a man to organize a committee in each state and to serve as the chairman thereof. There are no restrictions on the size of the committees, and it is likely that a man will be named for every city and for many of the towns.

An effort was made by Mr. Hitchcock to communicate with Senator Foraker of Ohio, who was in New York city on business, but he had gone to Washington.

Before leaving the city, the senator indicated that he would speak in support of the Republican ticket if invited to do so.

Discussing the Ohio situation, Senator Foraker repeated that he felt humiliated at not having been invited to speak at Youngstown on Sept. 5, at the opening of the Ohio campaign.

NO ONE RIDES HIM,

Bryan's Mule Hurls Correspondent From His Back.

Fairview, Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 20.—The advent to the Bryan farm of the trick mule which was presented to William J. Bryan by the Minnesota State Agricultural society was made memorable because of an incident which has just occurred. The mule and an eastern newspaper correspondent were the central figures. When announcement was first made of the fact that the animal had been presented, the particular correspondent served notice that he would be the first to ride it.

The correspondent is nursing a sore head and a bruised leg, suffered when hurled into the air by the mule, which had been trained to permit no one to ride it. Mr. Bryan witnessed the proceedings and exhibited a good deal of solicitude for the writer. The mule was taken back into the stable and there is every likelihood that it will not be permitted to display any more of its talents.

When Mr. Bryan starts on his ten days trip, he will have completed nearly all the set speeches that he will make during that time. He denied himself to all visitors, desiring to utilize every available moment in completing his work.

A Crossed Trail

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Pink Luscom rode out of the corral with slack rein and drooping head. Care sat upon his broad shoulders and dulled the genial light in his gray eyes. Cummings, seated on the doorstep of the bunk house, hooted derisively at his mate.

"You look like you was goin' a courtin', Pink," he grinned.

Luscom turned a scowling brow as he slapped the rawboned sorrel with a bronzed hand.

"Drop it!" he growled crustily.

The sorrel struck a long, swinging gait, and presently horse and rider disappeared beyond a rise of ground, only to reappear in gradually diminishing perspective until suddenly they vanished altogether.

"What's the matter with Pink?" asked Rozzy Jones in constrained tones from within the bunk house. "He looks like trouble has got him good and plenty."

Cummings clasped his hands about his knees and rocked to and fro in an ecstasy of delight.

"He's going to see the Widder Todd," he chuckled.

Jones rushed to the door with razor in one hand and a lank cheek lathered from brow to chin. "The Widder Todd!" he gasped. "Why, what's he goin' to see her for?"

"He don't know—she sent for him this mornin'," returned Cummings mirthfully. "I expect Pink overreached himself t'other night at the dance. Miss Hennie Porter, she wouldn't look at Pink all the evenin'. She was dancin' and flirtin' with a long cheeked, flap eared jackass, and poor Pink he set up to the Widder Todd and courted her most particular all the evenin' with one eye on Miss Hennie and you, and I reckon that he said some serious thing to the widder—kinder absent-like."

"Seems like she looked at him considerable t'other night and enjoyed it sufficient to send for him this mornin'," drawled Cummings.

Jones disappeared, and there was the sound of vigorous and renewed scraping of his leathern cheek. Doc Cummings chewed the stem of his pipe reflectively. Presently he craned a curious head toward the interior of the house. "See here, Romeo, if there's anything I can do to help you just you sing out. Shall I catch up a hoss for you?"

"I SAY, ROZZY, YOU AIN'T SORE ABOUT THE WIDDER?"

"Shut up!" retorted Jones in a strangled tone.

"Them there white winged collars is bad for the voice, Rozzy. You sound like you was chokin'. I reckon you'll wear that baby blue crisscross necktie you bought at Widder Todd's store. I hear that baby blue is Miss Hennie's fav'rite color!"

There was no response from within, and presently Jones, attired as gorgeously as Pink Luscom had been a half hour ago, strode haughtily past the man on the doorstep and into the corral, where he proceeded to catch a mount. In a trice he came tearing through the gate on a fiery little black mare, his long legs dangling in close proximity to the burned grass.

He, too, shot a resentful scowl toward the jeering man on the doorstep, and then he disappeared over the rise of ground, his dark figure silhouetted against the copper glory of the evening sky.

"There's Widder Todd a-settin' great store by Rozzy and as mad as a wet hen at him. So she's makin' up to Pink, who's dippy about Miss Hennie. Miss Hennie, she's mad at Pink, and so she flirts desperate with Rozzy, who's made at the widder. And they're all mad and jealous of one another, and if somebody don't shake 'em up there's bound to be some more mismated marriages in Seven Forks. O Lordy!" Cummings filled his pipe and lounger over to the cook house and joined a social group about the fire.

Rozzy Jones did not look at the copper glory of the sunset. With moody eyes fixed on the well worn trail, he noted reluctantly the diminishing miles that lay between him and the crossroads. Here, instead of pursuing his customary course toward the town and the domicile of the fascinating widow, he must turn to the right and take the cross trail to Porter's, where Miss Hennie awaited him and would appear to be disappointed, after all, when he did come.

There had been several calls such as this one was destined to be, and he frankly confessed to himself that Miss Hennie bored him. Now, the widow! Jones swore softly and dug a spurred heel into the little mare's flank. There was an onward rush, and he came upon the crossroads with a scatter of loose gravel and flying hoofs.

Seated on the back of a rawboned sorrel was Pink Luscom. His very attitude suggested indecision. The sorrel's head was turned toward the town, while Pink's gray eyes gazed wistfully up the cross trail which led to Porter's. His frown deepened as Jones drew his horse to a standstill and glared aggressively at him.

Jones broke the silence at last.

"I reckon I can find it without any help from you," he drawled.

"I ain't seen you lixin' to do it!" cried Jones tantalizingly.

"Mebbe I don't want to. The trail to Seven Forks ain't a bad one."

"You don't seem in no hurry to take it!" snapped Jones.

Luscom's hand sought his hip. "I reckon we might as well have it out now," he said calmly.

"I'd be plum glad to oblige you!"

Jones had whipped out a weapon and wheeled his horse about.

"I'd like to shake first, Rozzy," said Luscom gravely, holding out a big brown paw.

Jones grasped it eagerly. "We've been good friends up to now, Pink," he said regretfully, "and I'm sorry it's come to this, but when two fellers cross each other's trail, why"— He paused and looked past his rival toward the town.

Luscom was staring at him furiously, and then a strange light broke over his good looking face.

"I say, Rozzy, you ain't sore about the widder?"

"What do you think?" Jones stared defiantly at the other man. "Miss Hennie, she's all right. But she and me don't set no great store by each other. She says come, and the widder says go, so there ain't nothin' for a feller to do."

Luscom was lighting a cigarette with trembling fingers. "There's only one thing to do, Rozzy Jones," he said solemnly. "Just don't cross my trail, and I won't cross yours. The widder, she don't want to talk about nothin' but Rozzy, while Miss Hennie and me uster hit it off first rate, and I reckon if you'll just move aside I'll pike along up to Porter's."

Jones grinned happily as they passed one another, and just as each disappeared in a cloud of dust along his own particular trail two brown hands were waved in friendly farewell.

When he heard the news Dock Cummings waved a deprecating hand.

"What else could you expect from fellers what wore white wing collars and crisscross baby blue neckties?" he asked.

All He Lacked.

A pitcher belonging to a professional baseball club, who thought he was not getting his share of the limelight of publicity, went one day to the captain and manager to make his "kick." Being of a somewhat choleric disposition, which had got him into trouble more than once, he spoke with feeling.

"Cap," he said, "you're not giving me a square deal, and you know it."

"What's the matter, Bill?"

"You know what's the matter, cap. I haven't been in the box for three weeks. You know I can play ball. I've got every outcurve, inshoot, upshoot and drop there is in the business. I've got everything that any other pitcher has. I can put on speed, and I can send 'em in slow. I can get 'em right over the plate every time I want to. Haven't I got as good control of the ball as any fellow you know of?"

"Yes, Bill," said the captain, "you have. When you get as good control of your temper as you have of the ball I'll use you, all right. Don't you be uneasy about that, Bill."

Bill went away deep in thought, and it was not very long after that conversation that he "got into the game" again.—Youth's Companion.

Two Ugly Snakes.

These two snakes, the hamadryad and the cobra, cause the great annual death roll of India from snake bite, about 22,000 people last year. One reason for this great death roll is that Hindoos and Buddhists will not kill the snakes, as it is against their religion to take life. The cobra will go away from you usually, except in the nesting season, and then he will attack you on sight if you disturb him or his mate. It is at this time that so many deaths take place among the Malays and Siamese, as it is coincident with the rice planting season, and the peasants are busily at work in the rice fields. The cobra will bite under water, and many people are bitten on the foot or heel while planting rice. Death usually takes place in an hour or less. I have known a large buffalo to be bitten and die in fifteen minutes. It must have been bitten directly in a vein.

In the Malay peninsula and in Siam no one ever walks abroad after dark without a lamp or torch, as it proves almost suicidal to do so.—Medical Journal.

A FIREPROOF TREE.

The Chaparro, One of South America's Natural Curiosities.

On the vast plains of Colombia and the north of South America, called savannas, which are parched with heat except during the rainy season, there is one of the greatest of natural curiosities, a tree called the chaparro, which is fireproof.

It is the custom of the Colombian herdsmen to clear the ground by means of fire for the new vegetation, which springs up so luxuriantly in these regions after the rainy season. But not even the intense heat of a prairie fire affects the chaparro tree. It survives the flames to afford a welcome shade in an otherwise treeless country.

It is a small tree, seldom growing to more than twenty feet in height, with a girth of about three feet. It owes its curious immunity from fire to the nature of its hard, thick bark. The bark lies on the trunk in loose layers, which do not readily conduct heat to the more delicate parts of the structure.

The natives believe that this tree grows only where gold is abundant in the soil below, and it certainly is common in auriferous districts.—Westminster Gazette.

History of Smallpox.

Smallpox appears to have been first described by Rhazes, an Arabian physician living about 900 A. D. It was introduced into southern Europe in the time of the crusades and slowly spread into the more northern regions. In 1517 it was carried from Spain to Santo Domingo and thence to Mexico, where it is said to have swept off 8,500,000 of the natives. It spread rapidly all over the new world, and whole villages and even tribes of Indians were carried off by it.

Easier.

"That house I have taken from you," said the dissatisfied tenant, "is horribly drafty. When I am sitting in the middle of the room my hair blows all over my head. Can't you do something to the windows?"

"Don't you think, sir," replied the house agent suavely, "it would be easier and cheaper for you to get your hair cut?"—London Telegraph.

Tecumseh lost to Kalamazoo Tuesday by a score of 3 to 2. Doty and Method were the opposing pitchers and the honors were about even. The game was marred by constant wrangling with the umpire. Martin was benched for disputing the umpire. Cote, taking his place and E. Taylor, the position in the left garden. Manager Myers was put off the grounds for the same offense. Score:

The Indians won the first of the series from Lansing yesterday by a score of 2 to 1. It was one of the best and most brilliant ball games seen here this season. Pierce and Lagoe were the opposing pitchers and the honors were about evenly divided. Wagner featured with a difficult play which probably saved the game. Lawrence featured for the Senators with a fine one handed catch. Kearney made one for Lansing in the second on a pass and Love's double. Shippy scored in the first on a walk, steal, Vorpagel's sacrifice and a single by Fox and again in the eighth on a single by himself and Lagoe, Vorpagel's sacrifice and Wagner's single. Score:

OLD CLOTHES IN AFRICA.

The Natives Often Make Dreadful Mistakes With European Attire.

The "ol' clo' man" is a familiar figure in American streets and one by no means without picturesqueness, but no American dealer in old clothes has established a business of such extent of interest as that of John Hyman of London, whose specialty is to purchase showy costumes and discarded military and official uniforms for disposal in the orient and Africa.

Even the retiring lord mayors of London have become almost by official tradition his customers, and the cocked hat, gold laced coat and knee breeches at which during one season London has gazed with awe in the famous pageant of the lord mayor's procession are likely the next season to delight the eyes of darkest Africa upon the proud person of a darkest African.

"I have visited most of the great oriental bazars and watched our goods being purchased," says Mr. Hyman. "I have seen blacks solemnly walking around with waistcoats buttoned behind instead of before and even men wearing ladies' costumes. I have seen enormously big fellows in clothes so small I could not imagine for the life of me how they got into them or how they could get out again unless the stitching gave way."

The Prince de Joinville when off the Gabun coast once received on his ship an official visit from two chiefs, father and son, who must, one would think, have been Mr. Hyman's customers. They were known as Big Denis and Little Denis, and each owned for ceremonial occasions a military uniform.

That of Big Denis was a French general's, which his wives managed to get him into. That of Little Denis was a hussar's, and its intricate cut, numerous buttons, straps and buckles and painfully small size proved quite too much for him. He sent the prince a despairing message begging help, and a relief party of delighted midshipmen was sent to dress him and bring him aboard.

They fulfilled their errand; but, with the mischievousness of their kind, they so tightened every fastening of his overtight attire that the poor youth was nearly bursting with combined pride and suffocation when he arrived, and it was evident he could never be got out of his unwonted finery by any method less drastic than cutting him out.

Still, no manner of wearing a complete costume ever equals in comic effect some of the savages' combinations of unrelated items. One venerable African chieftain received his European guests with an antiquated evening shoulder cape of pink flowered satin and spangles worn about his waist as an apron, while his white wool was martially crowned by a military helmet.

Still another conducted important negotiations with an exploring party clad simply and impressively in a lady's large Gainsborough hat, a pair of cavalry boots and a necklace of glistening tin ornaments used to decorate Christmas trees.—Youth's Companion.

Editor HERALD:—

I am sure you would not knowingly misrepresent anything to members of the Big Family so call your attention to the item in your issue of the 18th "how to find the amount of hard nut coal in your bin." You say multiply the number of cubic feet in bin by 35 the number of pounds in a foot and you will have quantity. I tried a cubic foot of nut coal and found it weighed 54 pounds so you see the rate you give is not correct. Kindly correct your statement as it would do injustice to coal dealers.

Yours truly
SLAYTON & SON.

The article was handed in by one of our subscribers and the figures read 52 instead of 35.

SUCCESSFUL CONCERT GIVEN BY PROF. GILL.

Every Number Enjoyed by Large Audience Financially a Success.

The concert given by Prof. Gill for the King's Daughters was successfully given at the Presbyterian church last evening. Each number seemed to be thoroughly appreciated by the large audience that filled the church. Financially it was a success the receipts being about $100. We are sure everyone appreciates Prof. Gill's untiring energy in perfecting his pupils for this concert and we hope he will come here again next summer.

"A Grand River Voyage."

One of the most beautiful trips in the state was the one made recently by myself and five other young men. Having sent our canoes to Eaton Rapids by a previous train we made the start from there Monday morning and arrived at Grand Rapids Saturday morning. From the latter town we returned home by train. The distance covered by canoes was about 250 miles, accomplished in 5 days 3 hours. The best previous time for the trip, known to the writer, was seven days.

The entire trip was beautiful, but if any portion was more noticeable than another, in this respect, it was the section between these two places which is 6 miles by land and by river thirty miles, all rapids. Everyone else this year had portaged between these two towns except our party, we preferring to shoot the rapids. To me it was the most enjoyable part of the trip. Besides the above mentioned towns on the river, the principal ones were Lansing and Ionia. We managed to pass through both of these places without being detained. We attended the double-header baseball game between our home team and Lansing at Lansing, and rendered such excellent support to "our pride," that we made them lose both games

The party making this trip were Curry Hicks, Frank and Kenneth Ward, Eugene Roscrans, Fred VanTyne and Ellsworth Ellis.

Class Reunion.

The class of 1905, which has always boasted that it was the most loyal and lively class which ever was graduated from Tecumseh high school, held its annual reunion Wednesday afternoon, August 19. After an auto ride they embarked in the launch Red Wing for a trip up the river from the Red pond. In a pleasant spot a delicious lunch was spread and a corn roast indulged in. A water melon feed enlivened the home trip. Pleasant school day memories were recalled and class songs sung. Of the thirteen members of the class there were present nine: Leona Beebe, Minnie Lowry, Maud Saul, Eolah Brown, Alice Satterthwaite, Kenneth Anderson, Arnet Garlinghouse, Floyd Bowen and Webb Kay, two guests, Miss Fetterly of Coldwater and Warner Bates.

75 West Virginia st.,
San Jose, Cal.,
August 13, '08.

Mr. Richard Goodall's death occurred at his home in San Jose at 1:30 a. m. Monday, August 10th surrounded by his family. His son writes.

Father was born at Nottingham, England, August 14, 1833, coming to America when 19 years of age. He enlisted in the U. S. regulars in the early fifties and for several years served his country taking an active part in the fierce Sioux Indian wars at the time of the Massacre of the settlers in Dakota and Minnesota.

In the year 1860 he was united in marriage to Miss Rhoda Packard at New Haven, O., coming to Tecumseh in the fall of '61.

Of his life during his 44 years of residence in Tecumseh, you are as well, if not better informed then I knowing of his strong active Christian life as a member and leader of the Methodist church and his character as a citizen.

For the benefit of his own and family's health he moved to San Jose, Cal., about three years ago, the climate bringing him renewed vigor and prospects of many years more on this earth, but God willed different.

During the early morning hours of the August 8th he suddenly became unconcious and after only a few short hours passed quietly away leaving behind, to comfort the aching hearts of a loving wife and two sons Walter and Fred, the happy peaceful smile of the dying Christian.

FRED G. GOODALL

Why James Lee Got Well.

Everybody in Zanesville, O., knows Mrs. Mary Lee, of rural route 8. She writes: "My husband, James Lee, firmly believes he owes his life to the use of Dr. King's New Discovery. His lungs were so severely affected that consumption seemed inevitable, when a friend recommended New Discovery. We tried it, and its use has restored him to perfect health." HOW IS YOUR STOMACH?

Easy Way to Strengthen It and Get Well.

A good digestive system, one that acts so that you do not know that you have a stomach, is God's birthright to every man—to every woman.

If digestion is weak, if food turns into gas, if you suffer after eating, if you are sleepless, nervous and out of sorts—then the stomach is diseased and prompt action should be taken.

W. A. Ennis, a well known builder in Syracuse, tells an easy way to strengthen the stomach and get well when he writes: "Mi-o-na Stomach Tablets have done more for me in one week than all the doctors the two years I was under their care. Thanks to Mi-o-na, I can work once more, the first time in over a year."

It is an easy thing to strengthen the stomach and cure indigestion by using Mi-o-na. Get a 50 cent box from C. A. Wright & Son's drug store with their guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy does all that is claimed for it.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Men Past Sixty in Danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate gland and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am now 91 years old."

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Tecumseh People To Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Tecumseh.

S. Erskine, barber, living on Evans st., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "For ten years I was troubled with dull, dragging pains in my back, always more severe after hard work or if I lifted anything. I was also annoyed at night by the too frequent action of the kidneys which caused me to get up a great number of times, thus greatly disturbing my rest. The secretions were highly colored and deposited a great deal of sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally brought to my attention and I began taking them. They did me a world of good and I felt better and stronger than I had for a long time. I hope others having kidney trouble will try Doan's Kidney Pills and receive the same results as I did."

For Sale by all Dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.

GENERAL WORTH.

His Monument In New York and Why It Is There.

"Everybody who lives in New York knows or ought to know by this time where the Worth monument is, but how many know what it's all about," said a New Yorker to a group of friends who were standing in front of the monument in Madison square.

"I should say," he went on, "that more persons pass by here every day than by any other spot in Manhattan, excepting Nassau and Frankfort streets, yet I'll wager that most of you do not know who Worth was."

"Pooh!" remarked the only non-New Yorker in the group, who had just come down from Albany and hadn't been in Madison square but once before in his life. "Worth was with Pope in the Army of the Potomac and was killed when he was with Sherman in the march through Georgia."

"Oh, you're way off there, John," interrupted another. "I can see near the base in big bronze letters:

"By the Corporation of the
City of New York,
1857.
Honor the Brave."

The year 1857 settled the Army of the Potomac and marching through Georgia guess.

One of the onlookers has been a guest of a nearby hotel for several years. He knew it all—at least he thought he did.

"That monument," he said, "was erected to the memory of General Worth, who won great fame with Scott during our war with Mexico. Am I right?"

"Right you are," said the onlooker who had started the talk, "but," he continued, "why did the city of New York take such a special interest in his memory as to build that monument in his honor?"

"That's easy," was the reply of the ancient guest of the nearby hotel. "It was because Worth was born in this city and the city was proud of him as one of her distinguished sons."

About this time along strolled a tall man who was apparently acquainted with the onlookers and had heard the last question and the answer. There was a broad grin on his face. He was a former inspector of police.

He put in a question or two, and in answering not one of the group could tell whether Worth was killed in battle or where he was buried. But all agreed that he was born in New York city.

"Just come over to the monument and take a look at the north side slab and get posted," said the ex-inspector. And the group went with him. This is what they read on the slab, and they all afterward acknowledged that then and there they had read it for the first time in their lives:

Under this Monument
Lies the Body of
WILLIAM JENKINS WORTH,
Born in Hudson, N. Y.,
March 1, 1794.
Died in Texas
May 7, 1849.

The fact is that not one person in ten thousand in crossing to or from Fifth avenue to Broadway takes the Twenty-fifth street crossing on the monument side, and therefore few persons other than tourists ever stop to read what is on the slab. It so happens, too, that the sunlight seldom touches that side of the monument. Moreover, as the slab and bronze letters on it are very dark, passersby seldom give it any notice.

"If out of a dozen New Yorkers who have lived nearly all their lives within a stone's throw of this monument only one knew that General Worth fought in the Mexican war and none knew that his body lies under the monument, how few of the millions who pass by it every year ever heard of the general's name?"

That was the remark the ex-inspector made to the group of New Yorkers after they had read the slab.—New York Sun.

HIS TURN CAME.

The Way the Liquor Man Got Even With the Bank Teller.

Many years ago there lived in Rutland, Vt., two men who bore the same name, which name we will call W. O. Jones. One of these men was a dapper young bank teller; the other was engaged in running a cigar store with a saloon attachment in the rear. This was in the days of prohibition in Vermont. Every three or four weeks the latter Jones would be haled into the police court and fined for liquor selling, which was chronicled regularly in the daily papers. The bank teller grew nervous about it, and one morning this announcement appeared: "W. O. Jones, the popular young bank teller of the Rutland National bank, wishes it to be understood that he is in no way connected with the saloon keeper and hopes their names may not be confounded."

Now, it transpired that a few months afterward this young teller failed to appear one morning at his accustomed window at the bank. Upon a hasty examination it was found that $15,000 or more of the funds of the bank had also disappeared. The wires were called into requisition immediately, and after a few days he was located in Denver. It was the old story. He was brought back, incarcerated, tried, etc.

It was now the saloon keeper's turn, and this notice was duly published in the same paper that issued the previous one: "W. O. Jones, the widely known business man of Merchants' row, wishes it to be understood that he is in no way connected with W. O. Jones, the defaulting bank teller now in jail, and hopes their names may not be confounded."—Exchange.

The Too Fat.

The early Romans banished all useless persons, including the fat in this category.

Ovid, in his "Art of Love," says, "Keep ever slender and supple, for the fat have no success with women."

The Gentoo tribe enter their houses by a hole in the roof of a certain prescribed size, and they who grow too bulky to enter by this hole are slain as useless and lazy.

In England it was once the law to put the fat to death—"All dronkittis, fatt gluttonis and consumers of vitallis more nor was necessary to the sustentation of men, were tane, and first commandit to swelly their fonth of guhat drink they pleatit, and incontinent tairafter was drounit in ane fresche rever."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Ends Life in Barrel of Water.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 20.—In a fit of despondency, Mrs. John McCuddin, aged sixty, ended her life by plunging head foremost into a half filled rain barrel standing behind her home. Her body was found some time later by her little granddaughter Mrs. McCuddin had been suffering from melancholia for some time.

Pardons Slayers of "Night Riders."

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 20.—Following his declared intention of offering immunity to any one who was forced to kill while defending lives or property against "Night Riders," Governor Willson has granted a pardon to Walter Duncan, convicted of shooting and killing Newt Hazlett, at Jacksonville, in June, and a pardon to Riley Harrold, indicted as an accessory. Both men are prominent farmers. Hazlett was shot as he was riding along the road alone. He was reputed to be a leader of the "Night Riders."

Denby Settles Panama Claims.

New York, Aug. 10.—Congressman Edwin Denby of Michigan and Judge E. C. Bumpus of Boston, members of a committee of four sent to Panama to adjust claims against the United States government for land taken by the government in connection with the building of the Panama canal, arrived from Colon on the steamer Tagus. They reported little difficulty in arriving at amicable agreements with Panaman claimants.

Lima, Peru, Aug. 20.—After suffering terrible hardships, Miss Annie S. Peck of Providence, R. I., the mountain climber, returned from her trip up Mount Huascaran. She was given an enthusiastic reception, for it was feared that she had met with some accident.

A MAN'S HAT.

Why Is It Always Regarded as a Fit Subject For Jokes?

"I wonder why it is," says a young gentleman who spends most of his leisure time studying human nature at a populous street corner, "that a man's hat is always regarded as a fit subject for jokes? Anything that happens to his shoes is a serious matter, and, although his vest, especially if it is out of the usual in design or color, is sometimes made the subject of pointed remarks, disaster to any other garment is regarded as a matter of sympathy.

"But if he goes to church and puts down his hat at the end of his pew, where somebody kicks a dent in it and knocks it five feet down the aisle, or if he places it carefully beside him in a lecture room or theater and a preoccupied young woman comes in and sits down on it people laugh without seeming to feel the slightest sympathy for him or his sky piece.

"A man chasing his hat through the street on a windy day will always attract a grinning, unsympathetic crowd ready to lay bets on the distance the hat will travel before he catches up or on the amount of damage it will sustain before it is finally recovered, and so irritated does the owner become when he finds his vicious dabs and grabs at it greeted with ironical applause that he generally forgets to thank the man who stops it by stamping on it and hands it back. I believe Joe Miller perpetrated jokes about chasing the hat, but the heavy felts and cocked hats of Miller's time did not lend themselves readily to joking purposes, for when those old fashioned headpieces were blown off they dropped to the ground and stayed there. A panama, a stovepipe or even a derby may run and fly by turns from Broadway to the postoffice and attract as much attention as a runaway team."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Soldiers in Battle.

Those who have taken part in a battle have confessed that were it not for the shouting and the noise they would lose their nerves and run away. There is always an interval of cowardice in the soldier, but it is quickly overcome, and he fights grimly, unmindful of impending death. Bands were, of course, invented to raise the spirits of soldiers. Martial music, whether from the drum or the bugle, has done a great deal in saving campaigns. Nobody can fight in a cold blooded manner, and in the excitement of a general engagement the most nervous of fighters recover wonderfully.

A BURMESE RAT TRAP.

The Rodents Will Eagerly Enter It and Cannot Get Out.

Rats may readily be induced to jump or drop into any receptacle, especially if it affords them adequate concealment, and they do this without one lingering suspicion of their inability to reach the only existing outlet when the time for retreat approaches.

Thus traps on this principle may readily be designed and are obviously preferable to our rat traps where the animals are numerous.

In Burma, where the rats are a perfect pest, they use a jar trap, which is thus described by a traveler:

"The common Pegu jar I used was about one and a half or two feet deep and fourteen or fifteen inches broad, and a hole was punched in the shoulder just large enough for a rat to enter.

"There was about six or seven inches of paddy (rice in husk) in the jar, which was then buried to within about eight inches of the top. The mouth of the jar was then closed with a board and a stone.

"A quantity of old timber joists and straw were in the outhouse and no end of rat holes everywhere around.

"With this contrivance he caught seventy-two rats in one night. The rats can readily enter, but they cannot climb the smooth sides of the jar to escape.—London Family Herald.

THIRTEEN HURT.

Dynamite Charge Explodes While Men Were Drilling in River Bottom.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 20.—While drilling in the river bottom for blasting purposes, at Lime Kiln crossing, a short distance down the river, opposite Amherstburg, Ont., a charge of dynamite exploded, and as a result thirteen men were injured, one of them seriously. The men were in the employ of the Sullivan Dredging company of Buffalo.

The dynamite boat Destroyer was blown to pieces and the injured men taken from the water by tugs and other boats which were near at hand.

One man named Stephen Autin was hit on the head by falling steel. His skull is fractured, and he will probably die. Others more or less injured are:

The accident was caused by a misunderstanding between the day and night shifts of workmen employed on the drill. The night men had just quit work, and the day men had taken their places. Just before knocking off for the night, the men had been engaged in sinking a cartridge into a newly bored hole. The hole was too small, and the charge was drawn out, the hole made larger and the charge resunk ready for exploding.

The day crew, supposing that the hole had not yet been charged, inserted a new cartridge and started to tamp it home immediately on top of the old charge, with the resultant explosion.

DEALERS SEEK REBATES.

Hay Men Want Money Refunded on Damaged Produce Returned.

Flint, Mich., Aug. 20.—The eighth annual convention of the Michigan Hay association is in session at the Hotel Dresden here, and M. H. Meacham of Holly, president of the association, presided over the first business session, at which an address of welcome was delivered by Mayor H. O. Spencer. Other speakers were: President of the National Hay association, Maurice Netzer of Monroeville, Ind.; E. Steen of Baltimore, Md.; F. M. Sheffield, Detroit, and Burdick Potter, Fenton.

The committee on transportation, through J. A. Heath of Lenox, reported that negotiations had been entered into by the committee with the interstate commerce commission in the hope of securing a ruling whereby railroads would again be permitted to grant rebates on shipments of hay damaged in transit, in pursuance of a practice which obtained before the interstate commerce law went into effect.

Allegan Farmers Picnic.

Allegan, Mich., Aug. 20.—The Allegan County Farmers' Picnic association held their annual picnic at Riverside park, Allegan, Wednesday. It was attended by several hundred farmers from various parts of the county. Hon. D. E. McClure of Lansing gave an address on the Grange and its teachings. Hon. Mortimer Whitehead of New Jersey, past Grange lecturer, gave a lengthy and entertaining address as to how the Grange was teaching the farmers how to mind their own business.

Prominent Muskegon Man Drowns.

Muskegon, Mich., Aug. 20.—While fishing in a small rowboat, Scott Howell, sixty years old, a prominent citizen and business man here, overturned the boat he was in by stepping on one side and was drowned about 1 o'clock this morning.

Kern Speaks in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Aug. 20.—John W. Kern, Democratic candidate for vice president, accompanied by an Indianapolis delegation and Mayor Rose of Milwaukee, arrived Wednesday, and he was welcomed at the station by a number of prominent Democrats any many persons who were anxious to see the vice presidential nominee. The occasion for Mr. Kern's visit was a picnic given at Wonderland park under the auspices of the Associated Rose clubs of Milwaukee, to whom he delivered an address last night. The picnic was attended by thousands of Democrats from Milwaukee and nearby towns. Addresses were also made by A. J. Ayleward and A. J. Schmidt, candidates for nomination for govern or in the Democratic primaries.

Demands Surrender of Morocco City.

Tangier, Morocco, Aug. 20.—Mtoung, a military leader in the service of Abd-el-Aziz, the sultan of record, is encamped outside the walls of Morocco city, according to news which has just reached here from the interior. He has given the city three days in which to surrender. Abd-el-Aziz, with the main army, is eight hours away.

ST. CLAIR FLATS RESORT BURNS

Famous Rushmere Clubhouse Destroyed by Flames.

LOSS WILL EXCEED $50,000

Was Insured for $25,00—Efforts to Save Structure Were Fruitless, as Building Was a Frame Affair and Burned Like Tinder—May Be Rebuilt.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 24.—The Rushmere club building at St. Clair Flats was completely destroyed by fire Sunday afternoon. Not a stick of the old place was left, and with it went all the other buildings except the boathouses, a small storehouse and the acetylene tank which happened to be far enough removed from the fire to escape.

The house was crowded with guests, all the rooms but two being occupied, but it is believed that all were warned in time and not a life was lost, and neither was anybody injured. But there were many narrow escapes, and many examples of people gone daft from the danger and excitement. Women ran crying about the grounds, wringing their hands and demanding information of the safety of their loved ones.

The fire was spectacular in the extreme. The Flats were crowded with visitors. Within a few moments at least 100 boats of all descriptions were swarming about the place and crowding the river in front of the burning building.

The fire began about 4 o'clock. It originated in the kitchen from a kettle of lard which either boiled over or was accidentally knocked over, it is said. At any rate, it was over in some fashion, and in a flash the kitchen was ablaze. Some said that one of the kitchen helpers tried to carry the blazing lard out of the house and throw it into the water and that, at every step this person scattered fire about the place. Others held that when the burning lard was discovered water was thrown on it in large quantities and that this scattered the fire.

And it developed so fast that the porter had barely time to rush up stairs and wake the night watchman when the whole back portion of the building was in flames. It was already in this condition when the neighbors from the nearest points arrived. Still, with good hose and plenty of water it is likely that the better portion of the structure would have been saved.

But with no fighting apparatus in the house save some hand grenades, with little water in the tank which supplied the club, and with no means of applying, all efforts to save the structure were fruitless. The house was built entirely of wood and also it had oiled floors and all the other elements of a tinder box. The rapidity of the destruction may be assumed from the fact that within little more than 30 minutes from the time the alarm was given until the American flag floating from the staff on the tower burned loose and went whirling high into the air. Fifty minutes after the fire began the Benton, a vessel lying nearest the conflagration, began to use her hose to play upon herself to prevent her smoking sides from springing into a blaze.

C. W. Kotcher, president of the club, said as he sadly viewed the scene after the first was burned out: "The house was appraised last spring at $65,000, and we have only $25,000 insurance. C. J. George, a member of the club, said: "I do not know whether we will rebuild. We have a bond issue of $10,000 and that much of the insurance must, of course, go toward their liquidation, but it may be that we will rebuild and try to re-establish the club on more conservative basis than heretofore. I do not know. It is certainly the best site for here for a club."

Forest Fires Destroy Timber.

Menominee, Mich., Aug. 24.—The extreme dry weather during the past six weeks has been the cause of numerous fires in the woods. Considerable loss to the growing timber and the burning up of the humus covering of the soil has been the result. The creeks and rivers are very low and in many cases dried up. Most of the fires were started by farmers who were burning stumps and bush on their clearings, the wind carrying the flames to the woods, where the fire soon got beyond control. State Fire Warden Pierce has ordered County Fire Warden A. B. Dodell to take prompt measures to prevent the spread of fires and to arrest all persons who carelessly set fires in the woods, and prosecute them.

REPORT ON THE CANAL

President Roosevelt Is Pleased With Commission's Work.

COLONEL GOETHALS IS UPHELD

Devoted Largely to a Statistical Outline of the Work That Has Been Accomplished, and the Work That Remains to Be Done.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 24.—President Roosevelt has just made public a report to him on August 6 by a special commission consisting of James Bronson Reynolds, Samuel B. Donnelly and Henry Beach Needham, regarding conditions in Panama. The commission was appointed April 25 last to "investigate conditions, especially as regards labor and accommodations on the Isthmus of Panama."

The president is pleased with the report. He expresses particular pleasure over the fact that the commission upholds the administration of Colonel George W. Goethals, chairman of the Isthmian canal commission, and the president has had a copy of the report mailed to Colonel Goethals, requesting that the recommendations made by the commission be put into effect immediately so far as possible. The president will submit the report to congress with appropriate recommendations.

To a great extent the report is devoted to a statistical outline of the work that has been accomplished, the work that remains to be done, the physical possibilities with the equipment now in use, and the number of men at present employed. The commission reports that it "inspected the entire line of the canal excavation from La Boca, the southern or Pacific terminus, to Cristobal, the northern or Caribbean terminus, and traveled through the excavation several times, interviewing the men at work." In indicating the scope of the inspection, the commission reports that it visited the government workshops, construction plants, warehouses, shipyards, dredges, commissary stores, living quarters, hotels, messes, kitchens, camps, schools, clubhouses, courts, police stations and the convalescent home at Taboga."

ARRESTED FOR BIG SUB-TREASURY THEFT

Former Assorting Teller Taken Into Custody.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—The mystery of the theft of $173,000 from the United States sub-treasury a year and a half ago, one of the largest losses the government has ever suffered in this manner, is believed to have been solved by the arrest of George W. Fitzgerald. Others are believed to have been implicated in the crime which for months completely baffled government secret service men.

Fitzgerald was an assorting teller under Assistant United States Treasurer William Boldenweck. Suspicion at the time of the theft, Feb. 20, 1907, rested on him, but so plausible was his story and so intense his apparent interest in discovering the real culprit that interest ceased to center in him. Much work was done on the theory that the crime had been perpetrated by a colored man. Fitzgerald was discharged from the government employ for culpable negligence in allowing such a theft to be consummated under his very eyes. The money stolen had been used and was tied in packages, some having been marked for destruction at Washington.

It is alleged Fitzgerald attracted attention to himself by his extravagant speculations. He will not talk on the matter.

The theft created a sensation throughout the country, and congress at the last session was asked and refused to release Assitant Treasurer Boldenweck from liability, although it was promised that congress would again consider the matter at its next session.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Edward R. Litzinger, formerly a candidate for the office of state's attorney, and an intimate friend and counsel of Fitzgerald, while refusing to go into details of the case, expressed his belief in his client's innocence and termed the arrest "ridiculous and absurd."

STAMBOUL IN FAMES

Fire Sweeps Over Mohammedan Section of Constantinople.

MANY HOMES WERE DESTROYED

Started in Afternoon and for Six Hours Sweeps Over the Ancient Section of the City, Destroying Everything in Its Path.

Constantinople, Aug. 24.—Fire broke out Sunday afternoon in the Stamboul quarter, and within a very brief period a terrible conflagration was raging. A strong wind carried the flames at great speed, and for six hours they swept over the section, destroying 1,500 houses and shops. The fire was still burning at 9 o'clock at night, but the wind had decreased considerably.

Stamboul is the Mohammedan part of the city. Within its wall are the Seraglio, the principal mosques, the mausoleums of the sultans, the baths, the bazaars, the public offices of the government and the existing remains of ancient Constantinople. It is divided for administrative purposes into large number of quarters. Separate quarters are allotted to the Armenians, the Greeks and the Jews.

In 1865 the quarters were destroyed by fire and these have now been laid out in good streets. The general appearance of the old streets is that of a city built of wood. Many of the buildings, however, are of much more solid construction, some of brick and some of brick and stone.

Stamboul covers the whole area enclosed by the Theodosian walls of Constantinople, and its main streets follow the lines of those of the ancient city.

YOUNG WOMAN SUICIDES.

Miss Winifred Parsons Takes Her Own Life in Paris.

Paris, Aug. 24.—Miss Winifred Parsons, the daughter of the late Charles Parsons, president of the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg railroad, New York, who died in 1904, was found dead with a bullet wound in her head Sunday in her apartment in the Avenue Iena. The police say that the case is one of suicide, while friends of the dead girl declare that the shooting was an accident. Owing to the desire of friends and relatives to give the tragedy as little publicity as possible, the affair at first appeared wrapped in mystery.

It was learned, however, that the girl had been suffering from melancholia since the death of her fiance, a young Frenchman, Emile Maas, who died four months ago from consumption. Miss Parsons was found dead in bed at noon today by a maid who entered the room with her breakfast. The girl's right hand clutched a revolver, a bullet from which had penetrated the brain.

Homage for Athletes.

New York, Aug. 24.—Homage such as rarely has been paid a band of athletes will be rendered the victorious American Olympic team this week. The last of the athletes will arrive by the Mauretania Friday morning, and that afternoon the team will visit Oyster Bay where President Roosevelt will receive its members. Saturday a great demonstration in their honor has been arranged in New York. A monster parade of ten divisions, comprising athletic, military and civic bodies, and escorted by numerous bands, will march from Forty-sixth street to the city hall.

Norwegian Steamer Sinks.

Bergen, Norway, Aug. 24.—The Norwegian steamer, Folgefonden, from Bergen to Haugesund on the west coast of Norway, was wrecked near Skoneviks and sank in three minutes. The steamer carried seventy passengers, and it is believed that forty of them were drowned. Fifteen bodies have been recovered. The captain of the steamer was among those saved.

Will Be Notified Aug. 24.

New York, Aug. 24.—Thomas L. Hisgen, candidate for president of the Independence party, and John Temple Graves, that party's candidate for vice president, will on Saturday next at the rooms of the National Independence club here, be notified of their nomination. Charles A. Walsh, secretary of the National Independence party committee, will make the notification address.

ABD-EL-AZIZ UNSEATED.

His Brother, Mulai Hafid, Is New Sultan of Morocco.

Tangier, Aug. 24.—The defeat of the sultan, Abd-el-Aziz, by the forces of his brother, Mulai Hafid, has been confirmed. The sultan of record was surprised on the night of August 19, and most of his troops deserted to the side of the usurping sultan after the firing of a few shots. Reports indicate that the defeat of Abd-el-Aziz was due largely to the betrayal of his own tribesmen. Mulai Hafid has been proclaimed sultan of Morocco at Tangier, and announcement of the proclamation has been telegraphed to all parts of the country. All of the officials who previously have been under the rule of Abd-el-Aziz in this city declare that they have accepted Mulai Hafid as their leader, thereby making him supreme in all the large cities of Morocco.

Paris, Aug. 24.—News of the proclamation as sultan of Muali Hafid is taken here to mark the complete triumph of the usurping sultan and the downfall of Abd-el-Aziz, the sultan of record, who, according to the latest reports, has definitely given up the struggle and announced his intention of retiring to Damascus, where he will await the turn in the tide of fortune before he raises his standard again.

Pacific Fleet Off on Cruise.

San Francisco, Aug. 24.—Seven cruisers of the Pacific fleet, under command of Admiral W. L. Swinburne, will said today on a cruise to Hawaii and Samoa. Each cruiser will have a torpedo boat destroyer to tow, and for that reason the cruise is looked upon as important. An experimental trip of the cruisers to San Diego and return, towing torpedo boats, was made some two months ago, and the success of that trip led to the decision to attempt the present long one to the south seas. At 10 a. m. today the cruisers passed through the Golden Gate in single column formation, the torpedo boat destroyers running abreast of them.

Sailors Attend Church.

Sydney, N. S. W., Aug. 24.—Four thousand men of the American fleet were permitted ashore Sunday, and many of these, including 134 officers, attended church. The services were impressive and special music had been arranged in honor of the Americans. Great crowds lined the streets and took quite as much interest in the American sailors as on the first day of their arrival. A banquet was given at night in the town hall by the Catholics to 1,200 men and officers of the fleet, which was attended by the federal ministers, judges and other officials.

Despondent Man Suicides.

Greenville, Mich., Aug. 24.—Despondent because of poor health, Emiel Jensen, twenty-four years old, who lived here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Jensen, hanged himself to a rafter in the barn of his brother, Godfrey Jensen, on the latter's farm, six miles west of here. His body was discovered by his brother. Jensen had been in failing health for two years. Sunday morning he visited his brother, and in the evening, when he did not appear for supper, a search was made for him.

Crushed to Death by Tank.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 24.—Crashing to the ground at the Kent county farm Saturday afternoon, a hundred foot tower of steel rods and braces, supporting a big water tank from which the home was to get fire protection, killed one man and severely injured another. The tank had been filled with water and as the structure was not quite completed, some of the braces still being lacking, it is thought the premature filling of it brought it down.

Three Old Residents Die.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 24.—Colonel H. B. Bunker, Charles Burt and William F. Shutt, three old residents of this county, have died. Colonel Bunker was seventy-one years old and a resident this county most of his life. He died near Ostemo. Charles Burt was seventy-years old and a farmer of Portage township all his life. W. F. Shutte was fifty-five years old and has been a farmer and merchant in Richland for twenty-five years.

Mistook Toadstools for Mushrooms.

Rochester, Mich., Aug. 24.—Eliaha Matteson, his daughter, two sons, little granddaughter and Roy Goodwin, who lives with them, ate heartily of what they supposed were mushrooms at supper and shortly after all were taken violently ill. Physicians remained with the family all night and they are out of danger. It is thought the family ate toadstools.

Veteran Drops Dead.

Sault Ste. Maries, Mich., Aug. 24.—Sergeant James Mackin, veteran of the civil war, dropped dead while crossing the lower gate of the Poe lock. Mackin had been a resident of the Soo for many years. He spent most of his time at the locks.

The Short Cut.

By MARTHA COBB SANFORD.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

When Marjorie opened her sewing room window to let in the brisk morning breeze the picture she made in her white dress, framed by the climbing vines, was refreshing enough to make any passer by look up a second time. One did, though Marjorie was quite unaware of the fact.

Her thoughts were as far away as the shadowy mountains beyond which she had lived her old and happier life. For several years now Marjorie's world had been on this side of the hills, so she sighed, sat down by the open window and began sewing interminable yards of lace on strips of fine muslin. The stitches were microscopic, as befitted the trousseau of a "daughter of the rich."

Half an hour later a whistle as spontaneous as a bird's trill made her jump up and again look out of the window.

In the young man swinging down the road Marjorie recognized one of the summer guests. He opened the gate and came down the path toward her window.

In her haste to escape being caught in the very act of provincial curiosity Marjorie dropped her thimble. It struck a stone on the edge of the walk and, with a metallic ring, bounded off into the garden. The young man rescued it most gallantly.

"It isn't every day a young man finds

"DON'T YOU LOVE ME? DON'T YOU WANT TO BE MY WIFE?"

thimbles growing in a garden," he said, significantly dropping the silver trifle into her hand.

Now, Marjorie understood perfectly well his reference to Peter Pan's calling kisses thimbles, but she feigned ignorance. Diverting as such audacity might be, she must not encourage it, wherefore she said "Thank you" with austere courtesy.

"You are Miss Marjorie Phillips, are you not?" asked the unperturbed young man. "I started out very early this morning to find you."

Marjorie glanced at the thimble, which unconsciously she had slipped on its proper finger.

"There's no denying the evidence," she said, with a pensive little smile which crept straight into the young man's heart.

"I have a message for you, Miss Phillips, from my cousin, or, rather," he corrected, smiling up at her, "a request to make. Julia—Miss Robbins—has a friend visiting her and wants to know at what time she may bring her down this afternoon to see the things you are making. There; I think I got that right. Does it sound rational?"

"Quite intelligent," laughed Marjorie. "Please tell Miss Robbins that the exhibit will be ready any time after 2, which means"—

"Oh, I know," broke in the loquacious message bearer. "It means that I mustn't bother you any longer." Then he added mischievously: "I came by here an hour ago on my way to the postoffice, but was too scared to come in. It was lucky you dropped the thimble just when you"—

But at the word "thimble" Marjorie took flight.

"Well," called Julia Robbins as Overton reached the steps of the luxuriously appointed porch, "did you deliver my message to the village sewing girl?"

Before replying Overton lit a cigarette with exasperating deliberation.

"Yes," he answered at length. "I gave your message to Miss Phillips, and she says you and Miss Morton may come any time after 2."

"Upon my word!" exclaimed the astonished Julia. "'We may come,' and 'Miss Phillips,' indeed!"

"Look here, Julia Robbins," returned Overton feelingly, "I think it's an outrage for a little flower of a girl like that to be sewing her eyes out for another girl who happens to have money and can"—

"Stop right there," commanded Julia. "Catherine here will think you're a hot headed Socialist. Would you have me sewing my own eyes out perchance, dear cousin?"

"Well, perhaps I am a bit hasty, Julia," admitted Overton good naturedly. "Forgive me and tell me what you know about this little Miss Phillips."

"Nothing romantic, Garret, I assure you. Her family used to come here summers, I believe. And after her father died a bankrupt the girl took in sewing for the summer folks. Does that fire your young imagination?"

"And she supports herself and her mother?" inquired Garret, with cutting directness.

"Why, I suppose so," answered Julia languidly.

Whereupon, with a careless "Well, goodby; I'm off for a day's fishing," Overton sauntered away with little comprehension of the feminine consternation he was leaving behind him.

Julia was the first to recover.

"Don't you care, Catherine," she said defiantly. "We'll nip that little romance in the bud."

Several days later, upon catching sight of Marjorie at the window, Overton swung open the little cottage gate and called out cheerily, "Lost any more thimbles, Miss Phillips?"

Marjorie, her color mounting high, pretended not to hear and continued sewing with nervous haste.

"You have another message from Miss Robbins?" she asked politely.

"Not on your life!" was the unexpected reply. "I came on my own account this time, Miss Phillips. I want to ask you some questions."

"I'm very busy, Mr. Overton."

Garret noted the knowledge of his name. He remembered that he had not mentioned it at their first interview. So she had been making inquiries about him! She was more interested than she appeared.

"Do all girls think these frippery things a—a necessary matrimonial asset?" he asked, indicating with a nod the piles of snowy thin stuff on the chairs about her.

"Your cousin and Miss Morton are not exceptions, I think."

As she mentioned the girl's name Marjorie watched Overton's face closely, but there was no betrayal of any personal interest.

"Do you make a specialty of trousseaux?" was his next question.

"It looks as though I should have to," Marjorie answered. "As soon as I have finished your cousin's there will be one to make for Miss Morton, I understand."

"Really!" was Overton's surprised exclamation. "Who's the man, may I ask? You have evidently been taken into confidence."

"I've evidently been taken in," was Marjorie's scarcely audible reply as, with flushed cheeks, she gathered up her sewing and left the window.

"Well, by Jupiter!" exclaimed Overton as the truth of the situation dawned upon him. "So that's the game!"

Every morning thereafter, rain or shine, Overton bade Marjorie "Good morrow" at her window, for he had discovered that through her garden lay a short cut to the village postoffice. Marjorie, on her part, failed to hang out a "No Trespassing" sign, though common sense told her that she ought to do so.

But one sunny morning Overton, impatient, threw discretion and conventions to the wind.

"Little Miss Marjorie," he said pleadingly, "do you suppose I could persuade you to make a trousseau for—for my wife to be?"

The color flashed rebelliously into Marjorie's cheeks, and tears gathered in her eyes. One daring little drop slipped over her lashes and fell upon Garret's hand.

"Why, what is this, dearest? You're not crying? Don't you love me? Don't you want to be my wife? I thought"—

For answer the tired girl dropped her head on his hands, which still held hers, and sobbed softly.

But Overton understood.

"Marjorie," he said lovingly, "look up at me, little one."

Very shyly Marjorie lifted her pretty, tumbled head, then drew away from the window with frightened haste.

"They are watching us," she whispered from behind the curtains, "your cousin and her friend."

"I'm glad of it," Garret replied, with a laugh. "Do you think if I should come back tonight, sweetheart, that we could find any—thimbles—in the garden?"

"It will be pretty dark," she answered softly, "but—I'll help you."

Origin of the Cravat.

While every man wears a cravat, there is probably not one in a thousand who could in an offhand way tell you how it came about that men first placed such an ornament about their collars. The word cravat came into our language about 1636. Prior to that year a feature of the uniform of the Austrian cavalry was a wide band of coarse linen worn in folds around the neck under their short hussar jackets. This cavalry organization was called the Cravatte, its members being styled the Cravattes. Later in the seventeenth century France recruited a regiment of cavalry, adopting for it the uniform of the Austrian regiment recruited in Croatia, calling it the Royal Cravattes. Later in England the word cravat was applied to a neckerchief. After the battle of Steenkerke, in Flanders, in 1692, an English officer brought home the steamkirk, a long flowing neckscarf. The neckwear today is clearly traceable to the steamkirk and the modification it underwent.—Sartorial Art Journal.

The City Boarder—Well, well! He jumped at it, of course?

Farmer Green—Not yet. Sandy Pimpernell may be a freckle faced runt, but he's got a proper pride about him too. He says thet he don't know as he cares to be tied up to any team thet looks like it might be a tail ender.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE NECK RUFF.

It Reached Its Full Glory in the Sixteenth Century.

One of the most peculiar and interesting evolutions in historic fashion is the growth and development of the ruff in England. This ruff began its career as a humble little something like a tuck running along the top of the chemisette from shoulder to shoulder. You can see it grow in the portraits of royal personages slowly, but surely, like a great linen flower opening its plaited petals from generation to generation. During the reign of Henry VII. it was scarcely more than a budding excrescence, but with Henry VIII. it had outgrown its tuck stage to the extent of reaching up to the ears and was beginning to sport a mild flare. Those were the days of such strict sumptuary laws that in order to wear black gemet you must be royal, to wear sable you must outrank your viscount neighbor, to wear marten or velvet trimmings you must be able to show an income of over 200 marks a year. The reign of Edward VI. and Queen Mary merely fostered the ruff without encouraging it to any greater development. But Queen Elizabeth, seeing in it possibilities for offsetting her red hair and clear skin, fanned it into vigorous life. In the sixteenth century the ruff burst into full bloom. Men and women, even tiny princesses, were overshadowed by the stiff rays of the ruff on all great occasions. Even over France, Germany and Italy it spread its white pinions and held unquestioned sway until it fell with the Roundheads.

Won in Spite of His Lawyer.

A once well known attorney used to tell a good story on himself. He had been retained to defend a counterfeiter and advised him to plead guilty. His client did so, and as there was in the mind of the court a fixed idea that if a prisoner pleads guilty he does so because he has no attorney the judge asked him why he made that plea.

"Because my lawyer told me to."

"Did he give you any reason for it?"

"Yes. He told me I would have no show before this judge."

The court flared up and ordered a plea of not guilty to be entered, and the counterfeiter was acquitted.

POSTAGE STAMPS.

Waste and Carelessness That Enrich Uncle Sam.

"If we waste other things the way we do stamps," said a stamp clerk the other day, "we Americans are just about the most wasteful people on the face of the earth.

"Uncle Sam is much more than half a million dollars in pocket every year as a result of carelessness in the use of stamps. The government never loses anything by such carelessness and always gains.

"How many stamps do you put loose in a drawer of your desk or in a corner of your pocketbook and never think of again until you come across them, aged and torn, while rummaging about months later? Then they are tossed into the wastebasket.

"Lots of people are careless about putting stamps on envelopes and paper wrappers. The result is that often before the stamp has been canceled it has fallen off and the letter is held up at the other end of the line until postage is paid.

"A great many more folks put on too much postage. They slap on two or three stamps to a package that requires only one. They are too busy or too indolent to take the trouble to have the package weighed and find out how much postage the package requires.

"If too little postage is put on a letter, Uncle Sam simply holds it up at the other end until the postage due has been paid. But if too much is put on Uncle Sam simply pockets the excess to which he is not entitled and says nothing."—Chicago Tribune.

WATCH THE CELLAR.

If Not Clean It Is a Breeding Place For Sickness.

Underground cellars ought to be done away with. They are relics of a dark age. More sickness originates in them, physicians claim, than anywhere else about the place. They cannot be kept in sanitary condition while vegetables are constantly decaying there. The place for a cellar is above ground and outside the dwelling. Leave the basement for the furnace, the coal bin and a general storeroom. An above ground cellar is more convenient in every way. Your vegetables can be stored with less than half the labor when you do not have to go up and down stairs with them. You can keep an above ground cellar clean with but little trouble, while the underground one, being difficult to get at, will be neglected nine times out of ten and allowed to become a source of infection to the family above it.

Ventilation and temperature are much more controllable in such a building than in an old fashioned underground cellar, which obliges the housewife to use up so much strength in climbing stairs. Locate it convenient to the kitchen, with which it can be connected in winter by an inclosed passageway. Watch the cellar. Remember, the doctor who immediately asked, when called to treat a case of typhoid fever, if there was decaying cabbage in the cellar. There was. Keep the cellar sweet and clean and see that it is frequently aired.—Suburban Life.

A Mountain of Alum.

In China, twelve and a half miles from the village of Llouchek, there is a mountain of alum which in addition to being a natural curiosity is a source of wealth for the inhabitants of the country, who dig from it yearly tons of alum. The mountain is not less than ten miles in circumference at its base and has a height of 1,940 feet. The alum is obtained by quarrying large blocks of stone, which are first heated in great furnaces and then in vats filled with boiling water. The alum crystallizes out and forms a layer about six inches in thickness. This layer is subsequently broken up into blocks weighing about ten pounds each.

Travel as Teacher.

"Travel forms the young" is a French proverb. So it does, and it also helps a teacher to become formative. Travel is good for teachers professionally, because travel is a teacher itself. But travel is good for everybody who is hale and sane. "There's fools o' fowk what never haves their toes off their doorsteps, little brother," a gypsy said to me forty years ago. I am glad I have never been one of those.—J. H. Yoxall, M. P., in T. P.'s Weekly.

Not Superstitious.

"Do you believe in ghosts?" asked the man who resents all superstition.

"No, suh," answered Erastus Pinkley. "An' all I's hopin' is dat dem ghos'es will lemme stay dat way 'stid o' comin' aroun' tryin' to convince me."—Washington Star.

A Different Proposition.

Pompous Director (hotly)—Why did you refuse to give my son a fair chance to show what he could do? Don't you believe in introducing young blood in the business? Superintendent—I do, but not young bloods.—Puck.

Out of the Usual.

"I have something novel in the way of a melodrama."

"State your case."

"The blacksmith is a rascal, while the banker is as honest as the day is long!"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Outspoken.

Mrs. Garrulous—I was outspoken in my sentiments at the club this afternoon. Her Husband—I can't believe you. Who outspoke you, my dear?—London Mail.

Memory.

If it should be asked what possession I most valued, I would say some beautiful memory. Memory is possession. It is the only thing on earth that is absolutely ours, which no one can take from us. We can produce and enjoy it in a crowd of uncongenial people as easily as if we were alone. No noise can drown its voice; no distance can dim its clearness. Strength, hope, beauty, everything else, may pass. Memory will stay.—Selected.

The Ignorance of Youth.

She—You said that I was necessary to your happiness. He—I was young then and very ignorant. I had no conception of relative values. She—What do you mean? He—I mean that I didn't know a necessity from an affliction.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Worse Than Waiting.

"Are you waiting for me, dear?" she said, coming downstairs at last, fixing her hat.

"Waiting?" exclaimed the impatient man. "No; not waiting—sojourning."—Yonkers Statesman.

FANTAN AT MACAO.

Gambling Houses of the Monte Carlo of the East.

Macao, a Portuguese-Chinese port at the mouth of the Canton river, in China, is the Monte Carlo of the east. One must wait until evening to see the famous "fantan" houses. The interiors are brilliantly lighted with oil lamps (for Macao boasts neither electricity nor gas) and furnished with costly Canton blackwood elaborately carved and upholstered in velvet. There are two floors. The cooly class remains on the ground floor, where the actual games take place, but in the room above, immediately over the table in the room below, there is a square "well" with a rail around it and a narrow table furnished with betting books and pencils, cigarettes, etc.

The visitor may take a seat and look down at the game, which really seems fair and simple. A man sits at the head of the table with a huge heap of brass "cash" before him and a slender wand in his hand. He takes up a handful of the coin and puts it on the table, covering it with a brass hat. Then the betting begins, the bets being laid on the number 1, 2, 3 or 4, after which the banker takes up the hat and counts out the cash in fours, separating them with his cane, the number left when the last "four" is removed being the subject of the betting. These houses, numerous as they are, make an enormous income and are a source of large revenue to Macao.—Exchange.

JAPANESE PAGODAS.

Enormous Pendulums Render These Old Structures Earthquake Proof.

The only old structures in Japan which seem to be earthquake proof are the pagodas, which were erected before the temples. There are many which are 700 or 800 years old and as solid as when first built.

There is a reason for this, and it lies in their construction. A pagado is practically a framework of heavy timbers which starts from a wide base and is in itself a substantial structure, but rendered still more stable by a peculiar device. Inside the framework and suspended from the apex is a long, heavy beam of timber two feet thick or more. This hangs from one end of the four sides. Four more heavy timbers, and if the pagoda be very lofty still more timbers, are added to these. The whole forms an enormous pendulum, which reaches within six inches of the ground.

When the shock of an earthquake rocks the pagoda the pendulum swings in unison and keeps the center of gravity always at the base of the framework. Consequently the equilibrium of the pagoda is never disturbed, and this is the explanation of the great age of many of them, when from their height one would suppose them to be peculiarly susceptible to the effects of the earthquake.

France and Fourteen.

So far as France is concerned, it is the number fourteen that has played a conspicuous and portentous part in her history. On May 14, 1554, the Rue de la Ferronnierre was enlarged by order of Henri II., and four times fourteen years later Henri IV. was assassinated there by Ravaillac—namely, on May 14, 1610. Henri had lived four times fourteen years, fourteen weeks and four times fourteen days—that is, fifty-six years and five months. Then Henri's son, Louis XIII., died May 14, 1643, the same day and month as his father. And 1643 added together equals fourteen, just as 1553, the year of the birth of Henri IV., equals fourteen. Louis XIV. ascended the throne 1643, which, added together, equals fourteen, and similarly the year of his death (1715) equals fourteen.—London P. T. O.

Kept Them All on Edge.

One of the favorite devices of Lord Nelson when ships were cruising in company was to signal to a given craft that Lieutenant Smith or Staff Engineer Brown or Captain of Marines Jones was to take charge, on the assumption that all his superior officers on board had been put out of action. The author of "Trafalgar Refought" says that the result was very good, for no one knew when he might be called upon to take command, and every one therefore made a point of trying to make himself fit to carry out the duty should it ever be assigned to him.

Selfish Etiquette.

Some rules in an old book on etiquette seem to encourage a practice commonly called "looking out for No. 1." Here are two of them:

When cake is passed do not finger each piece, but with a quick glance select the best.

Never refuse to taste of a dish because you are unfamiliar with it or you will lose the taste of many a delicacy while others profit by your abstinence, to your lasting regret.

An Electric Dance.

Take a pane of glass—a broken one will do—and secure it by placing the ends between the leaves of two large books, letting the glass be two inches from the table. Cut from lightweight writing paper, or, better still, from tissue paper, dolls, dogs and other figures. Place them on the table beneath the glass. Rub the glass vigorously with a silk handkerchief, and the figures will cut all kinds of antics.

FOR REALISM.

A story about Robert Louis Stevenson not generally known, according to the New York Sun, is told by Mrs. Stevenson's grandson, Austin Strong.

When Mr. Strong was a little chap Mr. Stevenson liked to sit propped up in bed to watch him at play in the next room. And often it happened that the bigger boy of the two would make suggestions for the make believe games and insist that they be carried out too.

One day Austin had arranged some chairs in a row, playing that they were ships, and he, standing on the front, was the captain. For a long time he proudly walked the deck of his vessel, encountered pirates and weathered all kinds of storms until he felt the floor positively heave under his feet.

Mr. Stevenson looked on in perfect silence, but complete absorption, no doubt playing the whole thing much the harder of the two. Finally Austin got tired of his vessel, climbed off his chair and began walking across the room to some object which had attracted his interest.

This was too much for his uncle. Still deep in the game, Mr. Stevenson rose in his sickbed and shouted excitedly at the recalcitrant sea captain:

"Swim, —— you, swim!"

Applied externally it affords almost instant relief from pain, while permanent results are being effected by purifying the blood, dissolving the poisonous substance and removing it from the system.

Ideal husband—a creation of dreams,
Dear to girls' hearts as chocolate creams;
Each one expects her prince to find,
And each one has her particular kind.
Listen a moment, and I'll tell to you
How mine will look and what he'll do:
Ugly? oh, no! he's very fine-looking,
Shows at a glance he's no crank about cooking;
Blond and big, with a smile so sunny,
A chum—a companion—with just enough money
Not to be "rich man, poor man, beggar, or thief";
Dearly I should love this man for my chief.—The Designer.

General Kuropatkin's Memoirs of the Russo-Japanese War, which were suppressed by the Russian authorities, furnish the leading article in the September McClure's. General Kuropatkin makes striking charges concerning the causes of the war, and remarkable revelations concerning the great policies of the Russia Empire. The fiction in the number is unusually diversified and attractive.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition, beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit, as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Men Past Sixty in Danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr. Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate gland and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am now 91 years old."

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Tecumseh People To Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Tecumseh.

S. Erskine, barber, living on Evans st., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "For ten years I was troubled with dull, dragging pains in my back, always more severe after hard work or if I lifted anything. I was also annoyed at night by the too frequent action of the kidneys which caused me to get up a great number of times, thus greatly disturbing my rest. The secretions were highly colored and deposited a great deal of sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally brought to my attention and I began taking them. They did me a world of good and I felt better and stronger than I had for a long time. I hope others having kidney trouble will try Doan's Kidney Pills and receive the same results as I did."

For Sale by all Dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.

THEY WENT TO CHURCH.

A Bit of Strategy That Won For the Minister.

"When Bishop Wilmer was rector of the little Protestant Episcopal church at Upperville, Va.," said a Virginia minister, "he was much worried by the nonattendance at service on Sundays of the majority of the young men of the community. On inquiry he found that instead of going to church they were in the habit of playing marbles for stakes. Marbles in those days, it must be remembered, was a much more serious game than it is now, occupying much the same position in the realm of sports as do billiards and pool in these days.

"Bishop Wilmer, then a 'parson' not well known, determined to break up this practice. He himself had been an expert marble player in his boyhood. Accordingly one Saturday he came across a number of the young men engaged in a game. The good bishop asked several questions and finally challenged the lot to play him for 'keeps.' They readily consented.

"Much to their astonishment, the young minister won steadily, and soon they had to go to the stores to replenish their stock. Toward the close of the afternoon Mr. Wilmer had won every marble in the town of Upperville. Putting his winnings in a bag, he remarked as he walked away, 'Now, gentlemen, since you can't play marbles tomorrow I hope to see you all at church.' And he did."—New York Tribune.

THE IVORY HUNTER.

Troubles Begin When He Has to Get Ivory Out of the Jungle.

First catch your ivory, then get it home—if you can. A man's troubles have barely begun when the tusks of the fallen monsters are chopped out, wrapped in sacking and taken back to camp. Each weighs 50 or even 100 pounds. I have seen specimens that are on record as tipping the scales at 250 pounds. Suppose I have got together $100,000 worth of fine ivory. I am perhaps a thousand miles from anywhere with this load of 50,000 or 60,000 pounds. There are no railroads, no wheeled vehicles, even no draft animals. The stuff must be carried across the wilds of Africa on the backs of native porters, who think nothing of dropping their loads and deserting if the fancy happens to seize them. The worst of the hunting is nothing to what such a homeward march may mean. I have had my men shot down by hostile tribes from ambush with poisoned arrows. I have seen them die in agony from the bites of noxious insects. I have been attacked by bands of Dinkas, who knew the value of ivory as well as I did and who tried to help themselves to mine.—Everybody's Magazine.

"Yessah, but hit ain't nothin' lak dat. Ah jest desires to ax yo' what am de difference between ah storekeeper whose business is improvin' an' a man who selects feathers fo' sofa pillows?"

"That's a pretty hard nut to crack, Mr. Bones. Now, what is the difference between a storekeeper whose business is improving and a man who selects feathers for sofa pillows?"

"De storekeeper's business is pickin' up, an' de other man's business is pickin' down."

"Mr. T. N. Orr will sing the pathetic ballad, 'He Married Himself to a Marcel Wave, an' Now He's All at Sea.'"—Harper's Weekly.

Swankers.

A number of our contemporaries appear to be somewhat exercised as to the precise meaning of the word "swank." Swank, though usually called by other names, is the leading characteristic of Englishmen. Frenchmen used to talk of "perfidious Albion." It was simply another way of calling us swankers. To swank is, broadly, to make the thing that is not seem as the thing that is.—London Globe.

Not.

"Shall we marry, darling, or shall we knot?" was the short and witty line an ardent lover dispatched to the idol of his heart.

But, where the strangeness of the matter comes in, the girl replied: "I shall not. You may do as you please."

Moral Lesson Lost.

"It's too bad to spoil that story, but it's the other way. Since he got rich he has quit drinking."—Chicago Tribune.

Weak Heart Action

There are certain nerves that control the action of the heart. When they become weak, the heart action is impaired. Short breath, pain around heart, choking sensation, palpitation, fluttering, feeble or rapid pulse, and other distressing symptoms follow. Dr. Miles Heart Cure is a medicine especially adapted to the needs of these nerves and the muscular structure of the heart itself. It is a strengthening tonic that brings speedy relief. Try it.

"For years I suffered with what I thought was stomach trouble, when the doctors told me I had heart trouble. I had tried many remedies, when the Dr. Miles' almanac came into my hands, and I concluded to try Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. I have taken three bottles, and now I am not suffering at all. I am cured and this medicine did it. I write this in the hope that it will attract the attention of others who suffer as I did."

Stomach Muscles In Old Age

How Old People May Retain or Restore Good Health

Usually the bowels are not as active in middle or advanced years as in youth. Just as the eyes grow dim, the skin wrinkled, the hair gray, the muscles flabby, so do the internal organs show their age if we could but see them.

However we sometimes find a person whose age is near the meted threescore and ten and yet his step is springing, his eye keen, his flesh firm, his appetite good and his bowels regular, and upon close questioning you will find a life's history of right-living, good food, keen appetite, perfect digestion and regular bowel action.

Regular bowels and proper digestion of the food we eat is absolutely necessary to the enjoyment of good health by old or young. If the readers of this article are interested, we are glad to tell them how they can restore good health and prolong their lives.

Step into a drug store and purchase a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It will cleanse the bowels of any waste matter that has clogged them up and restore to them strength and nerve force for regular natural daily action. It aids digestion by stimulating the stomach and digestive glands to a proper and sufficient secretion of the fluids necessary to perfect digestion. It acts on the liver and kidneys in a mild, quiet yet effective manner. Rev. A. J. Fletcher, of Rutherford, Tenn., is 80 years old, and it cured him of 40 years of dyspepsia. W. W. Sterling, Sioux City, Ia., says: "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the best medicine I ever used and I am 82 years old." B. F. Thompson, Shenandoah, Ia., says: "I suffered 15 years with dyspepsia and it cured me." It is certain and effective in the most obstinate old cases, and yet mild and safe for the most delicate woman or child. All druggists sell it at 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Pepsin Syrup Co., 304 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill., is glad to send a free sample to any one who has never used it and will give it a fair trial.

Eight Hurt in Auto Accident.

Titusville, Pa., Aug. 24.—An automobile containing nine Pittsburgers, turned turtle at Harmonsburg, near here, Sunday when running at the rate of fifty miles an hour. Eight persons were injured. J. B. Badger, owner and driver, suffered contusions about the face and head. Miss Estella Feldsman sustained internal injuries. Both are seriously hurt.

Three Hours in Clouds.

Dayton, O., Aug. 24.—Clinging desperately to a trapeze bar, Miss May Plummer, of Springfield, O., was lost in the clouds for three hours Saturday. The girl lost her nerve when the balloon had reached the proper altitude for the drop and was carried several miles east of the city, where she landed exhausted in a field.

Another Record for Sheridan.

Dundalk, Ireland, Aug. 24.—At the athletic games here Sunday, Martin J. Sheridan, of the Irish-American Athletic club, beat the world's record with the discus, free style, throwing the sphere 142 feet 5 inches. The discus was the one used at the Olympic games in London. The former record, which was held by Sheridan, was 136 feet 1-3 inch.

Daughter Finds Father's Body.

Flint, Mich., Aug. 24.—Presumably because of the continued illness of his wife and his own poor health, Loyal J. Turney, aged fifty-two years, committed suicide in the barn of the farm of O. F. Perry, his father-in-law, in Flint township. The body was discovered by his eight year old daughter. Mr. Turney formerly lived in Davison.

Spinach Omelet.

Make a puree of spinach in the usual way—that is to say, after having boiled it till tender chop it very fine and rub it through a coarse wire sieve, season with salt and pepper, stir over the fire and add two ounces of butter and a little cream. Take two tablespoonfuls of the spinach and stir it into four eggs which have been previously beaten, yokes and whites separately. Add a little piece of shallot which has been rubbed through the sieve, and salt and pepper to taste. When thoroughly mixed put the whole into an omelet pan with two ounces of butter and fry a pale brown. Serve very hot.—Bystander.

False Hair.

False hair was first regularly worn in England by Queen Elizabeth, who had upward of fifty wigs of different kinds for her private use. After her death a few women adopted the French fashion of wearing wigs, but it was not until the restoration that wigs, or, more correctly speaking, periwigs, came to be extensively worn by the sterner sex. These were introduced in the court of Louis XIV., where a natural head of hair was not considered sufficiently luxuriant for the artificial tastes of the times. The term "periwig" is a corruption of the French perruque. Wigs were originally adopted not as a remedy for baldness, but in the interest of personal cleanliness. The laws of ancient Egypt compelled all males to shave the head and beard. This explains why turbans were not worn by the Egyptians, the bushy artificial hair being regarded as a sufficient protection against the heat of the sun. The Romans, on the contrary, wore wigs because they were naturally bald.—St. Louis Republic.

What Displeased Him.

Two hunters were making their way across a lush meadow after a rain. The ground was moist and soggy, but their feet by quick stepping could be prevented from sinking more than ankle deep.

Suddenly the one in advance disappeared up to his neck in a narrow stream that, owing to the luxuriant growth on the bank, he had observed only as he stepped into it. With difficulty he pulled himself out and began wringing the water from his garments.

"Well, darn a country," he remarked, with feeling, "where they set their creeks up edgewise and hide 'em in the grass."—Philadelphia Ledger.

MAY WITHHOLD FUNDS.

United States Threatens to Discontinue Maintenance.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 24.—Commandant George H. Turner, of the Soldiers' home has completely changed his mind concerning the action of the board of directors in confiscating old soldiers' pensions exceeding $14. Up till the present time Commandant Turner has held that the board was justified in taking such action, and in an interview stated that only the scum of the Grand Army of the Republic were inmates of the home.

Following the advice received by Governor Warner to the effect that the United States government would discontinue the maintenance fee of $100 per head per annum if the inmates' funds were confiscated, Commandant Turner has switched his opinion. A meeting of the board of directors will be held Wednesday and action on the matter will probably be taken then.

Bryan to Visit Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 24.—William Jennings Bryan will speak in Detroit Tuesday night, September 22. Word to this effect was received by Judge William F. Connolly Sunday morning from National Committeman E. O. Wood, of Flint. Bryan will speak in the afternoon at Ann Arbor, his subject being "Democracy's Appeal to Young Men." His subject in Detroit will be "Democracy, the Equal Protector of Labor and Capital." He speaks at Buffalo before coming to this state.

Ore Cars in Collision.

Norway, Mich., Aug. 24.—Forty-one cars on the Northwestern, at Spread Eagle, north of Iron Mountain, were demolished and track tied up for a number of hours when one section of an ore train broke in two and collided with the section following. The cars were loaded with iron, and when they parted a flagman was sent back to stop the section following, but the brakes refused to work. No one was injured.

Faces Serious Charge.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 24.—William Grady, eighteen years old, and Ivan Tumjama, seventeen years old, are being held by the police pending an investigation of the story Effie Robinson, the fourteen year old girl who disappeared from her home. The girl claims she was held captive in the woods outside the city, and lived for three days in a hole in the ground beneath an uprooted tree. She alleges that the two young men attacked and assaulted her.

Ward's Trial Set for Sept. 21.

Newaygo, Mich., Aug. 24.—John M. Ward, charged with the murder of his wife, waived examination in justice court here and was bound over to the circuit court for trial, Sept. 21. The courtroom was thronged when Ward was arraigned and many followed him back to the jail in an effort to secure a glimpse of him. Ward denies that he attempted suicide by drinking poison.

Octogenarian Struck by Car.

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 22.—Charles Schwartzmeir, eighty years old, a resident of Grass Lake, was struck by a suburban car here Sunday, but escaped unhurt. The old man was crossing the track and failed to see the approaching car. He was hurled to one side of the track, but arose practically unhurt.

Arrested on Girl's Complaint.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 24.—Robert Jakey has been arrested on the complaint of Eva J. Austin eighteen yeas old, who recently became the wife of a man sixty-five years old, and is being held on a statutory charge.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Mrs. H. T. Gignon, of Milwaukee, en route to her home from a visit in Detroit, died on Grand Trunk train No. 13, at Royal Oak from a sudden attack of heart disease.

Caught under a sawlog which fell from a southbound train at Manton, O. W. Brigham, about fifty years old, a section hand on the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad, was so terribly crushed that he lived only an hour.

One of the automobiles with the Bradley campaigners was ditched near Ionia, while running down hill at a thirty-five mile clip. The machine was badly damaged, but no one was injured.

James Lawrence, four years old, of Battle Creek, was killed by a trolley car which struck him and rolled him along with the fender until his legs, back and skull were fractured. The wheels did not pass over the child, but death was almost instantaneous.

R. E. Olds, the auto manufacturer of Lansing, and Professor Pickering, the Harvard astronomical observer, will make a balloon ascension from North Adams, Mass., some day this week. Pickering hopes to reach a hight that will enable him to make important observations.

While hauling a merry-go-round from Hudson to Devil's Lake, Samuel Reed, aged fifty, was percipitated to the ground under the horses' feet by the breaking of the wagon seat. The team started forward and one of the wheels of the heavily loaded wagon passed over Reed's head, crushing his skull and killing him instantly.

Honesty is the best policy, but it is the sort of policy that has no surrender value.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

OVER THIRTY MINERS KILLED

Twenty-Five Bodies Already Recovered by Searching Party.

ALL HAD BEEN SUFFOCATED

Rescuers Found That None of the Miners in the Hailey-Ola Disaster Met Death by Burning—Fire Extinguished After Battle.

McAlaster, Okla, Aug. 27.—More than thirty miners were suffocated Wednesday morning in Hailey-Ola coal mine No. 1, near Haileyville, fourteen miles east of McAlaster, when fire destroyed the hoisting shaft and air shaft and cut off air from the men below.

Twenty-five dead bodies were removed from the mine, following a successful three-hours' battle with the flames. It is believed that six or eight more will be brought out. Twenty-five mules were suffocated and some of their bodies were burned.

Explorations in the channels revealed that none of the men met death by burning, but that all were suffocated. It is impossible for the rescuers to get far from the base of the main shaft, and it probably will be hours before a thorough search of the entire mine can be made. Some of the channels are three-quarters of a mile long.

Infantry Team Wins Trophy.

Camp Perry, O., Aug. 27.—The United States infantry team won the congress by winning the United States army rifle team match Wednesday. The infantry's score was 3,224. The second prize, the Hilton trophy and $200 in cash, went to the navy team, which scored 3,210. A score of 3,180, made by the cavalry team, gave the cavalry third place, the bronze trophy, "the soldier of Marathon," and $150 in cash. The marine corps was fourth with 3,117 and won $10 in cash. Fifth place and $75 in cash was won by the Wisconsin team, with a score of 3,073, which also heads the National Guard teams. All of the high honors were taken by the regular army service teams.

Up to War Department.

Washington, Aug. 27.—John R. Early, the leper who is being kept in quarantine on the east branch of the Potomac, may be taken in charge by the officials of the war department if it can be established that he contracted the disease while a member of the United States army. It is believed Early contracted leprosy while serving in the Philippines. G. Gillet Thomas, president of the North Carolina state board of health, has therefore suggested to Deputy Health Officer McLean, of the District of Columbia, that the war department be asked to assume charge of the leper. The government has no leper colony at present where the man can be cared for.

President at Library Dedication.

Jordanville, N. Y., Aug. 27.—With a ceremony in which the president of the United States took a prominent part, the Jordanville public library was Wednesday presented to the people of this community, the donors being Douglas Robinson, of Mohawk and New York, Mrs. Robinson and Harriet D. Wolryche Whitmore, Mr. Robinson's sister, who had erected it in memory of Mr. Robinson's father and mother, Douglas and Fannie Robinson. This little village was thoroughly awake to the importance of the occasion, which was given an added touch of distinction by the presence of Secreary of State Elihu Root and James S. Sherman, Republican vice-presidential candidate.

Drowns in Sewer.

New York, Aug. 27.—John Lynch, a sewer department employe, had one of his feet caught beneath a cellar pipe while working in a sewer Wednesday, and was drowned. Two companions had gone with Lynch into the narrow manhole to open checked pipes, stood on the iron ladder leading into the sewer and saw the man engulfed by the waters, despite their frantic efforts to drag him out.

Wade Ellis Accepts.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Wade H. Ellis, now attorney-general of Ohio, has been tendered by the president and has accepted the position of assistant to the attorney-general, recently held by Milton D. Purdy. Mr. Ellis will assume the duties of his new position as soon as the business of his present office, which will require his attention for some weeks, will permit.

PROBATE JUDGE ON THE RACK

Prosecuting Attorney of Lapeer County Starts Investigation.

CLAIM HE TOOK ILLEGAL FEES

Amount Involved May Reach $1,000, It Is Said—Judge Brown Has Held Office Eight Years—Expert Accountant Scrutinizing Books.

Lapeer, Mich., Aug. 27.—An investigation in which Prosecuting Attorney Ben Reed is acting has been started into the affairs of Judge of Probate Elmer A. Brown. Julius A. Dresser, expert accountant, of Detroit, is making the investigation. Judge Brown continues to discharge the duties of his office as usual.

The particular thing alleged against the judge, so Prosecutor Reed says, is charging fees ranging from $1 to $10 without authority of law. The prosecutor says further that the explanation for some of the disputed charges is that other judges made them, while for some more the explanation is not so explicit.

The amount involved may reach $1,000, and may be considerably less. The exact sum will not be known until the accountant has gone over the books for the eight years during which Brown has been judge of probate. He began work on the books Tuesday.

Judge Brown was a farmer in Marathon township when first elected in 1900, and it is said he never studied governor alone has power to remove a probate judge from office. It was but a few days ago that the prosecutor got the first information that led to the investigation. Judge Brown was a candidate for renomination for a third term, but has now withdrawn.

Railroad to New Coal Fields.

Owosso, Mich., Aug. 27.—The New Haven Coal company has interested eastern capital in building a railroad from Owosso to its mines at Six Mile Creek, six miles north of this city. The company has asked the city to build a bridge across Shiawassee river and give it a right of way in the city to make a possible connection with the Ann Arbor railroad tracks. The request is being favorably considered, as the road will open up a rich farming country and make Owosso an important coal and produce market. It is also proposed to extend the road to New Lothrop in this county, which is now reached by a stage, and to make connections with the Hazelton coal fields, which are being developed by a company largely composed of Flint capitalists.

Two Babes Drink Poison.

Standish, Mich., Aug. 27.—The infant son of Remi Dupey is dead and another child, three years old, is dying from the effects of drinking concentrated lye from a cup which the mother had left on the kitchen table. The Dupey family live on a farm four miles west of here. The mother left the lye, which she had been using for cleaning purposes, on the kitchen table, while she was busy in another room. The two little children managed to climb up on the table and secure the cup. The baby died in a few hours, and little hope is entertained of saving the life of the older child.

Lay Claim to Mackinac Island.

Mackinac Island, Mich., Aug. 27.—Attorneys for the heirs of the late Edgar Conklin, of Cincinnati, O., are about to bring suit claiming nearly all of Mackinac Island for the latter. A few years ago Mrs. C. M. Conklin, while in Mackinac, saw a picture of Edgar Conklin, her uncle, in a shop. When she asked who he was she was told that he had once owned nearly the whole island, and that his heirs, if he had any, were entitled to it. Attorneys began an inevstigation and now say they have ample proof that present holders of ground have not ample title to it.

Iron Ore Found on Farm.

South Lyon, Mich., Aug. 27.—Outside capitalists, whose names are not known, have purchased 163 acres of farming land from James Duncan, near here, for $10,400, and have started to prospect for iron ore. Pieces of ore of good quality are scattered all around the land, and after digging down a few feet the prospectors discovered one very large piece of ore. They say it has not yet been ascertained whether this is an indication of just surface ore or whether a large vein exists on the property.

FLOODS DELAY MAIL SERVICE

Numerous Washouts Occur on Railroads in Southern States.

LOSS OF LIFE IS REPORTED

Washington, Aug. 27.—The flooded conditions in the south have caused some serious interruptions to the railroad mail service. Reports received from Atlanta by the postoffice department show a serious break at Greers, S. C., on the railway dispatch line between Atlanta and Greensboro, which the southern railroad officials promise will be repaired today. Also, on the Seaboard Air line at Garlington, S. C., and the Savannah river bridge, whence all mails pass on the route between Hamlet and Atlanta, the service is interrupted between Asheville, N. C., and Charleston, S. C., there are several points where the railroad tracks have been washed away and numerous washouts have been reported to the department in South Carolina and Eastern Georgia.

AUGUSTA IS UNDER WATER

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 27.—The floods culminated Wednesday in the breaking of the big dam six miles from Augusta which diverts the water from the Savannah river into the canal at that point.

The big bridge across the Savannah river went down in the rush of waters and the dam at the locks seven miles above the city collapsed, adding to the flood.

Telephone reports from Augusta, Ga., indicate that three people have been drowned. The main streets of the city are under ten or twelve feet of water, and many business houses have been abandoned. The newspapers were unable to issue their regular editions. Street car service has been abandoned. The damage in the state may reach $500,000.

Athens, Ga., Aug. 27.—The waterworks plant is under water. Four bridges near the city and one in the city limits have been destroyed. The total damage in this vicinity will reach $25,000. No trains have been able to reach here since Monday night. Two miles of track on the Central of Georgia railroad have been washed away.

As a result of the flood in the Ocononee river the Athens cotton mills have been forced to close down.

Wanders Helpless in Mountains.

Estes Park, Colo, Aug. 27.—After wandering helpless and dazed in the mountains, without food and shelter for nearly forty-eight hours, Judge Roderick Rombauer, of St. Louis, jurist and author, staggered into the Drake hotel Wednesday. With careful nursing, Judge Rombeaur, who is seventy-four years old, is expected to soon recover. He became separated from the members of the party with which he started from Halet Glacier, and which he left to make the ascent of Hages peak Monday at noon.

BRIEF DISPATCHES.

Rev. Johannes R. Frich, one of the pioneer ministers of the Norwegian Lutheran synod, and for years one of the leading men in the church, died at St. Paul Wednesday, aged seventy-three.

A special from Goshen, Va., says: F. J. Falkenback, chemist for the Goshen Iron company, was drowned late Wednesday afternoon while boating with N. R. E. Fenton, treasurer of the same company.

A special from Stone Mountain, Ga., says: J. J. Chaffee, twenty-five years old, said to be an associate editor of the Augusta Ga., Herald, accidentally shot himself in the abdomen while on a Georgia railroad train near here, Wednesday afternoon. It is believed he is fatally shot.

MacRena Kavorzo, of Walden, Alaska, nineteen years old, confesses that she induced George Pestriakoff, whom she loved, to kill her husband, Peter S. Kavorzof, a woodsman, at their home on Afoguak Island. Pestriakoff said he sought to deliver the woman from the terror in which she lived.

HELD UP RACING.

Owners Refused to Start Horses While Governor Hughes Was Present.

Ballston, N. Y., Aug. 27.—For an hour and a half yesterday afternoon the openly expressed hostility of owners of trotting horses taking part in the events at the Saratoga county fair foward Governor Charles E. Hughes held up the racing program at the fair grounds here.

Governor Hughes was a visitor at the fair, and addressed a big gathering which gave him a hearty greeting and an attentive hearing. The governor's presence on the grounds, however, was resented by the hose owners, who have taken exception to the governor's efforts to suppress betting on the race tracks of the state. As a consequence they refused to start their horses while the executive was on the grounds.

Bryan Gets Hearty Reception.

Salem, Ill., Aug. 27.—No crowd of equal size or enthusiasm ever before turned out in this city, the birthplace of William J. Bryan, as did that of Wednesday, when the Democratic candidate stopped over to greet his old friends and neighbors. The whole population was on hand early to extend a hearty welcome when Mr. Bryan reached here at 6:30 o'clock in the morning. They were augmented later in the day by thousands who came in on special trains. The principal event of the day was a speech by Mr. Bryan from a platform in the court house grounds. While Mr. Bryan was talking the crowd made up a purse of $300 and handed it to him as a campaign contribution. He left at 3:50 for Topeka, stopping en route for several hours at St. Louis and Kansas City.

Tony Pastor Is Dead.

Elmhurst, L. I., Aug. 27.—Antonio (Tony) Pastor, the theatrical manager, died Wednesday night after an illness of several weeks. He was seventy-one years old. Tony Pastor was taken ill August 10 last and failing but the doctors did not hold out any hope for recovery. During his illness letters, telegrams and cards poured into Kerry cottage, his home here, from all parts of the country, and lately messages from Europe began to arrive. Tony Pastor was one of the best known theatrical managers in the country. He was born in New York in 1837, and made his first appearance on the stage with a minstrel troupe at the age of nine years.

A MEMORIAL TO FARRAGUT

Admiral Dewey Unveils Tablet at Portsmouth.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 27.—Some 3,000 shipmates, relatives, friends and admirers of Admiral David Glasgow Farragut, Wednesday, paid a tribute to the memory of the hero of many battles of the sea in the dedication of a memorial tablet in the Portsmouth navy yard. The commandant's house at the navy yard, where the famous fighter died, was the scene of the exercises, and Admiral George Dewey, who served with Farragut, lifted the covering from the tablet. The exercises were very simple. The chaplain of the yard, Rev. Frank Thompson, offered prayer, after which Admiral Dewey stepped to the front and following a few extemporaneous words unveiled the tablet. The memorial bears this inscription:

"Died in this house, August 14, 1870, David Glasgow Farragut, admiral in the United States navy. Faithful and fearless."

In oposite corners of the tablet are displayed the United States seal and the regulation anchor of the United States navy.

The naval band played a hymn and salutes were fired by the navy yard battery. An address was then given by former Assistant Secretary of the Navy Frank W. Hackett.

The reading of a letter from Rear Admiral J. C. Watson, retired, of Louisville, Ky., brought the exercises to a close.

Michigan Paper at Auction.

New York, Aug. 27.—In furtherance of the program adopted in July by the American Newspaper Publishers' association for periodical offerings of news print paper at public auction to ascertain the open market price for paper, John Norris, the chairman of the committee on paper, announces that a public auction of fifteen carloads of news print paper, 300 tons in all, will be held in New York city, September 2. Ten carloads will be the product of the Cheboygan (Mich.) paper mill, and five cars from J. R. Booth mill, Ottawa, Canada.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Men Past Sixty in Danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many of men of this disease. Mr. Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate gland and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am now 91 years old."

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Tecumseh People To Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Tecumseh.

S. Erskine, barber, living on Evans st., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "For ten years I was troubled with dull, dragging pains in my back, always more severe after hard work or if I lifted anything. I was also annoyed at night by the too frequent action of the kidneys which caused me to get up a great number of times, thus greatly disturbing my rest. The secretions were highly colored and deposited a great deal of sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally brought to my attention and I began taking them. They did me a world of good and I felt better and stronger than I had for a long time. I hope others having kidney trouble will try Doan's Kidney Pills and receive the same results as I did."

THEY WENT TO CHURCH.

A Bit of Strategy That Won For the Minister.

"When Bishop Wilmer was rector of the little Protestant Episcopal church at Upperville, Va.," said a Virginia minister, "he was much worried by the nonattendance at service on Sundays of the majority of the young men of the community. On inquiry he found that instead of going to church they were in the habit of playing marbles for stakes. Marbles in those days, it must be remembered, was a much more serious game than it is now, occupying much the same position in the realm of sports as do billiards and pool in these days.

"Bishop Wilmer, then a 'parson' not well known, determined to break up this practice. He himself had been an expert marble player in his boyhood. Accordingly one Saturday he came across a number of the young men engaged in a game. The good bishop asked several questions and finally challenged the lot to play him for 'keeps.' They readily consented.

"Much to their astonishment, the young minister won steadily, and soon they had to go to the stores to replenish their stock. Toward the close of the afternoon Mr. Wilmer had won every marble in the town of Upperville. Putting his winnings in a bag, he remarked as he walked away, 'Now, gentlemen, since you can't play marbles tomorrow I hope to see you all at church.' And he did."—New York Tribune.

THE IVORY HUNTER.

Troubles Begin When He Has to Get Ivory Out of the Jungle.

First catch your ivory, then get it home—if you can. A man's troubles have barely begun when the tusks of the fallen monsters are chopped out, wrapped in sacking and taken back to camp. Each weighs 50 or even 100 pounds. I have seen specimens that are on record as tipping the scales at 250 pounds. Suppose I have got together $100,000 worth of fine ivory. I am perhaps a thousand miles from anywhere with this load of 50,000 or 60,000 pounds. There are no railroads, no wheeled vehicles, even no draft animals. The stuff must be carried across the wilds of Africa on the backs of native porters, who think nothing of dropping their loads and deserting if the fancy happens to seize them. The worst of the hunting is nothing to what such a homeward march may mean. I have had my men shot down by hostile tribes from ambush with poisoned arrows. I have seen them die in agony from the bites of noxious insects. I have been attacked by bands of Dinkas, who knew the value of ivory as well as I did and who tried to help themselves to mine.—Everybody's Magazine.

"Mistah Middleman, Ah has ah riddle."

"Mr. Bones, we shall be delighted to have you propound it."

"Yessah, but hit ain't nothin' lak dat. Ah jest desires to ax yo' what am de difference between ah storekeeper whose business is improvin' an' a man who selects feathers fo' sofa pillows?"

"That's a pretty hard nut to crack, Mr. Bones. Now, what is the difference between a storekeeper whose business is improving and a man who selects feathers for sofa pillows?"

"De storekeeper's business is pickin' up, an' de other man's business is pickin' down."

"Mr. T. N. Orr will sing the pathetic ballad, 'He Married Himself to a Marcel Wave, an' Now He's All at Sea.'"—Harper's Weekly.

Swankers.

A number of our contemporaries appear to be somewhat exercised as to the precise meaning of the word "swank." Swank, though usually called by other names, is the leading characteristic of Englishmen. Frenchmen used to talk of "perfidious Albion." It was simply another way of calling us swankers. To swank is, broadly, to make the thing that is not seem as the thing that is.—London Globe.

Not.

"Shall we marry, darling, or shall we knot?" was the short and witty line an ardent lover dispatched to the idol of his heart.

But, where the strangeness of the matter comes in, the girl replied: "I shall not. You may do as you please."

Moral Lesson Lost.

"Good for Squillips! I hear that since he quit drinking he has got rich."

"It's too bad to spoil that story, but it's the other way. Since he got rich he has quit drinking."—Chicago Tribune.

Hay Fever and Summer Colds.

Victims of hay fever will experience great benefit by taking Foley's Honey and Tar, as it stops difficult breathing immediately and heals the inflamed air passages, and even if it should fail to cure you it will give instant relief." The genuine is in a yellow package.

Weak Heart Action

There are certain nerves that control the action of the heart. When they become weak, the heart action is impaired. Short breath, pain around heart, choking sensation, palpitation, fluttering, feeble or rapid pulse, and other distressing symptoms follow. Dr. Miles Heart Cure is a medicine especially adapted to the needs of these nerves and the muscular structure of the heart itself. It is a strengthening tonic that brings speedy relief. Try it.

"For years I suffered with what I thought was stomach trouble, when the doctors told me I had heart trouble. I had tried many remedies, when the Dr. Miles' almanac came into my hands, and I concluded to try Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. I have taken three bottles, and now I am not suffering at all. I am cured and this medicine did it. I write this in the hope that it will attract the attention of others who suffer as I did."

Stomach Muscles In Old Age

How Old People May Retain or Restore Good Health

Usually the bowels are not so active in middle or advanced years as in youth. Just as the eyes grow dim, the skin wrinkled, the hair gray, the muscles flabby, so do the internal organs show their age if we could but see them.

However we sometimes find a person whose age is near the meted threescore and ten and yet his step is springlike, his eye keen, his flesh firm, his appetite good and his bowels regular, and upon close questioning you will find a life's history of right-living, good food, keen appetite, perfect digestion and regular bowel action.

Regular bowels and proper digestion of the food we eat is absolutely necessary to the enjoyment of good health by old or young. If the readers of this article are interested, we are glad to tell them how they can restore good health and prolong their lives.

Step into a drug store and purchase a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It will cleanse the bowels of any waste matter that has clogged them up and restore to them strength and nerve force for regular natural daily action. It aids digestion by stimulating the stomach and digestive glands to a proper and sufficient secretion of the fluids necessary to perfect digestion. It acts on the liver and kidneys in a mild, quiet yet effective manner. Rev. A. J. Fletcher of Rutherford, Tenn., is 80 years old, and it cured him of 60 years of dyspepsia. W. W. Sterling, Sioux City, Ia., says: "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the best medicine I ever used and I am 88 years old." E. F. Thompson, Shenandoah, Ia., says: "I suffered 15 years with dyspepsia and it cured me." It is certain and effective in the most obstinate old cases, and yet mild and safe for the most delicate woman or child. All druggists sell it at 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Pepsin Syrup Co., 304 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill., is glad to send a free sample to any one who has never used it and will give it a fair trial.

Eight Hurt in Auto Accident.

Titusville, Pa., Aug. 24.—An automobile containing nine Pittsburgers, turned turtle at Harmonsburg, near here, Sunday when running at the rate of fifty miles an hour. Eight persons were injured. J. B. Badger, owner and driver, suffered contusions about the face and head. Miss Estella Feldsman sustained internal injuries. Both are seriously hurt.

Three Hours in Clouds.

Dayton, O., Aug. 24.—Clinging desperately to a trapeze bar, Miss May Plummer, of Springfield, O., was lost in the clouds for three hours Saturday. The girl lost her nerve when the balloon had reached the proper altitude for the drop and was carried several miles east of the city, where she landed exhausted in a field.

Another Record for Sheridan.

Dundalk, Ireland, Aug. 24.—At the athletic games here Sunday, Martin J. Sheridan, of the Irish-American Athletic club, beat the world's record with the discus, free style, throwing the sphere 142 feet 5 inches. The discus was the one used at the Olympic games in London. The former record, which was held by Sheridan, was 138 feet 1-3 inch.

Daughter Finds Father's Body.

Flint, Mich., Aug. 24.—Presumably because of the continued illness of his wife and his own poor health, Loyal J. Turney, aged fifty-two years, committed suicide in the barn of the farm of O. F. Perry, his father-in-law, in Flint township. The body was discovered by his eight year old daughter. Mr. Turney formerly lived in Davison.

Spinach Omelet.

Make a puree of spinach in the usual way—that is to say, after having boiled it till tender chop it very fine and rub it through a coarse wire sieve, season with salt and pepper, stir over the fire and add two ounces of butter and a little cream. Take two tablespoonfuls of the spinach and stir it into four eggs which have been previously beaten, yokes and whites separately. Add a little piece of shallot which has been rubbed through the sieve, and salt and pepper to taste. When thoroughly mixed put the whole into an omelet pan with two ounces of butter and fry a pale brown. Serve very hot.—Bystander.

False Hair.

False hair was first regularly worn in England by Queen Elizabeth, who had upward of fifty wigs of different kinds for her private use. After her death a few women adopted the French fashion of wearing wigs, but it was not until the restoration that wigs, or, more correctly speaking, periwigs, came to be extensively worn by the sterner sex. These were introduced in the court of Louis XIV., where a natural head of hair was not considered sufficiently luxuriant for the artificial tastes of the times. The term "periwig" is a corruption of the French perruque. Wigs were originally adopted not as a remedy for baldness, but in the interest of personal cleanliness. The laws of ancient Egypt compelled all males to shave the head and beard. This explains why turbans were not worn by the Egyptians, the bushy artificial hair being regarded as a sufficient protection against the heat of the sun. The Romans, on the contrary, wore wigs because they were naturally bald.—St. Louis Republic.

What Displeased Him.

Two hunters were making their way across a lush meadow after a rain. The ground was moist and soggy, but their feet by quick stepping could be prevented from sinking more than ankle deep.

Suddenly the one in advance disappeared up to his neck in a narrow stream that, owing to the luxuriant growth on the bank, he had observed only as he stepped into it. With difficulty he pulled himself out and began wringing the water from his garments.

"Well, darn a country," he remarked, with feeling, "where they set their creeks up edgewise and hide 'em in the grass."—Philadelphia Ledger.

MAY WITHHOLD FUNDS.

United States Threatens to Discontinue Maintenance.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 24.—Commandant George H. Turner, of the Soldiers' home has completely changed his mind concerning the action of the board of directors in confiscating old soldiers' pensions exceeding $14. Up till the present time Commandant Turner has held that the board was justified in taking such action, and in an interview stated that only the scum of the Grand Army of the Republic were inmates of the home.

Following the advice received by Governor Warner to the effect that the United States government would discontinue the maintenance fee of $100 per head per annum if the inmates' funds were confiscated, Commandant Turner has switched his opinion. A meeting of the board of directors will be held Wednesday and action on the matter will probably be taken then.

Bryan to Visit Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 24.—William Jennings Bryan will speak in Detroit Tuesday night, September 22. Word to this effect was received by Judge William F. Connolly Sunday morning from National Committeman E. O. Wood, of Flint. Bryan will speak in the afternoon at Ann Arbor, his subject being "Democracy's Appeal to Young Men." His subject in Detroit will be "Democracy, the Equal Protector of Labor and Capital." He speaks at Buffalo before coming to this state.

Ore Cars in Collision.

Norway, Mich., Aug. 24.—Forty-one cars on the Northwestern, at Spread Eagle, north of Iron Mountain, were demolished and track tied up for a number of hours when one section of an ore train broke in two and collided with the section following. The cars were loaded with iron, and when they parted a flagman was sent back to stop the section following, but the brakes refused to work. No one was injured.

Faces Serious Charge.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 24.—William Grady, eighteen years old, and Ivan Tumjama, seventeen years old, are being held by the police pending an investigation of the story Effie Robinson, the fourteen year old girl who disappeared from her home. The girl claims she was held captive in the woods outside the city, and lived for three days in a hole in the ground beneath an uprooted tree. She alleges that the two young men attacked and assaulted her.

Ward's Trial Set for Sept. 21.

Newaygo, Mich., Aug. 24.—John M. Ward, charged with the murder of his wife, waived examination in justice court here and was bound over to the circuit court for trial, Sept. 21. The courtroom was thronged when Ward was arraigned and many followed him back to the jail in an effort to secure a glimpse of him. Ward denies that he attempted suicide by drinking poison.

Octogenarian Struck by Car.

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 22.—Charles Schwartzmeir, eighty years old, a resident of Grass Lake, was struck by a suburban car here Sunday, but escaped unhurt. The old man was crossing the track and failed to see the approaching car. He was hurled to one side of the track, but arose practically unhurt.

Arrested on Girl's Complaint.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 24.—Robert Jakey has been arrested on the complaint of Eva J. Austin eighteen yeas old, who recently became the wife of a man sixty-five years old, and is being held on a statutory charge.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Mrs. H. T. Gignon, of Milwaukee, en route to her home from a visit in Detroit, died on Grand Trunk train No. 13, at Royal Oak from a sudden attack of heart disease.

Caught under a sawlog which fell from a southbound train at Manton, O. W. Brigham, about fifty years old, a section hand on the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad, was so terribly crushed that he lived only an hour.

One of the automobiles with the Bradley campaigners was ditched near Ionia, while running down hill at a thirty-five mile clip. The machine was badly damaged, but no one was injured.

James Lawrence, four years old, of Battle Creek, was killed by a trolley car which struck him and rolled him along with the fender until his legs, back and skull were fractured. The wheels did not pass over the child, but death was almost instantaneous.

R. E. Olds, the auto manufacturer of Lansing, and Professor Pickering, the Harvard astronomical observer, will make a balloon ascension from North Adams, Mass., some day this week. Pickering hopes to reach a hight that will enable him to make important observations.

While hauling a merry-go-round from Hudson to Devil's Lake, Samuel Reed, aged fifty, was percipitated to the ground under the horses' feet by the breaking of the wagon seat. The team started forward and one of the wheels of the heavily loaded wagon passed over Reed's head, crushing his skull and killing him instantly.

Honesty is the best policy, but it is the sort of policy that has no surrender value.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

OVER THIRTY MINERS KILLED

Twenty-Five Bodies Already Recovered by Searching Party.

ALL HAD BEEN SUFFOCATED

Rescuers Found That None of the Miners in the Hailey-Ola Disaster Met Death by Burning—Fire Extinguished After Battle.

McAlaster, Okla., Aug. 27.—More than thirty miners were suffocated Wednesday morning in Hailey-Ola coal mine No. 1, near Haileyville, fourteen miles east of McAlaster, when fire destroyed the hoisting shaft and air shaft and cut off air from the men below.

Twenty-five dead bodies were removed from the mine, following a successful three-hours' battle with the flames. It is believed that six or eight more will be brought out. Twenty-five mules were suffocated and some of their bodies were burned.

Explorations in the channels revealed that none of the men met death by burning, but that all were suffocated. It is impossible for the rescuers to get far from the base of the main shaft, and it probably will be hours before a thorough search of the entire mine can be made. Some of the channels are three-quarters of a mile long.

Infantry Team Wins Trophy.

Camp Perry, O., Aug. 27.—The United States infantry team won the national trophy and $300 offered by congress by winning the United States army rifle team match Wednesday. The infantry's score was 3,224. The second prize, the Hilton trophy and $200 in cash, went to the navy team, which scored 3,210. A score of 3,180, made by the cavalry team, gave the cavalry third place, the bronze trophy, "the soldier of Marathon," and $150 in cash. The marine corps was fourth with 3,117 and won $10 in cash. Fifth place and $75 in cash was won by the Wisconsin team, with a score of 3,073, which also heads the National Guard teams. All of the high honors were taken by the regular army service teams.

Up to War Department.

Washington, Aug. 27.—John R. Early, the leper who is being kept in quarantine on the east branch of the Potomac, may be taken in charge by the officials of the war department if it can be established that he contracted the disease while a member of the United States army. It is believed Early contracted leprosy while serving in the Philippines. G. Gillet Thomas, president of the North Carolina state board of health, has therefore suggested to Deputy Health Officer McLean, of the District of Columbia, that the war department be asked to assume charge of the leper. The government has no leper colony at present where the man can be cared for.

President at Library Dedication.

Jordanville, N. Y., Aug. 27.—With a ceremony in which the president of the United States took a prominent part, the Jordanville public library was Wednesday presented to the people of this community, the donors being Douglas Robinson, of Mohawk and New York, Mrs. Robinson and Harriet D. Wolryche Whitmore, Mr. Robinson's sister, who had erected it in memory of Mr. Robinson's father and mother, Douglas and Fannie Robinson. This little village was thoroughly awake to the importance of the occasion, which was given an added touch of distinction by the presence of Secreary of State Elihu Root and James S. Sherman, Republican vice-presidential candidate.

Drowns in Sewer.

New York, Aug. 27.—John Lynch, a sewer department employe, had one of his feet caught beneath a cellar pipe while working in a sewer Wednesday, and was drowned. Two companions had gone with Lynch into the narrow manhole to open checked pipes, stood on the iron ladder leading into the sewer and saw the man engulfed by the waters, despite their frantic efforts to drag him out.

Wade Ellis Accepts.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Wade H. Ellis, now attorney-general of Ohio, has been tendered by the president and has accepted the position of assistant to the attorney-general, recently held by Milton D. Purdy. Mr. Ellis will assume the duties of his new position as soon as the business of his present office, which will require his attention for some weeks, will permit.

PROBATE JUDGE ON THE RACK

Prosecuting Attorney of Lapeer County Starts Investigation.

CLAIM HE TOOK ILLEGAL FEES

Amount Involved May Reach $1,000, It Is Said—Judge Brown Has Held Office Eight Years—Expert Accountant Scrutinizing Books.

Lapeer, Mich., Aug. 27.—An investigation in which Prosecuting Attorney Ben Reed is acting has been started into the affairs of Judge of Probate Elmer A. Brown. Julius A. Dresser, expert accountant, of Detroit, is making the investigation. Judge Brown continues to discharge the duties of his office as usual.

The particular thing alleged against the judge, so Prosecutor Reed says, is charging fees ranging from $1 to $10 without authority of law. The prosecutor says further that the explanation for some of the disputed charges is that other judges made them, while for some more the explanation is not so explicit.

The amount involved may reach $1,000, and may be considerably less. The exact sum will not be known until the accountant has gone over the books for the eight years during which Brown has been judge of probate. He began work on the books Tuesday.

Judge Brown was a farmer in Marathon township when first elected in 1900, and it is said he never studied law. He is about sixty years old. The governor alone has power to remove a probate judge from office. It was but a few days ago that the prosecutor got the first information that led to the investigation. Judge Brown was a candidate for renomination for a third term, but has now withdrawn.

Railroad to New Coal Fields.

Owosso, Mich., Aug. 27.—The New Haven Coal company has interested eastern capital in building a railroad from Owosso to its mines at Six Mile Creek, six miles north of this city. The company has asked the city to build a bridge across Shiawassee river and give it a right of way in the city to make a possible connection with the Ann Arbor railroad tracks. The request is being favorably considered, as the road will open up a rich farming country and make Owosso an important coal and produce market. It is also proposed to extend the road to New Lothrop in this county, which is now reached by a stage, and to make connections with the Hazelton coal fields, which are being developed by a company largely composed of Flint capitalists.

Two Babes Drink Poison.

Standish, Mich., Aug. 27.—The infant son of Remi Dupey is dead and another child, three years old, is dying from the effects of drinking concentrated lye from a cup which the mother had left on the kitchen table. The Dupey family live on a farm four miles west of here. The mother left the lye, which she had been using for cleaning purposes, on the kitchen table, while she was busy in another room. The two little children managed to climb up on the table and secure the cup. The baby died in a few hours, and little hope is entertained of saving the life of the older child.

Lay Claim to Mackinac Island.

Mackinac Island, Mich., Aug. 27.—Attorneys for the heirs of the late Edgar Conklin, of Cincinnati, O., are about to bring suit claiming nearly all of Mackinac Island for the latter. A few years ago Mrs. C. M. Conklin, while in Mackinac, saw a picture of Edgar Conklin, her uncle, in a shop. When she asked who he was she was told that he had once owned nearly the whole island, and that his heirs, if he had any, were entitled to it. Attorneys began an investigation and now say they have ample proof that present holders of ground have not ample title to it.

Iron Ore Found on Farm.

South Lyon, Mich., Aug. 27.—Outside capitalists, whose names are not known, have purchased 163 acres of farming land from James Duncan, near here, for $10,400, and have started to prospect for iron ore. Pieces of ore of good quality are scattered all around the land, and after digging down a few feet the prospectors discovered one very large piece of ore. They say it has not yet been ascertained whether this is an indication of just surface ore or whether a large vein exists on the property.

FLOODS DELAY MAIL SERVICE

Numerous Washouts Occur on Railroads in Southern States.

LOSS OF LIFE IS REPORTED

Washington, Aug. 27.—The flooded conditions in the south have caused some serious interruptions to the railroad mail service. Reports received from Atlanta by the postoffice department show a serious break at Greers, S. C., on the railway dispatch line between Atlanta and Greensboro, which the southern railroad officials promise will be repaired today. Also, on the Seaboard Air line at Darlington, S. C., and the Savannah river bridge, whence all mails pass on the route between Hamlet and Atlanta, the service is interrupted between Asheville, N. C., and Charleston, S. C., there are several points where the railroad tracks have been washed away and numerous washouts have been reported to the department in South Carolina and Eastern Georgia.

AUGUSTA IS UNDER WATER

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 27.—The floods in the Carolinas and Georgia culminated Wednesday in the breaking of the big dam six miles from Augusta which diverts the water from the Savannah river into the canal at that point.

The big bridge across the Savannah river went down in the rush of waters and the dam at the locks seven miles above the city collapsed, adding to the flood.

Telephone reports from Augusta, Ga., indicate that three people have been drowned. The main streets of the city are under ten or twelve feet of water, and many business houses have been abandoned. The newspapers were unable to issue their regular editions. Street car service has been abandoned. The damage in the state may reach $500,000.

Athens, Ga., Aug. 27.—The waterworks plant is under water. Four bridges near the city and one in the city limits have been destroyed. The total damage in this vicinity will reach $25,000. No trains have been able to reach here since Monday night. Two miles of track on the Central of Georgia railroad have been washed away.

As a result of the flood in the Ocononee river the Athens cotton mills have been forced to close down.

Wanders Helpless in Mountains.

Estes Park, Colo., Aug. 27.—After wandering helpless and dazed in the mountains, without food and shelter for nearly forty-eight hours, Judge Roderick Rombauer, of St. Louis, jurist and author, staggered into the Drake hotel Wednesday. With careful nursing, Judge Rombeaur, who is seventy-four years old, is expected to soon recover. He became separated from the members of the party with which he started from Halet Glacier, and which he left to make the ascent of Hages peak Monday at noon.

BRIEF DISPATCHES.

Rev. Johannes R. Frich, one of the pioneer ministers of the Norwegian Lutheran synod, and for years one of the leading men in the church, died at St. Paul Wednesday, aged seventy-three.

A special from Goshen, Va., says: F. J. Falkenback, chemist for the Goshen Iron company, was drowned late Wednesday afternoon while boating with N. E. E. Fenton, treasurer of the same company.

A special from Stone Mountain, Ga., says: J. J. Chaffee, twenty-five years old, said to be an associate editor of the Augusta Ga., Herald, accidentally shot himself in the abdomen while on a Georgia railroad train near here, Wednesday afternoon. It is believed he is fatally shot.

MacRena Kavorzo, of Waldez, Alaska, nineteen years old, confesses that she induced George Pestriakoff, whom she loved, to kill her husband, Peter S. Kavorzof, a woodsman, at their home on Afoguak Island. Pestriakoff said he sought to deliver the woman from the terror in which she lived.

HELD UP RACING.

Ballston, N. Y., Aug. 27.—For an hour and a half yesterday afternoon the openly expressed hostility of owners of trotting horses taking part in the events at the Saratoga county fair toward Governor Charles E. Hughes held up the racing program at the fair grounds here.

Governor Hughes was a visitor at the fair, and addressed a big gathering which gave him a hearty greeting and an attentive hearing. The governor's presence on the grounds, however, was resented by the hose owners, who have taken exception to the governor's efforts to suppress betting on the race tracks of the state. As a consequence they refused to start their horses while the executive was on the grounds.

Bryan Gets Hearty Reception.

Salem, Ill., Aug. 27.—No crowd of equal size or enthusiasm ever before turned out in this city, the birthplace of William J. Bryan, as did that of Wednesday, when the Democratic candidate stopped over to greet his old friends and neighbors. The whole population was on hand early to extend a hearty welcome when Mr. Bryan reached here at 6:30 o'clock in the morning. They were augmented later in the day by thousands who came in on special trains. The principal event of the day was a speech by Mr. Bryan from a platform in the court house grounds. While Mr. Bryan was talking the crowd made up a purse of $300 and handed it to him as a campaign contribution. He left at 3:50 for Topeka, stopping en route for several hours at St. Louis and Kansas City.

Tony Pastor Is Dead.

Elmhurst, L. I., Aug. 27.—Antonio (Tony) Pastor, the theatrical manager, died Wednesday night after an illness of several weeks. He was seventy-one years old. Tony Pastor was taken ill August 10 last, and failed rapidly. He rallied several times, but the doctors did not hold out any hope for recovery. During his illness letters, telegrams and cards poured into Kerry cottage, his home here, from all parts of the country, and lately messages from Europe began to arrive. Tony Pastor was one of the best known theatrical managers in the country. He was born in New York in 1837, and made his first appearance on the stage with a minstrel troupe at the age of nine years.

A MEMORIAL TO FARRAGUT

Admiral Dewey Unveils Tablet at Portsmouth.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 27.—Some 3,000 shipmates, relatives, friends and admirers of Admiral David Glasgow Farragut, Wednesday, paid a tribute to the memory of the hero of many battles of the sea in the dedication of a memorial tablet in the Portsmouth navy yard. The commandant's house at the navy yard, where the famous fighter died, was the scene of the exercises, and Admiral George Dewey, who served with Farragut, lifted the covering from the tablet. The exercises were very simple. The chaplain of the yard, Rev. Frank Thompson, offered prayer, after which Admiral Dewey stepped to the front and following a few extemporaneous words unveiled the tablet. The memorial bears this inscription:

"Died in this house, August 14, 1870, David Glasgow Farragut, admiral in the United States navy. Faithful and fearless."

In oposite corners of the tablet are displayed the United States seal and the regulation anchor of the United States navy.

The naval band played a hymn and salutes were fired by the navy yard battery. An address was then given by former Assistant Secretary of the Navy Frank W. Hackett.

The reading of a letter from Rear Admiral J. C. Watson, retired, of Louisville, Ky., brought the exercises to a close.

Michigan Paper at Auction.

New York, Aug. 27.—In furtherance of the program adopted in July by the American Newspaper Publishers' association for periodical offerings of news print paper at public auction to ascertain the open market price for paper, John Norris, the chairman of the committee on paper, announces that a public auction of fifteen carloads of news print paper, 300 tons in all, will be held in New York city, September 2. Ten carloads will be the product of the Cheboygan (Mich.) paper mill, and five cars from J. R. Booth mill, Ottawa, Canada.

Chadwick's Choice.

By JANET GREGG.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

After ten years of fried bacon and salt pork the pendulum swung to its opposite extreme for David Chadwick. The goddess of fortune, whom he had long wooed in vain, now turned her face with truly feminine caprice. From bacon and corn bread Dave had been advanced almost overnight to a New York hotel, where his day's board would have bought provisions for a month during his prospecting period.

And still Dave was not satisfied. He did not like what he termed "fussy" foods, and the very length of the bill of fare deprived him of his appetite.

Then it was that Nell Horton came as an angel of deliverance and led him to her home in the suburbs, where Dave devoured all that was put before him and rejoiced in the absence of a bill of fare.

"I don't suppose that this modest meal will appeal to you," said Nell with ostentatious modesty. "We are plain people on [illegible] after your grand hotel it must seem skimpy, but when I saw you on the avenue I said to myself, 'I'll bet that's Dave Chadwick, and I'm going to ask him home, no matter what he may think.' You haven't changed a mite, Dave, since you left Lawrence."

Now, it is pleasant for a man who realizes that he is beginning to look old to be told that he does not differ in appearance after fifteen years, and for the first time Dave decided that Nell was looking remarkably young herself.

He could not know that Nell had carefully studied the numerous pictures of the new Croesus in the newspapers and had haunted the vicinity of his hotel for days before she had encountered him, apparently by chance, in front of the place.

The Hortons had known Dave in his early life, before he had gone west to seek and eventually find fortune. When the papers had taken up the newly made multimillionaire, as the week before they had taken up the newly born baby elephant of the circus, Nell had read all the stories and had determined that Dave and his millions should become her property.

"He always was a dumb fool," she told her mother. "If we can get hold of him before the others do I'll be married to him before the end of the month. Did you see what the paper said the other day about his cooking bacon in his room and getting the halls all smelly? He's sick of the French stuff the hotels all have, and there is no one to give him what he wants because he does not know where to look for it. We'll have him over here to dinner, and—well, he'll want to come again."

"LOOK ME STRAIGHT IN THE FACE AND SAY THAT AGAIN."

Mrs. Horton had nodded approvingly upon her well preserved daughter, and so the campaign was begun.

They were fortunate in the possession of a dependent relative. The Hortons had an income, small, but assured, and when Cleon Blake had died penniless they had permitted his daughter, Dora, to enter their household nominally as a member of the family, but in reality as a superior cook.

It was she who had cooked the dinner which had so pleased Chadwick and which brought him frequently to the little house. The men who were promoting his syndicate insisted that he must not remove from the hotel to a boarding house where his simpler needs could be suited, and it was only at the Hortons' that he could escape that terrible menu card, with its restaurant French and its overrich sauces.

He did not always want steaks and roasts, and the knowledge that there were good things on the bill which he could not translate only added to his dissatisfaction.

It was after an especially trying meal at the hotel that Dave armed himself with a box of violets and sallied forth to propose to Nell. He had slowly come to the conclusion that Nell was no longer as young as she pretended to be, but she offered escape from the hotel, and he was sick of the place—sick of its cuisine, its grinning bellboys, its servile waiters and its arrogant clerks.

His business sponsors at least could not object if he married and established a home for himself.

It was a long trip uptown, and much of his courage had oozed away when at last he found himself on the Hortons' stoop. He was rather glad that the maid came to the door. It was a certain sign that Nell was not home, else she would have rushed to the door with ostentatious welcome. This little maid he decidedly approved of.

"They will be back in an hour," said the girl. "They have only gone downtown on a shopping tour, and they will be so sorry to have missed you. Won't you wait?"

Chadwick hesitated and was lost. He went into the little parlor and picked out the most comfortable chair. The girl paused at the door.

"Can I get you anything before I go?" she asked solicitously. "The morning paper is upstairs. I can get it in a moment."

"I'd rather talk," said Chadwick comfortably. He was hungry for congenial companionship, and the little maid was very different from Nell. Sometimes Dave grew a little tired of Nell and her bold flattery.

"I can't stop," cried the girl. "It is baking day, and I have the oven full."

"When Miss Horton does all the cooking?" reminded Chadwick. "I shall have to investigate."

He had been so frequent a caller that he knew from which door Nell was accustomed to put in an appearance, her sleeves rolled up and an adorable dab of flour on her saucy chin. Ignoring the frightened protests of the little maid, he pushed his way into the kitchen.

In her embarrassment Dora had forgotten that Nell had claimed the cookery for her own and that upon this talent she had counted for the winning of Chadwick. Now that the cat was out of the bag the probabilities were that Nell would turn her cousin into the street. She inherited a shrewish temper from her mother, and Dora knew that the two women would be implacable.

Chadwick sniffed the spicy odors and turned to the girl.

"So you are the fairy of the kitchen?" he said.

"Nell does all the work. I just watch the things when she goes downtown," denied Dora hastily.

Chadwick put one finger under the dimpled chin and raised the face that he might look straight into the gray eyes.

"Look me straight in the face and say that again," he commanded.

The long lashes fell over the troubled eyes as Dora struggled to make her denial convincing. Chadwick laughed.

"Look here," he said as he released her chin. "I came out here today to ask the hand of the woman who had made me comfortable. It is not that I cared so much about what I had to eat. It is not that I can get a dinner here without having to fight three waiters and the maitre d'hotel. That wasn't what appealed to me, though they do say that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. That sounds funny, but really a man doesn't marry just a cook.

"I wanted the woman who of all the million people in this big town cared enough for old friendship to come and rescue me from the maitre and the menu. It wasn't just the idea of dinner, but the home. I want a home of my own, and I wanted her to run it for me. But it seems that she did not tell the truth about the cooking. I guess the rest of it is pretty much of the same piece of goods, and it won't stand the wash. It's you I want, little woman, not because you can cook—I don't know just what it is, but I want you.

"You slip on your hat, and we can run down to city hall and get a license and a wedding certificate in no time at all."

"Why, you don't even know my name!" cried the startled girl.

"I can guess," was the prompt reply. "I'm not so forgetful of the man who gave me my first start as not to be able to trace his likeness in Cleon Blake's daughter. They told me that they did not know where you were, and today when I recognized you it was that which first suggested the falsehoods they have been telling and led me to investigate the kitchen. We can pay them back for their food. They'll be content so long as they get a lot of presents. Will you come, Dora?"

Something in his tones appealed to the girl, and she looked into the eager eyes that searched her blushing face. She had been sorry for Chadwick, and pity is akin to love. He read his answer in her eyes, and a great light of gladness came into his own as he bent and reverently kissed the tip of the dainty ear, for her face was hidden against his strong shoulder.

Schools For Animals.

"You never heard of schools for animals? Well, that shows your ignorance," said the professor.

"There is an elephants' school in Siam," said he. "Young elephants are taught in it to take up and carry in their trunks great teakwood logs—no easy task, for the logs require delicate balancing. They are taught to kneel, to answer to the various strokes of the ankus, or goad, and, like saddle horses, they learn several gaits. Pets' schools abound the world over. There are schools for white mice, for monkeys, for song birds, not to mention the famous phonograph school for teaching parrots to talk that is the pride of Philadelphia. The big dealers in wild animals usually run small schools where lions, tigers, bears and leopards are taught simple tricks. Such schools are very profitable. Where an untamed lion, salable only to zoos or menageries, fetches but $250 or so, a broken one will easily fetch double."

A SHORT SPEECH.

Made by an Indian Chief in Reply to a Government Agent.

Od Shah-bah-Skong, the head chief of Mille Lac, brought all his warriors to defend Fort Ripley in 1862. The secretary of the interior and the governor and legislature of Minnesota promised these Indians that for this act of bravery they should have the special care of the government and never be removed.

A few years later a special agent was sent from Washington to ask the Ojibways to cede their lands and remove to a country north of Leech lake. The agent asked my help. I said:

"I know that country. I have camped on it. It is the most worthless strip of land in Minnesota. The Indians are not fools. Don't attempt this folly. You will surely come to grief."

He called the Indians in council and said:

"My red brothers, your great father has heard how you have been wronged. He said, 'I will send them an honest man.' He looked in the north, the south, the east and the west. When he saw me, he said, 'This is the honest man whom I will send to my red children.' Brothers, look at me! The winds of fifty-five years have blown over my head and silvered it with gray, and in all that time I have never done wrong to any man. As your friend I ask you to sign this treaty."

Old Shah-bah-Skong sprang to his feet and said:

"My friend, look at me! The winds of more than fifty winters have blown over my head and silvered it with gray, but they have not blown my brains away."

That council was ended.

Alms From a Tomb.

A remarkable custom which has been uninterruptedly in force for 300 years is yearly observed at Ideford, a secluded parish a few miles from Chudleigh. It is that of picking up alms from the donor's tomb in the churchyard. The rector and churchwarden stand at one end of the tomb, upon the flat top of which they place coins. The recipients of the charity come up one by one to the other end of the tomb and pick up the money.—London Standard.

Melville Sisson, who is working in Ann Arbor, came home Friday night to attend the Bryan family reunion held at the home of Burt Slater, Saturday, August 22.

The editors of Everybody's Magazine, adopting an ingenious method of getting the Venezuelan row before the public, have selected an advocate for the prosecution, and one for the defense, and have appointed their readers the jury. George W. Crichfield opens with a startling array of charges backed up by great eloquence and fervor. He leaves one with a feeling that under cover of the Monroe doctrine Castro is committing crimes that ought to cause war. And then Colvin B. Brown steps in and paints Castro as a patriot who has had everything against him from the start

REUNION

JOHN AND MARY MOORE'S DESCENDANTS.

Fifty-eight Guests Participated in the Happy Day.

History tells us that a New Year's present was sent to this world on 24th day of January, 1794. The light of day dawned upon this gift, and it was nourished and cherished and the wee sapling became a great tree, its branches spreading to all most every state.

It was in the year 1792 on the 18th day of December. Just as sweet a twig was born and grew to womanhood. These dear babes were raised and educated in Lancaster county, Pa., amongst the valley and hills of Valley Forge, where there had been many sorrowful days. "God said it was not well for man to be alone." On the 17th day of November, 1812, that John and Mary promised to be true to each other, and according to Friends ceremony became husband and wife. From this union, there where ten branches spread their leaves over this green earth, and on the 20th day of August, 1908, there where two hundred and twenty-eight large trees, small trees, and twenty-nine saplings all growing and enjoying the blessing of life.

For the past eleven years these offsprings have had reunions keeping in memory the dear ones long since passed away. It was by a standing invitation that the twelfth reunion convened at cousin Garrison and wife at Bellevire, Mich., August 20.

The previous day relatives arrived from Fhingley, Ill., Springfield, Ohio, Pontiac, Ann Arbor, Tecumseh, Adrian, Bay City, Battle Creek and surrounding country, to renew old acquaintance and form new ones.

The weather was as usual pleasant, a cool fresh breeze prevailed, which was so refreshing after the severe warm weather. The center attraction was the presence of our only Aunt Hannah. The rest were cousins and their children and grandchildren.

The gala day dawned upon us so clear and bright, from early morning until noon relatives came by groups and the air was full of love, joy and laughter, each one doing their best in making this a successful gathering at our past president's home.

At noon 58 guests were escorted to the M. E. church where a bountiful dinner was served by the Ladies Aid. About 2 p. m. our President C. W. Moore called a business meeting. Address of Welcome was given by Cousin Garrison sr., also his wife. An ernest prayer was invoked by Garrison Moore, jr., thanking our Heavenly Father for this yearly gathering, and the blessing we enjoy. The general routine of business was transacted, interspersed with songs and recitations, one by Mrs. Roy Moore in particular on temperance, a reading, deserves especial mention. The life's history of Mary Ann Simmons (nee Moore) was read by her daughter Mrs. A. S. Hanley.

The same officers were re-elected for the ensuing year. "God be with you" led by Dr. Lee Haight was sung. Benediction by A. L. Moore of Pontiac.

This closed the exercises, after supper one by one of the relatives said good bye, each hoping we might meet again next year. The day was delightfully finished by a Marsh Mellow roast in the evening at the beautiful home of Dr. Lee Haight's, who assisted in entertaining his cousins.

Mr. C. W. Moore, President.
Mrs. A. S. Hanley, Secretary and Treasurer.

Bryan Family Reunion.

Last Saturday occurred the fourth annual reunion of the Bryan family at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Slater.

A bountiful dinner was served to about forty guests and was followed later in the afternoon by ice cream and cake.

President, B. J. Slater.
Vice-president, James Kennedy.
Secretary and treasurer, Erva Finch.

A program had been provided consisting of the following numbers.

Piano Solo—Erva Finch.
Recitation—Lela Sisson.
Solo—Floyd Slater.
Reading—Mrs. Newton Bryan.
Reading—Mrs. A. C. Bryan.
Music—Robert Bryan.
Reading—Q. B. Finch.
Solo—Floyd Slater.

During the past year the family has lost one of its older members, Mr. Geo. Bryan of Macon.

Mrs. Burton and daughter kindly extended an invitation to meet next year at Hyde Park, Jackson After a pleasant afternoon spent in renewing acquaintances the company separated anticipating a delightful day and a pleasant reunion in 1909.

The guests from out of Tecumseh were Mrs. Jennie Burton and daughter Mrs. VanAntwerp of Jackson, Delmer Bryan and wife of Adrian, Fred Slater, daughter Clara and son Homer of Tipton, D. B. Finch and wife of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, Mrs. Hunt and Mary Paxon of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mattis-Lanning Families Reunion.

On Thursday, August 20, occurred the second annual reunion of the Mattis-Lanning families at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Wilson. A large tent had been spread, and by noon 85 guests were seated at the two long tables, laden with a bountiful dinner. After satisfying the inner man, each made himself comfortable beneath the canopy and all were called to order, by the President Jos. Lanning.

"Blest be the tie that binds" was sung by the company after which prayer was offered by O. M. Gove.

The secretary's report was then read after which the following programme was given:

Violin Solo—Glenn Lanning.
Rec.—C. V. L. Harrison.
Rec.—Mabel Allison.
Music—Florence Clark.
Reading—Mrs. Frank Mattis.
Solo—Lucy Harrison.
Rec.—Mrs. John Vedder.

Mrs. Elizabeth H. Martin

HAD FRONTAL HEADACHES
EYES BOTHERED ME
DROPPING IN MY THROAT

MRS. ELIZABETH H. MARTIN, 333 Bowen Avenue, Chicago, Ill., Chaplain Garfield Circle, writes:

"Peruna has been a blessing to our family for a good many years, as we have all used it off and on for colds and catarrh, and I have given it to all of my children with the best of results.

"I found that a cold left me with catarrh of the head in a very bad form. My head was stopped up, I had frontal headaches, my eyes bothered me, and there was a nasty dropping in my throat which nauseated me and made it impossible many times for me to eat my breakfast.

"As soon as I began to use Peruna I found it relieved me, my head soon cleared up and in a remarkably short time I was rid of catarrh.

"I can, therefore, give my personal experience with your valuable medicine, and am pleased to do so."

People who prefer solid to liquid medicines can now secure Peruna tablets, which contain the medicinal ingredients of Peruna.

Man-a-lin the Ideal Laxative.

Chips—Matile Wilson.
Rec.—Metha Allison.
Rec.—Nellie Wilson.
Music—Glen and Addie Lanning.
Closing Song—We'll never say "Good bye."

Pres.—Chas. Brown.
Vice Pres.—C. M. Gove.
Sec. and Treas.—Mrs. Lilly Harrison.

After appointment of various committees, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Allison cordially invited all to meet with them on the third Thursday of August 1909.

IN MEMORIAM OF HELEN M. GRISWOLD.

A Resident of Tecumseh for 58 Years.

Mrs. Helen M. Griswold was born on June 24, 1830, near Elmyra, N. Y.

Her maiden name was Fitsimmons with her parents she came to Michigan in 1836 and located in Hillsdale county. In 1850 she married George Griswold and settled near the village of Tecumseh where they lived for 42 years, moving into the village in 1892.

Mr. Griswold died, July 14, 1893, and Mrs. Griswold, August 20, 1908.

Three children were born unto them Hattie, the eldest who died when 4 years old. Isabel (Mrs. W. J. Waldron) of this place and Alice (Mrs. Crane) of Portland, Oregon.

For 40 years she has been a teacher in the Methodist Sunday school here. She was a charter member of the local W. F. M. So and of the L. A. So.

Quiet and undermonstrative in manner. Clear in her thought and loyal to her conviction, hers was an influence strong and abiding.

Fully conscious of her approaching departure she eagerly awaited it in full confidence of hope and bright anticipation of the future.

The funeral services were conducted at her late residence by Rev. W. M. Ward. Burial at Brookside.

General Kuropatkin's Memoirs of the Russo-Japanese War, which were suppressed by the Russian authorities, furnish the leading article in the September McClure's. General Kuropatkin makes striking charges concerning the causes of the war, and remarkable revelations concerning the great policies of the Russia Empire. The fiction in the number is unusually diversified and attractive.

From whatever point of view one regards the September number of The Ladies' World, it must be declared satisfactory. The stories, of which there are seven or eight, are, in human interest, above the average magazine story; the special articles are particularly timely, and the household, fashion and other departments have that up-to-date look that convincingly appeals to the feminine mind.

A Prescription for Constipation.

Eminent medical authorities agree that ninety per cent of their patients suffer from ailments due to clogged bowels Constipation).

The bowels become clogged with impurities and body poisons, causing billiousness, colds, stomach trouble, headache, rheumatism, deranged liver and kidneys, etc.

A Tonic Laxative is prescribed in nearly every case. Those who need a laxative may use this prescripton with the assurance that no harmful results will follow its use. It has been given to the Public in tablet form and is known as Iron-ox (Laxative Iron-ox Tablets) and are put up in aluminum pocket cases.

The formula is wrapped around the case. The action of each ingredient is explained, that you may understand why Laxative Iron-ox Tablets are the safest Laxative to use; they strengthen the bowels, aid digestion, and keep the liver and kidneys healthy and active. We have secured the selling agency for Laxative Iron-ox Tablets and recommend them to our customers.

Certain relief and usually complete recovery will result from the following treatment:

LAKE SHORE

Lippincott's Magazine "pursues the even tenor of its way" regardless of summer's heat or financial panic, each successive number being just as big, just as carefully edited, just as wholly satisfying. The September issue has for its leading feature a stirring detective novel by Nevil Monroe Hopkins—"The Investigation at Holman Square." It is published complete, of course, as is everything in Lippincott's. Dr. Hopkin's story has to do with a mysterious murder in New York City. His hero, a young electrician, becomes mixed up in it in a perfectly innocent way, yet he is placed under arrest and for a time finds himself in a serious position. The girl he loves is likewise brought under suspicion, as are a number of others.

Ideal husband—a creation of dreams,
Dear to girls' hearts as chocolate creams;
Each one expects her prince to find,
And each one has her particular kind.
Listen a moment, and I'll tell to you
How mine will look and what he'll do:
Ugly? oh, no! he's very fine-looking,
Shows at a glance he's no crank about cooking;
Blond and big, with a smile so sunny,
A chum—a companion—with just enough money
Not to be "rich man, poor man, beggar or thief";
Dearly I should love this man for my chief.—The Designer.

A POOR GROCER.

Audubon's Lame Attempt to Succeed as a Merchant.

It is not generally remembered that the worldwide reputation of Audubon as a naturalist incidentally is due to his failure to establish himself permanently as a Missouri grocery merchant and dealer in the best brands of Kentucky whisky.

In 1810 he and Ferdinand Rozier of St. Genevieve loaded a keel boat at Louisville, Ky., with 310 barrels of whisky and groceries and started down the Ohio and Mississippi to St. Genevieve to open a grocery store. The trip was made during the winter, and the streams were so full of ice that the boat was drawn up against the bank and winter quarters were established just below Cape Girardeau. When St. Genevieve was reached, after the opening of navigation, the firm of Audubon & Rozier opened their store and did a prosperous business. But the business was done by Rozier, for Audubon preferred the woods to the counter and devoted more of his time to sketching and stuffing birds than he did to marketing the 310 barrels of Kentucky bourbon or any other groceries. This led to a dissolution of the partnership. On April 11, 1811, Audubon, convinced of his unfitness for business, sold out to Rozier and took up the work for which he was better fitted than any one who had lived before or who has lived since and from a fourth rate grocer became the great ornithologist. The grocery business which Audubon abandoned grew until finally it "extended throughout all of upper Louisiana."—Kansas City Star.

A WOMAN OF QUICK WIT.

Susan B. Anthony Never Lacked a Ready Reply.

Few lives so lend themselves to dramatic narration as Susan B. Anthony's, says the Delineator. It ranged from tragedy to comedy, with scattered bits of melodrama, she ever in the center of the stage. With her everything was always intensely realistic—not acting.

Miss Anthony had a peculiar faculty of condensing a whole speech into a single sentence. For instance, when she heard men lamenting that the profession of teacher was not respected as much as the other professions, "Do you not see that so long as society says woman has not brains enough to be a doctor, lawyer or minister, but has plenty to be a teacher, every man of you who condescends to teach tacitly admits before all Israel and the sun that he has no more brains than a woman?" And when Horace Greeley said to her at Albany, "You know the ballot and bullet go together—if you vote, are you ready to fight?" instantly she retorted, "Yes, Mr. Greeley, just as you fought in the late war—at the point of a goose quill!" Again, when she was talking on divorce and the Rev. A. D. Mayo, thinking to annihilate her, said, "You are not married; you have no business to be discussing marriage," "Well, Mr. Mayo," she answered, "you are not a slave; suppose you quit lecturing on slavery!"

Hairs in the Watch.

"Well, sir, I had to send my watch downtown to have it cleaned out again," said an east side barber the other day. "I have to send my watch to the repair shop about once a month, and there is absolutely nothing the matter with it, except that it is full of hairs. I do not understand how the hairs can get into the works and behind the hands and mix up in the mainspring and every place as they do in my timepiece. I watched myself one month as closely as I could, and I swear I never opened the back of it. Yet at the end of the month I unscrewed the back lid, and it was full of little fine hairs. I always keep it in my pocket when I am cutting hair, but I don't see how any hairs get into the watch. Yet they must, because they are always there." — Columbus Dispatch.

A New Definition.

The class was studying grammar. "Now," said the teacher, "can any one give me a word ending with 'ous,' meaning full of, as in 'dangerous,' full of danger, and 'hazardous,' full of hazard?"

There was silence in the class for a moment. Then a boy sitting in the front row put out his hand.

"Well, John," said the teacher, "what is your word?"

"Please, sir," came the reply, "'pious,' full of pie."

His Reasoning.

De Tough—I want to return this dog to the gent what owns him. I seen his ad. in the paper. The Lady—How did you guess it was a "gent" that put the ad. in? De Tough—'Cause it said, "No questions asked."—London Pick-Me-Up.

HON. B. BRADLEY, AUDITOR GENERAL AND HON. CLYDE I. WEBSTER

Addressed Tecumsehites at 8 A. M. Thursday, August 27th.

The Hon. B Bradley, auditor general and Hon. Clyde I. Webster arrived in Adrian last evening and came here this morning in an auto at 8 a. m. It was rather an early hour but about 200 Tecumsehites were assembled to hear the speech. He addressed them from a large platform erected on the four corners and was introduced by Dr. North. He first took up the subject of economy and public expenditures, believing in our state institutions for the unfortunate but not in the extravagant expenditure of money. He advocated economy especially in the sending out of personal literature by state officials at state expense. Believing as Governor Warner did, he stated that telegraph and telephone companies should be taxed just as other property is taxed. His next subject was the selling of state lands where taxes have not been paid for years and dwelling strongly on the collection of back taxes. He was followed by the Hon. Clyde I. Webster of Detroit who gave nearly all his attention to the third term proposition.

Their addresses were necessarily very brief as they took the 9 o'clock train for Devils lake to attend the Farmers' Picnic. While Mr. Bradley had not the well groomed look of Governor Warner, he had a bright pleasing contenance and his speech seemed to be well received.

AN INTERESTING ACCOUNT OF A MASSACHUSETTS HOMESTEAD.

Written by Mrs. Harriet B. Snyder.

A Member of this Family now Living in Tecumseh.

In America where changes are constantly taking place, it is very seldom that even two generations of the same family are born, live, and die in the same house.

It would seem strange to many people, to know that there are a few time stained frame houses in New England that have existed over two centuries, and been occupied by members of the same family during that long period.

The Fairbanks Homestead was built at Dedham, Massachusetts in 1636. It is a very ancient looking house, with many gable like, slanting roofs, approaching the gothic in style, and is very rambling, and picturesque. It is now in the possession of the Massachusetts D. A. R's.

The last of the Fairbanks line to inhabit this old time mansion, was an elderly lady, who had lived there from childhood, and who was very reluctant to leave her dear old home around which so many endearing memories had clustered for over two hundred years.

Vice President Fairbanks has been very much interested in the historical homestead of his ancestors, which is the oldest frame dwelling house in America that was built and inhabited by English speaking people.

The mother of the late Mr. Artemas Fairbanks Rice and grandmother of Mrs. Edward Pritchard, sr of Tecumseh was also a member of this Fairbanks family.

Artificial Teeth.

It is certain that the ancients had a knowledge of dentistry, but it is difficult to determine when or by whom the use of artificial teeth was introduced. Herodotus says that the Egyptians had "dentists for the teeth." In the British museum there are various dental instruments which had been found in the ruins of Pompeii, and Galen in the second century describes the method of extracting teeth by means of forceps. Belzoni says that artificial teeth were in use in antiquity, since he found some specimens in the catacombs.

Modern dentistry admits that the first to teach how to make artificial teeth was the Arabian Albucasis, and in his work "Al Tarif" are drawings of instruments used for this purpose.

The earliest known allusion to artificial teeth is by Martialis in the first century:

You use without a blush false teeth and hair,
But, Laelia, your squint is past repair.
—Minneapolis Journal.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Men Past Sixty In Danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate gland and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am now 91 years old."

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Tecumseh People To Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Tecumseh.

S. Erskine, barber, living on Evans st., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "For ten years I was troubled with dull, dragging pains in my back, always more severe after hard work or if I lifted anything. I was also annoyed at night by the too frequent action of the kidneys which caused me to get up a great number of times, thus greatly disturbing my rest. The secretions were highly colored and deposited a great deal of sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally brought to my attention and I began taking them. They did me a world of good and I felt better and stronger than I had for a long time. I hope others having kidney trouble will try Doan's Kidney Pills and receive the same results as I did."

MISLEADING NAMES.

Terms In Science That Belie the Products to Which They Apply.

There are terms in certain departments of science that positively misname the products to which they are applied.

The word "oil" in its more comprehensive and indiscriminate uses is made to include hydrocarbons, like petroleum, and also many other substances that have an oily appearance, like "oil of vitriol," which is not oil at all, but sulphuric acid.

Strictly speaking, the mineral oils, including all petroleum products, are not oil, although we speak of "coal oil" and "kerosene oil."

The best classifications of oils do not include mineral hydrocarbons, like naphtha, paraffin and petroleum, but treat only the two well defined groups—fixed oils and fats and the essential or volatile oils.

"Copperas" is not copper, but sulphate of iron. "Salt of lemon" has nothing to do with the fruit of the lemon tree, but is potassium binoxalate or potash treated with oxalic acid.

"Carbolic acid" is not an acid, but a phenol. In structure it is allied to the alcohols and has only slight acid properties. "Soda water" has no trace of soda. "Sulphur acid" contains no sulphur. "Sugar of lead" is innocent of sugar.

"Cream of tartar" has nothing to do with cream nor "milk of lime" with milk. "German silver" is a stranger to silver, and "black lead" is not lead at all, but graphite. "Mosaic gold" is a sulphide of tin.

These misleading names have come down from the vocabulary of an early and inexact chemistry. As popular science extends the old terms are yielding to the more scientific nomenclature.

JOKED HIMSELF IN.

How "Private" John Allen Got Himself Elected to Congress.

Here is Champ Clark's defense of humor, if it needs one:

"The dry-as-dusts solemnly asseverate that humor never did any good. Now, let's see. How did 'Private' John Allen of Mississippi get to congress? Joked himself in. One bit of humor sent him to Washington, a national lawmaker. Opposing him for the congressional nomination was the Confederate General Tucker. They met on the stump. General Tucker closed one of his speeches as follows:

"'Seventeen years ago tonight, my fellow citizens, after a hard fought battle on yonder hill, I bivouacked under yonder clump of trees. Those of you who remember as I do the times that tried men's souls will not, I hope, forget their humble servant when the primaries shall be held.'

"That was a strong appeal in those days, but John raised the general at his own game. 'My fellow citizens,' he said, 'what General Tucker says to you about bivouacking under yonder clump of trees is true. It is also true, my fellow citizens, that I was a vedette picket and stood guard over him while he slept. Now, then, fellow citizens, all you who were generals and had privates to stand over you while you slept vote for General Tucker, and all of you who were privates and stood guard over the generals while they slept vote for Private John Allen.' The people caught on, took John at his word and sent him to congress, where he stayed until the world was filled with his renown."

Aid For the Explorer.

"Peary," said a geographer of Chicago, "never started on one of his exploring expeditions without receiving by mail and express all sorts of packages from cranks—cowhide underwear, tea tablets, medicated boots and what not.

"Peary once told me that George Ade a few days before the start of one trip wired him to expect an important package by express.

"The package came. It was labeled:

"'To be opened at the farthest point north.'

"Peary opened it at once, however. It was a small keg, inscribed:

"'Axle greese for the pole.'"

Shouldn't Overfeed Hubby.

Hint for young wives who desire to have their husbands retain their boyish, slender figures: In an address at Vienna on the subject of food Professor Karl Van Noorden, one of the greatest medical experts in Europe, uttered an emphatic protest against wives who overfeed their husbands. He declared that the reason so many begin to get fat immediately after they have married is that their wives give them their favorite dishes on every possible occasion.

An Inducement.

"Is there anything I can do," cried an exasperated west side mother, "to induce you to go to bed?"

"Yep," responded the small boy promptly.

"Well, for goodness' sake, what is it?"

"Lemme stay up an hour longer."—Cleveland Leader.

His Mark.

Hewitt—Gruet can't write his own name. Jewett—I know it. Whenever he sees a man showing another man how to make a cross on an Australian ballot he thinks he is forging his signature.—New York Press.

The Pampered Pets.

"Hortense, call up Mr. De Millyuns and ask for Fido."

"Yes, me lady."

"Carlo wishes to bark to him over the telephone."—Washington Herald.

If the brain does not sow corn, it plants thistles.—German Proverb.

His Support.

A young colored man in Washington who passed with credit a civil service examination was immediately certified for appointment to the treasury department. His old mother, a darky of the antebellum type, insisted upon accompanying him to witness his taking of the oath of office. When the official charged with the swearing in of the new clerk put to him the usual formula with reference to "supporting the constitution of the United States" the old ladies eyes were seen to bulge with astonishment. But she said nothing till she and her son were outside, when, turning to him, she solemnly observed:

"I didn't wanter say nothin' in there, Joe, but 'deed, honey, I don't see how youse goin' to suppote de United States when you ain't been able till now to suppote your folkses."—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

"Why in the name of goodness," exclaimed a man to an acquaintance, "do you keep taking out your watch? Going to catch a train?"

"Well, no," answered the other. "To tell you the truth, I haven't seen my watch for a long time."

Commissioners' Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County Lenawee, ss.

In the matter of the estate of STEPHEN V. R. ELY, deceased.

The undersigned having been appointed by the probate court of said county, commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands of all persons against the estate of said deceased, do hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the office of Sylvester P. Hosmer in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 7th day of September, 1908, and on the 6th of February, 1909, at two o'clock in the afternoon of each of said days.

And that six months from the 7th day of August, 1908, are allowed by said probate court for the creditors of said estate to present their claims to us for examination and allowance.

Dated August 7th, 1908.

SYLVESTER P. HOSMER,
ALFRED JAMES,
Commissioners.

Counterfeiting Dies Found.

Portland, Mich., Aug. 27.—Digging in a gravel bed on the farm of Joseph Lawless, a mile north of Collins, Ben Borton, of that place, came upon a cut glass jar containing ten copper dies for making counterfeit money. Nine of them were for coining half dollars. Borton at once turned them over to the local authorities, who notified the federal officers at Grand Rapids. The dies bore dates from 1876 to 1880, and it is thought that they were used about the latter date.

Will Not Commit Himself.

New York, Aug. 27.—Chairman Frank B. Hitchcock, of the Republican national committee, Wednesday declined to discuss the New York state primaries with respect to any probable effect they might have on the governorship nomination, and later upon the national ticket in New York state. He insisted that he had not committed himself in any manner on the governorship, and said that he did not think he was called upon to do so.

Will Decide Golf Championship.

Hamilton, Mass., Aug. 27.—Over the famous green of the Myopia Hunt will be played during the next two days the fourteenth open golf championship of America, with an entry list of more than four score American, Canadian and English players, including past national champions, and the present title holder, Alex Ross, of the Brae Burn Country club, of Newton.

As a result of an attempt by Lavin and William Webb, brothers, of Tulsa, Okla., to carry out a threat to attack J. V. Culpepper, David Webb is dead, William Webb fatally wounded and Culpepper is seriously injured. The trouble, which was the culmination of an old feud, came to a head last night when the brothers assaulted Culpepper in his store, threatening to return tonight. Culpepper armed himself with a shotgun and when the Webbs entered the door he opened fire. He himself was stabbed by William Webb.

Wealth a Burden.

"Do you find great wealth a burden?"

"Sometimes," answered Mr. Cumtox. "There's never any telling when mother and the girls are going to invest in a touring car or a steam yacht or a foreign nobleman or some such form of worriment and responsibility."—Washington Star.

Will Sue Wilson Family.

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 27.—Receiver H. G. Snover, of the United Home Protectors' fraternity, has filed a disclosure bill in the circuit court against Grant Wilson, his wife, Josephine, and the former's mother, Jennie B. Wilson, claiming that Grant Wilson, son of the ex-secretary of the association, who is now in Ionia reformatory, and his wife had borrowed money from the trustees of the association on two notes the sum of $5,700 giving a mortgage on the Wilson home in Military street, and that the sum of $3,538.38 is due on one note and $939.04 on the other. The receiver asks that the property be sold and that the proceeds be used to pay the notes.

Student Sent to Prison.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 27.—Clyde Lewis, the U. of M. law student and secretary of the class of 1910, broke down and wept Wednesday after he had been sentenced to serve ninety days in the Detroit house of correction for the theft of law books. Burglary charges may be made against Lewis when the students return this fall. He is accused of having broken into the rooms of several and having stolen books from many of them.

Fire Truck Turns Turtle.

Ithaca, Mich., Aug. 27.—During an exhibition run of the Ithaca fire department, the tongue of the ladder truck came out and the wagon turned turtle. The driver, Charles Coleman, was the only one seriously hurt. He was hurled to the ground and taken home badly bruised.

Bees Fatally Sting Horse.

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 27.—Attacked by two swarms of bees, a team of horses belonging to Frank Running, a milk dealer, were so severely stung that it is likely one of them will die. Running himself came in contact with the insects, but by beating a hasty retreat managed to escape with swollen hands and face.

Stricken in Church.

Bay City, Mich., Aug. 27.—While attending devotions at the Catholic church, Mrs. John Dichard was stricken with apoplexy and died three hours later. Her husband is on the barge Tempest. She was about forty-five years old.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Work has been started on a $50,000 theater to be built at Kalamazoo by H. G. Fuller.

Martin Phillips, a well known resident of Leslie, and a veteran and pensioner of the civil war, is dead at the age of sixty-six.

Charles Gardner and Edward Minie, of Port Huron, were badly scalded when the valve of an engine blew out at the thresher works where they are employed.

Thomas J. Murphy, the Hotel Downey (Lansing) bellboy, accused of the theft of $2,000 from Dr. J. S. Townsend, of Detroit, was discharged after an examination.

Grant Meirell, a young aeronaut, landed on the glass roof of a greenhouse while making a parachute drop at Reed's lake and was painfully cut.

While John Blue, a farmer living near White Pigeon, was plowing Tuesday, one of his horses fell into an open well and was so badly injured that it died a few hours later.

About seventy clergymen were present at the opening of the Michigan conference of the Michigan Protestant church in Lansing. The appointments will be announced Saturday.

Mentally unbalanced by a recent sunstroke, John Ross, aged fifty-eight, of Grand Rapids, attacked and badly slashed his wife. Neighbors came to her assistance and Ross fled toward the river and is believed to have drowned himself.

Sparks from a threshing engine set fire to a wheat stack on the farm of Russell C. Potter, six miles north of Marshall, Tuesday afternoon, and it spread rapidly. A gang of 200 men fought the fire, and one wheat stack was drawn out of range of the flames by the engine. The loss is estimated at $600.

Work on the Michigan United electric line connecting Jackson with Lansing by way of Leslie and Mason, is progressing rapidly. Grading to within a mile south of Leslie is completed, and a second gang is working near Rives Junction. Most of the line between Lansing and Mason is graded and the rails laid.

Old Inventor Is Dead.

Boston, Aug. 27.—The death is announced at the home of his daughter in Brookline, of John James Greenough, inventor and former superintendent of the patent office at Washington. He was the first to take out a patent on a sewing machine, invented the first shoe pegging machine and assisted in the construction of the first electric locomotive. He held the position of superintendent of the patent office from 1837 until 1841. He was ninety-six years of age. He leaves several children, one son being Colonel George G. Greenough, U. S. A.

Cigarette Smoking Prohibited.

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 27.—F. B. Easley, superintendent of the Arkansas division of the Rock Island railroad, Wednesday issued a bulletin notifying all employes that cigarette smoking would not be permitted and that the violators would be discharged.

Honesty is the best policy, but it is the sort of policy that has no surrender value.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

HOUSES FOR THE VETERANS.

Tents Abandoned at The Encampment This Year.

SOLDIERS POUR INTO TOLEDO.

All Visitors Will Be Housed and Sleep on Comfortable Beds — California Delegates Bring Carloads of Wine and Fruit—Official Program Begins Tonight.

Toledo, O., Aug. 31.—Veterans of the civil war are pouring into Toledo today from all directions, for the purpose of attending the forty-second national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic. The veterans declare this encampment will go down in history with a most laudatory chapter devoted to a committee which abandoned the traditional tents and domiciled the old soldiers under real roofs and on real beds. The veterans who visit Toledo this year run no risk of colds and rheumatism from sleeping on the straw-strewn ground or from dew-soaked canvas. All will be adequately housed.

Not only are the principal business streets elaborately decorated, but the residences, stores and hotels follow suit. The California delegation has arrived, 400 strong, on a special train. Small parties from nearby towns are coming in by trolley. A great incursion of veterans and their friends and families is taking place today. No accurate forecast of their numbers can be made at this time, but the local committee is prepared to care for from 75,000 to twice that number.

The Californians, headed by General Howard M. Merrell, arrived on a train of sixteen cars, being in three sections, including two cars of fruit and California wines. They were given quarters at the various hotels and at private homes.

The campaign for the office of commander-in-chief is in full swing, three of the candidates—former Governor Van Zant, of Minnesota; Livingston Dickason, of Illinois, and Colonel Henry M. Nevius, of New Jersey—being on the ground. Colonel Nevius is counting on a solid vote from the east, because of the fact that the present commander-in-chief is a western man—Charles G. Burton, of Missouri.

The official program will begin tonight with a public reception at Memorial hall, and maneuvers by the naval militia on the river.

Bryan in St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 31.—William J. Bryan, Democratic candidate for president, arrived today on another speechmaking tour. He will speak at the state fair grounds, his remarks dealing with the subject of governmental extravagance. Three other speeches will be delivered before he returns home Thursday. These will be at Fargo and Grand Forks, N. D., and Sioux Falls, Ia.

BRIEF DISPATCHES.

The east and west will come together when the international congress on tuberculosis convenes in Washington next month. Delegates will be present from every civilized country on the map.

George J. Perry, United States marshal of the Third division of Alaska, has been advised by the attorney general that the president has ordered his removal from office for disobedience of orders.

Director Ralph, of the bureau of engraving and printing in Washington, is making noteworthy progress in getting out the new notes under the emergency currency act passed at the last session of congress. About $95,000,000 have already been printed and delivered to the treasury.

An edict has been issued by the Chinese government setting forth in detail the stages that will be reached each year in the conversion of the form of government in China to the foreign system, and assuring the people, in the name of the emperor, that a constitution will be granted nine years hence. An edict issued last year promised a constitution within a decade.

"Women must remove their hats if they wish to witness performances at the Gaiety theater, in New York, during the season which opens at that house this week. The purchaser for every ticket for Monday night and subsequent performances will find that by the acceptance of the ticket he or she has entered into an agreement "That if the lady, now same, she will remove her hat upon request of any employe of the management."

BAMES POLICE OF BALTIMORE.

Chief Woodruff of Atlantic City Desires Their Aid.

SHOOTING STILL A MYSTERY.

Charles Roberts, Who Was Shot While in Rolling Chair With Mrs. W. S. S. Williams, Still Alive—Robbery Theory Scouted by Officials—Mrs. Williams Goes Home.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 31.—Little or no progress has been made in solving the mysterious board walk shooting of last Wednesday night. Charles B. Roberts, Jr., of Baltimore, the victim of the affair that is proving so puzzling to the Atlantic City police, lies in the city hospital hovering between life and death.

Pending the result of Mr. Roberts' wound, the authorities are almost at a standstill. If Mr. Roberts lives two weeks longer he will recover. This is all the surgeons can say. There is no change in Mr. Roberts' condition today. He survived the operation in good shape.

Chief of Police Malcolm Woodruff discussed the case with apparent frankness. "Despite reports to the contrary," he said, "we have not changed our line of inquiry, and so far as we in this city are concerned, we have neither sought a blood relative of Mrs. W. S. S. Williams, the woman who was with Mr. Roberts at the time he was called from his rolling chair and shot down on the board walk, nor have we made any inquiry as to his present whereabouts. I have as yet received no report from Baltimore that satisfies me with the result of investigations in that city. I believe that the Baltimore police could clear up the question of Mr. Williams' whereabouts on the night of the shooting in a convincing manner and in a very short while if they chose to do so. But we are not getting the complete co-operation that I had hoped for.

"I understand that a near relative of Mrs. Williams is connected with the Baltimore police board. I do not know that this has had any effect upon the investigation."

"Have you definitely cast aside the highway robbery theory?" Chief Woodruff was asked. The reply was a question to the interviewer. "Would a highway robber deliberately shoot a man who was not offering the slightest resistance to his demands? After holding up his victim in a lonely spot, would a robber, after shooting, run away with no thought of the $1,500 in jewels and money that were invitingly at his mercy?"

Mrs. Williams has left Atlantic City and returned to her home at Long Green Valley, near Baltimore.

FIRE IN NEW ORLEANS.

Two Million Dollars Worth of Wholesale Houses Burn.

New Orleans, Aug. 31.—Fire which broke out in the center of the commercial quarter has swept over portions of three blocks, destroying a large number of wholesale houses, manufacturing plants and small stores.

Originating at Bienville and Charles streets, the flames worked their way north as far as Conti street and went towards Royal, bringing about a loss of between one and two million dollars before they were finally subdued.

Several circumstances combined to give the fire a headway hard to overcome. When the alarm was turned in the New Orleans firemen were in the midst of their annual picnic at a suburban park, and the engines and patrols responded with a mere handful of men. It was fully an hour before the department was in a position to make anything like a successful fight against the fire, and even then the water supply was inadequate.

Wouldn't Let Sailors Dance.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Several sailors from the president's yacht Sylph, which is stationed here under Lieutenant Roger Williams for the president's use during his vacation, were refused admittance to a dancing pavilion in the village Saturday night. The pavilion is attached to the Inside Inn, Oyster Bay's only seashore hotel, and is open to the public. There were a large number of persons dancing when the sailors in uniform appeared. They made an attempt to go on the floor, but were prevented from doing so by an attendant. A long argument followed, the sailors claiming that the uniform of the United States navy should not bar them from any place. The sailors are all picked men and no trouble has been experienced from them anywhere in the village this summer.

CAMPBELL AND WIFE BURIED.

Masons Didn't Participate in Wife Slayer's Funeral.

PUBLIC WAS NOT ADMITTED.

Last Rites Over Unfortunate Wife Held This Morning—Rev. E. P. Bennett Officiates at Both Services—Her Remains Taken to Croswell—

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 31.—The funeral of Captain Elmer E. Campbell, the lake captain who on Friday afternoon killed himself after murdering his wife in front of their home at Twelfth street and Miller avenue, was held Sunday morning from the residence. The funeral of Mrs. Campbell was held this morning.

The services Sunday morning were private and while the dead wife-slayer was prominent in Masonic circles, that order did not participate. There were about 300 people gathered in front of the house. The Rev. E. P. Bennett, of the First Methodist church, and Rev. Lyford, of the North End church, officiated. Rev. Bennett delivered the sermon and Rev. Lyford the prayer, but neither referred in any way to the tragedy.

Those who were admitted to the house were only immediate friends and they filled the little room. The body of Campbell lay in a small room adjoining, which he used as a den, while the remains of Mrs. Campbell were in the little front parlor. The body was interred in Lakeside cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Campbell this morning was public. Rev. Bennett officiated, and after the ceremony the body was taken to Croswell, her old home, where another service will be held, the same pastor accompanying the remains. The pallbearers are from the local Woman's Auxiliary of the Woodmen, in which she was prominent. Many people were present.

It was thought that Campbell had a brother, but such is not the case. The murderer left no will, and as his wife survived him about twenty minutes, the property will go to her sister and father. Campbell carried a $1,000 policy in the Modern Maccabees, and his other property interests amounted to about $3,000. The residence was recorded in the joint names of husband and wife.

The theory that Campbell had contemplated the murder of his wife for some time is wrong, as it has been learned that the revolver with which the shooting was done was purchased during the noon hour Friday, only a few moments after Campbell had told his friend, Police Clerk Ray Stockwell, that he thought everything would be all right in his domestic affairs soon, the inference being that he expected matters would be straightened out at a lawyers' meeting which was to have been held at the time the shooting occurred. Undoubtedly Campbell contemplated suicide, as he carried the poison on his person for months, but never carried firearms.

Alleges Girl Got His Money.

Muskegon, Mich., Aug. 31.—Suit has been started here by Everett Beldman, a prominent young Muskegon man, against Miss Mary Brown to recover $500 in cash which he alleges he instrusted to her care. They were to have been married, Beldman claims, and he gave the girl his money. She later broke the engagement and refused to refund the cash, he says.

Cadillac Clerk Kills Self.

Cadillac, Mich., Aug. 31.—After writing a note to his sweetheart, Herbert Lampman, twenty-one years old, a clerk at Brown's restaurant, went to his room and shot himself. He had been lately operated on for appendicitis and had been in ill health. It is believed this was his reason for committing suicide. His parents live at Lake City.

Hitchcock Goes to Chicago.

New York, Aug. 31.—Chairman Frank H. Hitchcock, of the Republican national committee, has left New York for Chicago, where he will consult with the managers of the western campaign. The western members of the executive committee will all be present, and also a number of the men appointed recently to serve on the advisory committee, which is to assist the treasurer of the national committee in gathering funds for the campaign. Mr. Hitchcock expects to be in New York again on Thursday or Friday.

General Alexander Stewart Dies.

New Orleans, Aug. 31.—News has just reached New Orleans of the death at Biloxi, Miss., of Lieutenant General Alexander P. Stewart, one of the last two surviving lieutenant generals of the confederacy. He was eighty-seven years old.

MANAGER WANTED.

Chairman Mack Finds Difficulty in Choosing Man for Eastern Headquarters.

New York, Aug. 31.—While scores beseige headquarters daily and press their claims for positions to aid the party, Norman E. Mack, chairman of the national Democratic committee, finds himself today searching for a chairman of the subcommittee to run the Democratic campaign in the east, and he has been hunting for nearly a month.

The selection of an eastern Democratic campaign manager has been threshed over frequently in the party councils in the west, and Mr. Bryan was called upon for a suggestion. After much consideration it was deemed best that than an eastern man, preferably from New York, be chosen. National committeemen conferring with Chairman Mack agreed that the eastern manager must be a man who had never been prominently identified with any previous faction in the party and one who could weld together any opposing factions now existing in the east.

"The selecting of an eastern campaign manager has ben no easy task," said Mr. Mack, "and while I hope to name the man sometime this week, no one has been settled upon for the place. New York is going to see the liveliest presidential campaign that has been witnessed in many years, and the eastern manager will have much to do in consequence. I am depending much in this campaign on the rare judgment of Senator Culberson, chairman of the advisory committee, who will probably spend the major portion of the next two months in this city."

ADMIRAL SPERRY IS APPRECIATIVE.

Gratified at Warm Welcome Received in Australia.

Melbourne, Monday, Aug. 31.—Rear Admiral Sperry, commander of the American fleet, expresses himself as highly appreciative of the warm welcome extended to himself and the men under him and the kindly greeting of the Australians, both at Sydney and at Melbourne, has developed a feeling of gratification throughout the fleet. All are looking forward with pleasure to developmetns of the week, of which this is the official landing day. The weather is fine and hospitality promises to be abundant.

Sunday was set down on the program as a "free day," nothing in the way of formal entertainments having been arranged for the visitors, but nevertheless those who came ashore from the warships managed to spend some enjoyable hours driving and sightseeing. Seventeen military trains arrived Sunday morning from the various centers throughout the country, bringing into Melbourne a large body of cavalry, which will participate in the grand review on Thursday.

Twenty-five hundred men of the ships were given shore leave Sunday, of which 1,000 marched through Collins street to St. Patrick's cathedral, where pontifical mass was held at noon. The streets were thronged with spectators, who gave the men a hearty welcome. After the services in the church were ended the men were served with lunch in the cathedral hall.

Special services were held in all the Protestant churches and later the Melbourne Automobile club in 100 cars, took the officers of the fleet to view the points of interest. During the course of the afternoon numerous private entertainments were given.

Kaiser Rejoices in Peace.

Strassburg, Aug. 31.—At a banquet here last evening, Emperor William in proposing a toast said:

"I rejoice to be able to express to you my deepest conviction that the peace of Europe is not in danger. It rests upon too solid foundations to be easily upset by incitements and calumnies provoked by envious and ill-disposed individuals.

"Firm security exists, in the first place, in the consciences of the princes and statesmen of Europe, who know and feel that they are responsible to God for the lives and property of the people entrusted to their leadership. On the other hand, it is the will and desire of the peoples themselves to make themselves useful by tranquilly pursuing the development of the magnificent achievements of a progressive civilization and to measure their strength in peaceful rivalry."

William G. Primeau, formerly a singer of ballads in a Lansing theater, has been arrested in Chicago on a charge of having attempted to sell a girl as a white slave. Dispatches say the girl's name is Ida Pair. Primeau left Lansing a week ago with a St. Johns girl. He is married, his wife now residing in Grand Rapids.

How to get Strong.

P. J. Daly of 1247 W. Congress St., Chicago, tells of a way to become strong: He says: "My mother, who is old and was very feeble, is deriving so much benefit from Electric Bitters, that I feel it's my duty to tell those who need a tonic and strengthening medicine about it. In my mother's case a marked gain in flesh has resulted, insomnia has been overcome, and she is steadily growing stronger." Electric Bitters quickly remedy stomach, liver and kidney complaints. The Last Straws.

By Carl Williams.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Though the windows were opened to the fullest, no breath of air seemed to enter. The awning ropes hung limp and lifeless. The scallops that were bound in gay braid did not stir.

From the hall came the clatter of the cleaners as they worked in other offices already emptied of workers, and once or twice one of the women poked her head through the open door to see how soon she could get in to clean room No. 802.

Stella bent wearily over the typewriter, her flying fingers writing in the addresses from a huge list on the desk beside her, while at a nearby table the office boy slipped in the circulars which the envelopes were intended to carry.

To Stella it had seemed the last straw when just before closing time the office manager had brought her the voluminous list and had ordered her to see that the circulars were sent out that evening. He was going out of town and had left early.

The other clerks had slipped out as soon as he had disappeared, and with only the assistance of the boy she had to send out 300 circulars. In his hurry to get away the manager had not even left the usual "supper money," so she would get nothing to eat until she reached her boarding house. It would be long after the regular dinner hour, and she would be lucky to get anything at all.

It was nearly 8 when the last envelope swallowed up the last circular and she was free to go. The elevator had stopped running, so she and her helper faced a walk down eight flights of stairs. For the third time in as many hours Stella told herself that this was the last straw.

She was not used to the grinding toil of the city, and even the regular work came hard. When her father had died and his wife had followed him to the grave within a few months all of the little savings had gone to the physician and the undertaker.

Stella faced the task of self support bravely enough, but there were times when her overtired nerves were rubbed to rawness and even the little things of life bore heavily upon her.

The extra work coming at the close of a particularly trying day had exhausted her vitality. Listlessly she climbed aboard an uptown car and sank into a seat, glad that the home going rush was over and that she did not have to stand up all the way.

The approach of the conductor roused her from her absorption, and she opened her purse. As she glanced into the change compartment she gave a cry of dismay. The pocketbook, never well filled, even on pay days, was bare of coin.

Feverishly she tumbled its contents into her lap, replacing the articles after shaking them out one by one, but the 85 cents which had been there when she returned from lunch had disappeared.

"That bluff don't go!" The conductor's voice was hard and unfriendly. He had had a row with the inspector on the last trip, and his ill humor had not yet subsided.

"You'll have to pay or get off," he added as Stella looked up with the tears trembling on the heavy fringe of lashes. "We don't have to take tears for tickets. Got the coin?"

Not daring to trust her voice, Stella shook her head and thought of the three mile walk ahead of her. The other last straws became insignificant in the face of the new trouble.

The conductor reached up to pull the rope, but across the aisle a man rose and checked him.

"Don't get off, miss."

"I've got the change handy."

"You must let me send you the money," she said. "I am very greatly obliged to you."

"I forget where I live," was the unblushing statement. "Just you forget it, too, until you see some one that needs a nickel real bad and tell 'em I sent it."

He sank back in his seat, rejoicing in the fact that Stella's confusion prevented her glancing across the aisle, which enabled him to regard her steadily without embarrassment.

Disappointed at the turn affairs had taken, the conductor retired to the rear platform to devise new names for the inspector, and Stella looked out of the window with a new sense of contentment.

Nine months she had lived in the city, and this was the first time that any one in the throngs of men and women had paused in the rush of the workaday world to be friendly. Coming at a time when the last straw had nearly had the effect of breaking her spirit, if not her back, the courtesy was doubly welcome.

She turned suspicious, however, when she rose to leave the car and found that her companion was following her. He read her thoughts with quick comprehension.

"I live on this street," he explained, with a frank smile. "I live at 237."

"I live at 240," she cried, blushing to find that she was pleased to know that he lived nearby.

"Skerry's?" he asked. "I say, I know the old lady. If I come over after dinner will you let her introduce us and go out trolley riding? It's nice to ride up to the bridge. There's sure to be a breeze there."

Stella nodded. If the particular Mrs. Skerry was willing to act as sponsor, surely a trolley ride was proper. Stella beamed on the young man.

"My name's Jack Murray," he went on, anticipating the introduction.

"Mine's Stella Meade," she volunteered in return. "I'll be glad to go riding with you, Mr. Murray. I'd hate to stay in the house. This has been such a dreadful day. When the manager told me to stay and get out a lot of circulars it seemed like the last straw that broke the camel's back. Then the idea of walking home seemed worse than that."

"Last straws may break camels' backs," he said, with a smile, "but we ain't camels, you see. There's always some one hanging around to lift the load when it gets too heavy."

Stella flashed him a grateful glance as she stopped in front of her boarding place and watched him cross the street to the flathouse where he lived with his mother. Mrs. Skerry, sitting by the basement window in the deserted dining room, graciously called her to come in.

While the tired girl ate the half warmed food her landlady dilated on the good qualities of the Murrays. Mrs. Murray was a member of the same church society to which the boarding mistress belonged, and the son she thoroughly approved of.

Not until after 11 did they get back from the trolley ride, for there was a park beside the bridge which was the terminus of all pleasure rides. They had to dance a little, and Jack twice treated her to ice cream. As they stood on the steps of her boarding place the man looked down into her face.

"And you'll let me call for you again soon?" he asked. "Don't wait until the straws make too heavy a load."

Stella nodded an assent.

"There aren't going to be any more straws," she declared. "I guess the only straw was loneliness, and I'm not lonely now."

"And you're not going to be if I can help it," was the hearty reply, and Stella's heart beat faster as she realized that soon she would be neither lonely nor alone. Unlike the camel's load, her last straw had led to happiness.

Bargains in Babies.

Among the deacons of a Presbyterian church in an Ohio town was a good old gentleman familiarly known as "Uncle Thomas." Although too deaf to hear, he was always in his accustomed seat at church, and his zeal in religious work was untiring. Owing to a shortage of song books in the Sabbath school some additional ones were ordered by "Uncle Thomas," who apprised the pastor of their arrival, and the latter agreed to announce the fact from the pulpit on Sunday morning.

The pastor made the promised announcement, among others, concluding with this one:

"Parents wishing their children baptized will please present them at the close of the service."

The good deacon jumped to his feet and in the loud voice peculiar to the deaf bawled out, "Those who haven't any can get them at my house for 50 cents apiece!"

As "Uncle Thomas" and his wife had always been childless this startling information almost broke up the meeting.—Success Magazine.

The Dog.

The dog is man's most faithful friend. A man may lie, but a dog won't; a man may get drunk, a man may slander his neighbor, a man may embezzle and defraud, a man may borrow money, a man may steal money, a man may go into politics, a man may knife his best friend, a man may run people down with an automobile, a man may gamble himself to ruin, a man may waste his substance in riotous living, a man may go to heaven, but a dog won't. Can these things be truthfully spoken of the other friends man has about him? There is a strong affinity between man and the dog. It must be the affinity of contrast. Yet any man will resent being called a dog. Possibly the dog would resent being called a man if he understood—I do not know. I only know that the maxim works but one way, and if we should say, "Man is the dog's most faithful friend," there would be many to cavil, saying that it was mighty rough on the dog.—Success Magazine.

FISHES' FACES.

The Fascination They Have For One Lover of Nature.

Did you ever stop to examine the expression on the face of a fish? I do not mean of some notoriously grotesque fish, but of just any plain seafaring fish. I confess that the fascination for me is the same whether I stand in front of some great collection of little monstrosities like that in the Naples aquarium or whether I sit by my dining room window and contemplate the goldfish in my little boy's glass bowl. People watch the monkeys at the zoo and remark how human they are, how sly and crafty the old ones, how cute and playful the young ones. But for steady company give me the fish. How restful they are with their mouthings, as regular as if they were governed by a balance wheel. How quiet, too, for not one word of murmured protest or of chattering fault finding do they inflict upon us! How philosophical as they bask in the sun the livelong day or seek the occasional shade of the modest sprig of greens which forms the conventional garnishing of their watery abode! How easily gratified are their simple tastes! Surely with their good manners, their quiet deportment and their stoical bearing goldfish are the ideal companions of the mature man. Monkeys and dogs and kittens may amuse the children by their tricks and antics, but only the grown man can appreciate the solid qualities of the fish's character as written upon his features.—Atlantic Monthly.

Will Remember His Friends.

When Patrick McGinnagan became a member of the Chicago police force a delegation of his friends burst in upon him while he was at dinner and presented him with a handsome night stick in honor of his popularity and their esteem. Completely bewildered by this unexpected token, the new policeman nevertheless struggled to his feet and stammered his appreciation.

"Friends, ye have upset me wid yr kindness," he said, flourishing the night stick. "Oi'll try an' do me duty wid this little shillalah, and I hope an' thrust thot ivry man her'll live t' feel its infoolince."

One Fish Didn't Grow.

A number of men were telling of remarkable catches off Atlantic City, and one of them said that one day he caught a very small cod, and, not caring to take home such a little fellow, he took a piece of copper wire, ran it through the tail of the fish, and on one end of the wire he attached a copper tag with his name scratched upon it. "The next year when I was off there," continued the man, "I got a heavy pull on the line, and after five minutes' fighting landed a twelve pound cod, and there on its tail was my tag."

"That reminds me of a similar experience off there," said another man. "I caught one of those small cod, and I wanted to hang some sort of identification on it, but I couldn't find anything in the copper tag line from one end of the boat to the other. I did find, however, a little tin whistle in one of my pockets, and, running a wire through the tail of the fish, I hung on the whistle and threw the cod back into the water.

"The following year I got a most peculiar bite on my hook, and after pulling in the line I got the surprise of my life. There was the same little cod. He hadn't grown an inch, but hanging on his tail was a long fog horn."—Philadelphia Press.

Put Through His Paces.

The wealthy Briton is confessedly the most fastidious man living as to the quality of his personal domestic service. The concentrated energy with which an Englishman will rebuke his servant for an offense so slight that the average American fails to observe it bears out the above statement. Those who propose changing servants are not content with references and a perfunctory interview with the man or maid under consideration, but insist upon a full dress rehearsal of both manners and appearance. The servant in livery is put through all his paces, must display the size of his calves, the haughtiness of his pose as well as breeding in handling a card, announcing a guest or serving at the table. Nothing is taken for granted. The master and the mistress sit by and discuss the points of groom or butler as they would those of a high priced horse or valuable dog. Domestics are taken with great seriousness by the upper class Englishmen, and for that reason nothing is left to luck in peopling the servants' hall.

Wink at Some Things.

"When you have mastered the gentle art of winking," said Lord Beaconsfield, "you hold the key to success in your hands."

Every one's personality is made up of trivial failings and trivial talents. Foster the good qualities in your friends and subordinates and wink at those failings so dear to their possessors. Not to see everything is a rule which will strengthen friendships and help you to get the best results from your fellow workers.

"He is no good," said the great Napoleon of one of his officers. "He is continually looking into the privates' stew pot!"

"I want a man who can keep his eye on the ultimate result and ignore little failings, never mind how aggravating," said Nelson. And General Gordon once remarked that the man who lost his temper because a private's boot lace was tied loosely on the day of a battle did more to lose the day than all the enemy's guns.

The Mysterious Gegenschien.

There is visible in the night sky, under favorable circumstances, a faint light, rounded in outline and situated always exactly opposite to the place of the sun. It is called the "gegenschien" and is one of the most inexplicable objects known to astronomers. According to a scientist, it may be a sort of cometary or meteoric satellite attending the earth. He supposes it to be composed of a cloud of meteors, situated about 1,000,000 miles from the earth and revolving around it in a period of just one year, so that the sun and the meteors are always on opposite sides of the earth. He estimates that the size of this ghostly satellite may be nearly the same as that of the planet Jupiter—viz, about 86,000 miles in diameter.

Court and Witness Agree.

An amusing incident occurred in one of the New York courts the other day. The lawyer for the defense was making a very lengthy cross examination of an old lady when he was interrupted by the judge with the remark, "I think you have exhausted this witness."

"Yes, judge," she exclaimed, "I do feel very much exhausted."

Quick Change.

"Who," she asked, "is that scrawny, bowlegged, ridiculous looking person talking to Miss Rockingham?"

"That is Count Briscspicknitzel."

"Oh! What an aristocratic, noble bearing he seems to have now that he has shifted his position so that the light strikes him properly!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Cowslip.

"I saw a cowslip by the river's brim," said the long haired boarder who had just returned from a stroll.

"I hope 'twan't one of my cows," said the practical farmer. "Did she slip clear in?"

A Surprise.

When a woman calls her husband up by telephone without his knowing who she is, she is always surprised to see how politely he addresses her at first.—Somerville Journal.

Since time is not a person we can overtake when he is gone, let us honor him with mirth and cheerfulness of heart while he is passing.—Goethe.

Bird Structure.

Birds belong to the vertebrates, or backboned animals. They are distinguished from the rest of the vertebrates by the graceful outlines of their bodies, by their clothing of feathers, toothless jaws and the fore limbs, or wings, being adapted to flying. Nature has made many wonderful provisions in the bird, especially in the formation and arrangement of the bones. These are compact and in many cases hollow, thus combining lightness with strength. The first bone of the backbone is so freely jointed to the skull that birds can turn their heads around and look directly back.

Marital Persiflage.

"I must confess," remarked Mrs. Drabbe, "I don't believe there ever was a really perfect man."

"Well," replied Mr. Crabbe, "I suppose that's because Eve wasn't made first."

"How do you mean?"

"Well, if Eve had been made first she would have bossed the job of making Adam."—Philadelphia Press.

PROSPERITY

SEEMS TO REIGN IN TECUMSEH.

Judging From the Improvements, Hard Times Have Forgotten the Indians Town.

Buildings Have Been Completed, and More Are Underway.

While there has been so much talk of business depression and hard times, it seems to have passed Tecumseh by. Lenawee county is the banner agricultural county and it is bound to bring prosperity to its inhabitants.

We thought it might be of interest to Herald readers to note the many improvements and sale of property in Tecumseh of recent date, which indicates anything but hard times to us.

Tecumseh has always prided herself on her well kept homes, and a great deal of money has been expended upon them this year. New homes are being built and many pieces of property changing hands, beside the additions being built to a great many homes.

Brewers foundry are building this year. The main building will be 329 feet long and 90 feet wide, the foundry 100x60 feet. Storage house 50x60 feet.

The Anthony Fence are building two warehouses one 60x30 and the other one 100x60.

The Presbyterian church people are enjoying a new kitchen.

F. E. Bradley, west of town, has built a nice farm home, and Al. VanWinkle has completed a fine home on Union St.

Charles Usburn is building an eight room frame house on Chicago St, Geo. Kempf having the contract, and Harry Moore is erecting a pretty, seven room, including bath, frame house on West Chicago St., Fred O'Dell having the contract for this one.

Robert Hastings has just completed a new frame home on West Kilbuck St., and LaVern Bidwell has recently built a large frame house on his farm near the cemetery.

Will Fisher, C. H. Williamson, C. A. Wright, James Boyce, and Mrs. Max Osborn have recently added porches to their houses.

Among those who have painted their houses recently are: Guy Belding, Mrs. Geo. Cadwell, Charles Burridge, Mrs. Davidson, James McCann, Nettie Southworth, Fred Teachout, Misses McNair, Robert Stretch, Will Fisher, Henry Wilson and Mary Allen. The Quaker church has also been painted recently. Considerable property has changed hands.

Mrs. Jennie Hall has disposed of her property on Main St., to C. M. Drake, who will erect a $4,000 house upon this lot. J. N. Satterthwaite bought the William H. Osborn house on Union St., and James Boyce bought the VanWinkle house and the DeWolfe barn.

Horace Weller has recently sold two houses, one to Mrs Babcock, another to Lynne Hardenburg and Clinton parties are negotiating for the third one. Horace Westcott sold one of his houses to Mrs. Max Osborn. Several others are negotiating for property.

Sidewalks are being re-built, and a number of new ones are being laid. Two new bridges and the extension of the water mains made the taxes high for property owners, but every one seemed equal to the occasion.

SYMPTOMS OF RABIES.

Signs by Which You May Know When a Dog Is Really Mad.

Hydrophobia is so rare and terrifying that its symptoms and treatment are little understood. As a matter of fact, the commonly accepted expression of madness in a dog is often misleading. The real mad dog does not shun water, as it is said. On the contrary, mad dogs often rush to the water and drink it eagerly, if they are able to swallow. The mad dog does not froth at the mouth. It does not run amuck, snapping at everything in its path. What, then, are the indications of the mad dog? To those familiar with a given dog the surest symptom and the one which should excite closest attention is a distinct and unaccountable change in the dog's disposition, a staid dog becoming excitable and a frisky one dull. That condition does not necessarily mean rabies, but it is suspicious, and if in addition the dog has trouble in swallowing, as though it seemed to have a bone in its throat, beware! That dog should be instantly tied up, because if it be rabies it takes but a day or two for ferocious instincts to develop. The unmistakable evidence, however, of a dog with rabies is the sticky, whitish saliva which covers the teeth and shows on the drawn lips. The eyes glare and are red; the dog has paroxysms of running fury, during which it barks hoarsely, which alternate with periods of temporary exhaustion. — Caspar Whitney in Outing.

BORED AND PLUGGED.

The Truthful Story of a Ship Struck by Lightning.

"In Duluth down on the docks some days ago some fresh water Ancient Mariners were talking of adventures on the raging main," began an old steamship man. "'Captain H.,' said one, 'it seems to me I've heard somewhere that your vessel was once struck by lightning while sailing, sailing over the bounding main?'

"'Yep, twice,' said Captain H. 'Happened off Point Aux Barques 'bout fifteen years ago. We were joggin' 'long when a thunderstorm overtook us, and the very first flash of lightnin' struck the deck amidships and bored a hole as big as my right leg right down through the bottom of the vessel.'

"'And she foundered, of course?'

"'No, sir. The water began rushin' in, and she would have foundered, but there came a second flash, and a bolt struck my foreto' gallant mast. It was cut off near the top, turned bottom end up, and as it came down it entered the hole and plugged it up as tight as a drum. When we got down to drydock we simply sawed off either end and left the plug in the planks.'"—Washington Herald.

A Sure-enough Knocker.

J. O. Goodwin of Reidsville, N. C., says: "Bucklen's Arnica Salve is a sure-enough knocker for ulcers. A bad one came on my leg last summer, but that wonderful salve knocked it out in a few rounds. Not even a scar remained." Guaranteed for piles, sores, burns, etc. 25c at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store.

REUNION

The Strong Family.

The Strong family reunion was held Wednesday, August 26th at Chippewa Lake, Chippewa, Medina Co., Ohio.

There have been many deaths in this family within the past year, and many friends were in their far western homes, and could not meet with their relatives on this occasion, thus the number was much smaller than in the past, for there were only thirty-eight persons in attendance at beautiful Lake Chippewa.

This line of the Strong family are the direct descendants of Return, and Sarah Warham Strong. Sarah Warham was a daughter of the celebrated Puritan minister, Rev. John Warham.

Return Strong was born at Windsor, Conn. in 1640, and became a very prosperous business man in that city, dying at the age of 85 years.

He was a son of "Elder" John, and Abigail Ford Strong. Mr. John Strong was of English ancestry, and born in Taunton, England. Mr. and Mrs. John Strong sailed from Plymouth, England, March, 1630 in the ship "Mary, and John" landing at Hull, Mass. in May, 1630, just ten years after the arrival of the Mayflower.

Mrs. Strong dying soon after coming to this country, Mr. John Strong then married Abigail, daughter of Thomas Ford.

Mr. Strong was the pioneer settler of several towns, going first to what is now called Dorchester, Mass., from there he went to Hingham, Mass., (which contains a very ancient church). His next home was at Taunton, Mass. He then went to Windsor, Conn. After remaining there sometime he moved with his large family to Northampton, Mass., and this beautiful city has always been called the Home of the Strong family of America.

Elder John Strong was the father of eighteen children, two of whom were born in England, and sixteen in New England

He was chosen "Ruling Elder" of the Northampton church, and was the proprietor of a very large tannery and regarded as one of the most influential men of the town. He died in that city at the age of 94 years.

It is said when John Strong first called to see the daughter of Thomas Ford with the intention of her becoming Mrs. John Strong that for some reason the fair Abigail was not pleased with the young widower, and refused him, but Mr. Strong had not gone far from the house when she repented and called "Return Strong."

It is evident he returned for one of their sons (our ancestor) was named "Return" in memory of their courtship experience.

There have been many Johns, and Abigails in the Strong family since that day, but "alack the woo'in o'it" for the John's did not always return, or the Abigails request it.

ATHLETIC MEET

Y. M. C. A. of Lenawee County Hold Annual Meet

AT HUDSON, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 12.

Three Grades of Events Have Been Arranged.

The annual meet of the Lenawee County Y. M. C. A. will be held in Hudson, Saturday, Sept. 12. Boys from all the Associations of the County Y. M. C. A. will participate in the events of the meet making this one of the most interesting days of the year. There will three grades of events, one for boys under 105 pounds, classed as juniors; one for boys under 120 pounds, classed as intermediates, and one for those weighing more than 120 pounds. To be eligible to compete in the events of the meet one must have been a member of the Association he represents previous to March 15, 1908, and have his local Association dues paid up to the date of the meet. All entrees, including the name of the person and the events he wishes to enter, must be sent to Archie Maybee, Hudson, before Sept. 9.

The field and track meet will take place on the race track. In the morning a game of baseball to decide the County championship for Juniors will be played at Island Park, and in the afternoon at the close of the meet a championship game will be played by the seniors. The events will begin at 10:00 a. m. and 1:00 p. m. Below is given a list of the different events. For further information write Tom Howes, Hudson or F. R. Hurst, Tecumseh.

JUNIORS—50 and 100 yd. dashes, running high and running broad jumps, standing broad jump, pole vault, ½ mile relay (4 men).

INTERMEDIATES—50, 100, 220, and 440 yd. runs, shot put, pole vault, running high and running broad jumps, ½ mile relay (4 men).

SENIORS—100, 220, 440, and 880 yd. runs, shot put, pole vault, running high and running broad jumps, standing high kick, 1 mile relay.

BAND TOURNAMENT.

Tecumseh Band Attend Tournament at Lansing.

Win Ninth Prize.

The band tournament held in Lansing last week was attended by thirty-five bands, all of them being professionals but Tecumseh, the Indian band being the next to the smallest one present. They had but 14 members, while all of the others ranged with from 20 to 40 members.

The list of prizes awarded are as follows: Hastings, $200; Saginaw, 175; Adrian, 150; Bellevue, 125; Howell, 100; Grayling, 80; Waterloo, 60; Hopkins, 45; Tecumseh, 35; Shaftsburg, 30

The band boys are proud to win even the ninth prize and deserve a great deal of praise, considering the professional players they came in contact with. They returned to Tecumseh Friday.

The effect of Scott's Emulsion on thin, pale children is magical.

The first part of Gertrude Atherton's new novel "The Gorgeous Isle" is the initial feature of the September number of The Smart Set. In this the author surpasses her well-known style and shows her power of telling a love-story in strange setting—the scene is a West Indian isle—and in high lights. As a pleasant contrast follows "The Courage of Kittie," by Lilian Bell, revealing how a society girl, full of grit and humor, cures and captures a difficult person as a father-in-law. "The Better Right" by Johnson Morton is a very strong story with a new and fine motif. Altogether, the September Smart Set more than justifies its title.

Of far reaching interest and importance in the September Century is the discussion of "The Future Wheat Supply of the United States," by Edward C. Parker, of the University of Minnesota Agricultural Experiment Station. Since writing the article Mr. Parker has been called to Manchuria by the Chinese authorities to organize an experiment station. Two notable biographical articles in September Century are William H. Crook's reminiscences of "Andrew Johnson in the White House" (written by Margarita Spalding Gerry), and "The Early Life of Robert Fulton," by Alice Crary Sutcliffe, great-granddaughter of the inventor. "The Reminiscences of Lady Randolph Churchill" are in September, as in the previous months, an absorbingly interesting feature of the Century Magazine.

The September Atlantic illustrates strikingly the wide range of interest which this magazine covers. This issue opens with a brilliant exposition of the needs and problems of present day American life under the title, "Social Reconstruction To day," by John Martin. Two other papers of unusual significance treat distinctly American problems. "The Heart of the United States," by James P. Munroe, describes and estimates the throbbing life of the Middle West, and R. S. Spears in "The Moods of the Mississippi," writes a paper of extraordinary interest on this greatest of American water ways. Charles A. Conant contributes a timely article upon "The Regulation of the Stock Exchange," and Ray Morris's paper, "Enforced Railroad Competition," will be of special interest to every business man and manufacturer.

FIFTEEN YEARS OF AGONY

Will You Continue to Suffer From Catarrh in the Face of This Testimony?

"I suffered for fifteen years with catarrhal troubles so bad that I had to leave the sea. I could not lie down at night to sleep, on account of the constant catarrhal dropping. I went to two different hospitals for treatment, but without any lasting benefit. I was constantly raising yellow and green phlegm, and the trouble was so unbearable and nauseating that I was ashamed to go out in company. I have used only two bottles of Hyomei, and have been cured by the remedy. It has made full and complete recovery." CAPT. WILLNEF.

Hyomei is a dry, healing, antiseptic air, extracted from the Eucalyptus groves of Australia. It is a pleasure to use Hyomei, because you do not take it into the stomach; you simply breathe in this germ-killing air, and relief is immediate, and complete recovery comes in a few days. Hyomei outfit, including an inhaler that will last a lifetime, costs $1.00. If it does not cure your catarrh, asthma, bronchitis, coughs or colds, C. A. Wright & Son's drug store will give you your money back.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold

A. J. Nusbaum, Batesville, Indiana, writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed to only aggravate my case. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package, and it quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success."

If a woman imagines a man is good enough for her she knows that he is good enough for the best woman on earth.

Just because a man wears white pants about his farm work, is no sign that his milk is always pure. Handsome is that handsome does.

OF INTEREST TO MANY

Foley's Kidney Cure will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble that is not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more.

Some men burst their safety valve in endeavoring to be a power in the world

Duty calls; idleness whistles.

No man ever created anything greater than himself.

Kodal will, in a very short time, enable the stomach to do the work it should do, and the work it should do is to digest all the food you eat. When the stomach can't do it Kodal does it for it and in the meantimes the stomach is getting stronger and able to take up its regular natural work again. Kodal digests all you eat. It makes the stomach sweet and it is pleasant to take. It is sold here by all druggists.

A strong breath comes out of a weak head.

The hypocrite is the devil's best argument.

Healthy kidneys filter the impurities from the blood, and unless they do this good health is impossible. Foley's Kidney Cure makes sound kidneys and will positively cure all forms of kidney and bladder disease. It strengthens the whole system.

Folks need what is in your heart more than what is in your hand.

The poorest man of all is the one who affects to despise the poor.

Cheery fathers and mothers make happy boys and girls.

A COMMON ERROR.

The Same Mistake is Made by Many Tecumseh People.

It's a common error
To plaster the aching back.
To rub with liniments rheumatic joints.
When the trouble comes from the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.

Clark Decker, living at 130 West Maumee st., Adrian, Mich., says: "Before I used Doan's Kidney Pills I had such severe backaches that it was often difficult for me to move about and many times when getting up from a chair or a stooped position, I was compelled to place my hands to my hips and rise gradually. At night I could not sleep well and though I using many remedies and plasters my condition failed to improve. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills I procured a box at Wright & Son's drug store and they brought me prompt relief. I continued used them until completely cured."

Plenty more proof like this from Tecumseh people. Call at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store and ask what their customers report.

BUYING A RING.

A Story They Tell In Japan to Illustrate Occidental Love.

"The Japanese marry out of esteem and trust to the coming of love afterward," said a Japanese lady. "With us when love comes it lasts. We have a song that we like to sing—'I want to live to ninety-nine years, and you must live to be a hundred, so that we may be happy while our hair grows gray.'

"That is better," she continued, "than the love that comes swiftly and as swiftly flies away again. They tell in Japan a story illustrative of this transitory love—the love of your west.

"A tourist, they say, was touring Brittany. He came to Quimper, and he found in the Place Publique beside the river an old woman selling trinkets.

"'What is the price of this?' he asked, taking up an antique ring of silver and sapphires.

"'Is it for your wife or for your sweetheart?' said the old woman.

"'For my sweetheart.'

"'Fifty francs!'

"'Fifty francs! Nonsense!' And the tourist turned angrily away.

"'Come back,' said the old woman. 'Take it for ten. You've been lying to me, though. You have no sweetheart. Had the ring been for another you'd have bought it at once without regard to its price.'

"'I will take it,' said the tourist, smiling. 'Here are the 10 francs.'

"So the old woman wrapped the ring up.

"'But you haven't a wife either,' she grumbled. 'If it had been for her you'd have beaten me down to 5 francs. Oh, you men!'"

NATURE'S LITTLE SHIP.

A Curious Jellyfish Endowed With a Movable Sail.

While man makes the largest ocean vessels, nature makes the smallest. This is a species of jellyfish, found only in tropical seas, which has a sail.

The part of the fish under the water looks like a mass of tangled threads, while the sail is a tough membrane, shaped like a shell and measuring quite five inches and sometimes more across. The fish can raise or lower this sail at will.

Wise sailors let this curiosity of nature alone, for each of the threads composing its body has the power of stinging, the results of which are very painful and often dangerous. This power defends it from porpoises, albatrosses and other natural enemies.

It has no other means of locomotion than its sail, and when seen skimming bravely along the surface of the water it looks more like a child's toy boat than a living creature out in search of food.—London Saturday Review.

Treating Them All Alike.

There was only one thing in the world of which Eben Ransom thoroughly approved; that was hard, steady work. "I hope," said the philanthropic spinster who was spending a fortnight at the Ransom farm, "I do hope, Mr. Ransom, that you treat all your men alike; give them all equal advantages and wages. I find a varying standard, if I may use the expression, makes so much trouble and discontent among laborers in any field of work."

Mr. Ransom surveyed her gravely and nodded assent.

"You're right there, ma'am," he said dryly after a moment. "There is just one rule for the folks that work for me. 'Begin as early and keep it up as late as there's light to go by, and you'll get your one-fifty a day, unless the times are unusual hard, when I make it one-twenty-five.'

"But I tell you, ma'am, you can't get as many fellers to work on an equal basis nowadays as you might think."

Her Modest Request.

When Andrew D. White was minister to Germany he received some queer letters from Americans. Perhaps the funniest of all was a mandatory epistle from an old lady living in the west, who inclosed in her letter four pieces of white linen, each some six inches square. "We are going to have a fair in our church," she wrote, "and I am making an autograph quilt. I want you to get me the autographs of the emperor, the empress and the crown prince and tell them to be very careful not to write too near the edge of the squares, as a seam has to be allowed for putting them together."

Look forward, not backward. Do not repay slander with slander. If a serpent stings you, do not bite back at him.—Exchange.

HOW TO AVOID APPENDICITIS

Most victims of appendicitis are those who are habitually constipated. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup cures chronic constipation by stimulating the liver and bowels, and restores the natural action of the bowels. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup does not nauseate or gripe and is mild and pleasant to take. Refuse substitutes.

Are You Sick?

Much sickness is due to a weak nervous system. Yours may be. If it is, you cannot get well until you restore nerve strength Your nervous system is nature's power house; the organs of your body get their power from it. If the power is not there, the action of the organs is weak, and disease (sickness) follows. Dr. Miles' Nervine cures the sick because it soothes the irritated and tired nerves and gives the system a chance to recuperate. Try it, and see if you do not quickly feel its beneficial effect.

"I was given up to die by a leading doctor. Got one of Dr. Miles' books and found that Dr. Miles' Nervine fit my case. From the very first dose I took I got better. I am better now than I have been for years, and do all my own work on the farm. That's what Dr. Miles' Nervine has done for me, and I am glad to recommend it to others."
JOHN JAMES, Riverton, Nebr.

Your druggist sells Dr. Miles' Nervine, and we authorize him to return price of first bottle (only) if it fails to benefit you.

Keep Your Bowels Open

A Safe Certain Home Remedy that Is Sold By All Druggists

A fact any doctor will verify is that constipated people suffer most from disease. Regular bowel action is absolutely necessary to health. People who are constipated either part or all of the time must use something to make their bowels move. This should not be a violent purgative or a cathartic that merely tears its way through the bowels emptying them of waste matter for the time but leaving them in a weakened state that prolonges the constipated condition. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an easy, pleasant, natural laxative that removes the waste matter and establishes regular, daily movements without pain, or gripe.

Children and delicate women should never be given strong physic for it not only weakens the bowels but the entire system, a Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin serves as a tonic and an aid to digestion as well as a laxative that is certain in its effect upon the most obstinate old cases and yet safe and pleasant for a baby. With the first few doses the ill effects of constipation, such as dyspepsia, indigestion, liver trouble, biliousness, flatulency, sour stomach, sick headache, bloated stomach, etc., quickly disappear. It is a remedy that should be in every home for every member of the family at some time has need of a safe, sure laxative.

Mrs. J. C. Cooper, Chicago, Ill., writes: "I use Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for myself and family. I keep it on hand constantly, as I find it to be a most pleasant laxative and is all you claim for it."

Sarah J. Hobson, Eureka Springs, Ark., says: "I would have been dead had it not been for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is the best medicine I ever used for constipation, indigestion and biliousness."

M. R. Zerkel, Troy, Ohio, considers it the best known laxative for children.

We are glad to send a free sample to any one who has not used it and will give it a fair trial. Write today to Pepsin Syrup Co., 305 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill. All druggists sell it at 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Collapsing in an attack of heart trouble, from which he never rallied, half an hour after he had sold the grocery he operated for twenty-five years, Gerritt Wagoner, seventy years old, and a resident of Muskegon for fifty-four years, is dead.

Emerging from forty years' mysterious absence, Emanuel Cardy surprised his sister, Mrs Julia Barton, of Ecorse, a suburb of Detroit. Cardy was raised in the township, but at the beginning of the civil war he enlisted in the army and that was the last heard from him.

William Deweerd, an employe of the National Biscuit company, of Grand Rapids, drowned in Reed's lake while on his way to a picnic of the company's employes at Manhattan beach. He and Marinus Van Sterien were in the boat which tipped over. Deweerd was 29 years old and leaves a young widow.

The decomposed body of Mrs. Alice L. Donahue, 1226 Second street, Oakland, Cal., who disappeared from her home on June 1, has been found near her home. Gus Allsted was arrested on the charge of murder. Mrs. Donahue was a prominent society woman. Allsted was arrested because he had a brooch that belonged to Mrs. Donahue. He said he found the piece of jewelry in a neighbor's yard.

The Alphabet.

The great Phoenician alphabet, the parent of every form of European writing and of the scripts of Persia, Arabia and India as well, owes but little to Egypt. It is true that in the construction of their alphabet the Phoenicians made use of certain hieratic characters found in their trade dealings with Egypt, but this fact in no way detracts from the glory of the invention which belongs to the "Yankees of antiquity."—New York American.

"If I were a man!" is surely a very unnecessary cry these days. The epoch of the man is past. The twentieth century is the era of the woman.

UNVEIL MONUMENTS.

Elaborate Ceremonies Carried Out in Honor of Deceased Woodmen.

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 31.—At a given signal in Lakeside cemetery Sunday afternoon the draperies covering twenty monuments over the graves of a like number of deceased members of the Woodmen of the World fell from their hangings. The occasion brought together nearly 500 members of the order from Detroit, Mt. Clemens and some of the nearby towns.

The members of the order met in Woodmen hall at 1:30 o'clock and with the local band and a second one from Mt. Clemens marched to Pine Grove park, from which place special cars on the traction line conveyed them to the cemetery.

The services were held at one of the monuments of the cluster and when the signal came those stationed at the others drew the ropes and the flags which had been draped around the pieces of marble were lowered simultaneously. The ceremonies were elaborate and the speakers were numerous, embracing nearly all of the sovereign officers of the order, headed by Sovereign Commander J. C. Root of Omaha, Neb., and including fifteen others.

Carrie Nation Quits Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 31.—"Good-by, the next time I come to Detroit I trust I will find the moral tone of your municipality considerably elevated." This was the parting shot of Mrs. Carrie Nation, the saloon smasher, as she left the Library Park hotel last evening to take the boat for Cleveland. It had been announced that Mrs. Nation would make a tour of the downtown saloons Sunday and in some instances insist upon closing the doors. The anticipated trouble did not materialize, however.

Falls into Slip and Drowns.

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 31.—Joseph Alke, fifty-eight years old, employed as a store delivery teamster, fell into a slip at the Crozee shipyards while attempting to reach a harbor tug, and was drowned. His twelve-year-old son was with him, but owing to the darkness did not realize what his father's cries meant and made no effort to save him. The body was recovered.

TAFT AT MIDDLE BASS.

Will Put in Week Fishing and Playing Golf.

Middle Bass Island, O., Aug. 31.—William H. Taft and party have arrived at the Middle Bass club. The fourteen speeches which Mr. Taft delivered Saturday in the unexpected campaigning he did on the trip through his native state from Virginia Hot Springs, left their impress on his voice, but aside from the hoarseness and his declaration that he felt a little tired, he said he was little the worse for wear.

While the week on the fishing grounds is primarily for recreation, it is understood several political conferences may be held. Representative J. Warren Keifer, of Ohio, is at the club. On Wednesday Mr. Taft will go to Toledo to address the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic. This speech will not be political.

The Taft family is quartered in one of the cottages. The candidate will divide his time between fishing for bass and playing his favorite game of golf.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 31.—A real blue Sunday came to Atlantic City yesterday. Many persons familiar with the history of this far famed resort have been inclined to doubt the possibility of such a thing, but Sunday every one of the 220 saloons and hotel bars were closed. They were closed alike to bonafide guests as well as to strangers just arrived. It is said that this was the fourth time in the fifty-four years of its existence that a drinkless day had been experienced in Atlantic City. A bulletin posted at police headquarters stated: "Saloons all closed. No troops in town." Another bulletin, officially signed by the chief of police consisted of a card on which was printed: "In 1861 it was 'hold the fort.' Today it's Fort hold you." Governor Fort's proclamation of last week containing his threat to send troops to the seashore in the event of a further violation of the Sunday closing law had its effect.

Becomes President of Panama.

Panama, Aug. 31.—The electoral proceedings which began last January and which for so long a time threatened the peace of the republic has ended happily. Dr. Augusto Boyd, chairman of the national jury of elections, has delivered to Senor Don Jose Domingo de Obaldia the document setting forth the final count of the votes of the whole republic, which makes his the constitutional successor of President Manuel Amador. To celebrate this event Senor Obaldia was given a banquet by the most prominent Panamans and foreigners on the Isthmus, at which the president-elect was the object of many felicitations. The national assembly will convene on September 1.

Fall Elections in Vermont.

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 31.—With the national politicians as critical spectators, Vermont will set the pace on Tuesday for the fall elections, by voting for governor, congressmen and members of the legislature, which will choose at the next session a successor to the late Senator Redfield Proctor.

STATE FAIR OPENED TODAY

Michigan's Fifty-Ninth Annual Exhibit a Humdrum.

LARGE CROWD FOR FIRST DAY

Manager Slocum Congratulated for Excellent Showing Made—Advance Sale of Tickets Record Breaker—New Features for Comfort of Visitors.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 1.—The fifty-ninth annual Michigan state fair opened this morning to an unusually large first day crowd. The fair this year promises to be the most successful ever held, and great credit is due the officers of the fair association for their efforts in the splendid improvements that is noticeable.

Manager Slocum was on the grounds early today and was the recipient of many congratulations on the excellent showing he has made.

Since locating permanently on the present site, improvements have been made each year and one of the first to strike the visitor's eye is the changed appearance of the grounds. Last year a vast amount of work was done on the race track, and gradually it is being transformed into a great and beautiful park. The landscape work is showing up in grand shape and here and there are noticed many new features for the convenience and comfort of visitors.

The sale of tickets out in the state closes today and will go on record as the biggest ever.

Jack Dallas, the aeronaut, has lost his balloon by fire. But the management of the fair have, through the accident, been able to secure Lincoln Beachy to make the daily flights. He's down in Florida now, making trips through the air. He left on a special train Wednesday night, and will be ready for the first flight Saturday. Bachy is one of America's foremost aeronauts, and if weather conditions are favorable will attempt some daring feats in his ship of the air.

Peter Abt, of the East End ambulance company, will conduct the state fair hospital. The hospital tent and ambulance tent are located near the administration building.

Three bands will be on the grounds daily. Two Detroit organizations have been secured and fourteen from other towns and cities will be here at different times during the fair week.

A Six minute service is being iven by the Detroit United Railway company, gradually increasing until the cars run every thirty seconds on Saturday. The fireworks display, Saturday night, will draw a large crowd and the street car company will do its best to handle the people by stacking cars at various points along the line.

Exhibits have been coming in until the buildings are packed. Superintendent George Kelly, of the swine department, demands that another building be erected for his department before another year. There are 956 hogs in now and more coming and already temporary pens are being built out of doors to accommodate the overflow.

The Midway shows are all placed at last. There are forty-one of them. All the big attractions which make the fair circuit are in the list, including a menagerie, a wild west show, a nunny south, a musical show, an Igorrote village, an historical picture show, a mill swing, a merry-go-round and hosts of other attractions.

Warner Thanks His Friends.

Farmington, Mich., Sept. 3.—In a statement to the press relative to his defeat, Governor Warner said: "A primary election is for the purpose of having the people decide for themselves whom they wish to represent their parties. They should abide by the result of the primary. That is what I will do. I thank my friends for what they did for me throughout the state and am glad, at least, that the result is so close. It was the adverse vote in the cities which defeated me."

Falls From Dock and Drowns.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 3.—Falling from the dock into the river at Rodgers's roadhouse, Miss Marie Reinke, twenty-five, of 83 Maybury Grand avenue, was drowned. Mary Reinke, a cousin, and William Haused and Fred Iles, who were with her, saw Miss Reinke struggling in the water, but nothing, it is alleged, was done to save her. Fifteen minutes later her body was recovered.

Horse Frightened; Man Killed.

Calumet, Mich., Sept. 3.—Albert Hall, aged fifty, married, was killed by being thrown from a heavy wagon in Laurium. The team became frightened at a steam roller. Hall leaves a large family.

HIS AIRSHIP COLLAPSED.

Aeronaut Fell 500 Feet to His Death.

WIFE SAW HIM KILLED.

Terrible Accident at Fair in Maine—Daring Aeronaut Saw It Too Late to Save His Own Life—Spine Broken.

Waterville, Me., Sept. 3.—In full view of 25,000 horrified spectators assembled on the Central Maine Fair grounds here, Charles Oliver Jones, the well known aeronaut of Hammondsport, N. Y., fell a distance of 500 feet to his death. Among the witnesses of the frightfully plunge were Mrs. Jones and child, and they were almost the first to reach the side of the dying man. The aeronaut died an hour and a half after the accident.

Jones had been at the fair grounds with his dirigible balloon "Boomerang," known as a Strobel airship, since Monday.

When the aeronaut reached a height of more than 500 feet on his fatal flight, the spectators were amazed to see small tongues of flame issuing from under the gas bag in front of the motor. At this time the balloon had passed out of the fair grounds. Many persons in the great crowd endeavored to apprise Jones of his danger, but several minutes elapsed before he noticed the fire. Then he grasped the rip cord and by letting out gas, endeavored to reach the earth. The machine had descended but a short distance when a sudden burst of flame enveloped the gas bag, the framework immediately separating from the bag.

Jones fell with the frame of his motor, and when the spectators reached him he was lying under it. The gas bag was completely destroyed.

The physicians who were in the crowd found that Jones had no chance to survive, as he was injured internally, and his spine was broken.

Hudspeth Chosen by Mack.

New York, Sept. 3.—The organization of the eastern department of the Democratic national committee has been completed. National Committeeman Robert S. Hudspeth, of New Jersey, had been chosen vice chairman of the committee to manage the campaign in the east, with a sub-committee of twenty members composed of national committeemen and prominent Democrats of the east to assist him. Chairman Mack further announced that John E. Lamb, of Indiana, had been made vice chairman of the executive committee, and that George W. Greene, national comitteeman of Rhode Island, had been chosen vice chairman of the committee on club organization. Herman Ridder, of New York, has been made head of the publicity bureau in the eastern headquarters, and John J. Kennedy, of Buffalo, has been selected as secretary of the national committee here.

Let Water Out of Canal.

Joliet, Ill., Sept. 3.—Unknown persons dynamited the Illinois bank of the Illinois and Michigan canal at Channahon, twelve miles southwest of Joliet. The breach made by the explosion is 100 feet long. The district is flooded and the entire section of the canal from Joliet to Channahon is emptied of water. Boats are stranded, fish by thousands cover the bottom of the canal, navigation is tied up and factories using power furnished by the canal have closed. The dynamiting is the result of a fight between the canal commissioners and the state on one side, and the villages of Channahon and Troy on the other side, over the bridge question. The state refused to build or repair broken down bridges.

Mysteriously Murdred.

Omaha, Sept. 3.—Dr. Frederick T. Rustin, one of the best known surgeons in the west, was shot and killed as he entered his home early in the morning. There is not a single clue to the murderer. Dr. Rustin had remained out late for the election returns. His wife was awakened by a pistol shot and rushed down stairs and but on the porch and found him sitting in a chair, "I have been shot," he said, then lapsed into unconsciousness and died.

Turner Out of Danger.

Turner, Mich., Sept. 3.—After four days of hard fighting to save the town from destruction by forest fires, it is believed that it is now out of danger unless strong winds arise. There are fires all through the northern part of Arenac county for a radius of thirty miles about here, however. The air, filled with smoke, is almost suffocating.

FORAKER AND TAFT MEET.

Once Political Enemies Put Aside Differences.

SHAKE HANDS BEFORE CROWD.

Dramatic Incidents at National G. A. R. Encampment—Presidential Nominee Reviews Parade—Michigan Made Good Showing—Over 8,000 in Line.

Toledo, O., Sept. 3.—For an hour or more Wednesday the grand parade of the Grand Army of the Republic, with its attendant throngs served merely as the background—the scenery of as dramatic an incident as has enlivened a political campaign in some years, namely, the public meeting of William H. Taft and his erstwhile rival, Senator Joseph Benson Foraker.

The Republican leader and his antagonist, politically of the pre-convention canvass, met in the official reviewing stand, shook hands, smiled, and exchanged greetings, while from thousands of throats came cheer after cheer as the significance of the incident dawned upon the beholders.

Mr. Taft arrived from Middle Bass Island on Commodore Richardson's power boat, "Jassamine," at 10:30 o'clock in the morning. His progress along the streets in an automobile, accompanied by General Corbin, President Lewis, of the Middle Bass Fishing club, and Mayor Whitlock, was a continued ovation. The thousands in the reviewing stand stood when he entered, and for some time after he had become seated.

"Hello, Senator."

When Senator Foraker entered the stand, Mr. Taft held out his hand, smiling. The two grasped each other in a firm handclasp.

"Hello, senator," remarked Mr. Taft.

"I'm glad to see you, judge; been taking some exercise at the springs?"

"Yes, and feeling fine."

And so on, according to those who stood near by and caught snatches of the conversation above the blare of music and the roar of applause.

It was nearly 3 o'clock when the big G. A. R. parade concluded, and after a brief visit to his hotel, Mr. Taft went to the Lyceum theater to attend the reception given by the Lincoln Republican club. He was joined there by Senator Foraker and Gov. Harris. Here again the evidence of the official sealing of the political breach between the two leaders was vigorously applauded.

The parade was remarkable for the absence of accidents and cases of exhaustion, and for the good order which prevailed, not only among the dense crowds along the line of march, but throughout the city.

Estimates of the number of veterans in line varied from 8,000 to three times that number, but it is doubtful if there were more than 12,000. Fully half of the veterans wore the badges of either Michigan or Ohio. Some of the veterans, wise in experience of parades, carried camp stools over their arms, and whenever there was a halt they promptly sat down, to the envy of the crowd.

Veteran Sailors Danced.

The first amusing incident of the march came with the marching past of the Rhode Island detachment. Two veterans, in sailor suits and each carrying a broom bearing the placard, "Who won the battle of '61 and 65? We did," danced along the way and were the targets of many flowers. The Berdan sharpshooters carried their name on a twelve foot cloth sustained by poles at each end and borne by two men. The wind being brisk, propelled the bearers forward faster than they cared to go.

The Fourth Michigan carried a pole on top of which was an imprisoned rooster. On the sides of the coop was the boast, "We captured Jeff Davis."

"We swept the ocean; you keep it clean," was an admonition, the display of which repeatedly called forth cheers.

While there were details of the picture which appealed strongly to sympathy for declining years, it was on the whole a cheerful sight. For the most part the step of the men was firm. Many and many a veteran, vowing himself good for another war, pranced and danced along, to the vast approval of his comrades.

INDIANA WORRIES 'EM.

That State Will Receive Special Attention From Republicans.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—Chairman Hitchcock, of the Republican national committee, has decied to visit both Indiana and Ohio on his return trip to New York. He will leave Chicago tonight for Indianapolis and will confer with Vice President Fairbanks on Friday. He expects to leave the same evening for Toledo, O., and will visit Mr. Taft on Middle Bass island on Saturday.

The Indiana situation is giving the officials of the national committee some concern, and that state will receive special attention. James P. Goodrich, the chairman of the Indiana state committee, has been in conference with Chairman Hitchcock several times in the last two days, and he was anxious that the chairman stop there before he returned to the east. Mr. Fairbanks intends to make a large number of speeches under the auspices of the Republican national committee, and Mr. Hitchcock will confer with him about speaking dates.

When Mr. Hitchcock meets Mr. Taft on Saturday it is expected that all cause for friction over the management of the campaign in Ohio will be removed.

Bryan Hears Self Speak.

Sioux City, Iowa, Sept. 3.—Addressing a Democratic rally here last night, William J. Bryan, Democratic candidate for the presidency, denounced Coleman Dupont, of Delaware, and Senator Bois Penrose, of Pennsylvania, members of the Republican executive committee, as not being expected to become reformers because as he charged, all of their affiliation was with the trusts. Having traveled the entire night and day, through Minnesota and a part of Iowa, where he received enthusiastic receptions, Mr. Bryan arrived here shortly before 8 o'clock last night. From the rear platform of the train at various places he shook hands with hundreds of persons and made several talks. During a two-hour stay in St. Paul between trains, Mr. Bryan took breakfast in an uptown cafe, which he reached after a brisk walk. On the way back, he observed in a music store windows an announcement that the stock included phonographic records of his speech on guaranty of bank deposits, and of Mr. Taft on injunctions in labor disputes. He entered the place and at his request both records were reproduced. His own remarks were heard first, and as the last word died away, he smilingly remarked: "I am now convinced."

Wright in No Hurry to Fly.

Washington, Sept. 3.—Step by step, giving each detail careful attention and taking every precaution to prevent an accident, Orville Wright is preparing for the first flight of his aeroplane at Fort Myer. Mr. Wright evinces no desire to hasten the time of the official flights. General Oliver, assistant secretary of war; General Allen, chief signal officer; General Duval, of the general staff corps; Augustus Post, secretary of the Aero Club of America, and a crowd of 500 expectant persons, cosmopolitan in its character, gathered on the drill ground at Fort Myer Wednesday in anticipation of the propsed flight of the aeroplane. They were doomed to disappointment, however.

Courtmartial Ordered.

Washington, Sept. 3.—By direction of the president, a general courtmartial embracing in its membership one major-general, six brigadiers and six colonels, will meet at Fort Wayne, Mich., on Tuesday, September 29, "for the trial of such persons as may be brought before it." Major General Frederick D. Grant will head the court. Great secrecy is maintained at the war department as to the identity of the officers to be ordered before the court for trial, but in view of the high rank of the officers comprising it the assumption is that the proposed trial or trials involves an officer or officers of a higher rank than that of captain.

Ambassador Hill Gives Dinner.

Berlin, Sept. 3.—The American ambassador, David Jayne Hill, gave a dinner Wednesday night in honor of Senator Nelson W. Aldrich, of Rhode Island, chairman of the sub-committee of the national monetary commission; H. P. Davison, vice president of the First National bank of New York, and G. M. Reynolds, of Chicago, all of whom are here for the purpose of studying German banking business.

Two Women Shot.

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 3.—In a strike riot at Dunmore Mrs. Adam Kayalko and Mrs. Anna Cordlach, wives of miners, were shot by state policemen while the women were standing on the back porch of the Kavalko home. Onlookers declare it was the result of recklessness. Neither is seriously hurt. The police rode away after the shooting. County Detective Rafferty has gone to the scene to investigate with a view, it is said, of arresting members of the state police if the circumstances in his judgment warrant such action.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN,
Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75 cents per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Almost any man hates snobbishness until he has environment and opportunity to practice it himself.

One of the worst features of kidney trouble is that it is an insidious disease and before the victim realize his danger he may have a fatal malady. Take Foley's Kidney Cure at the first sign of trouble as it corrects irregularities and prevents Bright's disease and diabetes.

Don't let the old job hamper—that is if you have found a better.

DeWitt's Carbolized Witch Hazel Salve is recommended as the best thing to use for piles. It is, of course, good for anything where a salve is needed. Beware of imitations. Sold by all druggists.

The first requisite to being a good cook is securing a good provider.

Self conceit is like brandy—we don't like to see the effect of it in the other fellow, but it feels good at home.

Many people suffer a great deal from Kidney and Bladder troubles. During the past few years much of this complaint has been made unnecessary by the use of DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills. They are antiseptic and are highly recommended for weak back, backache, rheumatic pains, inflammation of the bladder and all other annoyances due to weak kidneys. They are sold by the druggists.

Of course all philosophy of life is simply to live, but the question seems to be, Who lives?

Kodal will, without doubt, make your stomach strong and will almost instantly relieve you of all the symptoms of indigestion. It will do this because it is made up of the natural digestive juices of the stomach so combined that it completely digests the food just as the stomach will do it, so you see Kodal can't fail to help you and help you promptly. It is sold here by all druggists

Kissing goes by the board when the chaperon knows her business.

Doan's Regulets cure constipation without griping, nausea, nor any weakening effect. Ask your druggist for them. 25 cents per box.

We would be entirely willing to look for the good traits of the people we don't like if it were not such discouraging work.

For any pain, from top to toe, from any cause, apply Dr. Thomas' Eclectric oil. Pain can't stay where it is used.

How to get Strong.

P. J. Daly of 1247 W. Congress St., Chicago, tells of a way to become strong: He says: "My mother, who is old and was very feeble, is deriving so much benefit from Electric Bitters, that I feel it's my duty to tell those who need a tonic and strengthening medicine about it. In my mother's case a marked gain in flesh has resulted, insomnia has been overcome, and she is steadily growing stronger." Electric Bitters quickly remedy stomach, liver and kidney complaints. Sold under guarantee at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store 50c.

The man who gets something for nothing and secures a patent on the process has laid the foundation for another big trust.

The New Pure Food and Drug Law

We are pleased to announce that Foley's Honey and Tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not affected by the National Pure Food and Drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs, and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults.

Poverty is accounted a blessing by some proverb makers, but most of us find or imagine it is one that we could be happy without.

A Sure-enough Knocker.

J. C. Goodwin of Reidsville, N. C., says: "Bucklen's Arnica Salve is a sure-enough knocker for ulcers. A bad one came on my leg last summer, but that wonderful salve knocked it out in a few rounds. Not even a scar remained." Guaranteed for piles, sores, burns, etc. 25c. at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store

A Matter Of Honor.

By Clarissa Mackie.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"I am very sorry," began Helen in evident distress, "but"—

Richard Hilton held up a restraining hand.

"Don't go on. I know what you mean," he said heavily. He was staring at the third finger of her left hand, where a curious ring scattered prismatic rays of light in the June sunshine.

She followed his glance toward the ring, and her cheek flushed hotly.

"Of course it is Littleton, after all," he said as if stating an undeniable fact. Then, with a slight bow, he turned and walked away down the sandy shore.

Miss Vincent looked after him with dazed brown eyes and a strangely numb feeling in her heart. When he had rounded the lighthouse point and disappeared within the shadow of the tall structure she shivered a little, as if with cold. She had been perched among the bowlders under the sheltering cedar clothed banks when Hilton had found her an hour before, and still she sat there after his departure with wistful, dreamy eyes fixed on the flashing sails beyond the breakwater.

"Hello, little cousin! Been looking everywhere for you. I might have guessed you'd be somewhere by the sad sea waves." Jeffrey Littleton swung himself to a seat beside her and gathered a handful of white pebbles from the crannies of the rocks.

He was a slightly built, rather good looking young man with eyes placed a trifle close together and a small rosebud mouth like a girl's. He caught Miss Vincent's sun browned hand with an air of possession that changed to consternation as she pulled it hastily away.

"I am only your fourth cousin, Jeffrey," she said petulantly.

"It is quite evident that you wish the relationship was still more distant," he said ruefully. He took careful aim at a stone down on the water's edge and shot a white pebble downward. "How do you like Miss Wendell?" he asked with elaborate carelessness.

"She is charming!" cried Helen enthusiastically. "I like her immensely. You know we were at school together, although in different classes."

"WON'T YOU KEEP THAT, HELEN, JUST FOR REMEMBRANCE?"

"Handsome—what do you think?" Jeffrey asked.

"She is lovely," said Miss Vincent, looking curiously at him. For the first time since their engagement three years before Jeffrey was showing interest in another woman.

How gladly she would have welcomed the diversion during the last twelve months of her awakening to what love really meant! But, no; Jeffrey had been a devoted lover, apparently blind to her growing indifference toward him.

The fact that their betrothal was a family affair and as yet unannounced would have made it easier for her to have told him the truth and thus broken off the engagement, but a certain pity for him had stilled the words that had so often trembled on her lips, for only since the advent of Richard Hilton into her world had she known what love was—that sweet upland path that one knows instinctively leads to heights of bliss—heights whence it takes a lifetime to descend.

It was the old story of a pledged word and a love come too late. She had turned Hilton away and—Jeffrey was speaking again in a slow, hesitating way, very unlike his usual manner.

"You remember that day in Rome when we were looking in the window of old Riconi, the goldsmith, and we both saw the—ring?" He touched her finger gently with one hand.

"Yes," she said, a little breathlessly. It was not often that Jeffrey spoke of such matters. Their engagement had been singularly free from sentiment.

"And you admired its quaint setting, and so I bought it and we called it an engagement ring," he went on lightly. "It is needless to relate that the houses of Vincent and Littleton rejoiced greatly and that our boy and girl attachment settled into a Darby and Joan—flatness." There was a tinge of bitterness in his voice that caused an uplifting of her pretty brows.

"And?" she suggested haughtily.

"I have thought perhaps you might have tired of me and wanted your freedom, only—your conscience—you know you have a conscience, little cousin"—

"I am sorry, Jeffrey, that my 'conscience,' as you call it, has been the means of binding you to an unwelcome contract. No; do not speak," she said coldly. "It is true that I would never have been the one to break the engagement because my word is my law, and"— Her voice broke suddenly.

"I thought you'd be pleased," cried Jeffrey in consternation. "You know—Hilton—you see"— He stammered confusedly as she started to her feet.

"Be still!" she said in a low, passionate voice. "Don't you know that you are too late now? Why didn't you jilt me before?" She sank back on the rocks and buried her face in her hands with a little sobbing cry.

Jeffrey reddened darkly at her words. He scrambled down from the bowlders and stood on the beach before her. "I am very sorry, Helen. I know you think I'm a cad, but—I cannot explain. You may understand some day."

"Wait," she said scornfully, lifting a tearful face to his. "You must understand that I am not breaking my heart over your desertion. It is because I have just sacrificed a lifetime of happiness for such as you!"

She drew the brilliant ring from her finger and held it toward him.

"Won't you keep that, Helen, just for remembrance?" he asked awkwardly.

"I cannot," she said coldly, and it dropped into his reluctant hand. Presently he found himself following clearly defined footprints in the damp sand. They skirted the beach and circled the lighthouse. When they ceased Jeffrey found himself face to face with Richard Hilton.

"Hello, Hilton!" he said genially, evading the other man's miserable eyes. "Going down the beach? If you are I wish you'd just take this handkerchief to my cousin—Miss Vincent. She's sitting on the rocks beyond the point." He held out a morsel of cobweb and lace.

Hilton hesitated.

"I don't know," he said doubtfully. "You see, I'm waiting for the 4:30 train. I'm going back to the city tonight. Important business"—

"Well, all right. You see, I'm going to take that same train myself—must catch the Lucretia tomorrow morning—going abroad for three years, and"—

"I guess I'll have time to run up there with it," said Hilton eagerly. "Goodby, old man! Hope you have a good time. Goodby." He swung around the point with the fluttering handkerchief in his hand. Jeffrey followed his going with a strange smile on his lips.

He opened his clinched right hand and disclosed the curious little ring which Helen had returned to him. As he looked at it his full lips stiffened into straight, hard lines. He lifted his hand, and there were a flash of gold and a sparkle of flame before the jewel disappeared in the oncoming green waves.

"Goodby, everything!" he muttered grimly. Then he turned and walked briskly toward the railroad station.

The Barber Hit It.

On one of his visits to London Joachim, the great violinist, entered a barber shop for a shave. The barber did not know him and eyed his flowing locks with the air of a man who knew just what he would do to them when he got his customer in the chair.

"Hair cut, sir?" he demanded, with a tone that called for an affirmative answer.

The virtuoso signified his perfect satisfaction with the length of his hirsute adornment.

"Just a little long at the back," the barber insinuated as he adjusted the cloth.

Joachim explained that he liked it that way, and the tonsorial artist was silent for awhile.

"Rather thin on top, sir," he said, conveying his own idea that to sacrifice length to thickness was poor policy. But Joachim glared at the barber and tossed his lionlike mane. The barber scraped away for awhile in a moody, discontented fashion. But it was hard to discountenance him.

"Better let me trim the edges for you, sir. Just half an inch all around."

Joachim remained firm, however, and then the barber, losing what little tact and ingenuity he had, vented his feelings in the most scathing expression of contempt that suggested itself to his tonsorial mind with:

"Well, of course, if you want to look like a German musician it's nobody's business but your own."

Profitable Litigation.

On the boundary line of two farms in an Austrian village there is a large gooseberry bush, from which the two farmers have for years gathered the product. "What grows on my side is mine, and you may have the rest," was the agreement.

Three years ago the neighbors had a misunderstanding, and this came to a climax when the gooseberries became ripe. A lawsuit followed, and appeals were made to higher judicial bodies. The final decision has just been recorded in an Austrian paper.

Each party is to have the right to pick the berries which grow on his side of the line, just as it was originally, but neither may destroy the bush. The costs are charged half to each litigant. Each farmer had to pay 225 krone. The yearly yield of the bush is worth about one-half krone, and the judge told the fighting farmers:

"With good luck it will take you only 800 years to make the bush pay. Take good care of it."

Africans and the Locomotive.

The children of the desert were filled with awe when first the silence of the primeval solitude was broken by the puffing of the steam engine. Down at the other end of the Cape to Cairo line the simple Matabele, when first confronted by a locomotive, were certain that the strange machine was worked by the labor of an indefinite number of oxen, which they assumed were shut up inside; hence, when the engine stopped, they gathered in curious crowds, waiting to see the door open and the oxen come out, nor could they for many days be persuaded that the power of the locomotive could come from other than the strength of the ox.

The Arabs of the Sudan, more imaginative than the Matabele, saw in the fire horses of the railway one of the Djinns of the "Arabian Nights" harnessed by the magic of the infidel to the long train of cars. The steam engine was to them a living, sentient being, of which belief there is curious evidence in the fact that on one occasion a sheik made an impassioned remonstrance against the cruelty of making so small an engine draw so huge a train.

Composite Names.

"One of the differences between the east and the northwest," said a Puget sounder, "is the names of places, and the Skikomishes, the Snohomishes, the Snoqualmies, the Wahkiakums and the lot of them give a man funny feelings, and when he runs across Bucoda, on the Northern Pacific railroad in Pierce county, Wash., he doesn't know whether it is Chinook or Siwash or what. But it is none of them—like Kenova, in West Virginia, which is near the junction of Kentucky, Ohio and Virginia, or Delmar, where Delaware and Maryland come together. Bucoda is a composite name, and its story is simple enough. When the Northern Pacific came in a town sprang up, and it must have a name. There were Indian names in plenty, but something more novel was wanted, so Messrs. Buckley, Coulter and Davis, all Northern Pacific officials, put their heads together first and their names later, and the name Bu-co-da was evolved, with an etymology very apparent to any one who is at all informed in terminology. Bucoda it has remained, and it is not half bad as names go in the Puget sound country."

REUNION

A Colonial Family.

The Ellsworth family were very prominent people during the colonial period of our country, and were residents of Hartford, and Windsor, Conn.

Hon. Oliver Ellsworth was Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court for several years.

In 1807, Judge Ellsworth held the deed for over thirteen thousand acres of land, in what was then called "New Connecticut" or the great "Western Reserve," now constituting a large portion of the state of Ohio.

The Connecticut Land Company paid the state of Connecticut the sum of $1,200,000 for the land contained within the confines of the "Western Reserve."

My grandfather John, Stoughton Strong then of Marlborough, Vermont, but formerly of Stafford, Conn., was appointed by Gov. Caleb Strong and the Ellsworths as their agent to attend to this land purchase in the there far west.

His business relations with these eastern parties was the direct reason of his leaving his home in Vermont, and several business interests, then, to become a genuine pioneer in the wilds of Ohio in 1816.

During the past few years the heirs of Judge Oliver Ellsworth have given his fine Colonial Homestead at Windsor, Conn., erected by him in 1745, to the society of the Connecticut, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Near this historical mansion, there were formerly thirteen grand old trees, named for the thirteen original states.

During the Civil War, when South Carolina seceded from the Union, the tree that was named for this state was struck by lightning, and shattered.

In the kitchen of the homestead is a solid stone plink of which the D. A. R.'s are very proud.

Three years ago Mrs. Fairbanks, the wife of our Vice President was entertained in this colonial mansion by Mrs. E. A. Fuller of Suffield, Conn., and other D. A. R.'s.

Quite recently the Ellsworth family held their reunion at Devils lake. There were sixty-eight persons in attendance who came from different states.

The immediate family of the Lonave hero of the Rebellion was represented by Mrs. George Burroughs, nee Alice Ellsworth of Tecumseh.

The ladies of Ellsworths time commemorated the gallant Lonaves, and the heroic daring of the boy soldier in taking down the Rebel flag, by wearing a pretty jacket called "The Lonave." Music and poems were also composed in his honor.

HARRIETT STRONG-SNYDER.

TWO VERSIONS.

Story of the Climb as Told by the Tourist and the Guide.

"He was touring the Bernese Oberland. At the Bear hotel in Grindewald a mountaineer sat in the hall, a glass of beer before him and his feet, in their hobnailed mountain boots, extended toward the fire. The mountaineer had just made an ascent of the Tiger, and he talked like this about it:

"'Well, well, well, a climb indeed—four hours of incessant step cutting with an ax on an ice slope as smooth as glass and as steep as a wall. Look at this bunch of edelweiss. I spied it on the edge of a dreadful precipice. My guide refused to let me pluck it; said it was madness. For his part, he would not risk his life so foolishly. But at last, what with eloquence and an offer of 200 francs, I persuaded him to come along. The advance was awful. One misstep meant death. But I secured the flower, when suddenly the guide's foot slipped, he fell and began to roll toward the edge. But I thrust my ax firmly into the ice and, bracing myself, seized the rope that bound us together, and—the man was saved.'

"And at the same time in the hotel kitchen the guide was giving another version of the ascent in words like these:

"'Well, well, what a customer! Another like that chap and I give up the business. From the start he was faint and dizzy. In fact, wherever any real climbing began we had to carry him like a sack of meal. And mean! Refused us a single penny extra for all our extra trouble. Last of all, he begged for the sprig of eidelweiss I wore in my hat, and I was fool enough to let him have it.'"—New York Times.

An Unaccountable Failing.

It was a severe trial to Mr. Harding that his only son's memory was not all that could be desired. "Where in the world he got such a forgetful streak from is beyond me," said the exasperated father to his wife on one occasion.

"What has he forgotten now?" asked Mrs. Harding, with eyes downcast and a demure expression.

"The figures of the last return from the election on the bulletin board." And Mr. Harding inserted a finger in his collar as if to loosen it and shook his head vehemently. "Looked at 'em as he came past not half an hour ago, and now can't tell me.

"As I said to him, 'If you're so stupid you can't keep a few simple figures in your head, why don't you write 'em down on a piece of paper, as I do, and have done all my life, long before I was your age?'"

A Candle Trick.

Let a candle burn until it has a good long snuff, then blow it out with a sudden puff. A bright wreath of white smoke will curl up from the hot wick. Now, if a flame be applied to this smoke, even at a distance of two or three inches from the candle, the flame will run down the smoke and rekindle the wick in a very fantastic manner. To perform this ceremony nicely there must be no draft or "banging" doors while the mystic spell is rising.

His Fate.

The race of consequential vergers is not yet extinct. Dean Pigoe has a story about one of them, who, when a bishop asked him at what point he was to make his appearance, replied:

"First I take the choir people to their places, and then, after they are seated, I return for you, my lord, and conduct you to the halter."—London Telegraph.

Expected Reduction.

Grandpa Macpherson—How many do two and two make, Donald? Donald—Six. Grandpa—What are you talking about? Two and two make four. Donald—Yes, I know, but I thought you'd "beat me down"—a bit.—London Punch.

U. S. DISPENSATORY

Are we claiming too much for Peruna when we claim it to be an effective remedy for chronic catarrh? Have we abundant proof that Peruna is in reality such a catarrh remedy? Let us see what the United States Dispensatory says of the principal ingredients of Peruna.

Take, for instance, the ingredient hydrastis canadensis, or golden seal. The United States Dispensatory says of this herbal remedy, that it is largely employed in the treatment of depraved mucous membranes, chronic rhinitis (nasal catarrh), atonic dyspepsia (catarrh of the stomach), chronic intestinal catarrh, catarrhal jaundice (catarrh of the liver), and in diseased mucous membranes of the pelvic organs. It is also recommended for the treatment of various forms of diseases peculiar to women.

Another ingredient of Peruna, corydalis formosa, is classed in the United States Dispensatory as a tonic. So also is cubeba classed as a stomachic and as a tonic for the mucous membranes.

Cedron seeds is another ingredient of Peruna, an excellent drug that has been very largely overlooked by the medical profession for the past fifty years. The seeds are to be found in very few drug stores. The United States Dispensatory says of the action of cedron that it is used as a bitter tonic and in the treatment of dysentery, and in intermittent diseases as a substitute for quinine.

Oil of copaiba, another ingredient of Peruna, is classed by the United States Dispensatory as a mild stimulant and diuretic. It acts on the stomach and intestinal tract. It acts as a stimulant on the genito-urinary membranes. Useful in chronic cystitis, chronic dysentery and diarrhea, and some chronic diseases of the liver and kidneys.

Send to us for a free book of testimonials of what the people think of Peruna as a catarrh remedy. The best evidence is the testimony of those who have tried it.

Flint	54	61	.470
Bay City	45	71	.388

Battle Creek won a loose and hard hitting game from the Tecumseh Chiefs at Battle Creek on Tuesday, by the score of 8 to 6. The Creekits got to Doty in their half of the sixth getting five hits and three runs and winning the game in the next inning, on three safe hits. Features of the game were the double steal by Fox and Wagner, the hitting of Deneau and a home run by Freeland. Score:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Tecumseh	0	0	0	2	3	1	0	0	0	6	9	4

Batteries—Doty and Mitchell; Freeland and Reardon.

On Wednesday, Tecumseh turned the tables on Battle Creek, by hitting McCain, the twirler of the Battle Creek team, for 17 hits and nine runs. Battle Creek tied the score in the seventh inning, but the Indians came back in the eighth for five runs. The three base hit by Holmquist, and the stopping of a hard grounder by Deneau were features. Score:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E

Batteries—Holmquist and Mitchell; McCain and Reardon.

By bunching hits off Payne yesterday the Indians won the third game from Battle Creek, by a score of 10 and 5, making it two games out of the three. As a result Tecumseh holds 4th place this morning. After Goeshorn had allowed ten hits, Lagoe went in holding them to 4 hits and no runs in three innings. Score:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Tecumseh	0	0	0	4	3	0	2	0	1	—10	13	0

How Long Do Dreams Last?

How long do dreams last? A German savant is investigating the matter. But there is scarcely a doit who could not give him points and has not dreamed centuries in seconds. The dream, it may be stated, comes in the few seconds before the awakening and has no relation to time or space. This is clear enough to the man who has ever been placed under an anaesthetic for a short while and found time and space eliminated.

As an experiment this writer was placed under a whiff of chloroform by a doctor. Absolute unconsciousness supervened, then a return of consciousness, the questions of the universe, up through layers of consciousness, with always the feeling, "Now I have solved it," and the "No" and the "Yes" alternating through centuries of thought, and then the quizzical face of the doctor, remembered after a million years. "How long have you been under?" The experimenter struggled up and saw the doctor with his watch in hand. "Ten seconds," the doctor said, and the dreamer had been outside time for a time that has no measure.—London Chronicle.

A Great Artist Enraged.

Alma-Tadema has told a story of the fate of two unsuccessful pictures of his student days. One of them was returned unsold by the committee of the Brussels exhibition in 1850. The subject was a house on fire, with people rescuing the victims. The artist's fellow students were asked into Alma-Tadema's studio and were invited to jump through the canvas, the owner of it leading the way by leaping head first through the oily flames.

The other unsuccessful effort was a large sized square picture that came back again and again to its creator's easel until at last it was cut out of its frame and given to an old woman to use as a table cover.

The picture was praised by at least one person who appreciated its excellence, so Alma-Tadema used to declare, for the old woman was wont to remark that it was much better than those common oilcloth things that always let the water through, as the picture of Alma-Tadema's making was a good thick one, with plenty of paint on it.—Minneapolis Journal.

The Supposed Life on Mars.

Not only do the observations we have scanned lead us to the conclusion that Mars at this moment is inhabited, but they land us at the further one that these denizens are of an order whose acquaintance was worth the making. Whether we ever shall come to converse with them in any more instant way is a question upon which science at present has no data to decide. More important to us is the fact that they exist, made all the more interesting by their precedence of us in the path of evolution. Their presence certainly ousts us from any unique or self centered position in the solar system, but so with the world did the Copernican system the Ptolemaic, and the world survived this deposing change. So may man. To all who have a cosmoplanetary breadth of view it cannot but be pregnant to contemplate extra mundane life and to realize that we have warrant for believing that such life now inhabits the planet Mars.—Professor Lowell in Century.

A Big Snowfall.

The heaviest fall of snow that ever took place in England occurred in 1615. The snow commenced falling on the 16th of January, 1615, and continued every day until the 12th of March following. It covered the earth to such a depth that passengers, both horse and foot, passed over gates, hedges and walls, which had been obliterated by the white sheet. On the 12th of March it began to decrease and so by little and little consumed and wasted away till the 28th of May.

A heavy fall occurred in Scotland in 1620, the snow falling thirteen days and nights with little or no intermission.

One of the heaviest falls on a single day occurred on the 21st of February, 1762, the snow in some places being from ten to twelve feet deep.

AMUSEMENTS.

"The Cow-Puncher" one of the best plays of the season opens at the New Bradley opera house on Friday, Sept. 11. It is by Hal Reid and under the direction of W. F. Mann, which is a guarantee of its merits. One of the most amusing incidents in the piece and something unique in the way of an entrance occurs in the first act. The cow boys are assembled in front of the ranch house awaiting the arrival of the new owner, a young girl from the East, who is expected on the stage coach. Hearing the approach of the stage, they prepare to give the tenderfoot a genuine Western welcome, by showing her a mock lynching. Throwing a noose around the Mexican's neck, they string him up to a tree as Geraldine steps from the coach, expecting her to faint or show some signs of feminine weakness. But she cooly calls their attention to the fact that the noose is fastened under the right ear and suggests that they change it to the left as the man would hang easier. This turns the laugh on the boys and establishes her a warm favorite at once.

A Paying Investment.

Mr. John White of 38 Highland Ave., Houlton, Maine, says: "Have been troubled with a cough every winter and spring. Last winter I tried many advertised remedies, but the cough continued until I bought a 50c. bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery; before that was half gone, the cough was all gone. This winter the same happy result has followed; a few doses once more banished the annual cough. I am now convinced that Dr. King's New Discovery is the best of all cough and lung remedies." Sold under guarantee at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store. 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

PRIMARY ELECTION

Still a Guess, Warner or Bradley.

Returns This Morning Show Warner to Lead with 1,013 Plurality.

Five Precincts to Hear From Yet.

When the returns of the primary election from all over the state came Tuesday night, it was thought Bradley had been nominated for governor, and at noon on Wednesday. James Elliott, telephoned here that he had carried Michigan by about 3,000 votes. This morning's papers from Detroit claim that the total vote for Warner is 87,860. Total vote for Bradley 86,847, giving Warner a plurality of 1,013, and there are still five precincts to hear from.

The vote in this county was 1,689 for Bradley, and 1,087 for Warner.

MASONIC SCHOOL OF INSTRUCTION.

Grand Lecturer, Frank O. Gilbert, will hold a school of instruction at Tecumseh, on the afternoon and evening of Sept. 9. Onsted lodge will confer the 1st degree at 2:30 p.m. and the second degree will be given by the Clinton lodge. Dinner will be served at 6 o'clock. The Tecumseh lodge will confer the 3rd degree at 7:30.

DAVID HAGGART.

David Haggart, who attempted suicide last Monday morning by cutting his throat, died from his wounds Wednesday evening. Mr. Haggart was about 42 years of age and naturally a bright and intelligent fellow. He was a morphine fiend and had been trying to stop the habit which accounts for his rash act. He owned a nice farm just west of Clinton. The sympathy of many friends go out to the wife and daughter, Mrs. Eva Blatchford, who are left to mourn.

BROWNVILLE.

Miss Norah Camburn of Macon called at Mrs. Hornbaker's Tuesday.

Miss. Lena Washburn and brother Leon are spending a few weeks at Grand Rapids and Muskegon.

Miss Ethel Lindsley of Macon called on Mrs. Jas. Day Monday.

Mrs. Alvah White and son Clifford spent Sunday in Clinton.

Lee Lewis and wife of Brooklyn visited at Chas. Underwood's Sunday.

A dainty luncheon was served and the evenings enjoyment closed, with dancing. Those present from away were: Mesdames Mann of Richmond, Ind., Allen Bell of Bonne Terre, Mo., Alfred James of Detroit, Miss Winnifred DeWolfe of Kirksville, Mo., and Mr and Mrs M. G. Bangs of Oil City.

RALPH EDWIN COOK.

Ralph Edwin, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Cook, died at their home in Manton Thursday evening, August 27, of bowel trouble after an illness of a few days.

Little Ralph was a very sweet child, to know him was to love him and during his suffering he was patient never a murmur escaped his lips. His only wish was for papa, mamma and sister to be near him.

During the 3 years, 1 month and 9 days of his life he has been a constant joy to all around him and has left a precious memory for those who are called to mourn his loss.

"We will not say goodby but in a brighter clime bid him good morning."

CURE THE CAUSE

How to Remedy Much of the Suffering in Tecumseh.

Half of the sickness and suffering in Tecumseh come from a weak stomach. Cure the cause by using Mi-o-na Stomach Tablets and be well and happy.

Even the most chronic cases yield to Mi-o-na. W. C. Worrell, connected with the Lake Shore Railroad for years, says: "For fifteen years I had acute stomach trouble and nothing helped me. A friend recommended Mi-o-na and two boxes entirely cured me."

Cure the cause of your suffering and be well and happy.

If the stomach is weak and you have indigestion, flatulence, dizziness, headache, etc., get a 50-cent box of Mi-o-na from C. A. Wright & Son's drug store. They give an absolute guarantee to refund the money unless Mi-o-na cures.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold

A. J. Nusbaum, Batesville, Indiana, writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed to only agravate my case Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package, and it quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success."

When a man's wife tells him what she thinks of him she doesn't do anything of the sort.

He is an undeserving wretch who dodges what is coming to him and keeps roaring for his due.

Dyspepsia is America's cure. Burdock Blood Bitters conquers dyspepsia every time. It drives out impurities, tones the stomach, restores perfect digestion, normal weight, and good health.

OF INTEREST TO MANY

Foley's Kidney Cure will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble that is not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more.

The man who knows how to manage a woman, doesn't.

Whatever else you do when you start out to criticise your friend, talk about something else.

Kodal will, in a very short time, enable the stomach to do the work it should do, and the work it should do is to digest all the food you eat. When the stomach can't do it Kodal does it for it and in the meantimes the stomach is getting stronger and able to take up its regular natural work again. Kodal digests all you eat. It makes the stomach sweet and it is pleasant to take. It is sold here by all druggists.

Healthy kidneys filter the impurities from the blood, and unless they do this good health is impossible. Foley's Kidney Cure makes sound kidneys and will positively cure all forms of kidney and bladder disease. It strengthens the whole system.

It would save much guessing and straining if the psychological moment would always wear its label.

The courage of many a man lies wholly in his bank account.

Some girls find the most distressing thing about a broken engagement to be the giving back the diamond ring.

A COMMON ERROR.

The Same Mistake is Made by Many Tecumseh People.

It's a common error
To plaster the aching back,
To rub with liniments rheumatic joints.
When the trouble comes from the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.

Clark Decker, living at 130 West Maumee st., Adrian, Mich., says: "Before I used Doan's Kidney Pills I had such severe backaches that it was often difficult for me to move about and many times when getting up from a chair or a stooped position, I was compelled to place my hands to my hips and rise gradually. At night I could not sleep well and though I using many remedies and plasters my condition failed to improve. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills I procured a box at Wright & Son's drug store and they brought me prompt relief. I continued used them until completely cured."

Plenty more proof like this from Tecumseh people. Call at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store and ask what their customers report.

For Sale by all Dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sole Agents for the United States.

FIRES SWEEP NORTH.

Only Rain Will Prevent Further Heavy Losses.

Lake City, Mich., Sept. 3.—Forest fires are raging fiercely in Pioneer township, Missaukee. The old pine slashings have already been swept and the flames are entering the standing timber. The country is in a parched condition from the lack of rain and despite the efforts of the settlers and lumbermen considerable headway has already been made. Nothing but a heavy downpour can prevent widespread destruction.

Vast quantities of lumber and saw logs, including Iverson's saw mill and buildings, together with the home of many farmers, have been consumed. Upwards of 800,000 feet of lumber piled at the mill was destroyed, together with 10,000 cords of wood at the mill of Mitchell Bros. The damage is over $50,000.

The wind has shifted, thus relieving the danger to the village, but watchers have been posted should it again change.

Flames still sweep through Cheboygan, Charlevoix, Presque Isle, Otsego, Antrim, Montmorency, Alpena and down into Missaukee and Manistee.

Au Gres, Mich., Sept. 3.—Hundreds of lumbermen are at work drawing out the logs banked in the bush in the vicinity of Wheeler's Spur and Olmstead. The fires which have been raging for the past wek are drawing into close proximity to the standing timber, and all efforts to check their spread have been fruitless. Vast acres of slashings have been swept and the loss is heavy.

Gaylord, Mich., Sept. 3.—More than 100 square miles of pine slashings have been burned in this vicinity. The fires are still raging fiercely between here and Johannsburg.

Two Killed by a Train.

Bay City, Mich., Sept. 3.—A laundry wagon driven by John Guntermann, aged fifty-five, was struck by a Michigan Central train, instantly killing Harold Eckman, aged seven, who accompanied him. Guntermann died in the hospital. It is supposed that they were engaged in a conversation and did not see the train approach.

Falls to His Death.

Cleveland, Sept. 3.—Plunging forty feet from the bridge on which he was working, William Schroeder, structural ironworker of Saginaw, Mich., was dashed to death. Schroeder landed squarely on his head on a stone. The stone was broken into bits.

Beggars on Horseback.

"'Whoa, thar,' he says, pullin' up his hoss, and then he whines:

"'For the love o' charity, kind gent, would ye be so good as to gimme a crust o' bread for meself and a handful o' oats for the old mare?'"

The sailor smiled thoughtfully and stirred his ice cream soda with a long spoon.

"Yes, Hal," he resumed, "there's actual beggars on horseback in Roosia. They travels from town to town in caravans. They beg grub for themselves and fodder for their nags, just as I been tellin' ye.

"O' course, in the Argentine, where a hoss don't cost a song, it's only natural ye should see beggars on horseback, and I ain't sayin' nothin' about that. But in China they ride, too, while there's a Maltese beggar down Malta way what even drives a spring wagon an' takes his gal along. Interrupts his canoodlin' to ask you for a copper to stave off starvation, then starts right in again where he left off."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

HOW TO AVOID APPENDICITIS

Most victims of appendicitis are those who are habitually constipated. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup cures chronic constipation by stimulating the liver and bowels, and restores the natural action of the bowels. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup does not nauseate or gripe and is mild and pleasant to take. Refuse substitutes.

The Free Fall Festival held in Dundee last week was a complete success. You could shake hands with someone all the time that you had not seen for years, and there were good things to be bought at the different lunch counters to please the good appetite that many brought write them. The music by the Dundee band showed that Dundee possessed talent as well as good looks. Yes! good looks! for wasn't the business places all decorated. The high dive was made by Hi Hinkle.

The balloon ascension each night was fine, two ascensions were made by Hi Hinkle and one was made by Susan Raymond each doing the work fine. The rope walking was good and caused some of the ladies to tremble. Each day there was something doing and the crowds came in all kinds of rigs and autos were everywhere. The fun producer was there in the shape of confetti and it was sold to all who wanted to get even with someone who had thrown confetti on them. The young ladies and old ladies heads were decorated with it. The lady to get a prize for being the oldest lady was Mrs. Sophie Hoffman aged 93, prize $1.00. The oldest gentleman was Geo. Winters aged 88, prize $1.00. For the person coming the farthest to visit the festival the prize of $2.50 was Mrs. John Shertzer of Dewry, Oklahoma. The prize of $1.50 was C. F. W. Rawson of Paola, Kansas. The prize of $1.00 was won by Mrs. E. E. Ware of Independence, Kansas. The Gold Dust kids attended the Festival.

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

When you have a cold you may be sure that it has been caused indirectly by constipation and consequently you must first of all take something to move the bowels. This is what has made Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup so successful and so generally demanded. It does not constipate like most of the old fashioned cough cures, but on the order hand it gently moves the bowels and at the same time heals irritation and allays inflammation of the throat. Sold by all druggists.

CUTS BRADLEY'S COUNT.

Further Returns Are in Favor of Warner.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 3.—That Dr. James B. Bradley received the Republican nomination for governor by a plurality of considerably less than 2,000 over Fred M. Warner is indicated by late returns. Muskegon county, which was expected to greatly increase Bradley's lead, came through with a plurality of 731.

Although the few districts from which the total returns have not yet been received, are for the most part pro-Warner, their pluralities can serve but to cut down the difference between the victor and the vanquished.

The home counties of both Warner and Bradley stood by them well. Warner carried Oakland, where he lives, by something around 1,600, and Bradley carried Eaton, his home, by about 1,300. Earle carried two counties, Keweenaw and Kalkaska.

Warner carried fifty counties or over, and Bradley but a little more than thirty. The upper peninsula returns Warner from 3,000 to 5,000.

For the Democratic nomination only one candidate was voted for, Lawton T. Hemans. He is of course nominated, although his vote is even less than Earle's.

In but a comparatievly few senatorial districts were there contests. William A. Collins, for the Bay-Midland-Arenac district, leads Henry H. Aplin by a few hundred, with about one-third of the districts to be heard from. In the Barry-Eaton-Clinton district Representative Loren D. Dickinson beat Dr. Bradley's home senator, Karl Keyes, by 450 without Clinton's vote.

State Highway Commissioner Horatio S. Earle announces that he will resign his office the first of January. This is in accordance with a promise he declares he made early in the campaign.

Eaton Rapids, Mich., Sept. 3.—Auditor General Bradley has reached home.

"Do you think I'm nominated?" was his query when asked to express himself. "Yes, I guess I am. Of course I'm grateful. It has been a hard fight. The voters have expressed their choice, and now we ought to keep at it till we have a state wide primary law."

STOREKEEPER IS MURDERED.

Shot Down by Supposed Robbers Who Escape.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 3.—Daniel Walser, fifty-six yars old, a confectioner, was murdered at 10:30 o'clock last night at 705 Woodward avenue, which is his place of business and where he also resided alone.

He was shot twice, one bullet penetrating his left chest and the other striking his right arm. Information in the possession of the police leads to the belief that the crime was committed by two men and that the motive was burglary.

Charles F. Hartman, who conducts a grocery at 751 Woodward avenue, arrived near the place of the tragedy in time to see the old man fall face downward to the sidewalk. He saw two men run towards the Woodward avenue terraces and they disappeared in the darkness.

The victim was conveyed in the ambulance to Harper hospital, where he died.

Sherman Guest of Welsh Singers.

Richfield Springs, N. Y., Sept. 3.—James S. Sherman, the Republican candidate for the vice presidency, was the guest of honor of the Welsh societies at their national eisteddfod Wednesday, and all the village was decorated with flags and bunting in honor of his presence. Mr. Sherman received an ovation everywhere he went. Nearly a thousand singers participated in the festivities.

Pacific Fleet Reaches Honolulu.

Honolulu, Sept. 3.—The Pacific fleet has arrived in the harbor. The towing of torpedo boat destroyers by the cruisers of the fleet was proved more or less of a success in the cases of the Preole and Perry, which did not part their lines during the voyage from San Francisco. The Whipple was obliged once to slacken speed because of a changing line. The lines to the four remaining tows parted once or twice in each istance.

BIG RACE FOR HOMES

Cherokee Strip Opening to Be Elaborately Commemorated.

OLD HORSES ARE TO PARADE.

Surviving Steeds That Took Part in Contest in Which One Hundred and Sixty Acre Homesteads Were the Prizes—Experiences of Two Contestants.

Twenty-five horses, each over twenty years old, will be the feature of a parade in Perry, Okla., on Sept. 16, when the opening of the Cherokee strip will be commemorated, the fifteenth anniversary of the biggest horse race on record, in which the prizes were 160 acre homesteads. These old horses are survivors of the thousands that participated in that race and each represents a home won for his owner.

The great majority of them have not for years felt a halter about their necks, having earned their unfettered freedom by the prizes they won back in 1893. Stiff kneed, unable to move much faster than a walk, they will be the center attraction of the celebration.

While the anniversary of the Cherokee strip opening is celebrated annually, preparations are being made to observe the day on a more elaborate scale this year, says a Guthrie (Okla.) correspondent of the New York Sun. Celebrations will also be held at Blackwell, Ponca City, Alva, Bond Creek, Cherokee, Medford, Newkirk and other towns in the strip, but the main event will be at Perry, because of the old horse feature. Other features of the day will be 10,000 ice cold watermelons to be given gratis to the crowd, a barbecue, a live stock and agricultural show, and addresses by politicians.

A worse day than that Sept. 16, 1893, when the strip was opened to white settlement, is not remembered in northern Oklahoma. The wind was blowing a hurricane from the south, and the air was thick with sand, dust and smoke, which so begrimed the people that it was impossible after a short time for a man to recognize even his own brother.

From the point where the Arkansas river crosses into Oklahoma, the river being the dividing line within Oklahoma between the Cherokee strip on the west and the Kaw, Ponca and Otsego Indian nations on the east, and westward for many miles along the Kansas boundary was a solid mass of men and women, horses and vehicles of every kind, all crowded close to the line waiting for the signal that would begin the great race for homes. On the strip side of the line were stationed United States cavalrymen to prevent any one crossing the line ahead of time.

The refusal of one man from somewhere back east to wait for the signal to start cost him his life. He was on the boundary line just west of the Otoe Indian school reservation and was mounted on one of the speediest horses in the crowd. Breaking out of the line only a few minutes before the signal was given, the stranger started into the strip at full speed.

The cavalryman on guard at that point called to the stranger to halt, but the order was ignored, the horse being urged to faster speed. Then the cavalryman fired and shot the man through the head. The man fell from his horse dead. The cavalryman was afterward tried and acquitted.

Exactly at noon the signal was given by the cavalrymen for the start, and great crowds broke into the race like a cavalry charge. The eager rush for homes was on, and within a few hours the Cherokee strip, where in the morning there was not a white man excepting the soldiers, had a population of thousands.

The towns sprang up rapidly. One of the closest to the Kansas line was the town site of Blackwell. Up to 2 p. m. it was a stretch of raw prairie, but when the sun went down there was a tented city of 2,000 people. Business was opened in tents, banking was done, a postoffice established, hotels furnished—all in tents.

In the crowd that made the race was a party of Missourians from Macon county, and James Robison, now living at Tonkawa, relates an interesting incident that occurred while the race was at its hottest. They arrived on the southern Kansas line about a week before the opening, and Robison and his friends employed the time in getting their horses ready.

Each day they took the horses out, walked them for a time, then trotted them several miles, ending each day's exercise with a five mile gallop. The animals were in good condition, and each won a good claim. In behalf of that day Robison says:

"The funniest incident I saw during the run was a man riding an old white mule. For a saddle he had had quilts strapped on the mule with a surcingle. To urge the mule to his best speed the rider was using some things that looked like a geometrick, and at every jump he struck the mule with the stick.

"I called the attention of the other boys with me to the sight, and one of them laughed so hard that he fell from his horse, delaying him for some time. I do not know whatever became of the man and the white mule, for we left them behind several miles north of Blackwell.

"The contest that day was certainly a great sight. Had I not obtained a foot of land I would have considered the experiences of the race worth all it cost me. The plunging, foaming, snorting horses, the excited riders waving to and fro, some struggling to retain their seats in the saddles, some leaning away forward and urging their horses to greater speed, some yelling to companions, others cursing strangers who blocked the way, still others shouting with laughter at ridiculous incidents, garments flapping in the wind, hair flying wildly—all this presented a spectacle never to be forgotten."

Ex-Congressman Rhodes of the Thirteenth Missouri district was one of the men who made the race. He was just out of school when the time for the opening came, and he was in Arkansas City, Kan., several weeks ahead of time. His roommate was Jere Johnson, editor-owner of the Republican-News-Journal at Newkirk. Of his experience Johnson says:

"When we went to Rhodes' room he showed us his preparations for the race. He had an ax and a hatchet, a secondhand Winchester rifle, a big haversack and a canteen made by soldering two dishpans together. He put on his accouterments for our edification, and we duly approved thereof.

"We didn't know anything about the new country, but we coached Rhodes where to get off the first train that was run down the Santa Fe when the signal for the start was given. He followed our directions and got off the train at Kildare, running like a fleet footed deer, handicapped and weighed down as he was, and then he sat down on a claim in Turkey Creek canyon, about the roughest piece of ground in Kay county.

"He remained in the canyon until nightfall, and then a lone coyote made him believe he was surrounded with wild beasts. He fled to Kildare, and to this day when we feel blue and need a laugh we remember the howl of hawhaws from the crowd at the tent grocery whenever Rhodes would tell his experiences getting a claim, winding up always with the remark that the 'dum' wolves drove him off.

"Rhodes did not remain long in Oklahoma, leaving it in disgust and returning to Missouri. Where he located his claim near Kildare is now the center of the main Oklahoma wheat belt, and that claim from which he was frightened by coyotes is today worth more than $6,000."

ROCKEFELLER'S ANCESTORS.

Barons in France, and John D. Was Not the Original Money Maker.

At the annual reunion of the Rockefeller Family association in Albany the other day there was read the report of Dr. Aaron R. Lewis, who last year was commissioned to trace the Rockefeller family history in Europe.

Dr. Lewis reported that his researches resulted in the discovery that the ancestors of the Rockefellers in southern France were barons and that the south of France ancestry dates back further than any of the other branches. The German branch, which heretofore had been considered the original branch, is merely a branch of the French family.

Dr. Lewis said he had traced the Rockefeller ancestry back to 950 A. D. He found in the little village of Fahr twelve families of the name of Rockefeller, who told him to tell the American Rockefellers that they need never be ashamed of their German cousins, as they were all law abiding, peaceful and industrious citizens.

Dr. Lewis' investigation also reveals the fact that John D. was not the original money maker of the family, as he found in France coins of the year 1500 A. D. made by the titled Rockefellers and bearing their name. Many of the Huguenot members of the family fled to Germany under the persecution of Louis XIII., thus establishing the family in that country.

The coat of arms of the Rockefeller family consists of two rocks on red fields and two horns on white fields with a helmet as a crest and a Latin motto which, being translated, means "None more faithful." This coat of arms dates back to 1250 A. D. Dr. Lewis, however, during his researches discovered a still older Rockefeller coat of arms, dated 1050 A. D., having for its motto "Honor remains with me; it is sufficient."

A Woman's Heroism.

History has presented few examples of greater heroism than that of Mrs. S. J. Rooke, the telephone operator of Folsom, N. M., who, when warned by a resident of the hills to flee for her life from the flood speeding to engulf the valley, rejected the opportunity to save herself and employed the hour that intervened between the warning received and her own death by drowning in calling up subscribers by telephone and acquainting them of their danger. More than forty families have already acknowledged their lives were saved through the magnificent courage of the frail woman, whose lifeless body with the telephone headpiece still adjusted to her ears, was found twelve miles down the canyon.

LONG OCEAN HIGHWAY

Governor Fort Proposes Boulevard Along New Jersey Coast.

STATE TO BUILD AND OWN IT.

Pictures in a Speech an Unbroken City Along One Hundred and Twenty-seven Miles of Coast From Atlantic Highlands to Cape May in Fifty Years' Time.

At a dinner given in his honor at the West End cottages, Long Branch, the other night by prominent north Jersey ocean front property owners Governor John Franklin Fort of New Jersey unfolded his plans for an ocean boulevard extending from Atlantic Highlands to Cape May.

In Governor Fort's campaign last fall he promised the people of New Jersey, among other things, that if elected he would use the influence of his office to bring about, if possible by means of state aid, the construction of an ocean drive such as he discussed at the recent dinner. The governor referred to the coast as Jersey's greatest asset.

"I am a great believer in the New Jersey coast," the governor declared. "Legislation must be general and restrictions as liberal as is consistent with good government. From Sandy Hook to Cape May light there are 127 miles of coast land for residences and as fine a surf for bathing as can be found anywhere in the world. In fifty years our children will see practically an unbroken city along this coast and living in it 2,500,000 people during at least three months in the year. Anything and everything that the state can do to insure to those now here and those to come greater attractions should be done.

"This condition necessitates roads, and the condition of our roads will probably have more to do with determining the success of the future of the coast than any other single thing. Save at the Highlands there are no hills to encounter and no rocks to blast in road construction on our entire coast. Besides that, in the small hills just back of the coast nature has placed as fine gravel for road building as can be found anywhere. Given these two natural advantages, the level land and the road material, it should not be difficult or expensive to build and keep up our coast roads.

"All the New Jersey coast towns should be linked together by a single road system and all inland towns of the state, from county seat to county seat, from Newton, in Sussex, to Cape May, there should be a continuous highway. These two highways, the one on the east coast and the inland one, should in my view be under state supervision and built where not now built at state expense and hereafter maintained by the state without cost to the local municipality. To insure this being done the municipal governments will no doubt voluntarily transfer the control of such a road to the state. They probably would do this gladly if they were relieved from local taxation as a result.

"The cost of this enterprise will not be prohibitive. It is believed that the entire work, including all necessary bridging, with the widening where necessary of existing roads and the completion of the roadbed from curb to curb, can be done inside of an expenditure of $400,000. So also would the expense of repair of the proposed state road from county town to county town be reduced under the state road department. It is estimated that the cost of keeping both these ways in repair after they are once in good order will be about $1,000 a mile.

"These roads of necessity will be used very greatly for automobile travel. The figures which I am given by the automobile department of the state show that the revenue from licenses and fees under our present automobile laws will not be less than $175,000 a year. By utilizing a portion of these fees under legislative authority, if it can be obtained, we shall have the revenue to repair these great highways through the state."

Referring to the objection raised by the Ocean Grove association to the proposed boulevard, the governor said:

"A solution of the problem here may be found in slightly lowering the roadway at certain streets and by the fencing in of the roadway and the construction over it of footpaths, so that it will not in any way interfere with Ocean Grove's seclusion."

The governor said he should not discuss the question of automobile legislation beyond saying that he had in view a suggestion looking to united action, through their governors, by the states of Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland in the matters of licensing and speed regulation.

MOVE FOR NEW FLAG.

Why Cleveland Architect Wants Old Glory Remodeled.

NOT SYMMETRICAL, HE SAYS.

John Eisenman Would Put Field of Stars in Center Instead of Corner of Bunting—Wants Original Thirteen Stars Colored Red—Says His Plan Will Allow For Future Growth.

John Eisenman, an architect in Cleveland, O., proposes to remodel the star spangled banner. He has started a movement to that end which will soon reach congress in formal fashion. As an architect Eisenman says the flag is not symmetrical. Besides, it has other faults. What the G. A. R. veterans who carried the banner into battle will say to the remodeling effort is another story.

Eisenman has drawn a plan for a new flag, a flag that will be symmetrical. He will give this design to the United States government. The principal change he wants is dropping the union, the blue, star spotted field, from the upper left hand corner to the middle of the bunting, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. In the Eisenman design this union has stripes above as well as below it. In addition to this the architect proposes to color the original thirteen stars red and make them six pointed, leaving the stars for the other states white and five pointed as they now are. The original flag, which carried but thirteen stars, had six pointed ones.

Still another modification urged by Eisenman is the representation of the territories, possessions and District of Columbia by white disks located among the white stars that stand for the states. Arizona, New Mexico, Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico, the Philippines and any other odd bits of territory acquired in the future would be entitled to disks. At present the blue field carries stars only for states actually within the Union.

Eisenman's arguments is that his scheme will allow for all future growth by the United States. If Arizona and New Mexico are admitted, for instance, it will not be necessary to rearrange the design of the union, as the case is now. Just turn a disk already on the blue field into a five pointed star and there you are. Moreover, his symmetrical design will admit of enlarging the union in a fashion to retain the proportions of the flag. With the present flag the union has been growing as new states have been added, while the rest of the flag retained the same size as before.

Artists have objected that decorators could use the flag in but one position because it would otherwise appear with the union upside down, in which position it is a signal of distress. Mr. Eisenman argues that his design would permit decorators twisting and turning the folds in any fashion. In answer to the objection that this robs the standard of its utility as a distress signal he explains that ships which wish to use it so can fly it at half mast.

In the last congress Representative Ansberry of the Fifth Ohio district introduced a bill to rearrange the design of the union. A constituent of his had devised an arrangement of the stars that would always be symmetrical and allow for the addition of as many as congress may please without having this symmetry disturbed. The last congress showed no disposition to consider the Ansberry flag very carefully. Eisenman in spite of this has hope that his plan will appear so sensible that the statesmen will hasten to wave the Eisenman flag and relegate that of Betsy Ross to historical museums.

The Cleveland architect, to be sure, has some experience with flags and legislative bodies. When Eisenman designed the Ohio building for the Pan-American exposition he asked for the Ohio flag to fly above it. He found that no Ohio flag existed. To remedy that defect Mr. Eisenman designed one and subsequently persuaded the legislature to adopt it. The Ohio Eisenman flag has two stripes, red and white, with a trangular union of blue which contains a round red O with a white center.

The peculiar shape of this union and the fancied resemblance of this round red O to a cherry led some cynic to dub this ensign the "cocktail flag."

Hall of Fame For Navy Men.

The body of John Paul Jones is not to occupy alone the new chapel crypt at the Naval academy in Annapolis, Md. It will also contain memorial tablets or statuary commemorative of officers of the United States navy who in time of war have rendered such important and distinguished service to the nation as to mark them the leading naval officers of their time. This particular class of memorials will never under any circumstances be accepted or installed in the crypt until at least five years after the death of the officers in question.

How to get Strong.

P. J. Daly of 1247 W. Congress St., Chicago, tells of a way to become strong: He says: "My mother, who is old and was very feeble, is deriving so much benefit from Electric Bitters, that I feel it's my duty to tell those who need a tonic and strengthening medicine about it. In my mother's case a marked gain in flesh has resulted, insomnia has been overcome, and she is steadily growing stronger." Electric Bitters quickly remedy stomach, liver and kidney complaints. Sold under guarantee at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store 50c.

THE GRAMPUS GOURMET.

This Marine Monster's Prey Is the Bowhead Whale.

"Of all the gourmets on land or water," said the captain, "commend me to the grampus."

The ladies at the captain's table looked with inquiring smiles at the handsome sailor.

"The grampus," he went on, "is a kind of overgrown shark or a kind of undersized fighting whale. You can take your choice. At any rate, he is a terrible creature to meet with if you happen to be aquatic.

"He and his mate travel together. Sometimes they have a friend along—big, fine, strong chap, as such friends usually are. And their game is the bowhead whale.

"When they find a whale they go at him. They stick to him invincibly. They punch and thump till he is as limp as a rope of seaweed with exhaustion. Then, by means of one horrible deed, they show their unexampled gluttony.

"They take hold of the whale's lower lip; they hang their weight on it until it drops open. Then in go their heads, disappearing inside that great red mouth, that warm, moist cavern of scarlet, and they eat in there the whale's tongue, a tender morsel, very rich and delicate.

"The tongue consumed, they go on their way again, leaving the whale to die slowly."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

WHITE ISLAND.

Its Strange Lakes, Sulphur Fumes and Clouds of Steam.

White Island, a New Zealand natural wonder, derives its name from the clouds of white steam in which it appears to be continually enveloped. Its area is only 600 acres and its height about 880 feet above the sea level.

In form and color it is like a reposing camel, while its interior, with its gray, weather beaten, almost perpendicular cliffs, recalls the Coliseum at Rome. Overhanging the southern landing place stands a column of rock closely resembling a sentinel, which has been dedicated to the memory of Captain Cook. The water of the island is of a pale green hue, and anything dipped into it becomes of a red brick color. The fumes of sulphur are always plainly perceptible.

On a fine moonlight night a wonderful sight is afforded to any one who will sit in an open boat in one of the lakes of the island. Covering an area of fifty acres is an immense caldron, hissing and snorting and sending forth volumes of poisonous steam, while all chances of egress appear to be denied by the steep, silent and gloomy cliffs.—British Australian.

Flying Fish.

Interesting are the habits of the flying fish, that queer denizen of the sea found principally in the region of the trade winds. "Does it rise from the sea like a bird?" you ask. No. It shoots out of the waves like an arrow, and with outspreading wings sails on the wind in graceful curves, rising sometimes, one might say, to the height of fifteen feet, but not often so high, and then, lowering, it again touches the crest of a wave and renews its flight. This operation may be repeated till it covers a distance, say, of 500 yards in the case of the stoutest on the wing, though very often not half that distance is covered. A ship sailing through the trade winds will often be visited on dark nights by flying fish which hit the sails or rigging and fall on deck, where of course they soon give up life.—St. Nicholas.

Sponges Are Sunstruck.

The sponge being an animal, it is necessary to kill it. This is done by exposing it for several hours on the broad decks of the boats. In summer sponges soon die, but in winter take a long time owing to weaker force of the sun. After death they are brought ashore and put in the cradles. These are inclosures made on the seashore by setting stakes a little apart from each other. The ebb and flow of the tide wash the animal matter from the sponges, and the work is completed by manual labor. They are then taken to the packing house, graded, strung, baled and dispatched to their destination.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Perfectly Correct.

A shopkeeper had stuck up a notice in glaring colors and very large letters: Selling Off! Must Close on Saturday!"

On Friday he was asked by a friend: "What! Are you selling off again?"

"Certainly. All the shopkeepers are selling off, ain't they?"

"Of course they are. But you say, 'Must close on Saturday.'"

"Certainly I must. You would not have me keep open on Sunday, would you?"

Fatalities.

"Yes," said the beauteous young thing, "when I asked papa if I might go mountain climbing he took my head off. But I had my own way, of course, and finally the crowd got started, and you know they made me put on a lot of wraps and things that simply suffocated me. And about halfway up I slipped and fell over a cliff and broke my neck! Indeed, yes. And when they had lifted and pulled me back on the trail I absolutely died from pain. But before long I was able to go on to the top, but by the time we were almost there I collapsed and sat down, for I could never breathe again. But they made me pull myself together and in time we got to the summit, and there it was so cold I froze to death! Oo-ooh! And I was glad, I can tell you, when we came down at last, and as soon as they got me home I went to bed, dead from exhaustion."—Independent.

OLD TIME ZOOLOGY.

The Queer Insects Lawson Discovered in North Carolina.

In the Raleigh state library is an interesting old volume presented by President Madison in 1831. This quaint book is the first history of North Carolina, written in 1711 by "John Lawson, Gent," a surveyor general of the lords proprietors. The history is well worth reading, but perhaps the most entertaining portion of its many pages is that in which Mr. Lawson describes the flora and fauna of the new country. He is evidently the ancestor of the railway conductor who decided that, according to the rules of the road, "dogs is dogs and cats is dogs, but turtles is insects."

"We will next treat of Beasts," says the historian. "The chief are the Buffelo, or Wild Beef; the Tyger; the Bever; and the Bearmouse. The Buffelo is a Wild Beast of America which has a Bunch on his Back. These monsters are found to weigh (as I am informed by a Traveller of Credit) from 1100 to 2400 weight.

"The Bat or Bearmouse is the same as in England. I have put this among the Beasts as partaking of both the Nature of the Bird and the Mouse. Now I shall proceed to the known Insects of the Place.

"Insects of North Carolina: Allegators, Rattlesnakes, Frogs, Vipers, Tortols, Terebin, Rottenwood Worms (etc.).

"The Allegator is the same as the Crocodile. After the Tall of the Allegator is removed from the Body it will move freely for several Days. I have named these among the Insects because they lay Eggs, and I did not know well where else to put them."

FERN LEAVES.

They Are Valuable For Preserving Articles of Food.

The fern plant, which grows almost everywhere, is an excellent preservative for packing articles of food, fruit, etc. People who have lived in England know that the English have used it successfully for many years. Valuable fruit, fresh butter, etc., are no longer seen in the English markets packed in grapevine leaves, but almost always in fresh fern leaves, which keep the articles excellently. This is done where grapevine leaves are to be had in abundance. Every one posted well in botany knows the high preservative power of fern leaves with reference to vegetable and animal substances.

On the Isle of Man fresh herrings are packed in ferns and arrive on the market in as fresh a condition as when they were shipped. Potatoes packed in ferns keep many months longer than others packed only in straw. Experiments made with both straw and fern leaves in the same cellar showed surprising results in favor of ferns. While the potatoes packed in straw mostly showed signs of rotting in the spring, those in ferns were as fresh as if they had just been dug.

Fresh meat is also well preserved by fern leaves. It would seem as if the highly preservative qualities of fern leaves are due to their high percentage of salt. No larvae, maggots, etc., approach ferns, as the strong odor keeps them away.—New York Times.

Postmaster Not to Be Hurried.

A nobleman's new land agent and steward, who went to live on the estates about fifteen miles from Granada, sent letters to the village postoffice every day for three weeks, but got no replies. Thinking this very strange, he rode over to the village and interviewed the postmaster.

"Oh," exclaimed the postmaster, "you are the new agent on the ducal estates! Well, your letters are all safe. The villagers rarely write letters, and as I have to ride on my donkey four miles to the railway station to catch the mail train you don't suppose for one moment, do you, that I am going to undertake this pilgrimage every day with your stupid letters? I have them all here in a broken jug, and when the jug gets full I shall take a ride to the station and post the whole lot at once."

Couldn't Keep Track of Them.

Martin Littleton, the famous lawyer of New York, is one of a family of nineteen children, so they say, born to a heritage of poverty and pluck. When he was a small lad down in Texas he fell into the creek one day, and Michael, the next younger brother, ran whimpering to Littleton, the elder: "Dad, dad! Martin is drowning!"

"Martin, Martin!" repeated the father of nineteen. Then he turned dubiously to his wife.

"Nora," he inquired anxiously, "have we a Martin?"

Money Shower For Charivari Party.

George Wingfield and his bride, who was Banker Murphy's daughter of San Francisco, recently returned to Goldfield, Nev., from a wedding tour in southern California, where they were entertained by the elite, and now occupy apartments in the Consolidated Mines office building. A charivari party assembled below Goldfield's tallest office structure the evening of their homecoming, and when the noise of the tomtoms and ill-tuned band started the millionaire mine owner stepped to the fourth story window and showered the crowd with silver dollars. The music stopped when the money dropped, and the "society" people in the party scrambled wildly for a share of the spoils. News of Wingfield's generosity spread around Goldfield, and a second crowd waited on him quite late. He again appeared with a shower of dollars. It is said that he gave away $700 in this way.

PHARAOH THE OPPRESSOR.

This Is the Rameses Who Looms Over the Egypt of Today.

Like a cloud, a great golden cloud, a glory impending that will not, cannot, be dissolved into the ether, he (Rameses) loomed over the Egypt that is dead; he looms over the Egypt of today. Everywhere you meet his traces; everywhere you hear his name. You say to a tall young Egyptian, "How big you are growing, Hassan!"

He answers, "Come back next year, my gentleman, and I shall be like Rameses the Great."

Or you ask of the boatman who rows you, "How can you pull all day against the current of the Nile?" And he smiles, and, lifting his brown arm, he says to you, "Look; I am as strong as Rameses the Great."

This familiar fame comes down through some 3,220 years. Carved upon limestone and granite, now it seems engraven also on every Egyptian heart that beats not only with the movement of shadoof or is not buried in the black soil fertilized by Hapi. Thus can inordinate vanity prolong the true triumph of genius and impress its own view of itself upon the minds of millions. This Rameses is believed to be the pharaoh who oppressed the children of Israel.—Robert Hichens in Century.

THE LANGUAGE PUZZLE.

China's Forty Thousand Signs and Symbols to Perplex the Linguist.

The language known as Wen-li is the medium by which the classical books of China have been handed down. It is par excellence the written language of China, but it is not generally understood by the great mass of the people. The spoken language—namely, Mandarin—may also be written, and there is a good deal of colloquial literature in Mandarin. Versions of the Bible in the local patois have also been produced in several districts of the southwest, where the dialects are very numerous and diverse.

In the Chinese written language there are over 40,000 distinct characters or symbols, and this vast number is being constantly increased by the addition of new characters to represent new scientific words and modern ideas.

Although the Chinese are considered a literary people and have naturally a desire for education, yet owing to the extreme difficulty of mastering the Chinese characters it is estimated that only one in ten of the population can read or write.—Contemporary Review.

Storm Talk.

"Shipwreck affects people in odd ways," said the captain, beaming brightly on the two rows of ladies at his table in the saloon.

The wind roared, a great wave shook the boat, and a matron, with a low cry, received a plate of hot soup in her lap.

"An Indian colonel," the captain resumed, "rushed to the bathroom when his boat sprung aleak and drowned himself in the tub out of sheer terror.

"There was an Anglo-Indian actor who broke a pretty girl's leg by hurling his heavy cabin trunk down into the lifeboat on her. Of course we slung the trunk overboard at once, but there was the broken leg, not so easy to get rid of.

Still Susceptible.

He was a nervous, fidgety young man, and he looked with considerable apprehension at the woman next him, who held a baby, its face covered with a thick veil. The baby gave now and then a sharp cry, which the woman evidently tried to suppress.

At last, after many anxious glances, the young man spoke.

"Has—has that baby any—anything contagious?" he asked.

The woman looked at him with a mixture of scorn and pity.

"'Twouldn't be for most folks," she said in a clear, carrying tone, "but maybe 'twould for you. He's teething."

Make yourself a sheep and the wolves will eat you.—Italian Proverb.

Any one with a love of queer names should study the names of past lord mayors of London. Besides one or two that are merely uncommon and did not belong to men of any distinction, such as Sir Richard Spaa, mayor in 1482, there are some that deserve notice also for the sake of those who bore them. There was Sir John Brugges in 1520, whose ancestor fought at Agincourt, when, curiously enough, the name had the more modern form of Brydges. There was Alderman Micajah Perry in 1739, who laid the first stone of the Mansion House, and Sir Benjamin Hamet, who was fined £1,000 in 1797 for refusing to act as mayor—positively a cheap way of getting out of it.

The most appropriately named lord mayor seems, however, to have been the cheerful Sir Robert Viner, who entertained Charles II. and drank the king's health so often as to become unduly merry. The king tactfully sought to retire, but Viner plucked him by the sleeve and vowed he should "stay and take the other bottle!" Charles II., never at a loss, complied, murmuring, "He that is drunk is as great as a king."—St. James' Gazette.

REMINISCENCES

JUST A LOOK BACKWARD.

It was a wide eyed and wondering little girl, that landed in Tecumseh some 50 years ago, and also a very surprised one for when the journey to far away Michigan was planned in the home in New York, visions of the wild lands and wilder Indians presented themselves to the group of school girls and boys, who looked upon us in wonder as daring such a trip.

But lo and behold a pretty little village with everything civilized and up to date It was in the month of March, and we rode to the depot over fences and through drifts of snow, such as Tecumseh has never seen. Men and ox teams had worked faithfully to cut a road. Nor was March as spring like as here in the west for we rode from the depot through a little mud and slush left by a gentle rain of the night before.

Our first home was in the house now owned by Mrs. Helen Clark, and the house just south of Mrs. Whittiers was then used as a wagon shop below, and a paint shop above, and was considered quite a business proposition. Mrs. Gilman's house was a carpenters shop, occupied by Uncle Murray, whose new brick house on the corner of Chicago and Maiden lane was considered one of the finest in the village. A little old house on the corner east, was occupied by the Methodist minister, at one time the Presbyterian.

Later Aunt Lucia Gray, a maiden lady kept a select school, in the small house just back of Mr. Shutts. On the corner where the M. E. church stands was the old temperance house, and my earliest recollection is of the time, when Mr. Clark, Mrs. Cummins father was running it.

Our neighbor east was Mrs. Blodgett, a sister of Mrs. Cummins; west was the home of James Osborn, this being a part of the home where Mrs. Jackson now lives.

Across the street north lived Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Young, and later Grandpa Cummins, lived in the house west, where the Presbyterian parsonage is now located.

Mr. Webster Anderson was then living in the house now occupied by Mr. Lowe, but soon moved away, and Mr. E. B. Wood succeeded him. On the block north of us was the home of the Croseman's and my first real girl acquaintance was with Anuette and Emma. The rest of the block was the part of an orchard. But a few years brought great changes. I can remember the old hopyard, that extended from the corner of Mrs. Wood's present home, nearly up to the home of Charles Bidwell. This house stood close to the street, and later we occupied it for a year, while building our present home.

Here we watched the growth of the street, Mrs. Webster first built her little home, then D. C. Larned built the cottage where William Powell now resides, Later, in war times, Mr. Hendryx built the house now owned by Charles Patterson. It was a large frame and was roofed and boarded up, without a door or window, and stood for a long time before it was again in the hands of the carpenter. The march of improvement has wrought many wonders, in our neighborhood, and it would take pages to recount them.

My first school days were spent in the old university. Just a few weeks, and we were a proud lot of school children, when we took possession of our new schoolhouse, now our Central School.

But I weary you and so reminisce no longer. L. J. T.

REUNION

Messmates of 38th Ohio Veteran Volunteer Infantry Meet in Toldeo.

Alva Spayde One of the Number.

We clip the following item from Thursday's Toledo Blade. Mr. Weamer came to Tecumseh and visited Mr. Spayde on Friday.

I. R. Weamer, one of four brothers, who enlisted from three states during the war, came from Chicago Wednesday to march in the parade with his old regiment, the 38th Ohio Veteran Volunteer Infantry. For the first time since the regiment was mustered out, July 29, 1865, Weamer found three of his mess mates. A mess, in military parlance, means six men who eat together. Four of this particular six marched together in the parade yesterday. One of the missing is dead, and the sixth may be dead also, for all trace of him has been lost. Weamer's mesmates, who held a reunion of their own on Wednesday, were Webb Freece and Rob Babcock of Napoleon, O., and A. Spayde of Tecumseh, Mich.

Awed by the Beau.

When Beau Brummel, the celebrated dandy, was, in consequence of his fallen fortunes, residing at Calais, he had occasion to visit Paris. Through the kindness of the consul at the former place he was enabled to accompany a king's messenger to the capital and thus travel free of expense. When the messenger returned, the consul was curious to know how he and his aristocratic companion had fraternized upon the road. "What kind of a traveling companion did you find Mr. Brummel?" asked he. "Oh, a very pleasant one, indeed, sir; very pleasant," replied the messenger. "Ah! And what did he say?" "Say, sir? Nothing! He slept the whole way." "Slept the whole way! Do you call that being pleasant? Perhaps he snored!" The messenger acknowledged that Brummel did so, but immediately, as if fearful of casting an improper reflection upon so great a personage, he added, with great gravity, "Yet I can assure you, sir, Mr. Brummel snored very much like a gentleman!"—Argonaut.

Three Thousand People Without Home or Food.

The Hustler Office Was Saved.

Word comes from Rawhide, Nev., that on Friday, Sept. 4, the city was almost wiped out by fire, which started in Dr. Gardner's office in the Rawhide drug company building. The entire business portion of the city was burned except the Rawhide Hustler Newspaper office, where Carl Updyke, formerly of this place, is employed

The first building to burn was the hardware, in which were two tons of dynamite

A famine is feared as grocery stores and supply houses were wiped out. Three thousand people are homeless and many without food

The loss in property is $750,000.

The city was only nine months old, but had grown rapidly in that time.

Plans are well under way to rebuild.

What He Did Know.

St. Thomas' Episcopal church, in Fifth avenue, has under its jurisdiction an east side chapel. One of the features of the chapel is a gymnasium, in which boys are trained in all of the branches of physical culture. Some of the boys are quicker in this sort of training than they are in the more polite talk of the west side boys.

The rector of St. Thomas', the Rev. Dr. Stires, visits the chapel frequently and is fond of talking with the lads about their work. He said to one little fellow who hails from near the East river:

"Well, my son, they tell me you won quite a victory in your last contest with the boys of a rival school."

"I don't know 'bout that, but w'en we went up ag'in dat bunch from St. Pat's we put it all over 'em, and dey ain't never peeped since."—New York Sun.

The Ugliest Beast.

Probably the ugliest beast in the world is a monkey, a grewsome looking animal called the bearded saki. This is so utterly grotesque a beast that it would scarcely be safe to let a child or nervous person see it. The ugliness is not of an amusing kind, but of an evil, sinister nature. The beast has a sort of beard and a countenance unlike anything else in shape and lines. The monkey itself is not particularly savage, but is so hideous that the natives of its country, South America, say that no beast of prey, however hungry, will tackle it. Even a hungry jaguar will starve in a cageful of sakis.

Missed a Chance.

"But, Tommy," said his mother, "you asked for two cakes and I gave them to you. Aren't you satisfied?"

"No, I ain't," growled Tommy. "You was so easy I'm kickin' meself now 'cause I didn't ask fur four."—Philadelphia Press.

AMUSEMENTS.

"The Cow-Puncher" one of the best plays of the season opens at the New Bradley opera house on Friday, Sept. 11. It is by Hal Reid and under the direction of W. F. Mann, which is a guarantee of its merits. One of the most amusing incidents in the piece and something unique in the way of an entrance occurs in the first act. The cow boys are assembled in front of the ranch house awaiting the arrival of the new owner, a young girl from the East, who is expected on the stage coach. Hearing the approach of the stage, they prepare to give the tenderfoot a genuine Western welcome, by showing her a mock lynching. Throwing a noose around the Mexican's neck, they string him up to a tree as Geraldine steps from the coach, expecting her to faint or show some signs of feminine weakness. But she cooly calls their attention to the fact that the noose is fastened under the right ear and suggests that they change it to the left as the man would hang easier. This turns the laugh on the boys and establishes her a warm favorite at once.

PAYNE—LAMKIN.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Lamkin last Wednesday evening, Sept. 2, when the latter's sister, Mina D. Payne of Saranac, became the wife of William O. Lamkin of Franklin. Rev. F. W. Kamm performed the ceremony in the presence of about forty guests, using the beautiful ring service. The bride was lovely in a gown of white batiste with lace trimmings and carried bride roses. The groom wore the conventional black. Mrs. Ernest Harris, sister of the bride, acted as brides maid and wore a gown of pink silk mull and carried pink roses. Mr. Harris acted as best man. After congratulations a delicious wedding supper was served, The diping room was trimmed in pink, the front parlor in green and pink, and the back parlor in green. The couple received many beautiful presents

The out of town guests were: Mrs. Anne Payne of Saranac, mother of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Harris of Kalamazoo, Mr. and Mrs. Verne Payne and family of Ionia, and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Helm and family of Britton. Mr. and Mrs. Lamkin will reside on the Lamkin homestead in Franklin. Both have a large circle of friends, who join in wishing them a long, happy, and prosperous wedded life.

WHEAT CROP

By using the "Homestead" line of Fertilizer, manufactured at Detroit by people who understand what should be used in this section. Upon their recomendation (based on years of successful experience) we bought their grades for the different kinds of soil, for wheat ONLY.

Why should you expect one kind to answer for all kinds of soil.

Sand needs more Potash.

Heavy Soil needs more Phosphorus Acid and Nitrogen.

Buy "Homestead" and get what your soil needs.

Healthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince any one.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold

A. J. Nusbaum, Batesville, Indiana, writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed to only aggravate my case. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package, and it quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success."

When a man's wife tells him what she thinks of him she doesn't do anything of the sort.

He is an undeserving wretch who dodges what is coming to him and keeps roaring for his due.

OF INTEREST TO MANY

Foley's Kidney Cure will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble that is not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more.

The man who knows how to manage a woman, doesn't.

Whatever else you do when you start out to criticise your friend, talk about something else.

Kodal will, in a very short time, enable the stomach to do the work it should do, and the work it should do is to digest all the food you eat. When the stomach can't do it Kodal does it for it and in the meantimes the stomach is getting stronger and able to take up its regular natural work again. Kodal digests all you eat. It makes the stomach sweet and it is pleasant to take. It is sold here by all druggists.

Healthy kidneys filter the impurities from the blood, and unless they do this good health is impossible. Foley's Kidney Cure makes sound kidneys and will positively cure all forms of kidney and bladder disease. It strengthens the whole system.

The courage of many a man lies wholly in his bank account.

Some girls find the most distressing thing about a broken engagement to be the giving back the diamond ring.

A COMMON ERROR.

The Same Mistake is Made by Many Tecumseh People.

It's a common error
To plaster the aching back,
To rub with liniments rheumatic joints.
When the trouble comes from the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.

Clark Decker, living at 130 West Maumee st., Adrian, Mich., says: "Before I used Doan's Kidney Pills I had such severe backaches that it was often difficult for me to move about and many times when getting up from a chair or a stooped position, I was compelled to place my hands to my hips and rise gradually. At night I could not sleep well and though I using many remedies and plasters my condition failed to improve. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills I procured a box at Wright & Son's drug store and they brought me prompt relief. I continued used them until completely cured."

Plenty more proof like this from Tecumseh people. Call at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store and ask what their customers report.

WARNER OF SUBMARINES.

Special Flag to Mark Spot Where They Are Submerged.

Hereafter ship captains entering and sailing from New York will keep a sharp lookout for a craft flying a flag with a black fish on a white background surrounded by a red border. The flag will indicate that a submarine boat is working in the vicinity.

The secretary of the navy, through T. B. Saunders, acting commissioner of the bureau of navigation, recently sent to the customs officers of the port of New York official notification with a description of the flag for the benefit of the merchant marine.

The flag will be flown from the mast of a tender, or what is known as a "parent" ship, which always attends a submarine during experiments. It will mean that if a sailing vessel or steamship does not give the locality a wide berth there is the possibility of the submarine coming up underneath the merchant vessel and doing all sorts of damage.

It is said that the official notification recently issued will precede the holding of a series of trials by submarine boats in New York harbor. No submarine has yet dived in the waters of New York bay.

Checking Women's Bouquets.

In the checking room of a New York theater several large bouquets were standing in vases full of water. "They belong to people in the audiecce," said the maid in attendance. "It seems the fashion now for women to carry huge bouquets to the theater. But I can't see what good they do anybody, since nobody sees them except myself. If they were kept in the auditorium they would wither during the performance, so in order to keep them fresh till the end of the play they are checked along with hats and wraps."

HOW TO AVOID APPENDICITIS

Most victims of appendicitis are those who are habitually constipated. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup cures chronic constipation by stimulating the liver and bowels, and restores the natural action of the bowels. Miss Etta Judge and Mrs. Andrew McDermott were in Tecumseh Thursday.

When you have a cold you may be sure that it has been caused indirectly by constipation and consequently you must first of all take something to move the bowels. This is what has made Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup so successful and so generally demanded. It does not constipate like most of the old fashioned cough cures, but on the order hand it gently moves the bowels and at the same time heals irritation and allays inflammation of the throat. Sold by all druggists.

He Kept Count.

A famous animal trainer was talking to a reporter in New York. He said:

"The secret of animal training is gentleness. Nothing sudden or brusque must be done. An unexpected caress may anger an animal more than a kick in the ribs. Sudden, brusque, unexpected things never go, no matter how well they are meant. Once I was showing in Scotland. We trainers supped one night with a Scotch admirer. The old man was the soul of hospitality, but I admit I was rather startled when he leaned toward me and said:

"'Stick in, man Conklin, stick in. Yer frien' Coot's twa muffins abeld o' ye.'"

Translated.

"Habiliments For Infants" is a sign in a clothing store in Boston. A western visitor, seeing it, stopped in amazement.

"What does that mean?" he asked his better acquainted fellow westerner.

"That?" said the other. "Oh, that is Boston dialect for kids' duds."—Housewife

HE ATE THE SOAP.

Garland Would Have Swallowed It If It Had Killed Him.

Augustus H. Garland, who was attorney general under President Cleveland, was very fond of practical jokes and during his term of service in the senate frequently turned the laugh on his colleagues. Senators Voorhees and Vest, with whom he was very friendly, finally determined to turn the tables. Mr. Garland had a habit, like Voorhees, of munching candy, and Vest and Voorhees made it up between them to take advantage of his fondness for sweets to play their trick. They had some tempting looking chocolate caramels prepared, with the interior filled with brown soap. These they took to the senate chamber, and Voorhees placed them on his desk. The lid being off, when Mr. Garland sauntered down the aisle he noticed them at once.

"What have you there, Dan?" he inquired.

Voorhees looked up carelessly from his writing and responded: "Caramels. Help yourself."

Garland needed no second invitation and, picking up two or three, placed one in his mouth. Steadily he chewed away, his face betraying no sign of the conflict within him. This alarmed Voorhees, who went to Vest's desk and said:

"He's eating them, Vest! What shall we do? The stuff will kill him sure!"

Senator Vest replied that it could do no more than make him sick. Garland swallowed the stuff, although he was foaming at the mouth from the soapsuds. He related the incident afterward with great gusto and said he would have swallowed it if it had killed him.

FLY FOGS IN INDIA.

A Plague That at Times Makes Life Unbearable In Calcutta.

One of the evils of Calcutta is the plague of green flies, from which the whole city suffers at certain times in the year. The happy hunting time of these minute insects is during the late autumn and early winter. They are a serious nuisance both in and out of doors. They wing their way through all the open doors into the houses and into every room, making life unbearable.

Like most insects, the little green flies havel a great affection for the flame. On occasion the inhabitants have found it necessary to put out all the gaslights, even at a public dinner, and to take their meals practically in deep gloom, illuminated only by flickering candles.

Naturally it is not at all pleasant to go on eating with dense clouds of insects swarming overhead or, roasted to death, falling about one in pattering showers.

They seem to spring into existence from nowhere. Perhaps it is almost dusk when the lights of the street lamps are becoming visible. Then suddenly the air, which a moment before was quite clear, is full of myriads of green flies, drifting in misty patches and obscuring the street lamps.

Often the number of insects which have been scorched to death is so great that little heaps of them collect inside the lamps, while bucket loads have to be swept up from the roads next morning.—London Answers.

Judging a Melon.

Is there any way for a purchaser to tell a good melon without cutting and testing it? That is exactly what an expert melon grader is expected to do, to judge the flavor of the melon as well as the size. The best external indication in a netted Gem and melons of similar type is a golden greenish color, the melon being deeply ribbed and thickly overlaid with rather coarse gray netting, the edges of which rise perpendicularly from the surface. The melon should be heavy. There should be no ragged or broken stem to indicate that the melon was torn from the vine before it was ripe enough to part freely. If one follows these points he is pretty sure to get the perfection of melon produced by the quality of the seed planted. If the seed has come from a tasteless melon the result will be disappointing even with thorough culture and the best care in picking and shipping.—Baltimore American.

Bore and Critic Both.

Midnight came and still the bore remained.

"Do you like music?" asked the beautiful girl just to break the monotony.

"Passionately fond of it," replied the bore. "In fact, music will always carry me away."

She rushed over to the piano and played several popular airs.

"You are still here," she said, turning on the stool.

"Yes," yawned the bore.

"But I thought you said music always carried you away?"

"So I did—music!"—Dundee Advertiser.

The Value of a Good Memory.

If men only realized how great an asset in life is a retentive memory they would take care to see that their children's were properly trained. The simplest method consists in learning every day a few lines by heart. None of our faculties can be trained so easily as that of memory. — Stuttgart Familienblatt.

The Pantomime.

"Pop, what is a pantomime?"

"A pantomime is a piece in which no one speaks."

"I shouldn't think a piece with no women in it would be interesting."—Yonkers Statesman.

If you want to know how old a woman is, just ask her sister-in-law.—Atchison Globe.

Impostor and Malefactor.

Carlyle used to tell of an old Scotchwoman who, speaking to her family, said: "There's twa sons, baith doin' weel in Glasgie. T'ane's an impostor, and t'ither's a malefactor." It was found that she meant "upholsterer" and "manufacturer."

A Maori Name.

A seaside resort in the Hawke's bay district of New Zealand is called by the charming Maori name Tamatauka-tangihangakoauau. But this is only an abbreviation. The full name is Tamatauwhakatangihangakoauaotanenuiararangikitanatahu. The translation is, "The hill on which Tanenuiarangi (the husband of heaven) played his flute to his beloved."—Auckland Letter.

They Take The Kinks Out.

"I have used Dr. King's New Life Pills for many years, with increasing satisfaction. They take the kinks out of stomach, liver and bowels, without fuss or friction," says N.H. Brown of Pittsfield, Vt. Guaranteed satisfactory at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store. 25c.

How to Cure Liver Trouble

Keep Your Bowels Regular and Your Stomach Sweet

People sometimes imagine when they have liver trouble or are bilious that the main thing to do is to take physic. Taking pills and keeping your bowels regular are two very different matters. The use of a violent cathartic does not mean the cure of constipation or the establishment of regular movements. A physic is an emergency remedy, but never a bowel treatment. If the bowels do not move regularly there is a reason deeper seated than the mere cleansing up that is removed by a dose of salts or pills.

When that drowsy, tired feeling, with the coated tongue, the dull head pains, the sour stomach, the sallow complexion, constipated bowels and touches of fever come on it is time to take a medicine that will act on the bowels gently and mildly, cleansing and strengthening them, stir up the liver and aid the stomach in digesting the food.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin does this every time. Take a few doses and see how quickly the drowsy feeling leaves, regular bowel movements come back, with a good appetite and perfect digestion, and you soon feel like your old self. It does not gripe nor pain, it acts smoothly mildly and is very pleasant to take. Wm. Hinchman, Manick, Mich., says: "I was troubled with indigestion and liver trouble. I have used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin with fine results. It is a perfect laxative and I now feel as strong and well as formerly." Wm. Block, Niantic, Ill., says: "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the best remedy I ever used for liver complaint or constipation."

Mrs. R. H. Brown, Addington, Ind. Ter., was troubled with torpid liver and constipation. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin gave her prompt relief. All druggists sell it at 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

Pepsin Syrup Co., 306 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill., is glad to send a free sample to anyone who has never used it and will give it a fair trial.

FAIRNESS SARGENT'S HOBBY.

Methods of the Labor Leader and Commissioner General of Immigration.

Frank Pierce Sargent, commissioner general of immigration, who recently died in Washington, was one of the most forceful characters in the field of labor, immigration and allied questions in the United States.

The keynote of Mr. Sargent's success as a labor leader and of his selection as commissioner general of immigration was that he studied both the demands of the workingman and the counter contentions of the employers and decided definitely and clearly what in his judgment would be a fair solution of the difficulty and then worked indefatigably to secure such a settlement.

"Sargent is daft on being fair. What we want is to tis up this road and make the Vanderbilts dance to our music!" exclaimed an agitator at a meeting of New York Central firemen during the great railroad strike in 1894, when the hotheads would have paralyzed pretty nearly every railroad system in America, but Mr. Sargent steadily resisted their desire to strike and gained his point and ultimately the gratitude of the men, whom he saved from a serious false move.

Fairness of labor to capital may be set down as Frank P. Sargent's fundamental rule of action, and so wedded was he to this principle that it amounted to a hobby, which he mounted when he first entered the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen out in Phenix, Ariz., and which he had ridden ever since.

Probably it is for this that President Roosevelt, himself a man of many hobbies, selected Mr. Sargent to be commissioner general of immigration and to better the conditions that prevailed in that important department of the public service.

Mr. Sargent first came into the arena as grand master of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen in 1886, when organized labor was intoxicated with the sense of its power and when the tendency of labor leaders was to be extravagant in their demands and rash in their methods. The strike was in the heyday of its glory, and conciliation was not to be thought of until one side or the other had received a knockdown blow.

At once Mr. Sargent became a strong conserving influence. He never spoke in the language of the agitator, whose catch phrases he abhorred and condemned. He led the way in teaching organized labor to regard contracts made with employers as sacred and binding. He argued that the rights of employers were to be respected and that thus workingmen would gain more surely the recognition of their own rights. He had no patience with the idea that those who toiled with their hands were the only producers, and he was one of the great heralds of the doctrine of the mutuality of the interests of capital and labor which culminated in the formation of the National Civic federation's promising committee on arbitration, of which Mr. Sargent was a member.

Instead of sitting in his office at Peoria, Ill., and attending to the grievance of the locomotive firemen through subordinates and by correspondence, Mr. Sargent was constantly on the move, hearing the complaints of the men in person and carrying each case, so far as he could, to the proper railroad official and settling it by personal conference.

Sleeves to Fasten Up the Arm.

Women of American society are swarming home from Europe, perhaps a little bit tired of its pleasures and certainly ready to take up fall festivities in their own country. One bit of news the wise ones have brought back from Paris is that sleeves on many gowns this winter will fasten from the shoulder to the wrist. The style will be carried out in coats and in afternoon house gowns. To compensate for this freak, however, many of the winter's dresses will be fastened in the front.

LORD SACKVILLE'S CANDOR.

Reporter's Experience With British Diplomat Dismissed by Cleveland.

Lionel Sackville-West, second Baron Sackville, who recently died at Knole Park, Seven Oaks, his country seat in England, was British minister to the United States from 1881 to 1888. At the request of President Cleveland he was recalled in October, 1888.

Lord Sackville's dismissal by Mr. Cleveland practically ended his diplomatic career, for since 1888 he was never intrusted with any important diplomatic mission. He lived quietly the life of a country gentleman and seldom appeared in London society.

"It was quite characteristic of Sackville-West," said a newspaper man some years ago, "to write that foolish letter to an unknown correspondent. A few years ago—I think it was at the time Henry Villard invited the lords of creation to witness the driving of the last spike in the Northern Pacific railroad—the then British minister stopped a few hours in Chicago. A host of newspaper men were at the hotel watching for a chance to interview him. There was something special they wanted to have him talk about. I believe it was Congressman Finerty's dynamite speech in the house. Anyhow it was something relating to the Irish dynamiters and much talked of in the newspapers just then. The reporters were somewhat shy about intruding boldly on Great Britain's plenipotentiary to the United States, more especially as various high cockalorums were engrossing his attention at the time, but one of them finally mustered up cheek enough to accost Mr. West in the corridor and introduced himself as the representative of the Chicago Tribune. Mr. West was the pink of courtesy. He listened gravely to the reporter's remarks, replied freely to his questions, then walked up and down the corridor with him, chatting volubly all the time, while the other reporters stood in a group afar off, filled with envy and wonder, and finally sat down on an ottoman with him and talked for a solid hour. The reporter, of course, did not dare to make notes, but he did succeed in getting the frankest and fullest possible statement of Mr. West's personal opinion of the Irish dynamiters in the United States and of the Irish question as affecting American politics. Not only that, but he succeeded in keeping Mr. West all to himself until train time arrived, and Mr. West had to escort his daughter to the carriage, thereby depriving the other reporters of the possibility of an interview. Mr. West's unhesitating frankness and freedom of speech on that occasion make me say that it was quite characteristic of him to step blindly into the trap laid for him in the Pomona letter."

WATERFOWL PROTECTION.

Hunting Ground to Be Converted Into Home For Wild Birds.

Three hundred square miles of the favorite hunting grounds for waterfowl in the United States will soon be converted by the National Association of Audubon Societies in New York city into a protected home for the numerous breeds gradually undergoing extermination for commercial purposes. The two tracts presented by the government for this purpose are in Oregon and California, about the Klamath, Malheur and Harney lakes.

Whole races of the wild fowl, persecuted by seekers after plumes and food for the markets, will be restored, say the officers of the Audubon society, if the people of the country will do their share in the great work of preserving these natural scavengers, whose taste for food is one of the chief preventives of plague and pestilence in the sections they inhabit. An exhaustive study of conditions has been made by men who for three years have explored the wild places where the birds live, braving the danger of semisavage bands of poachers as well as the difficulties of the country, to secure the information upon which the president has recently acted.

NEW MAIL WAGON.

Rural Letter Carrier Builds Vehicle For Shelter While Roads Are Muddy.

Exposed as they are to inclement weather, sometimes heavy storms, and confronted with muddy and oftimes almost impassable roads, the army of rural carriers throughout the United States has figured out various devices for minimizing discomforts. One of the latest is a vehicle specially improvised for shelter of the occupant. Many of the vehicles used on long routes are open buggies, but a carrier at Sullivan, Ill., has sent to the postoffice department at Washington a picture of a wagon he has built.

The carrier is boxed in over two wheels, there being windows in front and at the sides, permitting freedom of movement in driving and in reaching out to the mail boxes along the roads. The craft, according to the modest report of the builder, is constructed for shelter while the roads are in muddy condition, but he adds that it is not a success for the reason that it arouses such curiosity on the part of patrons that it delays him from one to two hours on each trip to furnish explanations of it.

Beans Worth Two Millions.

The harvest of lima beans began on the McLaughlin ranch at Springville, near Oxnard, Cal., the other day and marks the start of one of the largest harvests in a number of years. A conservative estimate of the amount of beans to be thrashed in Ventura county this season is 700,000 bags. The next two months will be devoted to garnering this crop, which represents a value of something like $2,240,000 at present prices. The thrashers will enter the fields in a few weeks.

WRIGHT BREAKS ALL RECORDS

Makes Two Flights Each of an Hour's Duration.

HE TAKES ALONG COMPANION.

Washington, Sept. 10.—Orville Wright, in three phenomenal flights at Fort Myer, Wednesday, established new aeroplane records that not only assure the success of the official trials before the army board, but indicate that aerial flight is now only a matter of development. War, on land and sea, will find in the aeroplane a valuable means of reconnaisance, and possibly carnage.

Two flights of approximately one hour each, another flight in which two men were whirled through the air for upwards of six minutes were the achievements of the Wright brothers' aeroplane yesterday. That the flights, record breaking as they were, will

The first flight, made in the morning, in which the machine circled the drills grounds at the fort 57 times in 57 minutes and 31 seconds, was surpassed in the evening, when a flight of 62 minutes and 15 seconds was made.

Lahm Goes Along.

Not satisfied with breaking all distance and time records for a heavier-than-air machine, Mr. Wright took Lieutenant Frank P. Lahm, the aeronaut of the signal corps, for a spin around the drill grounds, making a new record for a two man flight. All this happened so quickly that the spectators, among whom were members of the cabinet and high officers of the army and navy, could hardly realize that history had been made and that a new era in the progress of the civilized world was begun.

The morning flight was witnessed by only a handful of enthusiasts, but the news spread so rapidly that fully a thousands people gathered on the military reservation to see the afternoon event.

The machine rose gracefully into space and sailed over the greensward of the drill grounds. Higher and higher it arose, turned at a slight angle as the aviator brought it around at the far side of the field and raced along at a high speed.

There was hardly a quiver in the first few rounds of the field, Mr. Wright evidently having the steering apparatus well in hand. Rising and lowering at will, the sight of the man-built bird was most impressive. Round after round the machine travelled, presenting somewhat the appearance of an automobile racing about an imaginary course in the air. The aviator paid little heed to anything but his levers which control the machine.

When Mr. Wright saw that he had stayed aloft for over an hour, the time required in order for him to fulfill his contract with the government, he made for the earth.

As Mr. Wright stepped from the seat and removed his goggles, he was greeted with lusty cheers. Lieutenant Selfridge, who operated the first successful aeroplane of the Aerial Experiment association at Hammondsport, N. Y., was the first to congratulate Mr. Wright.

Many Grasp Wright's Hand.

Secretary Metcalf of the navy, Secretary of War Wright and numerous army and navy officers, together with enthusiasts from every walk of life, gathered about the wizard of the air to grasp his hand. As three cheers were given, Wright calmly gave orders for replacing the machine on the starting track to prepare for another flight.

Turning to Lieutenant Lahm, one of the leading aeronauts of the army, Mr. Wright said:

"How would you like to go up with me?"

It was an invitation that needed no repetition. With the two men, Mr. Wright and Lieutenant Lahm in their places, the start was made at 6:42, the machine apparently rising from the ground as easily with its increased burden as it had with only the inventor aboard.

After the sixth lap around the field, a beautiful landing was made within 100 feet of the aerial garage where the machine is sheltered.

Mr. Wright, as usual, displayed no emotion, but Lieutenant Lahm was enthusiastic.

To the crowd that surrounded him after landing from the second flight, Mr. Wright appeared to be the coolest man around and entirely free from nervousness, nor did he show any signs of fatigue.

STAID BY NELSON TWENTY-ONE ROUNDS

Gans Fails to Win the Championship Belt.

Colma Arena, San Francisco, Sept. 10.—Battling Nelson clinched his claim to the lightweight pugilistic championship by defeating Joe Gans for the second time at Colma Wednesday afternoon. The fight ended in the twenty-first round, when Gans, beaten down by a succession of blows from his sturdy conquerer, failed to get to his feet within the count of ten.

The veteran colored fighter was severely punished, but the champion, too, bore the marks of battle. From the first clang of the gong to the last moment, Nelson forced the fighting, never giving ground and gradually battering down his older and less vigorous opponent.

Gans succumbed in the twenty-first round, after being unmercifully licked. Nelson in this round rained right and left to the jaw and body, and Gans sank to the floor. Mechanically, the now defeated fighter watched Referee Eddie Smith wave his hands, apparently too far gone to hear him count. Not until the count of ten was finished did Gans, ashen pale, his face terribly cut and his eyes glassy, attempt to rise. He realized, however, that it was too late and feebly declared: "I have positively fought my last battle."

The fight was spectacular, and at no time did it appear that Gans had a chance to win.

PET DOG HAD BOY'S CAP.

Mystery of Disappearance of Chicago Lad Deepened.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—The mystery of the disappearance of Perry Paul Elliott, a twelve-year-old boy, for whom the police have been searching since Friday, has been complicated by the return of Perry's pet dog, Spot, with the boy's cap between his teeth. What seemed to be the stains of blood were on the cap. Shortly afterward, a note demanding $500 for the return of the boy was slipped under the door.

Mrs. Elliott, the boy's mother, told the police that she had deserted the boy's father years ago and had been duped into a mock marriage with one Charles Pillars, with whom she lived at Traverse City, Mich., until she came to Chicago and married Harry Thomas, a telegraph operator. Pillars, she said, appeared from time to time and on four occasions kidnapped her son, whom she recovered only after much trouble. She suspects Pillars in the present case, she told the police, but did not know whether the bloodstained cap indicated that the boy had been murdered, or if it was a ruse of the kidnapper to secure money.

The dog Spot followed the scent three blocks from the Elliott home and then appeared baffled. The police of Angel and Traverse City, where Pillars is supposed to live, have been notified of the case.

Cholera in St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 10.—The fact that Asiatic cholera exists in St. Petersburg has been established beyond doubt. The body of a woman who died in this city supposedly from this disease has been examined and the bacilli of cholera found. The present weather conditions are favorable to the spread of the disease, and the authorities are making preparations for a rapid increase in the number of cases. Six suspected cases are now in hospitals.

IS WELCOMED TO ENGLAND.

Cardinal Vannutelli Comes in Name of Pope.

HE ADDRESSES THE PRELATES

Impressive Scene at Westminister Cathedral—Great Edifice Was Filled, and Thousands Were Unable to Obtain Admittance—Prelate Will Preside Over Eucharistic Congress.

London, Sept. 10.—With all the solemn splendor of the Roman Catholic church, Cardinal Vincenzo Vannutelli, the pope's legate, was formally received by the prelates who have gathered here for the eucharistic congress, over which he will preside. The reception took place last evening in Westminister cathedral.

Every seat in the cathedral, which is capable of accommodating 8,000 persons, was occupied. The galleries were crowded, and in the streets thousands waited for hours to get a glimpse of the pope's representative.

Cardinal Vannutelli, with the attending priests, walked from the archbishop's house, a block from the cathedral, through lines of cheering people, including hundreds of priests who came from almost every country in the world to attend the congress. A fanfare of trumpets announced his arrival to those within the edifice, and the immense congregation rose to greet him.

The papal legate was received by Archbishop Bourne.

The legate then addressed the prelates, of whom there were a greater number present than have gathered in one place in England in centuries. The cardinal spoke in Latin. In a few eloquent words, he thanked England for the reception given the delegates and said that the purpose of the congress was to honor the eucharistic and exalt its worship.

Archbishop Bourne replied in English, welcoming the papal legate.

The solemn benedict of the holy sacrament brought the impressive service to a close.

WILL INVADE WEST.

Democrats Intend to Put Up Vigorous Fight Along Coast.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—With the object of perfecting an organization and developing plans for an aggressive campaign in the Pacific coast states, a meeting of the national committeemen and state chairmen of California, Oregon and Washington has been called by National Chairman Mack to meet in Portland, Ore., Sept. 16.

The call was issued following a conference of Mr. Mack and National Committeeman M. A. Miller of Oregon, who discussed in a general way a plan to make an effective campaign in the far west.

Mr. Mack is convinced from the reports which were made at the national committee meeting Tuesday that there is an excellent chance of bringing the Pacific coast states into the Democratic column if a fight is made.

Vice Presidential Candidate John W. ern is expected to make several speeches west of the Rocky mountains, and Senator Gore of Oklahoma and Theodore A. Bell, who was the permanent chairman of the Denver convention, will also make speeches in the far western territory. While no definite announcement has been made at headquarters, it is generally believed by the national committeemen here that the latter part of October will find Mr. Bryan campaigning along the Pacific coast.

FOREST FIRES STILL RAGING.

Situation in Michigan Has Not Improved.

GREAT AREAS SWEPT OVER.

Mines Shut Down—Fires Rage Within Limits of Rose City—Woman Near Turner Had Narrow Escape—Entire Population of Omar Is Out Fighting Flames.

Houghton, Mich., Sept. 10.—The greatest amount of damage from forest fires in this section was done near Ahmeek, where six fire departments and hundreds of volunteers fought the flames many hours. The Allouez and Ahmeek mines were shut down. Help was called from points as far south as Red Jacket.

Calumet, Mich., Sept. 10.—Though the miners at the Ahmeek, Kearsarge and Allouez mining locations are still fighting the flames, it is believed that the towns will be saved unless the wind increases to a gale. Many farm houses and the town of Sidnaw, between Rockland and Mass City in Ontonagon county, are threatened.

Reports received here indicate that all of northern Michigan is flame-swept, the fires covering several hundred square miles. It is impossible to estimate the damage at this time.

Traverse City, Mich., Sept. 10.—The beautiful Shah-Sko-Ke-Zhik grounds of the Methodist Indian Camping association are threatened with destruction by forest fires, which broke out in the woods of Kehl's resort adjoining. If the wind is favorable the camp may be saved.

West Branch, Mich., Sept. 10.—Word received from Rose City, a small town fifteen miles north of West Branch, says that forest fires have been raging inside the city limits since Tuesday night. If a heavy wind should spring up the whole city of 800 inhabitants will probably be destroyed, as it has no fire protection.

Turner, Mich., Sept. 10.—Mrs. Jane Gee, wife of a farmer living four miles east of this place, had a narrow escape from death while fighting forest fires. In trying to keep the flames from their home, Mrs. Gee's clothing became ignited. She screamed for help, but her husband, who is an invalid, was overcome by fright and fainted. Neighbors heard the woman's cries and extinguished the flames. Mrs. Gee was severely burned, but will recover.

The fires, which it was thought were under control, are sweeping through the woods with renewed fury.

Standish, Mich., Sept. 10.—Fred Metevia, a farmer living four miles southwest of this city, has been burned out, losing his barns and house. H. Cilley lost his home near here, with hay and implements. The factory and other mills closed down here Wednesday, and the men and a large number of Standish citizens are out fighting fires.

If the wind changes to the west fires will sweep a number of farmer's buildings a little northwest of town.

Omer, Mich., Sept. 10.—Omer is entirely surrounded by fire, and a heavy gale is blowing. The entire population is fighting the fire on the outskirts. A call was received for aid from Robinson, a settlement two miles north of here. Farm houses and barns at Olmstead Crossing have burned.

Bryan Begins Invasion of East.

Evansville, Ind., Sept. 10.—William Jennings Bryan visited Evansville today. He addressed a big crowd. Mr. Bryan's invasion of the east has begun. He will travel in a private car until the trip is concluded Sept. 29, at Lincoln, Neb. Accompanying him are former Governor W. S. Jennings of Florida, Robert S. Rose, secretary; four newspapermen and A. E. Manning, who will look after the comfort of the party. Governor Jennings will have the complete management of the car. While in West Virginia and Maryland, Mr. Bryan will seize the opportunity to confer with the Democratic county chairmen of those states, the meetings having been arranged by John W. Thompson of Alabama, head of the organization bureau, who will be represented by Governor Jennings and will give several talks on organization work.

Belgium Annexes Congo.

Brussels, Sept. 10.—To an accompaniment of cries from the Conservatives of "Long live the king," the Belgian senate has adopted the Congo annexation treaty and the colonial charter.

How to get Strong.

P. J. Daly of 1247 W. Congress St., Chicago, tells of a way to become strong: He says: "My mother, who is old and was very feeble, is deriving so much benefit from Electric Bitters, that I feel it's my duty to tell those who need a tonic and strengthening medicine about it. In my mother's case a marked gain in flesh has resulted, insomnia has been overcome, and she is steadily growing stronger." Electric Bitters quickly remedy stomach, liver and kidney complaints. Some Ducats and a Daughter.

By HOWARD FIELDING.

Copyright, 1907, by C. W. Hooke.

WHEN Alfred Southerland, broker of State street, Boston, discovered that he had been robbed, he put the case into the hands of Edgar Dunton. The latter had been a member of the Massachusetts detective force that used to be called the state police, but had resigned and set up in business for himself.

Securities valued at about $90,000 were missing from one of the safes in Southerland's office. There was nothing to show when they had been taken, but they had not all been abstracted at the same time. It was probable that the safe had been "visited" on four or five occasions. There had been no breaking of locks or drilling of holes.

This fact put four men under suspicion, but Dunton's investigation speedily cleared two of them. The others were Mr. Rand, the cashier, and Mr. Packard, his assistant. Both were past fifty, of excellent reputation, quite clear of debt or speculative entanglement and altogether the most unlikely men for such a deed that could well be imagined. Moreover, it was Mr. Packard who had discovered the theft. He had immediately reported it to Mr. Rand, and the two of them had laid the matter before Mr. Southerland. Yet one or the other of these men or Mr. Southerland himself must have taken the securities from the safe, if the thing had been done at all.

Now, there could be no doubt that the securities were missing, and if they had not been taken from the safe it must be because they had never been in it. Could this be possible?

Mr. Southerland had been out of health. For several months he had been under a doctor's orders to take things easy, and he had been spending two or three days each week at his country place in Marblehead. There is no rest, however, for the financier. Instead of living out of doors, as he had promised the doctor, he had conducted many important negotiations, and he admitted, in response to Dunton's questions, that all the missing securities had been delivered to him at his home in Marblehead and brought to the city by him.

There was a young man named Reginald Varney who had an office for stenography and typewriting in the same building with Southerland & Co. He had done some work for Mr. Southerland in a notably satisfactory manner and had made a favorable impression personally, being a handsome fellow of exceptionally good address. Thus it fell out that when Mr. Southerland found himself in need of a secretary at his Marblehead house he had employed Varney.

It was physically possible that this young man might be the culprit in the case. He would have been in a position to know of the delivery of bonds and other securities to Mr. Southerland at the country place and to have abstracted some of them from the satchel in which the broker was accustomed to carry them to Boston.

Varney had not lived in Boston very long. He was supposed to have come from New York, wherefore Detective Dunton communicated with a professional brother in the metropolis, by whom Varney's record was hastily investigated. It appeared that he had left New York under a cloud, having been summarily discharged from a position in a broker's office.

Coincidently with the receipt of this report one of the stolen bonds turned up in New York. It had been cleverly negotiated by means of a trick in which a messenger boy had played the most conspicuous role, a perfectly innocent agent, of course. The real trickster had got away with the sale price of the bond, a little more than a thousand dollars.

Could Varney have made a flying trip to New York for this purpose? In order to answer this question the detective decided to ask the young man a few questions, though he had hitherto avoided meeting him. In fact, Dunton had not visited the Marblehead residence, but had depended upon a veiled questioning of Southerland for such information as he desired. At this stage of the case, however, a personal investigation seemed necessary, and he accordingly paid a visit to the broker in his summer home.

Up to this point Dunton had not disclosed his theory of the robbery, and now, when he told Southerland of his suspicions, he was amazed to learn that Varney had been dismissed from Southerland's employ suddenly about ten days before and that nothing was known of him since that time. Why had he been discharged? A personal difference; he had been disrespectful.

"You'll waste your time if you work on the Varney theory," said the broker. "I advise you to leave him out of it."

Dunton returned to Boston and endeavored to locate Varney at the young man's office, where two or three assistants were carrying on the business, but he learned that Varney was seldom there, and his house address could not be obtained. In view of this situation the detective decided to take up the clews in New York, including Varney's record there.

Accordingly Dunton telegraphed his professional brother in the metropolis that he would be in that city at 3 o'clock on the following afternoon, and he received a reply directing him to go to a certain address, engage a room and expect a call at 5 o'clock. The address was not far from the Grand Central station, where Dunton's train set him down a little after 3, and a few minutes later he had engaged what is called a back parlor in a very ordinary boarding house.

There was time for a bit of work before the hour of the appointment, and Dunton did not linger in his new quarters. As he approached the street door on his way out a key was thrust into the lock from the other side. The form of a woman was dimly visible through the ground glass panel, and Dunton, who was in no hurry to encounter any of the other lodgers, halted sharply, but before he could begin a retreat the door swung open and the woman entered. Dunton noticed in the first glance that she was young and strikingly attractive, that she was smartly dressed and had been heavily veiled, but at the moment of entering the house she had pushed up the veil to the brim of her hat.

She stopped stock still and looked at him as if dazed. He saw that she took in her breath with a fluttering gasp.

To be continued.

MRS. TOWNSEND DEAD.

Mother of Congressman Passed Away Sunday Afternoon.

After a long and painful illness, Mrs. Eunice Townsend, mother of Congressman Chas. E. Townsend, passed away at her home, 411 West Washington st., Jackson Sunday afternoon at 3:30. She was 79 years of age.

Eunice Parmeter was a native of New York, but came to Michigan in the early days, and the family home was established near Concord. When she had grown to womanhood she became the wife of James Townsend, a farmer, and on the little farm near Concord three children were born—two sons and a daughter. Her youngest son, Charles E., is the only survivor, his sister dying in childhood, and a brother, Isaac, at the age of 30.

While she has been in poor health for some time, the malady which finally caused her death afflicted her about a year ago. Almost her last appearance in public was at the Lincoln club banquet, in the Masonic temple. Congressman Legare of South Carolina, in the course of his address, delivered an eloquent tribute to Congressman Townsend and his mother, and the old lady in the balcony experienced full reward for her life of self-denial and solicitude. She was endowed with many of the traits which have made Mr. Townsend famous and idolized her youngest son.

Funeral services were held Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

More Than Equal.

Lady—You look robust. Are you equal to the task of sawing wood? Tramp—Equal isn't the word, mum. I'm superior to it. Good mornin'!—Chicago News.

Lansing	57	61	.483
Flint	54	68	.443
Bay City	46	77	.374

In a long and uninteresting game here last Tuesday, Jackson won from the locals by the score of 7 to 1. Holmquist, usually a stumbling block to Jackson was wild and his support ragged while Latham was in fine form and allowed but three hits. Tecumseh's score in the seventh was on Wagner's hit, a passed ball and Somerlott's single. Score:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Jackson	0	0	0	3	0	1	3	0	0	7	6	1

Batteries—Holmquist and Mitchell; Latham and Beard.

The Indians took the first game of the series with Flint, Wednesday, in a close and rather exciting game. Railing was on the fining line for the visitors, and was hit hard through out for a total of 16 hits, five in one inning. Hull for the locals, was more effective until the eighth inning, but felt he was weakening, and asked to be taken out. Gosshorn replaced him. Hamilton was sent to the bench in the fourth inning, McLafferty taking his place a short. Score.

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Flint	0	1	1	0	1	0	2	1	—	7	10	5
Tecumseh	1	0	0	1	3	1	1	1	* —	8	16	2

Batteries—Hull, Gosshorn and Mitchell; Reiling and Sullivan.

Flint maintained her reputation as a Jonah to the Indians yesterday by taking the second of the series, of games with Tecumseh, score 6 and 2. The defeat was due to the pitching of "Rubber" Krapp who held them to one clean hit, and two scratches. Lagoe was hit hard Mitchell was benched by the umpire after the third inning, Fox taking his place behind the bat, and Doty playing in right garden. Tecumseh scored two in the sixth on bases on balls given to Fox and Somerlott, Streeter beat out an infield hit, and Holmquist's singled scored Fox and Streeter. Score:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Tecumseh	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	0	0 —	2	3	2

Batteries—Lagoe, Mitchell and Fox; Krapp and Sullivan.

FOR HAY FEVER.

Peruna is Sometimes Used With Excellent Results.

A CASE IN POINT.

MISS MAYME E. SMITH.

MISS MAYME E. SMITH, 444 East Mound St., Columbus, Ohio, writes: "Have used Peruna for catarrh and hay fever. The results being remarkable, I can highly recommend it to all who are suffering with the above diseases. I am happy to be able to say it has helped me wonderfully."

What is known as hay fever is in reality endemic catarrh, a catarrhal condition of the nose, throat, sometimes the bronchial tubes, induced by some local irritant.

The irritation is generally due to vegetal emanations of some sort. Hay has been suspected as being the cause of this malady, hence its name, hay fever. It has been attributed to rag weed and other vegetation also. It is a very capricious disease, coming and going. A medicine that will help one case may not help another. Such treatment has always been very uncertain and unsatisfactory.

Peruna helps some cases without a doubt, although it is not claimed to be an infallible remedy for such cases.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Council chamber, village of Tecumseh.

Regular meeting held September 7, 1908.

Present: President pro tem Slater, Trustees Sherman, VanWinkle, Lowry.

Absent: President Combs, Trustees Magers, Teachout.

Minutes of the regular meeting held Aug. 17, 1908, were read and approved.

The Street Commissioner presented his report showing work done in the corporation from August 18 to September 5, 1908, as follows:

Team labor

Corporation team 17 days
Albert Hains, 3 days	$28.00
B. J. Swift, 4 days 5 hours	15.75
Sam Mobbs, 5 days	17.50
Will Dove, 1 day	3.50

Hand labor

Clay Owens, 17 days	29.75
Burt Pritchard, 17 days	29.75
John Mull, 16 days	28.00
E. H. Deming, 17 days	29.75
Floyd Owens, 17 days	29.75
John June, 1 day	1.75

Moved and supported that the report of the Street Commissioner be accepted and orders drawn for the several amounts. Carried.

The following resolution was offered by Trustee VanWinkle:

Resolved, that the Common Council of the Village of Tecumseh, does hereby require that a new sidewalk be constructed along that portion of the east line of Maumee street in this village which lies along and adjoining the west line of that parcel of land situate in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee county and state of Michigan, and described as follows:

House and west ½ lot 3, Original Plat.

Said walk to be 4 feet in width, on established grade, of Portland cement, sand and gravel.

The trench shall be excavated to a depth of 10 inches at least below the established grade except for driveways and street crossings when the depth shall be at least 12 inches below the established grade.

The foundation shall consist of clean cinders or gravel entirely free from clay, thoroughly rammed to a thickness of at least 6 inches, except for driveways and street crossings which shall be at least 8 inches.

On the foundation shall be laid a concrete filling, thoroughly rammed to a thickness of 3 inches.

The concrete shall consist of not less than one part cement to six parts of clean, sharp sand or gravel.

On the concrete filling shall be laid a finishing layer one inch thick, consisting of one part cement to two parts of very clean, sharp sand. The said finishing layer shall in all cases be finished with a granular surface with a wooden float.

To secure a true line for the edges of the walk 2x4 strips shall be solidly staked down parallel to the grade and on the true line of the walk, these strips to be removed when the walk is finished for use.

The concrete filling shall be tamped thoroughly till the water comes to the surface, then the finishing layer shall be immediately put on in thin coats thoroughly rammed into the concrete, each coat being troweled until the water appears on the surface, the top surface being only troweled sufficiently to leave it smooth. The foundation shall be thoroughly wet while being rammed.

The joints for the blocks shall be made in the concrete and then in the finishing layer directly above those in the concrete.

Only Portland cement shall be used in the construction of walks and shall be in every respect the equal of the best grades of German Portland cement. The concrete filling shall be made from the same cement as the finishing layer.

And the owners and occupants of said lots and premises are hereby required to do the necessary grading therefor and to construct said sidewalk according to the provisions of this resolution, under the supervision of the street commissioner, said walk to be completed within ten days from personal service upon the owner or occupant of said described land, of a copy of this resolution, and in case of any default in the construction and completion of said walk, as herein directed, the street commissioner is hereby ordered to have said walk constructed, and payment therefor shall be required of the owner of said above described land, and the expense thereof assessed and levied upon said land in the same manner as other taxes.

Ayes: VanWinkle, Sherman, Lowry, Slater. Nays: None. Carried.

Resolved, that the Common Council of the village of Tecumseh does hereby require that a new sidewalk be constructed along that portion of the east line of Democratic street in this village which lies along and adjoining the west line of that parcel of land situate in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee county and state of Michigan, and described as follows:

BABCOCK—COLLER.

The marriage of Miss Florence Babcock to Lester Coller of this place, took place in Adrian Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock at the M. E. parsonage. Rev. Ramsdell performing the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Coller were returning from Chicago where they had been visiting a few days at the home of Mrs. Emil Fellin, the bride's sister. Tuesday evening, J. B. Coller, father of the groom, gave an informal reception for them at the Coller house, entertaining friends of both bride and groom. The Tecumseh band of which Mr. Coller is a member were present and furnished music for the occasion. Refreshments were served for the company at Aldrich's ice cream parlors. Mrs. Coller has been employed at the Telephone office for the past years and has made many friends in Tecumseh. Mr. Coller is one of Tecumseh's promising young business men having purchased the photographer's business of Lester Abrams and has been very successful in his chosen work. The best wishes of a host of friends are extended them.

Some Meteors.

One of the earliest known meteors fell in 204 B. C. in Phrygia, where for a long time it was worshiped. It was carried to Rome and was supposed to be a messenger from the gods. Livy describes a shower of meteoric stones. The people were greatly alarmed, and the senators were demoralized and declared a fine days' festival to propitiate the gods. There is at Mecca a meteorite which fell in 600 A. D. and is still worshiped by the faithful.

A Paying Investment.

Mr. John White of 38 Highland Ave., Houlton, Maine, says: "Have been troubled with a cough every winter and spring. Last winter I tried many advertised remedies, but the cough continued until I bought a 50c. bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery; before that was half gone, the cough was all gone. This winter the same happy result has followed; a few doses once more banished the annual cough. I am now convinced that Dr. King's New Discovery is the best of all cough and lung remedies." Sold under guarantee at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store. 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

HOMESTEAD

of John and Priscilla Alden Owned, for 245 Years by their Decendants.

The Home of the Couple that Longfellow has Immortalized in his Poem. "The Courtship of Miles Standish."

Across the Bay from old Plymouth, Mass., on the banks of Blue Fish river, in the village of Duxbury, (Mass.), stands a very ancient looking frame dwelling house.

With not even a hint of the Corinthian style of architecture called "the Colonial," which prevailed at a later period. The extreme plainness of the time stained Homestead with its straight outlines, and uniquely shingled exterior would naturally attract the attention of a stranger.

The main part of the building is quite large, consisting of two stories with an attic. There are also two additions to the house, one at the side, the other at the back of the structure.

If the tourist looks for beauty, about this old time place, he would look in vain, and be much surprised to learn that it once sheltered a Mayflower couple that the poet Longfellow has immortalized in his beautiful poem "the Courtship of Myles Standish," and is called "the Alden Homestead" built in 1653, and next to the Fairbanks homestead in Dedham, Mass., is the most ancient frame dwelling house that has been inhabited by English speaking people on the American continent.

We look at this lone monument of the Pilgrims with pride and revevence. The entire building reminds one of the character of its builders in its angular primness, also of their wonderful endurance, and stability. We enter the house from a small vine covered porch.

At the right of the little hall is the parlor, or best room of our ancestors. It is a good sized room (25x25) and at one time contained the big chimney and fire place of the homestead, which has vanished, and given place to a more modern grate.

At the left of the hall you enter the living room, from this the little bed room in the warmest nook of the house, which John and Priscilla are said to have occupied, and where they died. We then enter the dining room, and kitchen of the house. We will climb the narrow ladder like stairs over the shoulder of the chimney to the four sleeping rooms above.

Everywhere the roughness of the wood work tells of a long ago period when the timbers that compose this dwelling were hewn out of the wilderness with only a few primitive tools to assist the workmen in their efforts towards house building. The windows consist of small glass panes, and are protected by outside blinds of more modern origin.

Thoughts of its great antiquity is what makes the Alden homestead priceless also that it was built of such remarkable iron like material that it has stood like the cedars of Lebanon, resisting all attacks of the elements.

If those walls could talk what a wonderful story they would tell about the tall handsome Dane, among whose golden curls threads of silver now mingled, and the wife of his youth, the beautiful French girl, the favorite of the Mayflower-Priscilla Molines.

For 245 years the John Alden homestead has been gathering history and it has come down to "The Alden Kindred of America" with its remarkable memories of the past, of far more value than the marble structures of today with all their magnificence.

This homestead was the third and last home of "the Cooper of the Mayflower," which was shared with "Priscilla the maiden of Plymouth."

The first cabin stood near the foot of Burial Hill, where the fair matron Priscilla sang her first cradle song to Elizabeth (called Betty) the first born daughter of Plymouth, and of New England.

The next house was erected on the Duxbury farm, not far from the present Alden homestead. Part of the quaint woodwork of this house, is said to form a portion of the present structure.

This homestead has during all these 245 years been in the possession of the immediate family of Jonathan (son of John and Priscilla) whose term of proprietorship is unprecedented in American history.

The statement in the article regarding the Fairbanks Homestead at Dedham, Mass., should have read the Property of the Fairbank Family of America and not the Mass' D. A. R's.

WRECK

Two Killed and Three Injured in the Lake Shore Collision.

Near Chase's Crossing at 6 O'clock Last Night.

Work Train Crashes into Rear of Combination Train.

Two men were killed and three injured in a Lake Shore wreck, when a work train crashed into the rear of the combination passenger and freight trains shortly after 6 o'clock, last night at Chase's crossing eight miles south of here.

Cortland Prince, aged 20 of Jackson, brakeman of the combination train, are dead.

The conductor received a fractured skull, and died in a few minutes.

Young Prince was killed instantly.

The collision is thought to have been caused by a misunderstanding of orders and it occurred on a curve where the forward train could not be seen until too late to avoid the wreck.

The dead and injured were taken to Adrian.

The Lake Shore trains on the Jackson branch ran over the D., T. & I. from Adrian.

MI-O-NA MEANS STOMACH COMFORT

It's of Special Value to Many Here in Tecumseh.

A notable discovery, and one that appeals especially to many people in Tecumseh, is the combination of stomach help in the Mi-o-na treatment. This preparation works wonders in cases of indigestion or weak stomach.

It acts directly upon the walls of the stomach and bowels, strengthening and stimulating them so that they readily take care of the food that is eaten without distress or suffering.

So positive are the good effects following the use of Mi-o-na that the remedy is sold by C. A. Wright & Son's drug store under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it fails so cure. A 50 cent box of Mi-o-na will do the good the stomach needs, which is simply to make it do its own work.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Healthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood

It is now to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince any one.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold

A. J. Nusbaum, Batesville, Indiana, writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed to only aggravate my case. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package, and it quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success."

When a man's wife tells him what she thinks of him she doesn't do anything of the sort.

He is an undeserving wretch who dodges what is coming to him and keeps roaring for his due.

When lawyers are minding their own business they are prying into somebody else's.

OF INTEREST TO MANY

Foley's Kidney Cure will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble that is not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more.

The man who knows how to manage a woman, doesn't.

Whatever else you do when you start out to criticise your friend, talk about something else.

Kodal will, in a very short time, enable the stomach to do the work it should do, and the work it should do is to digest all the food you eat. When the stomach can't do it Kodal does it for it and in the meantimes the stomach is getting stronger and able to take up its regular natural work again. Kodal digests all you eat. It makes the stomach sweet and it is pleasant to take. It is sold here by all druggists.

Some people envy the man who pays his bills promptly, and some consider him foolish.

Healthy kidneys filter the impurities from the blood, and unless they do this good health is impossible. Foley's Kidney Cure makes sound kidneys and will positively cure all forms of kidney and bladder disease. It strengthens the whole system.

It would save much guessing and straining if the psychological moment would always wear its label.

The courage of many a man lies wholly in his bank account.

Some girls find the most distressing thing about a broken engagement to be the giving back the diamond ring.

A COMMON ERROR.

The Same Mistake Is Made by Many Tecumseh People.

It's a common error
To plaster the aching back,
To rub with liniments rheumatic joints.
When the trouble comes from the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.

Clark Decker, living at 130 West Maumee st., Adrian, Mich., says: "Before I used Doan's Kidney Pills I had such severe backaches that it was often difficult for me to move about and many times when getting up from a chair or a stooped position, I was compelled to place my hands to my hips and rise gradually. At night I could not sleep well and though I using many remedies and plasters my condition failed to improve. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills I procured a box at Wright & Son's drug store and they brought me prompt relief. I continued used them until completely cured."

Plenty more proof like this from Tecumseh people. Call at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store and ask what their customers report.

A Bad Guess.

John Hawtrey was one of England's famous whipping schoolmasters. At Eton in autumn the small boys used to buy chestnuts and roast them in a shovel over the fire. One day a boy named F., who was a great favorite of Hawtrey's, had a lot of chestnuts and as a special favor was allowed to make use of the pupil room fire while the boys were all studying. Hawtrey was going in and out of the room while we were working, and on one occasion, coming in rather quietly, he caught sight of F. kneeling over the fire arranging his chestnuts. The boy's position was irresistible to any lover of the art of chastisement. Not seeing his face and supposing it was one of the other boys stealing the chestnuts, John Hawtrey quietly took his cane from his desk and, creeping forward on tiptoe, gave the wretched F. a most tremendous whack. The boy jumped up with a yell, his hands clapped behind him. Then the tutor saw who he was and said, embracing him:

"Oh, my poor boy! I am so sorry! I thought it was another boy stealing your chestnuts."

We, of course, were all delighted and roared with laughter.—London Graphic.

Danton and the Organ Grinders.

Paris has more than once made war on organ grinders. There, as here, they have their enemies and also their champions. The war, however, is an old one, and politicians had time to attend to it even at the height of the revolution.

No less a man than Danton then took the part of the musicians.

"Citizens," he cried from the tribunal, "I hear that an attempt is being made to prevent the organ grinders of Barbary from playing their tunes as usual. Do you think, then, that the streets of Paris are too gay? Have the people of Paris too many songs on their lips? One after another our liberties are being wrested from us. Leave us at least the liberty of listening to the organs of Barbary, of hearing from them our favorite songs and refrains."

Danton was guillotined for reasons with which this speech had nothing to do, but the oration containing these sentiments was the last that he had the opportunity of delivering as a member of the convention.—Westminster Gazette.

Hotel Accommodations in India.

All over the world Indian hotels have a bad name to any one who has been used to a moderate degree of comfort and good feeding. They are for the most part a disgrace. Why people should have to pay from 10 rupees to 25 rupees a day in the cold season and from 7 rupees to 12 rupees a day in the hot season without receiving comfort and good feeding seems at first difficult to answer. As a rule, the feeding is most inferior, badly served up, tablecloths and napkins frequently dirty, not to speak of the knives, forks, spoons and tumblers. Bedrooms are badly looked after, and unless one has a very smart bearer it is difficult to receive proper attention. All this should not be for such prices as people pay. In many third rate boarding houses in England one could get presumably as good as what is got in some of the so called first class hotels in Calcutta.—India Public Health.

The Artistic Poison.

Passing by other drugs, each of which has its own way of making people crazy, we come to what may be truly termed the artistic poison. This is, says Dr. William H. Thomson in Everybody's Magazine, the mescal button, which grows on a low cactus in the valley of the Rio Grande and fortunately is scarce and hard to get. Chewing this button causes the most gorgeously colored scenes to appear before the entranced vision, far surpassing, according to descriptions, the most magnificent sunsets. It would seem to be the drug for landscape painters, but unfortunately, whatever other things drugs do, they never increase efficiency. It was first discovered among the Kiowa tribe of Indians, who used it in their religious rites till missionaries induced the government to remove the Indians from where they could get it.

Lightning and Thunder.

By counting the number of seconds in the interval between lightning and thunder it is possible to figure approximately how far from the observer is the scene of the storm. Sound travels 1,100 feet a second, so multiply the number of seconds by 1,100, which will give the distance in feet from the point where the lightning flashed. For example, if ten seconds have elapsed the distance away will be 11,000 feet, or a little over two miles. It might be added that, as light and lightning travel so much faster than sound, if one survives after hearing the crashing peal he can be sure he is safe. Remembrance of this will dissipate terror.

No Cause to Be Discouraged.

Mr. Youngpop—My little girl is nearly two years old and hasn't learned to talk yet. Mr. Henpeckke—Don't let that worry you. My wife says she didn't begin to talk until she was nearly three, and now—

Sacrificed to the Nile.

The ancient Egyptians, if they did not worship the river Nile, held it in great veneration and even dread. The Nile had its appointed priests, festivals and sacrifices, and if its rising was delayed for a single day a beautiful young girl was thrown into its waters and drowned in order to appease the god's anger and secure his favors.

When you have a cold you may be sure that it has been caused indirectly by constipation and consequently you must first of all take something to move the bowels. This is what has made Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup so successful and so generally demanded. It does not constipate like most of the old fashioned cough cures, but on the order hand it gently moves the bowels and at the same time heals irritation and allays inflammation of the throat. Sold by all druggists.

Mrs. Frank Kennedy and daughter of Tecumseh, were over Sunday guests of Mrs. Julia Burleson and family.

Frank Thomas has had his home newly painted, Frank Cullen and Otto Burleson of Clinton, doing the work.

John Anderson and family visited friends in Tecumseh over Sunday.

Tuesday evening, Sept. 15, occurs the marriage of Miss Mary E. Morgan, older daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Morgan, to Earl W. Munshaw at their home in Ann Arbor. Miss Bertha Rhodes will act as bridesmaid.

Ellsworth Collins, Ruth Camburn, Jesse Scudder, Richard Pennington and Rena Davenport are attending school in Tecumseh this year.

Elwin Camburn met an auto on his return from the soldier camp Tuesday and his horse jumped and threw him out of the buggy breaking several ribs and giving him a terrible shaking up. He was doing well at last reports.

The peaceful little town of Macon completely aroused fell in line to protect the town when two companies of U. S. Regulars of Co. D. and G. of the Seventh U. S. Infantry made their appearance Monday morning, but the town soon capitulated and the soldiers marched in and pitched their camp in the little field of J. M. Pennington where in a few minutes appeared a city of canvas consisting of ten tents for the soldiers and three tents for the officers and two tents for the cooking.

The train consisted of four wagons drawn by four mules each, two mounts for the officers. The soldiers had the freedom of the place and they made use of their freedom although in a very orderly way. They proved by their conduct that they were gentlemen. In the army these soldiers were commanded by Capt. Anderson and his lieutenants.

They arrived here about seven o'clock from Adrian having marched two or three miles out of their way by not keeping the direct road. They remained in camp until about four o'clock Tuesday morning when all was astir and tents came down, wagons were loaded and they filed into the road bidding goodbye to Macon and began the line of march to Ann Arbor. Many came in from the country to see real soldier life in camp.

They Take The Kinks Out.

"I have used Dr. King's New Life Pills for many years, with increasing satisfaction. They take the kinks out of stomach, liver and bowels without fuss or friction," says N.H. Brown of Pittsfield, Vt. Guaranteed satisfactory at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store. 25c.

Honored by Women

When a woman speaks of her silent secret suffering she trusts you. Millions have bestowed this mark of confidence on Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. Everywhere there are women who bear witness to the wonder-working, saving power of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—which saves the suffering sex from pain, and successfully grapples with woman's weaknesses and disorders.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG
IT MAKES SICK WOMEN WELL.

No woman's appeal was ever misdirected or her confidence misplaced when she wrote for advice, to the WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets induce mild natural bowel movement once a day.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Melvin Davis, aged fifteen, son of a Dundee grocer, was kicked in the face by a horse which he was driving. His condition is serious.

Edward Steel, a D. & M. freight conductor, lost an arm and died at Alpena from gangrene. He leaves a widow and two children.

Rev. Alfred Curry, aged seventy-five years, one of the oldest Baptist ministers in the state, is dead at his home. He was engaged in active ministerial work for forty-eight years.

Residents of Owosso are circulating petitions calling on the railroads that enter that city to erect a suitable union railway station. The railway commission will be asked to exert pressure on the roads.

Oscar Downs, a baker, was found dead in bed at Lansing. A bottle of whisky containing a large quantity of potassium cyanide, found at his bedside, leads to the belief that he took his own life.

Sherman W. Morris, the "lone highwayman" who was arrested in Lansing while trying to dispose of a diamond and taken back to Colorado for trial, has been convicted of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Arthur Ricks, an employe of the Almo Manufacturing company of Hillsdale, was severely burned during a fire in the testing room of the company. The fire started when the ignition wire from the engine fell into a gasoline tank, causing the fluid to explode.

Cannon Will Reply to Gompers.

Danville, Ill., Sept. 10.—Speaker Joseph G. Cannon of the national house of representatives will open his eighteenth campaign for re-election to congress in this city, his home town, tonight with a speech. He will reply to an attack made upon him by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, who was the principal speaker at the Labor day celebration at Chicago. Mr. Cannon is expected to discuss the issues of the national campaign.

Attacked Them With Ax.

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 10.—During a fit of temporary insanity, Pearson Tally, sixty years old, attacked his wife, his adopted daughter, Edith Johanson, and her husband, Andrew Johanson, and inflicted such serious wounds with a broad ax that the victims are not expected to live. Talley is under arrest, and he says he cannot account for his deed.

The Flight of a Great Nebula.

One of the most striking spectacles revealed by telescopes is that of the great nebula in Orion. In the complexity of its glowing streams, spirals and strangely shaped masses, intercepted by yawning black gaps and sprinkled over with stars arranged in suggestive groups and lines, it has few rivals in the heavens. The impression of astonishment made by the sight of this nebula is heightened by knowledge of its enormous size. The entire solar system would appear as a tiny speck beside it. Yet this tremendous aggregation of nebulous clouds and starry swarms has been proved by the researches of the astronomers of the Lick observatory to be flying away from the earth and the sun at the rate of eleven miles in every second. But so vast is its distance that a hundred years reveal no visual effects of the great nebula's swift retreat. If it were near by it would seem to become rapidly smaller.—Chicago Record Herald.

The Artless Red Indian.

The influence of the fur trader and the mission schools has had a marked effect upon the Ontario Indians. They have to a large extent adopted modern dress, and many of the young men can be found at work in the sawmills and as river drivers. The women, too, manage to keep step with their lords in this march toward civilized appearance. I have seen moccasined feet peeping from beneath the folds of velvet gowns of royal purple. On the bank of Rainy river I came upon a community of wigwams and tepees. About an open fire crouched three old hags, filthy and hideous, but in the door of a tepee not ten feet away stood a young squaw, perhaps a daughter of one of the hags, doing her hair with a curling iron.—Wide World Magazine.

Waiting.

Jack—By the way, how is your suit with Miss Cashleigh progressing? Tom—Slowly. I'm playing a waiting game just now. Jack—A waiting game? Tom—Yes; I'm waiting for her to change her mind.

BREEDERS PROTEST.

Manner of Competing at Fair This Year is Unsatisfactory.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 10.—Breeders of cattle, sheep and swine who are exhibiting at the state fair, this year are up in arms because the premium list has been altered this year, and they are threatening that this will be the last Detroit fair at which they will exhibit if the old classification is not restored.

A petition, drawn up by the cattlemen and passed among the breeders, received over forty signatures in short order, all of whom are demanding a radical change in the way the prizes are being awarded.

Before this year competitors were divided into two classes—Michigan breeders and breeders from outside the state. There was a special set of prizes for Michigan breeders, and these classes were open to Michigan exhibitors alone. Alongside of these classes were the open classes, in which Michigan breeders competed with outsiders.

This year there are no exclusively Michigan classes, and Michigan men can take no prizes unless they enter into competition with breeders from all parts of the country. It is against this that they are protesting.

At the fair association caucus old officers and the executive committee were renominated after hot contests in two cases. C. A. Floyd of Holland, who was expected to take the place of N. J. Whelan on the executive committee, refused the offer. Mr. Whelan was willing to accept the job if it came to him, and Floyd would not compete against him.

WOMAN BLACK HAND.

Mystery at Bessemer Has Been Cleared.

Bessemer, Mich., Sept. 10.—The mystery of the "Black Hand" which has been terrorizing Italian business men here for months has been solved. The desperado who has been threatening death and destruction to those who did not comply with the demands for money is Mrs. Frank Galler, a well educated Italian woman and the mother of four children.

One of the men who received a threatening letter notified the police, who laid a trap. Complying with the instructions contained in the letter, a box containing money was deposited near Powder Mill creek, while five officers lay in wait.

At 4 o'clock in the morning the officers saw a woman creep cautiously along the road, seize the box and run. The officers pursued, and the woman was finally captured, proving to be Mrs. Galler. The woman's husband was also arrested. Galler asserts tht he know nothing of what his wife was doing. He cannot read or write.

Fairbanks Menominee's Guest Today.

Menominee, Mich., Sept. 10.—Vice President Fairbanks, United States Senator William Alden Smith, Senator Isaac Stephenson and many notables are the guests of the city of Menominee today. A grand military review in which Wisconsin and Michigan militia and naval reserves took part was one of the features. The day will close with a banquet of 500 covers, given by the citizens' committee to the distinguished visitor.

Saws Neck With Bread Knife.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 10.—Stillwell H. Matthews, aged forty-five, a traveling man who had been worrying over poor health, went into the back yard at his home, on South Fuller street, and nearly severed his head from his body with a saw edge bread knife. He was found dead in a pool of blood by his wife a few minutes later.

Grants Long Term Franchise.

Ypsilanti, Mich., Sept. 10.—The city council has granted a thirty year franchise to the Washtenaw Light & Power company. General Manager Hemphill says that this clears the way for building a large modern power and light plant, and that $60,000 will be expended in the construction of a plant and in the improvement of the Huron river.

Cummings Still in Jail.

Ionia, Mich., Sept. 10.—William Cummings, the Clarksville pastor who eloped with his wife's sister, is still confined in the county jail. Cummings' father has returned to Sterling, Ill., and since the bail was raised from $500 to $2,000 no one has made an effort to secure his release.

Lilley Nominated For Governor.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 10.—Congressman George E. Lilley of "submarine probe" fame was nominated for governor, and F. B. Weeks for lieutenant governor by the Republican convention here.

ROOSEVELT ANSWERS BRYAN

Names Taft as His Political Heir and Successor.

"OUR POLICIES ARE ALIKE."

The President, in a Letter to Conrad Kohrs, a Cattleman of Helena, Mont., Asserts That the Wage Earner and Capitalist Alike Would Be Safe Under Taft as President—Upholds the Ex-Judge's Action in Labor Injunction Cases.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 14.—President Roosevelt made public today a letter sent to Conrad Kohrs of Helena, Mont., an old time cattleman and a leading citizen of the state, in which he states why laboring men and capitalists alike should vote for the election of William H. Taft for president. Mr. Roosevelt wrote the letter as a reply to Mr. Bryan's recent statement that he alone was the true heir to Mr. Roosevelt politically and was his natural successor to the presidency. The president's friendship for Mr. Kohrs, a pioneer citizen of the northern Rocky Mountain section, dates from twenty years ago, when both men were members of the Montana Stock Growers' association. Mr. Roosevelt's letter in part is as follows:

"The last few years have seen a great awakening of the public conscience and the growth of a stern determination to do away with corruption and unfair dealing, political, economic, social. It is urgently necessary that this great reform movement is healthy if it is marked by periods of frenzied advance, followed, as such periods of frenzied advance must always be, followed, by equally violent periods of reaction. The true friend of reform is the man who steadily perseveres in righting wrongs, in warring against abuses, but whose character and training are such that he never promises what he cannot perform, that he always a little more than makes good what he does promise, and that, while steadily advancing, he never is led into foolish excesses.

In Mr. Taft we have a man who combines all of these qualities to a degree which no other man in our public life since the civil war has surpassed. To a flaming hatred of injustice, to a hearty sympathy with the oppressed, he unites courage, both moral and physical, of the very highest type and a kindly generosity which makes him feel that his fellow countrymen are his friends and brothers.

Safety For Business Man and Laborer.

"The honest man of means, the honest and law abiding business man, can feel safe in his hands. The honest wageworker, the honest laboring man, the honest farmer, the honest mechanic or small trader or man of small means, can feel that in a peculiar sense Mr. Taft will be his representative because of the very fact that he has the same scorn for the demagogue that he has for the corruptionist and that he would treat threats of personal violence from a mob with the unmoving and lofty indifference with which he would front the bitter anger of the wealthiest corporations.

"Mr. Taft and I have the same views as to what is demanded by the national interest and honor. There is no fight for decency and fair dealing which I have waged in which I have not had his heartiest and most effective sympathy and support, and the policies for which I stand are his policies as much as mine.

"Let Mr. Taft be judged by what he has himself done and by what the administration, in which he has played so conspicuous a part, has done.

"Mr. Taft can be trusted to exact justice from the railroads for the very reason that he can be trusted to do justice to the railroads.

"While in all proper ways railroad rates must be kept low, we must always remember that we have no right and no justification to reduce them when the result is the reduction of the wages of the great army of railroad men. The man who promises to raise the wages of railroad employes to the highest point and at the same time to reduce rates to the lowest point is promising what neither he nor any one else can perform, and if the effort to perform it were attempted disaster would result to both shipper and wageworker and ruin to business interests. The man to trust in such a matter as this is the man who, like Judge Taft does not promise too much, but who could not be swayed from the path of duty. He will not favor a ruinous experiment like government ownership of railways.

Applies to All Trusts.

"What is said as to his attitude on the railway question applies to the whole question of the trusts.

"If there is one body of men more than another whose support I feel I have a right to challenge on behalf of Judge Taft it is the wageworkers of the country. A fairer and truer representative they cannot find within the borders of the United States. He will do everything in his power for them except to do that which is wrong.

"Mr. Taft has been attacked because of the injunctions he delivered while on the bench. I am content to rest his case on these very injunctions. Most assuredly he never has yielded and never will yield to threat or pressure of any sort, as little if it comes from labor as if it comes from capital.

"His record as a judge makes the whole country his debtor.

"As for the attack upon his injunctions in labor disputes I ask that the injunctions be carefully examined. I ask that every responsible and fair minded member of a labor organization read these injunctions for himself. If he will do so he will heartily approve of them and will recognize this further astonishing fact that the principles laid down by Judge Taft which laboring people are asked to condemn are the very principles now embodied in the laws of every responsible labor organization. They mark the judge who rendered them as standing for the rights of the whole people. As far as daylight is from darkness so far is such a judge from the time server, the truckler to the mob or the cringing tool of great, corrupt and corrupting corporations.

"Let all fair minded men, wageworkers and capitalists alike consider yet another fact. In one of his decisions Judge Taft upheld in the strongest fashion and for the first time gave full vitality to the principle of the employers' liability for injuries done workmen. This was before any national law on the subject was enacted.

"On the bench Judge Taft showed the two qualities which make a great judge—wisdom and moral courage. They are also the two qualities which make a great president."

Bryan Wouldn't Speak Sunday.

Baltimore, Sept. 14.—William J. Bryan is a visitor to Baltimore today, whence he arrived from the summering place of Deer Park, where he spent Sunday. Yesterday Mr. Bryan put his stamp of approval on Sunday political speech making. Without his knowledge, the residents around Mountain Lake park were notified to assemble there at 3 o'clock to hear him talk. Over 1,200 of them gathered while Mr. Bryan at Deer Park was protesting to a local committee that he would make no speech. He finally was prevailed upon to take the three mile drive and shake hands with those in the assemblage with the understanding that he should not speak, and this he did.

Meets in Washington.

Washington, Sept. 14.—By the end of this week hundreds of delegates will have arrived to attend the sessions of the international congress on tuberculosis, which opens Monday, Sept. 21. This fighting force of the world, as regards the white plague, will spend three weeks in this city. All sessions will be held in the National Museum building. From every civilized country in the world the delegates or "congressists," as they are technically termed, are coming.

Voting in Maine Today.

Portland, Me., Sept. 14.—With the Republicans confident and the Democrats hopeful and with clearly defined issues of local, rather than of national importance, the voters of Maine are today casting their ballots for governor, congressmen, state auditor, members of the legislature and county officials. In addition they are asked to accept two proposed amendments to the state constitution, both dealing with the initiative and the referendum.

Shocking Demonstration in London Against Catholics.

Eucharistic Congress Ends With Procession Headed by Pope's Legate. Throng in Streets Equalled Occasion of Queen's Funeral—Processior Broken Up For Time.

London, Sept. 14.—A great procession of Catholic clergy, which brought the eucharistic congress to an end, was held Sunday afternoon amid scenes such as the English churchmen who planned it had never anticipated. Cardinal Vannutelli, the pope's legate, walked at the head of the procession, wearing his scarlet robes and hat, but not carrying the host. He was accompanied by a concourse of cardinals, archbishops and bishops who also were attired in unceremonial robes instead of vestments, which originally it had been proposed they should wear.

No such throngs of people have been seen in London since Queen Victoria's funeral, if even then. The purpose of Archbishop Bourne, the head of the Westminster diocese, and his associates, who arranged the program, had been to have the host carried through the streets in the rear of Westminster cathedral, so that the great body of Catholics who were unable to participate in any of the services within the cathedral should have an opportunity of joining in the observances and of seeing all the high ecclesiastics present in London on this memorable occasion.

The route of the procession was laid through the quiet streets adjacent to the cathedral, and, but for the unexpected partisan strife which discussion of this ceremony brought on, it probably would have been solemnized quietly and in a reverent atmosphere. The great majority of those who attempted to witness the spectacle, however, apparently were attracted by curiosity, and a small part were openly and demonstratively hostile. The Catholic element cheered heartily while the procession passed by and throughout the route, but there was heard also considerable "booing," such as the English people use in theaters to express displeasure at any of the plays.

At one or two points in the parade the processionists had practically to force a passage trough the crowds, which broke through the police lines. The crush was frightful. Many women and not a few men fainted, and those who were found wilfully pushing and jostling were carried away in police wagons. The parade was broken up for a time.

After the procession had re-entered the cathedral, Cardinal Vannutelli appeared on the high balcony in gorgeous robes and elevated the host, while the thousands of Catholics outside the building reverently knelt.

Preceding the procession Sunday morning, the final sermon of the congress was preached by Cardinal Gibbons of the United States and was listened to with rapt attention by the great audience that filled Westminster.

"There's only one thing the armless wonder can't do with his feet," said the showman.

"What's that?" asked a spectator.

"Put on his gloves," answered the showman.

COLLISION ON PERE MARQUETTE

One Fatally Injured and Fifteen Others Hurt.

EXCURSION TRAIN IN MIXUP.

Crashed Into Freight Near Waverly, Excursion Was Running Slow on Account of Dense Smoke From Forest Fires—Crews of Both Trains Saw Danger and Leaped.

Holland, Mich., Sept. 14.—One man was probably fatally injured and fifteen other persons slightly hurt in a head-on collision between a special excursion train and a freight on the Pere Marquette one and one-half miles east of this city. But for dense smoke from the forest fires, which necessitated the excursion train running very slow, one of the most disastrous wrecks in the history of Michigan would have resulted.

The freight, known as 153, bound for Muskegon, was shoving a string of cars from the main line on to a siding when the special from Grand Rapids to St. Joseph and Benton Harbor, carrying 300 excursionists, crashed into it, completely demolishing both engines and telescoping the baggage and smoking car. The engine of the special was thrown into the ditch.

Going Down Grade.

The accident occurred a half mile east of the town of Waverly. The passenger train was traveling down a grade only eighteen miles an hour, faster time being impossible. Engineer Vanderbelt, leaning from the cab window, peering ahead into the heavy mantle of smoke, saw the freight loom up but a hundred yards in front of him. Quickly applying the emergency brakes, he shouted a warning to his fireman, Clarence Mates, and both men jumped.

Vanderbelt landed on his feet and then plunged head foremost into the cinders along the tracks. His left ankle was broken, his face pounded almost to a pulp, and it is believed he is internally injured. He is at the home of relatives in this city, and his death is expected. Mates sustained badly lacerated knees.

The exact cause of the wreck is not known, but it is said the freight was not supposed to be on the main line at that time. It was stretched half way around the switch, although orders had been issued giving the special the right of way. As the special was five minutes late, no cause can be assigned for the presence of the freight.

That many were no killed or seriously injured is miraculous. The telescoped smoker carried forty passengers. All of those injured except the engineer and fireman were riding in this coach. Engineer C. Kraft and Conductor A. Hines, with the fireman of the freight, jumped before the crash and escaped uninjured. Five cars of the freight were reduced to kindling wood.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

While hauling logs to a sawmill, D. E. Cady, a Rochester teamster, was severely, perhaps fatally, hurt, his load tipping over and throwing him violently to the ground. Although no bones were broken, he received serious internal injuries.

Battery A, field artillery, of Lansing, under command of Captain R. C. Vandercook, started Sunday for Sparta, Wis., to engage in target practice with the Fourth United States artillery under Major T. Bentley Mott. A train of fifteen cars was required to transport the guns, horses, men and equipment.

Leslie Sweet, fourteen-years-old son of W. A. Sweet of Hartford, was instantly killed at Rush lake by an accidental discharge of a rifle. Sweet, with other boys, was coming ashore to go home. Sweet took hold of the gun by the muzzle to take it from the boat. The trigger caught and the bullet entered his head.

Mrs. Ella Tharrett of Warren and Miss Marian Smith of Flint were thrown from a carriage by a runaway horse while out driving. Mrs. Tharrett was painfully injured about the head and shoulders and was rendered unconscious for half an hour. Her condition is serious. Miss Smith escaped with a few bruises.

Lawrence Hogan, a farmer near Muskegon, is near death suffering with tetanus, the result of being bitten, it is alleged, in a fight with a man named Leon Cribley. Hogan and Cribley have repeatedly quarreled over a cow poisoning case, and the two mixed up. Cribley is said to have grabbed Hogan and sunk his teeth into his left arm.

Some Ducats and a Daughter.

By HOWARD FIELDING.

Copyright, 1907, by C. W. Hooke.

"'So,' said she, 'you've caught me,' and with that she fell at his feet in a profound swoon.

For some minutes the natural human impulse to give aid was stronger in Dunton than all other feelings. Amazement was forced to the background of his consciousness, while sympathy rushed to the front; nor had he any time for such reflections as would have been appropriate to his calling. Whom had he caught? What had this beautiful girl been guilty of that she should faint at the sight of a detective? How did she know who Dunton was? He would have staked his life that he had never seen her. Did she mistake him for somebody else? No; there was perfect recognition in her glance.

Assisted or at least accompanied by the landlady, who had heard the sound of the fall, Dunton carried the unconscious girl into the room which he had just engaged and laid her upon the couch. Then he summoned a physician from an adjoining house. Meanwhile he had learned only that the girl had taken a room in the house that morning and given the name of Mary Stone.

A little later, however, when the doctor had taken charge of the case upon the medical side, Dunton was able to give his undivided attention to that aspect of it which appertained to his own profession. Miss Stone had carried a small black shopping bag, and it had fallen upon the floor of the hall. Dunton thought himself privileged to examine its contents, and the first thing he found was a roll of bills amounting to almost a thousand dollars. Delving deeper, he came upon a small green memorandum book, which bore upon its first page the name of Mildred Southerland.

Dunton was aware that Mr. Southerland had a daughter named Mildred, but he had not seen her on his single visit to Marblehead. It was clear, however, that she must have seen him and known his errand. Meeting him thus after her flight from home, how could she doubt that he had pursued and passed her and, having learned her destination, had awaited her there?

"This is a very bad business," said the detective to himself, "and it's up to me to see that it gets no worse."

Miss Southerland had been carried into Dunton's room because the one which she had engaged was up two flights of stairs, Dunton had learned from the landlady, and he knew also that the girl had brought a small trunk with her. To get into this room and to open the trunk cost only the labor of picking two easy locks, and the result amply justified the exertion. In the trunk there was a sealed packet, and in the packet were all the stolen securities except the one bond that had been sold.

When this investigation was completed Dunton returned to the lower hall, where he awaited the appearance of the doctor.

"The young lady will do very well now," said that gentleman. "You are a friend"—

"A friend of the family," said the detective.

"She seems to have been laboring under a severe nervous strain," continued the doctor. "I understand that she desires to see you."

Dunton knocked on the door of the back parlor and was invited to enter. He found Miss Southerland reclining in an easy chair and seemingly not much the worse for her experience. The extraordinary beauty and seeming innocence of the girl knocked hard upon the detective's heart.

"Here is your shopping bag," said he. "It contains a little book with your name."

"My name," she repeated. "Yes."

"I think we ought to take the 5 o'clock train back to Boston," said Dunton. "Do you wish to say anything to me before we start?"

"What can I say?"

"Why did you rob your father?"

The girl stared at him, her eyes growing larger and brighter. She rose slowly, and as she did so she pulled open the little black bag.

"Do you mean to tell me," she cried, "that my father mentioned this paltry money, that he thought of these miserable dollars? My ducats and my daughter! Here, take it back to him!"

She snatched the money out of the bag and flung it against Dunton's breast. The loose roll of bills seemed to burst like a bomb, and the air was full of the national currency.

"I ventured to suppose," said the girl, with scorn, "that he had sent you after me and not after my quarterly allowance," and she laughed bitterly.

Dunton looked keenly into her eyes during an interval of silence.

"How did you know that I was a detective?" he asked at last.

"Mr. Varney told me so," she replied. "He was at Marblehead when I was there?"

"Yes; in the garden."

"And you were with him? A secret meeting—I see, I see. He had been discharged because of his attentions to you?"

"Why, of course!"

"What did Mr. Varney say to you about me?"

"He said that my father had engaged you to watch me to see whether I had any communication with Mr. Varney. But you must know all this. Why do you ask these questions?"

"Did you know of any other reason why your father should employ a detective?"

"No."

"He did not mention a robbery?"

"No."

"You knew nothing about it?"

"Certainly not. What do you mean?"

"One moment, please. Did Mr. Varney intrust a packet to you?"

"Yes; it contains documents relating to his dead father's estate."

The detective drew the packet from under his coat and laid it on the table. The girl quickly extended her hand, and as she touched the packet Dunton laid his hand on hers.

"Wait," said he. "Have you married him?"

"No."

"Have you seen him since you left your father's house?"

"No."

The detective released her hand and raised his own to his forehead.

"I am not a religious man ordinarily," said he, "but when I thank God I mean it. Now look at that—at those papers relating to Mr. Varney's estate."

"Why, these are bonds!" exclaimed the girl.

"Right," said he; "$89,000 worth, stolen from your father. Mr. Varney did not want to be caught with the goods on him, as we say in my business, so he gave them to you. And you knew nothing. When you saw me, you thought I had come to interrupt an elopement?"

"Certainly."

"I suppose Mr. Varney used to live in this house," said Dunton, and the girl nodded. "That's why he sent you here, and it's why my correspondent advised me to come, thinking that I might pick up a clew in the house. And so we met, and"—

He was interrupted by a cautious tap at the door. It was the professional brother.

"Your man's in the house now," said that worthy. "He's gone upstairs. He asked for a Miss Stone, and a servant told him where her room was."

"Go up and get him," said Dunton. "I want him for robbery. Take him to headquarters. I haven't time to see him now. I've got to escort this lady back to Boston on the 5 o'clock train. And as to her"—he laid his finger on his lips.

KNOWN BY NICKNAMES.

Places Where a Genuine Surname Is Never Even Heard.

In many places in Great Britain, and especially in some of the fishing villages of Cornwall and of certain parts of Scotland, such a thing as a genuine surname is never even heard. Every man in the place is known by a nickname.

In most of these villages this has been brought about originally by the fact that all the inhabitants have only had very few surnames among them. One or two prevailing families have represented the population and have married and intermarried till trying to distinguish a man by his surname has only created confusion. And even some of the nicknames have begun to act in the same way. At a village not very far from Wick the writer knows of some fishermen who had originally been nicknamed "Dumpy" and had left so many descendants that other specific nicknames had been necessary to distinguished which of the "Dumpys" was meant on given occasions.

At another village not far from this one several nicknames have in the same way become the only known family names. The writer was once in the general shop here when a small boy came in and asked for some article, stating that it was for Blower.

"Blower?" said the shopkeeper. "Which Blower? There are scores of Blowers?"

The child answered at once:

"It's for 'Bowleggit' Blower, 'Red Lugged' (eared) Blower's laddie."—London Answers.

THE COCA PLANT.

Its Leaves Used as an Invigorant in South America.

Coca is the South American invigorant. The shrub from which the coca leaves are obtained grows under favorable conditions to a height of about four meters. It is cultivated in Peru and Bolivia.

At the time the crop is gathered the seeds are sown in beds, when they germinate and grow, and in two months the growing plants reach a height of about a foot. The leaves, grown in the proper sunlight and shade, are yellowish, small and thick.

This is the kind of leaf that is preferred for chewing by persons using the leaf as a stimulant, fortifier and preventive of sleep and fatigue in the performance of arduous work, inasmuch as they prevent rheumatism, from which miners suffer when working in mines that contain much water. Indians who masticate the leaves of this plant can work twenty-four hours without eating or sleeping.

Coca leaves are used by the natives when engaged in long and fatiguing journeys and by soldiers when subject to hardships and privations. They may be used with all kinds of food and are said to cure dyspepsia, either taken as an infusion in the shape of tea or by masticating the leaves. The life of the plant when perfect is eighty years.—Chicago Tribune.

Milking the Cow.

"Milkmen have different ways of managing their cows, but generally they feed each cow and begin milking as soon as the cow begins to eat," says a dairyman. "The milker hurries to get through, too, because if the cow finishes her breakfast before the milker has done his work she extorts more feed by holding back her milk, so must be fed again to keep her in good humor. Some milkmen do their milking first and then feed immediately, and cows that are accustomed to this treatment generally give down their milk cheerfully, for they know that milking is a prelude to the feeding. It all depends on habit and the way the cows are treated, for a cow is much smarter than she looks and more grateful than most persons would believe. So long as the cows know they are not going to be struck or beaten they will neither kick nor hook. An experienced milkman will never allow any loud talking or excitement about his barns, for the quieter the cows are kept the greater the quantity of milk and the easier the work."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

EXPENSIVE TEA.

The Famous Golden Tip and the Way It Is Obtained.

The tea looked like golden floss silk, like shredded golden satin, like the fluff of dandelions dyed gold. "And is this tea?" said the reporter.

"This," the tea merchant answered, "is the best tea in the world, and it is worth $90 or more a pound, for this, sir, is the famous Golden Tip. I'll tell you why it is so costly.

"Every chest of the best dollar and a half tea contains some handfuls of undeveloped leaves of small, gold tipped leaves called Flowery Pekoe. Sort out from a chest these leaves; wrap them, a handful at a time, in a square of satin; shake the satin lightly; empty the leaves back into the chest. Clinging to the satin remain a few golden shreds, a golden fluff, a golden lint. You brush it off carefully into a jar. You cull more handfuls of undeveloped leaves from another chest, and, shaking them up in the satin, you are again rewarded with some more golden fluff.

"That is Golden Tip, and by the time you have obtained in this tedious manner a pound of it it is no wonder that the exquisite product is worth $90, or $100, is it?" He shook the tea about in its Satsuma jar. "The fluffy golden stuff shimmered like satin. "Only emperors drink it," he said. "A cup costs more than a bottle of champagne."—New York Press.

CAPE COD.

A Nomadic Piece of Land That Is Constantly Changing.

Cape Cod itself is sand and, like everything of a desert nature, is nomadic. Like the Arab, it is always silently stealing away, so that the appearance of the peninsula constantly changes. The prevailing winds in the winter being from the north, the sand is blown south; in summer it is blown t'other way. But, the winter winds being stronger, the land is gradually working south. Monomoy, at the lower end, used to be an island, its extremity being called Cape Malabar, a name not used now—why I cannot say. This island of Monomoy is rapidly growing toward Nantucket, it having advanced some five miles in the last fifty years. One of the Rubes told me that his father used to fish where the light is now. Of course you can always strain Rube talk and pick out about 50 per cent sediment, but the old charts show that the point is working south fast.—From "Knocking About Cape Cod," by T. F. Daly, in Outing Magazine.

Sarsaparilla.

The druggist was serving a couple of men with sarsaparilla.

"Did you ever stop to think where this delicious stuff comes from?" he asked.

"Sassafras, isn't it?" they hazarded.

"Sassafras nothing," said the druggist. "Sarsaparilla is made of zarza roots, and zarza roots come from the Amazonas swamps of Brazil.

"Fearful swamps they are—smelly black mud, mosquitoes in millions, snakes and crabs, heat, poison, orchids, fever. And here the natives camp for weeks at a time gathering zarza roots for the sarsaparilla trade. The vine runs along the ground, the roots are located, and half of them are taken, the remaining half being carefully covered with soil again, so that they will sprout for next year.

"It is because sarsaparilla, like quinine, grows in fever soil that it is good for fever."

Progress.

"Yes," said Mrs. Malaprop, "my boy is doing first rate at school. I sent him to one o' them alimentary schools, and his teacher says he's doing fine. He's a first class sculler, they tell me, and is head of his class in gastronomy, knows his letters by sight and can spell like one o' these deformed spellers down to Washington."

"What's he going to be when he grows up?"

"He wants to be an undertaker, and I'm inclined to humor him, so I've told the confessor to pay special intention to the dead languages," said the proud mother.—Harper's Weekly.

Not a Flier.

"What bird is it," asked the school inspector, "that is found in Africa and, although it has wings, cannot fly?"

The class was unable to answer this very puzzling question. Thinking to encourage them, the inspector offered a sixpence to the little boy or girl who could tell him. After a brief hesitation a little girl of five years put up her hand.

"Well, my little dear," said the inspector, "what is it?"

"Please, sir, a dead un."—London Fun.

Alarming.

"Now, don't tell me any story about misfortune an' wantin' to be a hard worker an' all that," said the hard faced lady. "I can see right through you."

"Gracious!" said Dismal Dawson. "I know I ain't had nothin' to eat for three days, but I didn't know it had thinned me down like that."

The Greater Danger.

There was never a more conscientious young man than Eben Soule, and when he found how much absorbed he had become with the mere idea of playing in the town band he consulted his minister. "Do you reckon I could give up all that time to music without falling from grace?" he asked anxiously.

The good old Methodist had a saving sense of humor. He saw that his parishioner was much distressed between his wishes and his conscience, but the minister smiled on him nevertheless.

"It's the horn you're asked to play, I hear," he said. "Ever had much experience with it, Eben?"

"Never tried it but once, but I like the sound of it first rate," said the young man.

"M'm!" said the minister. "Well, I think you needn't be afraid of falling from grace on account of it, but I do hope you'll manage things so your family and neighbors won't have to pass through the fiery temptation of hearing you practice too often, Eben."—Exchange.

Few Words.

He had gone to ask her father for her hand in marriage.

"Well, sir, what is it?" snapped out the old man. "Remember, I am a man of few words."

"I don't care if you are a man of only one word, if it's the right one," replied the suitor.

He got the girl.

Right in a Sense.

"That waiter's an idiot!"

"What's the matter now?"

"I asked him to bring me a water cracker."

"Well?"

"And here he brings an ice pick!"—Cleveland Leader.

OBITUARY

MISS S. L. STOCKING.

Miss S. L. Stocking, only sister of W. P. Stocking of 245 Elm ave., died suddenly at the Hollenbeck home Los Angeles, at six o'clock Wednesday morning, September 2nd.

Miss Stocking was 81 years old, had been an invalid and a member of the home for the past twelve years. The immediate cause of her death was a fall the 29th of August, which broke her hip. From this injury she did not rally and was only conscious at very short intervals

Miss Stocking was a graduate of Clover Street Seminary, Rochester, N. Y., in 1856, and for many years she was a teacher in the colleges and seminaries of Southern Michigan and Illinois.

She was buried in Evergreen cemetery, Los Angeles, in that part of it purchased by Mrs. Hollenbeck for the members of the home.—Daily Press, Long Beach, Calif.

Miss Stocking will be remembered by many of the older residents of Tecumseh as the elder daughter of Deacon Amos Stocking and only sister of Miss Fannie Stocking. Miss Sarah Stocking was born at Mount Morris, N. Y., July 22, 1827.

After graduating she was a teacher in the Tecumseh schools for a number of years. Many of her old pupils in Michigan and Illinois are now residents of Los Angeles and have been her best friends, visiting her often in the Home doing very much to add to her comfort and happiness in her declining years. Her suffering after her fall was more than her frail constitution could stand.

Dr. S E Wishard who was pastor of the Presbyterian church in Tecumseh 47 years ago and of whose family she was a member for seven years while in Illinois officiated at the funeral and his daughter's sang. The floral offerings were many and appropriate. By her death W. P. Stocking is the sole survivor of Amos Stockings family. He is in his 67th year and is a resident of Long Beach, Calif.

REMINISCENCES

Interesting Account of the Pioneer Days in the Life of B. J. Bidwell.

Mr. Birdsell Jason Bidwell left his eastern home at Colebrook, Conn. in 1834, and sailed away through the Erie canal, and over Lake Erie, like the Grecian hero whose name he bore, in search of the "Golden Fleece," which he expected to find in far away Michigan.

If we could look down the valley of Time for seventy-four long years, we would see among the strangers who arrived in our little town, a slender, active young man about twenty-four years of age.

This gentleman was quite a contrast to the Mr. Bidwell the majority of Tecumseh people remember, when he departed on his last long journey "to that bourn from which no traveler returns" (in 1892). Then the foot steps had become slow, and the "ear dull of hearing," for he had passed the four score limit of mans little span.

When Mr. Bidwell first came to Tecumseh he was considered a fine dancer, and taught the young people of the village this graceful accomplishment. Mr. Bidwell soon convinced the inhabitants that he could use his head to even a far better advantage than his heels.

In many respects he may be regarded as the Russell Sage of Tecumseh. He was such a shrewd financier, and successful business man.

Mr. Bidwell was the proprietor of the Bidwell block, and for many years our most prominent merchant, in the store now occupied by Harris & Co.

He conducted his large mercantile establishment, operated a large Tannery in Brownville and was at the same time extensively engaged in farming, and raising fancy stock on a large scale. His farm products, and fancy stock always won the blue ribbon at the state, and county fairs.

Mr. Bidwell was also largely interested in the Banking business of the place.

In his political views he was a staunch Republican, and in religious sentiments a Presbyterian.

Though a man of but few words, what he said was generally to the point.

A person once inquired of him why he did not attend the Wednesday evening prayer service with his wife?

Mr. Bidwell said "he thought husband, and wife were one," and as we had been told "to watch, and pray," Mrs. Bidwell went to church "to pray," and he remained at home, "to watch."

In his business relations he was an honest man, and often jocular with those in his employ.

He was very proud of his fine homestead, and pretty wife (Elizabeth Angelia Cushing, of Townsend Vermont) and was never more happy than when he was surprising her with some beautiful article for home, or personal use.

When Mr. Bidwell was nearing the half century mile stone, he would at times become the center of attraction at evening parties by.

Giving a Clog, at a lively jog,
Then cut a "Pigeons Wing"
And dance "The Highland Fling"

He was sympathetic, but at the same time would conceal such tendencies by an indifferent manner, and doubtless thought it the best policy not "To let his left hand know, what his right hand doeth."

HARRIETT STRONG SNYDER.

AMUSEMENTS.

W.F. Mann, the well-known producer and manager, has added another laurel to his credit when he succeeded in getting possession of "Meadow-Brook Farm," a Pastoral play dealing with New England types, by L B. Parker. The incidents in "Meadow-Brook Farm" are supposed to transpire in the village of Ienhurst on the Cathedral Hills, in New Hampshire.

"Meadow-Brook Farm" will be seen at the New Bradley opera house on Friday, Sept. 18th, with an excellent cast headed by J. J. Swartwood.

GRAPES.

Wm. Smith, 3 blocks north of East branch school house, on Maumee street, will sell grapes in the vineyard at 1½c per pound or 2c per pound delivered.

Rev. W. A. Ward, who has been pastor of the Methodist for the past four years, has received an appointment to Laurium, U. P., at a greatly increased salary.

Laurium is a place of 5,000 connected with Calumet by trolley, and Mr. Ward is to be congratulated upon receiving the appointment. Mr. Ward has been attending conference at Calumet, and telegraphed here yesterday of his appointment.

Mr. Ward and family have made many friends in Tecumseh during their stay here, all of whom regret to have them leave, but wish them all success in their new home.

Rev. J. Stanley Shaw, who has held pastorates in both Detroit and Monroe, will take charge of the work here.

Rev. Ward will preach for his new congregation next Sunday, returning to Tecumseh for his family next week. Miss Lena and Kenneth Ward expect to remain here until after the holidays.

Other appointments in the Ann Arbor district are:

William Dawe—Presiding Elder.
D. H. Ramsdell—Adrian.
A. W. Stalker—Ann Arbor.
A. B. Sutcliff—Blissfield.
J. D. Halladay—Clinton.
E. R. Rice—Deerfield.
H. R. Beatty—Dundee.
W. H. Smith—Manchester.
E. L. Moon—Monroe.
A. T. Camburn—Ridgeway.
J S. Shaw—Tecumseh.
M. C. Hawks—Ypsilanti.

No appointment has been made for Tipton.

BEULAH HOME.

School and Home for Homeless Boys at Boyne City.

Herman L. Swift, proprietor and manager of the Beulah Home for Boys at Boyne City, with four of the boys from the home, left this morning for Grand Rapids, after a three days stay in Tecumseh.

Meetings were held in each of the three churches, Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian. Mr. Swift telling about the home, and the boys singing and speaking.

Collections were taken amounting to $185.63, which will go towards a new building; a school and a home for the younger lads.

BOWLING ALLEY RE-OPENED.

Closed Since July 4th, Will Open Now with New Proprietors.

Messrs. Beck of Blairsville, Pa., and Shaw of Jackson have rented the building formerly occupied by Fred Miller, and will start a first class bowling alley, pool room and penny arcade. Mr. Shaw has had no experience in the business, but Mr. Beck has spent a number of years in the work, and has successfully conducted the alleys at Hague Park, Jackson, during the past summer.

EASY TO CURE CATARRH

Just Breathe in Hyomei, the Dry Air that Kills the Germs.

You can do exactly what G. J. Sterers did by using Hyomei. Read this:

"After having suffered from chronic catarrh for years, for which I tried various remedies without success, I became almost discouraged. After reading about Hyomei, I decided to make one more effort to rid myself of the dread disease, and to my great delight I found the use of two bottles of the Inhalent sufficient to produce a complete cure. I now take pleasure in recommending this remedy to all sufferers from catarrh."—G. J. Sterers, Crown City, Ohio.

We don't simply say Hyomei will cure catarrh, but we say that C. A. Wright & Son, the druggist guarantees it to cure catarrh, or money back. He does more—he guarantees it to cure asthma, bronchitis, hay fever, coughs and colds. A complete Hyomei outfit, including inhales, costs only $1.00, and extra bottles, if you afterwards need one, will cost but 50 cents. Hyomei is a pleasant dry air treatment. You just breathe it in, and as it passes over the inflamed membrane, it kills the germs of catarrh, and allays all inflammation.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold

A. J. Nusbaum, Batesville, Indiana, writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed to only aggravate my case. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package, and it quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success."

When a man's wife tells him what she thinks of him she doesn't do anything of the sort.

He is an undeserving wretch who dodges what is coming to him and keeps roaring for his due.

Dyspepsia is America's cure. Burdock Blood Bitters conquers dyspepsia every time. It drives out impurities, tones the stomach, restores perfect digestion, normal weight, and good health.

When lawyers are minding their own business they are prying into somebody else's.

OF INTEREST TO MANY

Foley's Kidney Cure will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble that is not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more.

The man who knows how to manage a woman, doesn't.

Whatever else you do when you start out to criticise your friend, talk about something else.

Kodal will, in a very short time, enable the stomach to do the work it should do, and the work it should do is to digest all the food you eat. When the stomach can't do it Kodal does it for it and in the meantimes the stomach is getting stronger and able to take up its regular natural work again. Kodal digests all you eat. It makes the stomach sweet and it is pleasant to take. It is sold here by all druggists.

Some people envy the man who pays his bills promptly, and some consider him foolish.

Healthy kidneys filter the impurities from the blood, and unless they do this good health is impossible. Foley's Kidney Cure makes sound kidneys and will positively cure all forms of kidney and bladder disease. It strengthens the whole system.

It would save much guessing and straining if the psychological moment would always wear its label.

The courage of many a man lies wholly in his bank account.

Some girls find the most distressing thing about a broken engagement to be the giving back the diamond ring.

A COMMON ERROR.

The Same Mistake Is Made by Many Tecumseh People.

It's a common error
To plaster the aching back,
To rub with liniments rheumatic joints.
When the trouble comes from the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.

Clark Decker, living at 130 West Maumee st., Adrian, Mich., says: "Before I used Doan's Kidney Pills I had such severe backaches that it was often difficult for me to move about and many times when getting up from a chair or a stooped position, I was compelled to place my hands to my hips and rise gradually. At night I could not sleep well and though I using many remedies and plasters my condition failed to improve. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills I procured a box at Wright & Son's drug store and they brought me prompt relief. I continued used them until completely cured."

Plenty more proof like this from Tecumseh people. Call at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store and ask what their customers report.

Heart Troubles

The heart may be weak just the same as the eyes, stomach or other organs. It often happens that a person is born with a weak heart. Then again disease, fevers, over-exertion, anxiety, nervousness, rheumatism, etc. weaken the heart. The result is shortness of breath, palpitation, pain in the heart, or in some of the nerves of the chest or abdomen. The heart should be strengthened with a tonic, and for this nothing equals Dr. Miles' Heart Cure.

"I had LaGrippe last fall as I thought in a mild form. I was weak, tired feeling, and short of breath; could hardly go about, and a good deal of the time sort of an asthmatic breathing and extremely nervous. I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nervine and now I feel so much better in every way. I am so thankful that I began taking this medicine, and shall not hesitate to tell others how much good it has done me."

How to Cure Indigestion

Well Known Family Physician Gives Good Advice.

"When a person cannot eat ordinary food without discomfort afterward, when he has heartburn, sick headache, gas on the stomach, water brash, belches his sour food, and this condition has continued for a week or more, it certainly is time to do something and do it quickly. That's what a popular physician recently said to the writer. "First thing you know you'll have dyspepsia if you don't," said he.

The quickest and best way to regain your normal condition is to step into the drug store and buy a 50c bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It gives natural, daily movements to the bowels, and that is usually where more than half the trouble lies. Then it aids digestion, sweetens the stomach, acts on the liver and is a general system tonic.

Postmaster Ridgill, of Bruceville, Tex., had such a severe attack of dyspepsia that his stomach, liver and bowels seemed almost paralyzed, but a few doses of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin relieved him and today he is well as ever. Maude Hall, Alpena, Mich., says that one bottle cured her of a very severe case of indigestion. A. L. Espich, Chief of Police, New Philadelphia, Ohio, says: "I find Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin the best remedy for indigestion I ever used. I would not be without it." Rev. A. J. Fletcher, Rutherford, Tenn., is now 86, and yet it cured him of stomach trouble of 40 years' standing. Mrs. Mattie Crouch, Hickerville, Tenn., cured her five months' old baby of indigestion with it so you see that while it is so effective it will cure cases of long standing of dyspepsia and constipation in old people, it is perfectly safe for babies, and it is pleasant to take, and does not pain or gripe.

All druggists sell it at 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Pepsin Syrup Co., 307 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill., are glad to send a free sample to any one who has not used it and will give it a fair trial.

They Take The Kinks Out.

"I have used Dr. King's New Life Pills for many years, with increasing satisfaction. They take the kinks out of stomach, liver and bowels, without fuss or friction," says N.H. Brown of Pittsfield, Vt. Guaranteed satisfactory at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store. 25c.

HOW TO AVOID APPENDICITIS

Most victims of appendicitis are those who are habitually constipated. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup cures chronic constipation by stimulating the liver and bowels, and restores the natural action of the bowels. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup does not nauseate or gripe and is mild and pleasant to take. Refuse substitutes.

DUNDEE.

Once more the Morse family have had the pleasure of meeting and holding a family reunion, at the beautiful farm home of Harvey P. Morse, Sept. 5th on Saturday last we were one of the favored ones to enjoy the reunion of the Morse family and meet once more our old friends.

The day was one of the best we ever saw and we think it was made for our own especial use.

At 9 a. m. the people began to come and as a few of the relatives had arrived the day before to those who came in the morning it looked fine to see so many cheerful faces to welcome them after the beautiful ride from town.

On arriving at the Morse homestead we found that the house and grounds had been decorated with the fall grasses and golden rod. With the addition of white chrysanthemums the colors of white green and gold, we noticed everywhere even the napkins at the table were decorated with golden rod and all corresponded with the color scheme.

The tables groaned beneath their weight of good things and many people groaned after dinner

There was chicken pie and fried chicken for all, pies, cakes, salads of all descriptions, fruits, home grown grapes and melons

Well! we have seen melons before but never did we see melons in such a profusion and many complained of eating too much but it seemed

That we just had to quit

For we couldn't eat another bit.

After dinner we listened to kind words of welcome from our hostess Mrs Harvey P. Morse which were very nice and we all agreed that she knew how to entertain her friends royally. Mrs. Eugene Richardson, daughter of Harvey P. Morse and wife read an address giving a short description of the Morse family.

Then there were songs by Mrs. Emery Stowell accompaning herself on the piano, George B. Flint accompanied by his wife as pianist also Mrs. Leah Loo with Mrs. Flint as pianist and Mrs. Geo. B. Flint gave a piano seclection and her son Homer, aged 7 years, whistled while she accompanied him on the piano.

A recitation by Kenneth Davidson aged 10 years which was good.

Eugene Richard with a violin his daughter Lucile with a violin accompanied by Mrs. Richardson on the piano was good.

A poem was read by Virgil VanDeVentor.

There was dancing by those who used to dance together years ago.

Annie Laurie and other old songs were sung by some of the old associates.

Those who were there were our host and hostess Harvey P. Morse and wife and their two daughters Mrs. Leah Loo who lives at home, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Richardson, nee Mable Morse and their three daughters Lucile, Arline and Lucy of Ida; Jay Morse a nephew of Harvey P. Morse and wife of Tecumseh; Mrs. Martha Gage nee Mattie Morse of Buffalo, N. Y.; Mrs. James Paterson nee Ida Morse of Kalamazoo; Mrs. Marsh Simons nee Ella Morse of Elkhart, Ind.; Mrs. Hattie Schellmire, Mr. and Mrs. Ackerman, Herbert G. Conklin and wife and Harry Waltz of Toledo, O.; Mrs. May Sones of Milan; Mrs. Myrtle Monimee, Mrs. McIntyre, George Davidson and family of Tecumseh; George Rathbun and wife of Ann Arbor; Miss Peters of Cleveland, O.; L. B. Smith, Emery Stowell, Dr. Unger, L. J. Ostrander, A. D. Tuisman and their wives, Mesdames Preston, Rose Flint, George Walker, Thomas Brandt and Eads, George B. Flint, wife and son, N. D. Curtiss a brother of Mrs. H. P. Morse and wife, J. F. Slayton, Mrs. Fred Sloman and children Virgil and Art VanDeVentor all of Dundee.

Children never like to wait when older people are eating and Mrs. Morse ever thoughtful prepared a table for them and these are their names; Willie Sloman and Elizabeth, Lucy Richardson, Esther Tuisman, Arline Richardson, Homer Flint, Francis Monimee, Harold Davidson and Kenneth.

Mr. Rathke carried the people from town and back again making many trips and his little boy came over with his yearling colt, and cart and took one of the boys for a ride which pleased them all.

Pictures were taken of the crowd and all departed saying it was one of the best times of their lives.

A letter was read from Mrs. Ella Randal nee Ella Plank from North Scituate Beech, Mass., also a letter from Mrs. Morse of Findley, N. Y., the only Morse left of the old stock

Mrs. James Brown nee Carrie Morse of Buffalo, N. Y., was unable to come on account of ill health and Mrs Myra Gage nee Myra Morse of Tecumseh had a fall sometime ago and she could not come. They were both sisters of Harvey P. Morse.

Mesdames Paterson, Gage, Simons and R. Flint visited the old stonehouse that used to be the Morse homestead.

Every room was looked at and old stories told, water was drunk from the old well. But the walk from the gate to the house was mana of the daisies both pink and white that used to smile at us when we went up the walk and when we arrived at the door we were always sure of a welcome from Mrs. Morse and the girls.

DEPUTY KILLS MAN.

Sheriff Inclined to Believe His Under Officer Did Right Thing.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 14.—Herbert Green, otherwise known as Peter Duffy, was shot twice and fatally wounded in a struggle with Archie Colland, a special deputy sheriff at the Pere Marquette crossing of the Ford road, just north of Michigan avenue on the west city limits. Colland was arrested and taken to Vinewood police station and afterward turned over to Sheriff Burns and Deputy Sheriff McDermott.

He asserted that the shooting was necessary to save his own life, as the maniac had a large clasp knife.

Green died later in St. Mary's hospital. Whether charges will be brought against Colland is not known. Sheriff Burns is inclined to believe that the shooting of Green was justified.

Woman's Clothes Caught Fire.

Imlay City, Mich., Sept. 14.—Converted into a human torch by the ignition of the fumes of a pot of varnish which she was heating upon a gasoline stove in her home here, Mrs. James Forsyth ran screaming from the house with her clothes in flames into the house of a neighbor, where she fell unconscious upon the floor. Before the flames were extinguished by those who came to her assistance, all of her clothes were burned off, and she was frightfully burned all over the head and body. Death ended her suffering a few hours later.

Drops Dead In His Home.

Ypsilanti, Mich., Sept. 14.—Chester L. Yost, former mayor of this city, noted as a horseman and for many years engaged in the livery and carriage business, died suddenly from heart disease. His health had been poor for some time, but he had been able to attend to business. Soon after arising in the morning he complained of feeling ill, and, as he started for his easy chair, he fell and expired. Mr. Yost had a reputation as an auctioneer, and his service as a starter of races were in demand.

Campaign For Pure Products.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Sept. 14.—The board of health commissioners has decided to begin an active campaign for absolutely pure milk, meats and vegetables, and unless orders, as issued by the board, are carried out a number of prosecutions may follow. The city has three health inspectors. Complaints of watered milk have had the attention of the board, and it has been announced that there would be no more of it, or impure foods of any kind, if every dealer in the city had to be prosecuted.

Railroad Fireman Ends Life.

Jackson, Mich., Sept. 14.—William E. Bergh, a Michigan Central fireman, has committed suicide, first taking laudanum and then turning on the gas in the room as he lay down to take his last sleep. He had been dead some hours when the body was found. Although Bergh earned good pay, he was deeply in debt and had been sued. He also had trouble with his wife.

Strange Woman Kills Self.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 14.—A young woman known as Nellie Davis went into the pavilion in Lincoln park and swallowed a large dose of carbolic acid. She died in agony on the way to the hospital. She was a stranger here, and the police have been unable to locate her relatives or friends.

Thirty-four Hurt In Wreck.

Meadville, Pa., Sept. 14.—Thirty-four persons were injured in the wreck of Erie train No. 4, Chicago to New York express, at Geneva, Pa., the wreck, railroads officials believe, being due to enemies of the company opening a switch. Thirty-one of the injured were passengers, and three were railroad employes. A majority of the former were Italian and Greek laborers. It is not believed that any of the victims will die.

Rain Coming.

Washington, Sept. 14.—The weather bureau has issued a special forecase as follows:

The first well defined disturbance of the present season is approaching the north Pacific coast, and a West Indian storm is advancing toward our southeastern coast. This combination may produce abundant rains in the drought stricken districts of the north central and east central states before the end of the present week.

The loss of one spring chicken by John Bennett, a farmer near Flint, has caused a lot of trouble for three men. Two were arrested and dealt with severely for stealing the chicken, and a third, Ira Speer, eighteen years old, after evading officers by hiding near Springport for two days, gave himself up and was fined $29 for being implicated in the theft

Man and the Motor.

"Yep," said Uncle Rooster as he soberly traced in the glass the increasing whiteness of his hair and beard and the remarkable deepening and spreading of his innumerable facial wrinkles—"yep, man is like the motor car, by gulnee."

"How so?" inquired the city nephew.

"Because," said Uncle Rooster, "by the time he's got in good workin' order in all his bearin's an' paid fur hisself to the last installment an' learnt to do his daily run with ease an' certainty an' never a breakdown, why, he's antiquated by that time, the noo models is out, an' there's nothin' fur him but the shelf."—New York Press.

BOTH ASK A RECOUNT.

Bradley and Warner File Petitions With Board.

BRADLEY ALLEGES FRAUD.

Makes No Specific Allegations—Warner Issues Statement—He Demands Recount—In Order to Teach Opposition Lesson—Wants Votes Looked Over in Cities.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 17.—When the state canvassing board met here Wednesday to take up the official canvass of the vote cast at the recent primary election for candidates for governor and lieutenant governor, Dr. J. D. Bradley filed a petition for a recount of the vote in certain specified precincts in Gratiac, Huron, Alger, Menominee, Marquette and Lapeer counties.

Dr. Bradley's petition made no specific allegations of fraud, merely stating that he had reason to believe that frauds had been committed. Dr. Bradley was represented before the board by Attorneys Watts S. Humphrey of Saginaw and Charles W. Nichols of Saginaw, while Alex Groesbeck of Detroit represented Governor Warner.

At a later hour Governor Warner filed a request for a recount of the vote in the cities of Saginaw, Muskegon, Kalamazoo, Sturgis, Jackson, wards One and Twelve, Grand Rapids, and the townships of Pinconning, Bay county; Zilwaukee, Saginaw county; Leslie, Ingham county.

In his petition the governor alleges that in some instances votes cast for Warner were counted for Hoartio S. Earle, state good roads commissioner, who was the third candidate in the field for the Republican nomination; that ballots were wrongfully thrown out as mutilated, and that both Mr. Bradley and Mr. Earle were credited in the returns with more votes than they received. Governor Warner in his petition says that according to the tabulation of the county canvassing boards the total returns in the state for governor was as follows:

Warner, 88,337; Bradley, 86,725, and Earle, 26,444, a plurality for Warner of 1,562.

The canvassing board will not give out its figures on the returns until it has completed its work.

Governor Warner has given out a statement in which he says:

"Everyone who has had any experience in elections knows that it is not unlikely that slight errors have been made in counting the ballots and tabulating the returns from some of the precincts of the state. It is hardly probable, however, that such mistakes have all been made in my favor, and only in precincts where the voters were in favor of my candidacy.

"If a crime has been committed I should not have the slightest objection to a recount of every precinct in the state by the board of state canvassers. That action, however, is a visible impossibility between now and the time ballots must be printed and would result in prevent the Republican candidate for governor, whoever he might be, from making his campaign, and might result even in depriving the Republican state ticket of a hearing at the coming general election.

"I realize that in a recount flaws resulting from tabulation, errors in printing, etc., are apt to fall upon candidates about in proportion to their vote. For this reason I have thought best to file a petition asking for a recount in a few cities which gave Dr. Bradley large majorities and in which the chances for clerical errors are equally as possible as in the counties named in Dr. Bradley's petition.

"I do not believe that the recount will show any material change on the face of the returns. As the count progresses and the facts develop, I am satisfied that all parties concerned will be willing to discontinue and stop the expense to the state and allow the campaign to go forward without any unnecessary delay."

Hanged in Singular Manner.

Menominee, Mich., Sept. 17.—Edward Gecham, sixteen years old, a nephew of William Demarche, met with one of the strangest accidents ever recorded here while visiting on his uncle's farm Wednesday. The boy was fond of riding horseback. Returning from a canter, he rode into the barn without dismounting. His head crashed against a beam, and he was thrown into a halter hanging nearby with the result that he was strangled to death before he could be released.

THREE TOURS TO BE MADE.

Plans For Taft's Campaigns Completed.

TRAVEL IN SPECIAL TRAIN.

Two Other Prominent Speakers Will Go With Him—Bryan Traverses New York State—Crowds Greet Him on Every Hand—Made Seventeen Speeches Wednesday.

Cincinnati, Sept. 17.—Judge William H. Taft will make three campaign tours. His first will begin here Sept. 23 and end Oct. 7 at Galesburg, Ill. The trip will take him through Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, Colorado, Kansas and Missouri. He will make one or more speeches in each of these states and fill in with numerous short addresses from the rear platform of his special train.

The second trip, which will be arranged in detail later, will take him to Kentucky, Tennessee and possibly North Carolina.

The last trip will be in the east. New York city will be visited, and a speech will be made in the northern part of the Empire state. It has been decided that New England will not be included in this trip, but speeches will be made in Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio, which will bring the candidate back to his native city for the election.

This plan of campaign for the Republican presidential candidate was decided on Wednesday at an important conference between Judge Taft, Chairman Hitchcock of the Republican national committee, Senator Dixon of Montana, director of the western speakers' bureau; Charles Nagle, national committeeman from Missouri and in charge of the Chicago Republican headquarters; Robert A. Ballinger, member from Washington of the advisory committee, and A. I. Vorys.

At the conclusion of the conference, Judge Taft expressed himself as highly gratified that the details of the first trip had been settled and that others had been determined upon.

Judge Taft will travel in a special train, and with him will be two other speakers of national repute. While it has not been determined definitely who these will be, it was stated here that Senator Dolliver of Iowa would likely be one. During the trip the arrangements for the meetings will be in charge of local committeemen, and local speakers will also be invited on the train at various places.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 17.—A speech by William J. Bryan, Democratic candidate for president, in this city last night on "Mr. Taft and his peers," and two overflow talks, formed the climax of an eventful day in the present campaign. Arriving here shortly after 6 o'clock, and met by thousands of persons, Democracy's leader was accorded an ovation.

Along with him from Syracuse came the new Democratic nominee for governor of New York, Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler, who was literally lifted out of an automobile in the street on to the car because of the great throng which had assembled to catch a view of Mr. Bryan.

On Mr. Bryan's arrival the party was taken in an automobile to the Genesse Valley Country club for dinner.

The principal speech last night was in Convention hall, where the Democratic state convention had just finished its labors, and which was packed to the doors, with several thousands on the outside, unable to gain admittance. Mr. Bryan was accorded a great demonstration by his audience.

Starting from Weehawken, N. J., at 8:45 o'clock, Mr. Bryan's journey through the Empire state was a triumphant one. Everywhere along the line of the West Shore and New York Central railroads immense crowds turned out. At each place a speech was insisted on, and when he had gotten through for the day he had spoken seventeen times.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 17.—John W. Kern, the Democratic candidate for vice president, was the guest Wednesday of the citizens of Louisville and Kentucky, receiving a hearty welcome from a great crowd of people at the state fair grounds, where he delivered a non-partisan address. Mr. Kern's visit was made under the auspices of the Kentucky Colonels, a Democratic marching club.

ENTERTAINS HIS NEIGHBORS

President's Home Scene of Lively Gathering Today.

VILLAGE IS DEPOPULATED.

Chief Executive and Mrs. Roosevelt Greet Visitors—Light Refreshments Served—Chorus of German Singers Furnishes Music—Invitations Extended People Through Ministers.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 17.—Natives of this village, with gladness in their hearts, are having a glorious time, for it is the day of all days for Oyster Bay. Practically every person in the village, be he exalted in station or the most lowly, is in attendance at a reception at President Roosevelt's mansion on Sagamore Hill. President and Mrs. Roosevelt greeted the townspeople and light refreshments were served.

When it became known last night that President Roosevelt intended to give a reception to his neighbors and friends, the news spread quickly, and soon every one was talking about the affair and making preparations.

Eight years ago Mrs. Roosevelt invited the townspeople to a reception at Sagamore Hill, and on that occasion a huge punch bowl, kept well filled, stood where all could conveniently reach it, and each of the 2,000 or more persons who attended the reception was permitted to keep the punch glasses as souvenirs.

Unfortunately, on that occasion a large number of persons who did not reside in Oyster Bay, and who had no claim upon Mr. Roosevelt's hospitality, mixed with the natives and attended the reception. The throng was so great that some of the natives were kept in the background. President Roosevelt prevented the same thing happening today. He asked the ministers of the different congregations to extend for him his invitation to the people.

Oyster Bay is almost depopulated. Sagamore Hill is three miles from the center of the village.

In the way of entertainment, the president secured the services of the German Saengerbund of Hicksville, L. I., and this locally famous group of singers was stationed on the veranda of the president's mansion and sang during the reception.

Perished in Arctic.

San Francisco, Sept. 17.—The bark entine Fremont, which arrived from the Arctic, brought news of the probable death of four members of the crew who deserted on May 16 and started to reach Unalaska. They were Manuel Lorenz, Leon Walser, John Jorgensen and James McDonald. They started on their perilous trip late one night during the height of a storm. Search was made for them, but without success, and several days later the dory they had occupied was picked up at Dublin bay. It is believed that all of the men perished. They had been dissatisfied for some time over the amount of their spring allowance.

Retired Merchant Accidentally Shot.

Montclair, N. J., Sept. 17.—John Leonard, a retired iron and steel merchant, was fatally shot under peculiar circumstances at his home here Wednesday. Walker Phillips, Mr. Leonard's private secretary, on his way to the house found a revolver in the street, and it was with this weapon that Mr. Leonard met his death. Phillips told the police that his aged employer asked to see the revolver when he was told of it, and that it exploded in his hand while he was examining it. The bullet entered his body over the heart. Phillips was placed under arrest, though the police are inclined to credit his story.

Excitement Killed Colored Preacher.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 17.—Rev. W. J. Hawkins, pastor of the colored First Baptist church and retiring moderator of the Baptist General Association (colored) of Kentucky, one of the most noted negroes in the state, died suddenly of heart disease, the result of excitement growing out of a riot created at his home by a member of the Lexington state guard company. The guardsman accused Hawkins' son of selling liquor and tried to arrest him and later attacked the Hawkins residence. Hawkins was highly regarded.

START UP AFRESH.

Ameek, Mining Town, May Be Destroyed by Forest Fires.

Calumet, Mich., Sept. 17.—Ahmeek, a populous mining town five miles north of here, is threatened again with destruction. Reports say forest fires have broken out afresh, and if wind arises widespread damage is certain. People have packed their belongings and are ready to leave. A few miles further north, Ojibway is experiencing anxiety, fires being near the mining location. The Calumet and Hecla and Tamarack Mining companies have men fighting the fires near their pumping plants on the Lake Superior shore, five miles northwest of here.

A special from Houghton says forest fires, extending over sixty miles of timber land, have broken out again in Houghton. A thick pall of smoke, hanging over the copper country, has made navigation on Portage lake difficult.

A special from Menominee says:

After smouldering for a week, the forest fires north of Green bay and extending as far as Marinette and Menominee, have broken out afresh, and mills and lumber yards which were considered out of danger from the flames are again threatened. At Shermanville, Menominee county, 300 fire drilled employes of the Wisconsin Land and Timber company beat back the flames which attacked the yards of the company.

Call For Independence Convention.

Kalamazoo, Ich., Sept. 17.—O. Q. Defrance of Kalamazoo, chairman of the provisional state committee of the independent party, has issued a call for a state convention to be held in Grand Rapids Sept. 30, at 10 o'clock in the morning. According to the provision of the call, the basis of representation shall be two delegates at large for each county and in addition thereto one delegate for each 10,000 votes or major fraction thereof, cast for all political parties for the office of governor at the election of 1906. The convention call outlines the principles of the Hearst party. Chairman Defrance declares there is a large and independent floating vote in Michigan, which they expect to get.

Gave Skin to Save Child.

Holland, Mich., Sept. 17.—Edward Van Putten of Zeeland, who received severe wounds several weeks ago as a result of falling into a bonfire, was declared a hopeless case by the attending physician unless enough living skin could be obtained from a healthy person to cover the wounds. A neighbor, Q. Huyser, offered to have the necessary skin removed from his leg, and the operation was performed successfully. The child is now on the road to recovery.

Veteran Says He Was Abused.

Saginaw, Mich., Sept. 17.—White haired and stooped by seventy-seven years and wearing a tattered, blue uniform, James McMillan, veteran of the civil war, was picked up while roaming the streets. McMillan ran away from the Soldiers' home in Grand Rapids and was trying to reach an old friend, Otis Thompson, who he says lives somewhere in Michigan. McMillan alleges he was abused and ill-treated at the Grand Rapids institution and refuses to go back.

Myrtle Lennon Admitted to Bail.

Saginaw, Mich., Sept. 17.—Miss Myrtle E. Lennon has been admitted to bonds in $500. Since the finding of her infant son in the river and the arrest of Joseph Duffy, charged with its paretage and death, Miss Lennon has been held as a witness for the prosecution. A relative of the girl became her bondsman.

Lad Dies of Lockjaw.

Union City, Mich., Sept. 17.—Notwithstanding the fact that there is now a successful treatment for tetanus, James Dodson, the thirteen-year-old grandson of Mrs. James Fulver, living near this city, died Wednesday in agony from lockjaw. While going barefoot the lad stepped on a rusty nail.

Freight Law Valid.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 17.—The supreme court has handed down a decision declaring the maximum freight rate law of 1870 to be constitutional. This law provides for a maximum freight rate on carload shipments where the haul is a short one, and it has always been fought by the railroads.

To Sell Glazier Building.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 17.—The Glazier office building, which is the largest here, will be sold at public auction on Nov. 12, according to notices which are now posted about the city. The building is owned by Frank P. Glazier, ex-treasurer of state.

Almost any man hates snobbishness until he has environment and opportunity to practice it himself.

One of the worst features of kidney trouble is that it is an insidious disease and before the victim realize his danger he may have a fatal malady. Take Foley's Kidney Cure at the first sign of trouble as it corrects irregularities and prevents Bright's disease and diabetes.

Don't let the old job hamper—that is if you have found a better.

Heaven, according to a small boy's idea, is a place where nobody washes his face.

DeWitt's Carbolized Witch Hazel Salve is recommended as the best thing to use for piles. It is, of course, good for anything where a salve is needed. Beware of imitations Sold by all druggists.

The first requisite to being a good cook is securing a good provider.

Self conceit is like brandy—we don't like to see the effect of it in the other fellow, but it feels good at home.

Many people suffer a great deal from Kidney and Bladder troubles. During the past few years much of this complaint has been made unnecessary by the use of DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills. They are antiseptic and are highly recommended for weak back, backache, rheumatic pains, inflammation of the bladder and all other annoyances due to weak kidneys. They are sold by the druggists.

Anybody can be good, but it takes a genius to be good and not be dull.

Of course all philosophy of life is simply to live, but the question seems to be, Who lives?

Kodal will, without doubt, make your stomach strong and will almost instantly relieve you of all the symptoms of indigestion. It will do this because it is made up of the natural digestive juices of the stomach so combined that it completely digests the food just as the stomach will do it, so you see Kodal can't fail to help you and help you promptly. It is sold here by all druggists

Kissing goes by the board when the chaperon knows her business.

Doan's Regulets cure constipation without griping, nausea, nor any weakening effect. Ask your druggist for them. 25 cents per box.

For any pain, from top to toe, from any cause, apply Dr. Thomas' Eclectric oil. Pain can't stay where it is used.

Not only is a sucker born every minute; but, once a sucker, always a sucker.

How to get Strong.

P. J. Daly of 1247 W. Congress St., Chicago, tells of a way to become strong: He says: "My mother, who is old and was very feeble, is deriving so much benefit from Electric Bitters, that I feel it's my duty to tell those who need a tonic and strengthening medicine about it. In my mother's case a marked gain in flesh has resulted, insomnia has been overcome, and she is steadily growing stronger." Electric Bitters quickly remedy stomach, liver and kidney complaints. Sold under guarantee at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store. 50c.

The man who gets something for nothing and secures a patent on the process has laid the foundation for another big trust.

The New Pure Food and Drug Law

We are pleased to announce that Foley's Honey and Tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not affected by the National Pure Food and Drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs, and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults.

Poverty is accounted a blessing by some proverb makers, but most of us find or imagine it is one that we could be happy without.

A Sure-enough Knocker.

J. C. Goodwin of Reidsville, N. C., says: "Bucklen's Arnica Salve is a sure-enough knocker for ulcers. A bad one came on my leg last summer, but that wonderful salve knocked it out in a few rounds. Not even a scar remained." Guaranteed for piles, sores, burns, etc. 5c. at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store.

Capt. Schwickardi Writes

RUDOLPH B. SCHWICKARDI.

"I Have the Fullest Confidence in the Efficacy of Pe-ru-na."

A War Veteran's Tribute to Pe-ru-na.

Rudolph B. Schwickardi, Capt. 39th N. Y. Vol. Inf., writes from 1818 G St., N. W., Washington, D. C., as follows:

"Having the fullest confidence in the efficacy of Peruna, both as a tonic and as a remedy for catarrhal trouble, I commend its use in the strongest possible terms. It should be in every household."

War Left Ailments.

Mr. William J. Lees, 3501 Morgan St., St. Louis, Mo., member Frank P. Blair Post No. 1, Grand Army of the Republic, and ex-Commander of the U. S. S. Benton Miss. Squadron, writes:

"The war left me with a complication of stomach, liver and kidney troubles, and I decided to take Peruna for my affliction. I began to use it about five years ago at the earnest solicitation of some friends. At that time I was only able to be up about half of the time, and my health was simply miserable. I consider a bottle off and on is a preventive.

"I certainly do endorse your remedy, and am glad to do so."

Helped From Chronic Catarrh.

Capt. Lemuel M. Hutchinson, Montpelier, Vt., writes:

"It gives me pleasure to write you this letter at this time on account of the good your Peruna has done me when I was quite done up with a very bad cold.

"I could hardly perform my ordinary duties, but from the use of Peruna I am almost restored to health. I am quite convinced that it has helped me from chronic catarrh, to which I am subject. It has also benefited my throat.

"I can truly recommend it as the best all-round medicine it has been my privilege to become acquainted with.

"Of this I am quite convinced from my own experience."

Mr. W. C. Rollins, Prairie View, Texas, Secretary of the State Normal and Industrial College of Texas, writes that for years he had chills and fever, and after taking Peruna his appetite returned, he became stronger, the fever left him, and he is now in excellent health and vigor.

Pe-ru-na Tablets.

Some people prefer to take tablets, rather than to take medicine in a fluid form. Such people can obtain Peruna tablets, which represent the medicinal ingredients of Peruna. Each tablet is equivalent to one average dose of Peruna.

REUNION

CO. B. 9TH MICHIGAN CAVALRY.

Met on Wednesday at the Home of A. D. Lawrence.

Have you noticed that smile, on the face of A. D. Lawrence. The smile of the full moon does not half tell the story. An increase in the family? Yes. Three full grown boys and their wives.

True they are, Boys, or were boys in 1861 to 1865. All of Co. B. 9th Mich. Cavalry: Elmer Bowen, Benonia Bowen, Andrew Fuller and A. D. Lawrence.

Benonia Bowen and A. D. Lawrence were captured near Macon, Ga., while burning cotton. And only the timely charge of the 10 Ohio Cavalry saved them from immediate death. And for 7 long months they endured the horrors of Andersonville. Elmer Bowen and Andrew Fuller went with "Uncle Billy" to the sea. If you could but hear them tell of the hair breadth escapes; the hard riding, fighting and the tricks played on each other you would wonder that they are here today to tell us about it.

You will remember that from Chattanooga to the sea "Uncle Billy's." Boys were never forced to stop. Take your map and start at Knoxville, Tenn. They, with the rest of Burnsides army, were surrounded and with hardly anything to eat but shelled corn. They held Longstreets veterans at bay till "Uncle Billy came to their rescue. And then on to Atlanta Dalton, Dug Gap Resaca, Tanner's Ferry Andersonville, Kingston, Big Shanty, Kinnesaw mountain and on to Atlanta. There these boys helped to put the Hood (Gehl) over this Rebel Army. To hear these tried and true soldiers tell of it, surely puts to shame, the story that a fellow told to Desdamonia.

Get Al to tell you about a crock of pickled apples, that he bought (?) and took to camp. Ask him how he likes "honey." These "veterans" do not forget their comrades that are gone: often, very often, they will tell of Capt. James Cairns, Lieut. James Wood and others. This comrade was killed at such a place; this one died in the hospital. "All good boys."

Mrs. Lawrence, tells us that dinner is waiting. And such a good dinner. I was afraid the "boys" might over do the matter. Well all I have got to say is that if they fought half as hard as they ate, they were "jim dandys."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Sept. 12, 1908.

Not for several years has the Capital experienced such an early awakening from its summer stupor as is promised this year. Contrary to all expectations based on late experience that each year would see fashionable and official folk lingering longer over their vacations, next week, the second in September, will see the President and his family established in the White House and a large contingent of the Diplomatic and officicial sets back in the city. The White House has been put in readiness for the President and the annual cleaning which requires nearly all of the summer and thirty thousand dollars has been completed. The mansion, has had a coat of paint outside and been thoroughly renovated in the interior in a way to make a New England housekeeper's soul thrill with joy, though in a manner so extravagant as to fill her with dismay. Certains rooms are carpeted anew each year, and though the amount of entertaining taat is done during the winter and spring does give the carpets severe wear it is doubtful if the President or any other man would buy new carpets without making some efforr to see what cleaning and remaking and other expedients might be tried to make the old ones look better than when they were new. In the case of the White House though the President has nothing to say about it, Mrs. Roosevelt may express a desire for a few more books in her wardrobe, or suggest a re arrangement of the furniture but the purchases are made by order of the Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds and he is responsible for seeing that the thirty thousand dollars a year appropriated by Congress for the up keep of the White House shall be expended to the last cent. Among the odd items in the bill for the summers refurbishing each year is a new cooking range for the large kitchen where all of the State dinners are prepared. For people who regard a kitchen range as a life time possession to be passed down with the house to future generations a new cook stove each and every year seems a reckless and incomprehensible extravagance but perhaps they don't think so along Fifth Avenue and Newport either. On the other hand it may be seen that a course of petty economies might soon result in an unhygienic and uncomfortable house for the President so that Congress has always been liberal in its appropriation for that purpose.

Among the most important changes in the Diplomatic circle this winter will be that caused by the death of Baron von Sternberg the German Ambassador. His successor has not yet been named but there is general regret over the loss of the von Sternbergs who were quite popular. The Baroness was a Kentucky girl, rather famous for her beauty in spite of the fact that she was lame. The Baron suffered from cancer of the face which made it necessary for him to wear bandages about his left cheek and neck for a couple of years before his death. The Baroness is returning to this city to remove her personal effects from the Embassy prior to the coming of the new Ambassador and it is said that she will live here permanently though if she has decided to do so it must have been without much reflection. To be at one time the wife of the German Ambassador with a great house and a liberal income will make very painful the inevitable neglect she will experience as the widow of a mass soon forgotten, who must live on the thirty five hundred dollar pension accorded her by the German government.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Tuesday afternoon a meeting of the High School Athletic Association was held and the following officers elected: President, Thomas Elliott; vice president, Faunt Leonardson; treasurer and manager, Mr. Smith; student manager, Perry Satterthwaite; secretaly, Lydia Babcock. Miss Mills was elected manager of the Basket Ball team and Lydia Babcock, captain. About 25 new members have been taken in this year.

Miss Marian Hall was absent from school Wednesday morning.

The class in German has begun it's years work with "Hoher als die Kirche."

A meeting of the last year's Junior class was held Wednesday afternoon to settle some business which was left over from last year.

The Young Womens Christian Association entertained the girls of the High School Thursday evening at the home of Beth Satterthwaite. Refreshments were served.

Prof. Lemon gave a lecture on astronomy before the teachers and pupils of the Tecumseh schools last Wednesday, the branch schools being closed from 10:30 to 11:30.

Miss Ruth Ward has left school, and is preparing to go to her new home at Laurium, Mich.

Miss Vesta Wilson was absent Wednesday morning on account of sickness.

A PRETTY HOME WEDDING

Was the Marriage of Miss Mary Morgan to Earl W. Munshaw in Ann Arbor Tuesday Evening.

A very pretty wedding occurred at the home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs Wm. H. Morgan, 604 South Thayer st., Tuesday evening, when their daughter, Miss Mary Morgan, became the bride of Earl W. Munshaw. The house was prettily decorated for the occasion, in pink and white, and in the parlor, where the ceremony was performed, were palms and garlands.

The service began at 7 o'clock. Dr. J. Leslie French officiated and the ring service was used. The bride was given away by her father. The Lohengrin wedding march was played by Miss Florence Beach. Miss Alice Morgan, a sister of the bride, and Miss Bertha Rhodes of Macon were the bridemaids, and Ben. Krause and Jas. Munshaw of Grand Rapids, the latter a cousin of the groom, were groomsmen.

The bride were a handsome gown of white silk and carried a large boquet of white flowers. Miss Morgan wore a white dotted mull dress and Miss Rhodes a white silk. Both carried pink flowers. After the service supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Munshaw left Tuesday evening for Detroit and from there will go to Cleveland, Buffalo and Niagara Falls, to be gone a couple of weeks. They will be at home at 604 South Thayer at, after October 1

The ceremony Tuesday night was witnessed by about 100 relatives and friends, including guests from Grand Rapids, Adrian, Macon, Louisville, Ky., Detroit, Holloway and Tecumseh.

The groom is a Grand Rapids boy and is a junior law of the U. of M. The bride is an Ann Arbor girl, her parents having removed here from Macon.

Bulls.

"Ladies and gentlemen," said an Irish manager to an audience of three, "as there is nobody here I'll dismiss you all. The performance of this night will not be performed, but will be repeated tomorrow evening."

WOMEN AT THE FAIR

Will Have Important Place--Make Thing Comfortable

Lenawee County Federation of Clubs Will Provide a Resting Place for All.

The Lenawee County Fair association, through the Lenawee County Federation of Woman's clubs this year inaugurated as an experiment, a woman's congress—a place where the farm visitors may drop in and rest and at the same time be entertained by good speakers, who have a real message for them. Arrangements have been made for tent space somewhere between the entrance and the dining hall, and the public is cordially invited to drop in, and see what the Woman's congress is, for themselves. The program, which is largely educational, will include six addresses, music, recitations, readings, etc.

The law is out on waterfowl, duck, snipe and woodcock from September 1 to January 1. Quail and partridges may be shot from October 15 to November 30. Muskrat, mink, skunk and coon are animals protected by law during September and October, when their fur is of no value. Ex.

INCREASE THE

WHEAT CROP

By using the "Homestead" line of Fertilizer, manufactured at Detroit by people who understand what should be used in this section. Upon their recommendation (based on years of successful experience) we bought their grades for the different kinds of soil, for wheat ONLY.

Why should you expect one kind to answer for all kinds of soil.

Sand needs more Potash.

Heavy Soil needs more Phosphorus Acid and Nitrogen.

The temperature for August averaged nearly normal. The weather was generally warm during the first two decades, but there were some cool nights during the first half of the third decade. Light frost occurred in the interior part of the northern counties on the 25th. The drouth that continued from July was partially broken in the Lower Peninsula during the first week and generous rains fell during the second decade. The precipitation for the month was generally light in the Upper Peninsula and northern half of the Lower Peninsula, but more than the normal amount occurred over most of the southern counties.

HEAVY LOSS

Sustained by Ernest Lauterhahn in Forest Fires.

$5,000 Worth of Timber and Cord Wood Burn on Farm near Trappe City, Wisconsin.

Word was received here yesterday of the heavy loss sustained by Ernest J. Lauterhahn in the forest fires. The greater part of the timber and cord wood on his farm near Trappe City, Wis. was burned last Friday, and his loss is estimated at $5,000. The buildings were saved only by a change of the wind.

Mr. Lauterhahn will be remembered by many as he worked for LaVern Barrett in the Masonic Temple barber shop about two years ago. Since leaving Tecumseh he held a position in Milwaukee, Wis., finally investing in land near Trappe City. His many friends here, are grieved to learn of his loss.

Toledo, Ohio (Special Correspondence) —Sept. —There's a rare treat in store for Toledo's visitors during the week of Sept. 28 to October 3rd, at which time the first great annual exhibition week will be observed. The idea of this week is to have every door open in the city for the amusement of all who come. In other words Toledo is to put on her entertainment raiment during that week, invite the nation to come to Toledo, and show her guests what a real good time they can have in this great city.

In addition to the decorating of the town and the thousand and one attractions that it will have to offer for the delectation of the hosts that are going to come, there will be eight or ten gigantic features during the week, any one of which would repay a trip of many miles, all of which are free. Among other things on the free list there will be a mammoth automobile parade such as has never been seen before in this country.

Fully 700 machines are expected to be in line and most of them will be decorated in spectacular style. Many to them will be built up in the shape of floats to resemble various things while all of them will carry myriads of lights so that the effect of the miles of cars running through the city between long lines of fireworks and colored lights while the horns sirens and whistles vie with each other in an effort to drown out the bands, will be a sight never to be forgotten.

Thousands of dollars will be spent by the entrants in this great spectacle which is certain to surpass anything that has ever before been held in this city. In order to make this of more than local interest the management has extended the invitation to any auto owner in your city who cares to enter and participate for the prizes they are welcome to come.

A thrilling spectacle that will be arranged also for this week is an illuminated fire run at night. The down town streets will be roped off and the entire fire department, police department and ambulance service will take part in the greatest mimic fire run imaginable. The wagons will all be equipped with lights and fireworks and the dashing and plunging horses running madly between thousands of people will make a great spectacle.

It is expected that at least 150,000 people will attend the Exhibition week and helt to boost this section of the state in the eyes of the country.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold

A. J. Nusbaum, Batesville, Indiana, writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed to only agravate my case. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package, and it quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success."

When a man's wife tells him what she thinks of him she doesn't do anything of the sort.

He is an undeserving wretch who dodges what is coming to him and keeps roaring for his due.

Dyspepsia is America's curse. Burdock Blood Bitters conquers dyspepsia every time. It drives out impurities, tones the stomach, restores perfect digestion, normal weight, and good health.

When lawyers are minding their own business they are prying into somebody else's.

OF INTEREST TO MANY

Foley's Kidney Cure will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble that is not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more.

The man who knows how to manage a woman, doesn't.

Whatever else you do when you start out to criticise your friend, talk about something else.

Kodal will, in a very short time, enable the stomach to do the work it should do, and the work it should do is to digest all the food you eat. When the stomach can't do it Kodal does it for it and in the meantimes the stomach is getting stronger and able to take up its regular natural work again. Kodal digests all you eat. It makes the stomach sweet and it is pleasant to take. It is sold here by all druggists.

Some people envy the man who pays his bills promptly, and some consider him foolish.

Healthy kidneys filter the impurities from the blood, and unless they do this good health is impossible. Foley's Kidney Cure makes sound kidneys and will positively cure all forms of kidney and bladder disease. It strengthens the whole system.

It would save much guessing and straining if the psychological moment would always wear its label.

The courage of many a man lies wholly in his bank account.

Some girls find the most distressing thing about a broken engagement to be the giving back the diamond ring.

A COMMON ERROR.

The Same Mistake Is Made by Many Tecumseh People.

It's a common error
To plaster the aching back,
To rub with liniments rheumatic joints.
When the trouble comes from the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.

Clark Decker, living at 130 West Maumee st., Adrian, Mich., says: "Before I used Doan's Kidney Pills I had such severe backaches that it was often difficult for me to move about and many times when getting up from a chair or a stooped position, I was compelled to place my hands to my hips and rise gradually. At night I could not sleep well and though I using many remedies and plasters my condition failed to improve. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills I procured a box at Wright & Son's drug store and they brought me prompt relief. I continued used them until completely cured."

Plenty more proof like this from Tecumseh people. Call at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store and ask what their customers report.

For Sale by all Dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sole Agents for the United States.

A PICTURE ROMANCE.

The Frame That Startled Delacroix in the Paris Salon.

Eugene Delacroix, founder of the French romantic school of art, was very poor in his youth. His first picture of note was his "Dante and Virgil," painted when he was only twenty years old. It was extremely large, containing several figures the size of life, and to buy the canvas and colors took all the money Delacroix had. A frame was out of the question, but a good natured carpenter gave the young artist four strips of lath, of which Delacroix made a rude framework for his masterpiece, which he then sent to the salon. But he had hardly a hope that his picture would be accepted.

On opening day Delacroix went to the salon, but failed to find his painting. He was wandering disconsolately about, when he noticed a great crowd before a picture. He drew near. It was his "Dante and Virgil." But it was in a magnificent, richly gilded frame, as fine a product of the picture mounter's art as could be found in Paris. Astonished, he sought Baron Gros, head of the examining committee. As soon as young Delacroix introduced himself Gros seized his hand and congratulated him with true Gallic enthusiasm. "But," stammered Delacroix, "how about that splendid frame? I had no money to frame it, and"—

"Make your mind easy," said the baron. "Your lath frame fell to pieces, but the committee was determined that such a chef-d'oeuvre as you have painted should be placed on exhibition, and we framed your 'Dante' at our own expense."—Exchange.

HISSING AND ENCORES.

Origin of These Two Customs of the Playhouse.

Hissing in playhouses had its origin in Paris in 1830 on the occasion of the presentation of Fontenelle's tragedy, "Aspar." Prior to that time suffering audiences were wont to yawn audibly and fall asleep when the apathy of the actors and performances justified that course. But on this occasion the indignant audience, driven to desperation by the platitudes of Aspar, voiced their anger by hisses, which drove the actors into temporary retirement, according to the testimony of the poet Roi, who alludes to the incident in his "Brevet de la Calotte." Hissing thereafter became fashionable.

The first encore noted in the annals of the stage was accorded to Livius Andronicus, a Roman actor. He was popular with the masses and was called back so often to repeat his speeches that he in self defense brought a boy to declaim for him while he himself applied the gestures. While encores became the rage in subsequent ages, it is known that Andronicus' plan of hiding an understudy before him before the audience to share his honors has not generally been adopted by Thespians.—Show World.

Without danger danger cannot be surmounted.—Publius Syrus.

They Take The Kinks Out.

"I have used Dr. King's New Life Pills for many years, with increasing satisfaction. They take the kinks out of stomach, liver and bowels, without fuss or friction," says N.H. Brown of Pittsfield, Vt. Guaranteed satisfactory at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store. 25c.

When you have a cold you may be sure that it has been caused indirectly by constipation and consequently you must first of all take something to move the bowels. This is what has made Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup so successful and so generally demanded. It does not constipate like most of the old fashioned cough cures, but on the order hand it gently moves the bowels and at the same time heals irritation and allays inflammation of the throat. Sold by all druggists.

HOW TO AVOID APPENDICITIS

Most victims of appendicitis are those who are habitually constipated. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup cures chronic constipation by stimulating the liver and bowels, and restores the natural action of the bowels. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup does not nauseate or gripe and is mild and pleasant to take. Refuse substitutes.

DODGING THE SPEAKER.

One of the first instances of filibustering occurred in 1805 just after the impeachment trial of the Hon. Samuel Chase, one of the associate justices of the supreme court. A quarrel arose over the payment of witnesses. The house of representatives would pass no bill which provided for the payment of those summoned by Chase. The senate would pass no bill which did not, and a conference followed. Each refused to yield, and the bill was lost.

John Randolph then attempted in the closing hours of the session to have the witnesses for the managers of the trial paid out of the contingent fund of the house. But the Federalists were ready. They hurried from the room, and when the vote was taken the speaker announced no quorum. Members were thereupon summoned from the lobby and committee rooms. Hardly were they in their seats when a message from the president was announced, and while the clerk was reading it the Federalists again left the room, so that when the resolution was a second time called up there was again no quorum. Once more the sergeant at arms went into the lobby, and once more the members came in. But an enrolled bill was reported, and while the speaker was signing it the Federalists a third time slipped out. The announcement of no quorum which followed was greeted with shouts of laughter. Randolph in a great passion desisted, and late on the evening of Sunday, March 3, 1805, the Eighth congress ended.—Baltimore American.

SCIENCE AND TEARS.

Weapon of the Heroine Coolly Analyzed by French Chemist.

One does not care to have one's tears analyzed like a patent food or medicine and to associate them with chemical substances, but we are nothing if not practical nowadays, and every shred of romance, poetry and sentiment is remorselessly wrenched from us for scientific purposes.

A French journal devoted to matters of this kind has been telling us not only of what tears are composed, but exactly the effect that is produced on brain and body when we shed them.

So henceforth when we read that the heroine's "beautiful eyes were suffused with tears," that "in a moment she was weeping passionately on his shoulder," we shall know that by a kind of shower bath arrangement a mixture of albuminoid, water and chemical substances was let loose at the back of her skull, thus dulling the nerve centers and really giving her relief.

However, it does not sound romantic, and mere man is likely to imagine that the fair one is really suffering doubly when all this happens.—Gentlewoman.

Not So Funny After All.

On one of the cruises out of Rockland we ran into Castine, Me., where crowds of visitors boarded the ship. One old grizzled farmer fell into the hands of a youngster from Montana. For the time being ventilators became torpedo tubes, those "sticks" up in the air were to hold up fog nets, the ropes were clotheslines, the engines ran by radium, and the Hartford was the fastest ship afloat.

The old man seemed deeply interested, especially in the chute for getting overboard, the legs and arms that might be adrift in action and the value for letting out whatever water might run into the ship. When he finally went over the side he was profuse in his thanks. Turning to his escort, he drew out his card, on which was engraved, "— —, Rear Admiral, U. S. N., Retired," and said, "The old ship has changed since I commanded her."—Army and Navy Life.

The Whole Business.

A very young housekeeper went to market to purchase a spring chicken. After selecting one and inquiring the price she said:

"Isn't 3 shillings rather high? The poulterer in our road only charged me 2s. 9d. the other day."

"With the feet on?" asked the salesman.

"No. I believe, now you mention it, the feet were cut off," she replied, with some hesitation.

"I thought so," said the man at the stall. "When we sell a fowl here, ma'am, we sell it feet and all."—London Scraps.

Insect Notes.

The slow flapping of a butterfly's wing produces no sound. When the movements are rapid, a noise is produced which increases with the number of vibrations. Thus the house fly, which produces the sound of F, vibrates its wings 21,120 times a minute, or 335 times a second, and the bee, which makes a sound of A, as many as 26,400 times, or 440 times a second. A tired bee hums on E and therefore, according to theory, vibrates its wings only 330 times a second.

Experience.

Johnny—Smokin' cigarettes is dead sure ter hurt yer. Jimmy—G'on! Where did yer git dat idee? Johnny—From pop. Jimmy—Aw, he wuz jist stringin' yer. Johnny—No, he wuzn't stringin' me. He wuz strappin' me. Dat's how I know it hurts.—Philadelphia Press.

Wearing Apparel.

Customs Officer (to woman traveler from the continent)—I thought you said, madam, there was nothing but wearing apparel in your trunk. What about these three bottles of cognac? "Oh, those," said the lady, "are my night caps."—Tit-Bits.

STOMACH LIVER LUNGS

Each of the chief organs of the body is a link in the Chain of Life. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, the body no stronger than its weakest organ. If there is weakness of stomach, liver or lungs, there is a weak link in the chain of life which may snap at any time. Often this so-called "weakness" is caused by lack of nutrition, the result of weakness or disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases and weaknesses of the stomach and its allied organs are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the weak or diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which seem remote from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are cured also.

The strong man has a strong stomach. Take the above recommended "Discovery" and you may have a strong stomach and a strong body.

BRIEF DISPATCHES.

The representatives of the German and Italian steamship lines at a conference held in Berlin have decided to raise the rates at once between Mediterranean ports and New York $10.

A powder magazine used by the Samples Mining company, McAlester, Okla., was struck by lightning. The explosion killed one miner and seriously injured eight others. The explosion shook the country for a radius of several miles.

According to an order issued at the war department in Washington, a reward of $50 will be paid in cases where a deserter is delivered by a civil officer or civilian at a military post, or at such other places as may be designated for his delivery by proper military authority. It also provides that amount will include full consideration for all expenses incurred in such apprehension and delivery.

The average wages per hour in the principal manufacturing and mechanical industries in the country were 3.7 per cent higher in 1907 than in 1906, while retail prices of food were 4.2 per cent higher, according to the July report of the bureau of labor in Washington. The regular hours of labor per week were four-tenths of one per cent lower, and the number of employes in establishments investigated by the bureau showed an increase of 1 per cent.

An institution to provide education which shall be of especial usefulness to men and women entering business will be established in the town of Ipswich, Mass., under the will of John B. Brown of Ipswich and Chicago, which has been filed for probate in Salem, Mass. Personal bequests amounting to about $75,000 are made, and the residue of an estate estimated at more than a million dollars is left for the foundation of this institution. Dr. Joseph Fairhill of Chicago is named as one of the trustees to carry out the plan.

Three Gubernatorial Aspirants.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 17.—Today the Republicans of New Hampshire are in state convention to select a candidate for governor. There are three aspirants to the nomination—Rosecrans W. Pillsbury from Londonderry; Bertram Ellis of Keene, speaker of the state house of representatives, and Henry B. Quinby of Laconia. The supporters of all three candidates expressed the utmost confidence in the outcome.

Actress Took Poison.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 17.—Disappointed in love and left without funds, Florence Blake, an actress twenty years old, who has been stopping for several weeks at 308 Randolph street, attempted suicide by taking a quantity of chloral hydrate. Despite her efforts to prevent, Dr. Z. I. Nairin succeeded in reviving the girl.

Women Barbers.

In Gay's "Journey to Exeter," published in 1715, it is told how after passing "Morcombe's lake" the travelers reach Axminster, where they sleep. The next morning—

We rise; our beards demand the barber's art.

A female enters and performs the part.
The weighty golden chain adorns her neck,
And three gold rings her skillful hands bedeck;
Smooth o'er our chin her easy fingers move,
Soft as when Venus stroked the beard of Jove.

American Success.

The reason of the enormous success of the Americans, the reason of their growing wealth and power on the continent of Europe, is their willingness to take risks. They are brave and are prepared to shoulder responsibility. When a merchant fails in business, banks are found to advance him money to put him on his feet again. Not so in England. A bankrupt is a pariah; the banks will not give him the least help. His failure creates a terrible fuss.—Frenchman in Pall Mall Gazette.

His Last Question.

The counsel for the opposition had been bullying the witness for an hour or more when he finally asked:

"Is it true that there are traces of insanity in your family?"

"It would be folly to deny it," replied the witness. "My great-grandfather, who was studying for the ministry, gave it up to become a lawyer."

His Case.

Mrs. Spenders—Oh, John, I saw a sign in Bargain & Co.'s window today that reminded me of what I am most in—

Mr. Spenders—(interrupting hastily)—I, too, saw a sign in their window that reminded me of what I am. It read, "Reduced to 49 cents."—New York Journal

MAY NOT QUIT.

Bishop Spalding Will Likely Retain Office.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 17.—The Right Rev. John Lancaster Spalding, bishop of the diocese of Peoria, may continue at the head of the church in this section in spite of the resignation he recently forwarded to the church authorities at the Vatican in Rome. This decision was reached at a meeting of the eleven irremovable priests of the diocese, who were called in conference at the bishop's residence. These eleven irremovables are the priests who would be called upon to recommend three priests from whom the Pope would select a successor to the bishop in the event that his resignation was accepted. It was decided to recommend to the Pope that the resignation of Bishop Spalding be refused.

Entertaining Fleet's Crews.

Albany, West Australia, Sept. 17.—There was a reception and dance on board the battleship Connecticut Wednesday, given by the officers in return for the hospitality that they have received on shore. Among those present were the governor and the premier of western Australia. There were about 100 other guests, and the occasion was an unqualified success. There were sports on shore in the afternoon for the entertainment of the American seamen. James Jackson Coughlin, a seaman on the battleship Illinois, was killed Wednesday by a fall while engaged in coaling ship. His home was Bristol, Conn. The departure of the fleet for Manila has been postponed until Sept. 18.

Submarine Made Deep Dive.

Newport, R. I., Sept. 17.—It has been learned that while the five submarines were preparing for their attack on the cruiser Yankee in Buzzards Bay Friday, the submarine Octopus was submerged to the depth of 107 feet. She had on board Lieutenant Charles E. Courtney and a crew of ten men. As far as knows this is one of the deepest dives that has ever been made under similar conditions.

Death List Reaches Nine.

Sedalia, Mo., Sept. 17.—Two additional deaths have occurred as a result of the explosion of 300 pounds of powder and dynamite in a freight car at Windsor, Mo. This brings the total death list up to nine. Physicans state that A. F. Herschberger, the freight conductor who is accused of causing the explosion by attempting a practical joke, will recover.

Connecticut's Democratic Ticket.

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 17.—The Democratic state convention Wednesday named Judge A. Heaton Robertson of New Haven for governor. The rest of the ticket is as follows: Lieutenant governor, Rollin U. Tyler; secretary of state, Andrew J. Broughel; state treasurer, George Mischler; state controller, John M. Brady; congressman at large, Christopher Avery.

Hearst and Hisgen in Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 17.—The Kentucky campaign of the Independence party was opened last night at Phoenix Hill park by Thomas L. Hisgen, the candidate for president, and William R. Hearst. It was the first public appearance in Louisville of either of the speakers, and each was given a cordial welcome by the crowd of 1,500 people.

Rescue Insane Inmates From Fire.

Amityville, L. I., Sept. 17.—Not realizing their danger, ninety insane prisoners of the Long Island home, one of the largest insane asylums in the state, fought against being removed from a section of the main building Wednesday, when that structure caught fire. Sixty keepers were compelled to use force to get the unfortunate men and women to safety, and for several minutes there was a scene of the wildest excitement. The loss will be $20,000.

Mistook Brother For Bear.

Escanaba, Mich., Sept. 17.—Mistaken for a bear while hunting in the woods near here Wednesday, Charles Hoberkamp, nineteen years old, was accidentally shot by his brother, his left arm being shattered at the elbow.

Made Good Their Escape.

Ionia, Mich., Sept. 17.—Nothing has been heard of the four convicts who escaped from the Michigan asylum for the criminal insane Saturday night, and the most diligent search has failed to reveal any trace of them.

No man who will not make an effort for himself need apply for aid to his friends.—Demosthenes.

ANNIVERSARY A TRAGEDY.

James Waffle Crime at Holland a Startling One.

HE EVADED SHERIFF'S POSSE.

Shot Aged Father and Sister Immediately Upon His Arrival Home For Visit—Because Refused Loan of $50. Pistol With Murder Bent Man Used Found by Brother.

Holland, Mich., Sept. 21.—Mrs. Noel Gilmore, who was shot twice in the back when she grappled with her brother, James G. Waffle, a painter of Detroit, in an effort to prevent him from killing his aged father, Lord Waffle, lies in a precarious condition, and physicians have given up all hopes of her recovery. Waffle, who was out of danger, is reported to be doing nicely.

When James Waffle came to Holland Saturday it was at the invitation of his father and mother. The father had sent his son the money for his railroad fare, as it was the wish of both he and the aged mother that their boy attend the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding. The little home was modestly decorated for the occasion, and all had planned a happy reunion.

Instead, the homestead where many happy childhood days had been spent by the children was turned into a scene of excitement and sadness. James came home, but the moment he entered the little house it could be seen there was something changed within him. His eyes sparkled; he was nervous, and, without even speaking kindly to his father and mother, he made a demand for $50. The father refused, asking the son's reason for wanting money so soon upon his return. This angered James, and flying into a fit of passion, he drew a revolver and fired two shots. One of the bullets inflicted a fatal wound, and the old man dropped to the floor.

Twice Wounded in Back.

The sister, Mrs. Gilmore, ran, crying, toward her murderous brother. When she reached his side he leveled fire on her. She, too, fell, blood oozing from two deep wounds in her back.

All the time the aged and careworn mother stood helplessly looking on. She made no attempt to prevent him from killing her husband and daughter because of her extremely nervous and excited condition.

Waffle, after he had wounded his father and sister, ran from the house and headed for the outskirts of the city. A brother, Fred, followed, but James had disappeared in the railroad yards.

The sheriff and his posse have been working day and night since the attack, which will undoubtedly terminate in murder, but no trace of Waffle had been found. Marshal Sumner has joined the hunt and has with him several bloodhounds, which have been placed on the man's trail. Fifty dollars reward has also been offered for the apprehension of the man.

The revolver with which Waffle shot his father and sister was found by the roadside, several hundred feet from the aged couple's home by the brother, who gave chase as Waffle ran. Fred, carrying the gun on his trip back to the house, was arrested as the man who did the shooting, but he told his story and released.

Waffle, the wounded man, has lived a retired life for several years, while Mrs. Gilmore is the wife of a prominent butcher of this place.

The son resided at 311 Trumbull avenue, Detroit, and is a painter.

Fruitful Conference.

St. Joseph, Mich., Sept. 21.—Now nearing its close, the seventy-third session of the annual Michigan conference of the Methodist Episcopal church will go down in church history as one of the best attended and most fruitful so far held. Interest in the closing sessions is now centered about the appointments which will be made for the coming year. There will be some radical changes, it is expected.

May Have New Power Plant.

Charlotte, Mich., Sept. 21.—Superintendent Zimmerman of the Michigan Power company went over this territory in an automobile Sunday with a view of constructing a power line to light the streets of Charlotte, Bellevue and Olivet. The private contracts at Bellevue and Charlotte have expired, and Olivet is anxious to install a modern plant.

A CALAMITY TO COUNTRY,

Such Would Be Non Election of William Taft.

SO DECLARES ROOSEVELT.

President Writes Important Letter to Congressman McKinley in Behalf of Candidacy of Republican Nominee. Urges Disinterested Citizens to Take Up Cause—A Vigorous Appeal.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 21.—President Roosevelt, in a letter to William B. McKinley, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, made public Sunday appeals to disinterested citizens to join with the national Republican committee and the congressional committee in a movement to elect William H. Taft as president and a Republican congress to support him. After reviewing some of the important legislation of the past seven years, the president declares that Mr. Taft and the Republican candidates for congress seek election on a platform which specifically pledges the party to continue and develop the policies which have been acted upon for seven years past.

All the aid that can be given to perpetuate the policy of the government as now carried on, the president says, should be given by every good citizen, as it is far more than a partisan matter.

The president's letter reads in part as follows:

"Sagamore Hill, Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 9, 1908.

"My Dear Sir: I have received your letter of Aug. 28th. I agree with all that you say as to the amount of affirmative and contructive legislation for the social and economic benefit of our people which has been accomplished by the congress during the last seven years.

Necessary to Elect Taft.

"It is urgently necessary, from the standpoint of the public interest, to elect Mr. Taft, and a Republican congress which will support him; and they seek election on a platform which specifically pledges the party, alike in its executive and legislative branches, to continue and develop the policies which have been not merely profest but acted upon during these seven years. These policies can be successfully carried through only by the hearty co-operation of the president and the congress in both its branches, and it is therefore peculiarly important that there should obtain such harmony between them. To fail to elect Mr. Taft would be a calamity to the country; and it would be folly, while electing him, yet at the same time to elect a congress hostile to him, a congress which under the influence of partisan leadership would be certain to thwart and baffle him on every possible occasion. To elect Mr. Taft, and at the same time elect a congress pledged to support him is the only way in which to perpetuate the policy of the government as now carried on. I feel that all the aid that can be given to this policy by every good citizen should be given; for this is far more than a merely partisan matter.

"I hope that every disinterested private citizen, whose sole concern in politics is to have the right kind of a man carry out the right kind of policy, will join in backing up your committee as well as the national committee in this movement. No service is as effective, as valuable, as the disinterested service given in such manner by men whose one concern is for the triumph of the principles in which they believe; and I appeal with all the strength there is in me to such men to give such support.

"Sincerely yours,

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Big Military Tournament.

St. Joseph, Mo., Sept. 21.—The biggest military tournament ever attempted by the war department of the United States began in St. Joseph today and continues a week. For nearly a week 50,000 regulars have been encamped at Camp Everett Peabody, on the shore of Lake Contrary. Brigadier General Charles Morton, commander of the department of the Missouri, is the commanding officer. Secretary of War Wright, Major General Bell and other prominent army officers will be here. The soldiers will compete for prizes aggregating $5,000 cash.

Fred—Last night as you stood in the moonlight I couldn't help but think how much I would like to kiss you. Freda—Well, the poet says, "The thought of yesterday is the action of today."

IN THE GRASP OF CHOLERA.

Dread Disease Spreads Like Wildfire in St. Petersburg.

THE DEAD LIE UNBURIED.

Hospitals Overcrowded, and Physicians Sorely Handicapped Owing to Lack of Facilities—City Is Dirty. Neighboring Countries Alarmed. Raise Quarantines Against Russians.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 21.—St. Petersburg is in the grasp of the Asiatic cholera, which already has exceeded in severity and numbers the visitation of 1893. The disease is increasing daily at an alarming rate, and unless the authorities show in the future a much greater degree of ability to cope with the situation than they have in the past, there is every reason to fear that it will get out of hand.

The government has threatened to apply the provisions of martial law, and this threat has driven the municipality officials to bend all their energies to the campaign of clearing the city of the scourge. The aldermanic council Sunday voted a preliminary sum amounting to $250,000 to enlarge the hospital space, to purchase and distribute disinfectants, the supply of which in St. Petersburg is well nigh exhausted, and to expedite the interment of bodies which has been notoriously slow. The dead houses are overcrowded, and many corpses lie unburied.

Stops Sale of Liquor.

Under his authority as prefect of St. Petersburg, General Drachefsky has prohibited the sale of liquor throughout the city until Sept. 22. This action has been taken in order to diminish alcoholic excesses, which materially increase the liability to cholera in St. Petersburg.

A good beginning was made Sunday, when public schools were transformed into hospital wards. The situation, which has always been serious since the very first case was reported, assumes graver aspect from the appearance Sunday of a very virulent type of the disease, in two cases of which death followed within fifteen minutes of the first symptoms.

Official statistics posted show that from Saturday noon until Sunday noon there were 393 cases and 141 deaths, this being the largest number so far officially announced. It is feared that the cholera will make further gains for at least another fortnight, this being figured on the basis of former epidemics.

Stolypin Reprimands Officials.

Premier Stolypin has sharply reprimanded the municipal officials for the appalling conditions. At Obuchoff hospital, which he visited on Saturday, he found that three bath rooms were doing service for 300 patients.

Practically nothing has been done up to the present to put the city's market places in a sanitary condition. They are places of indescribable filth, with the atmosphere reeking with foul odors. As a city, St. Petersburg is woefully unsanitary.

The disease made its first appearance among the poor people herded in wretched tenements, but it is now spreading to the better classes, and it has broken out in the barracks among the troops.

Germany has become alarmed at the spread of the disease, and the German authorities have taken precautions to prevent its crossing the frontier. Austria has done the same thing; Sweden and other nearby countries have declared a quarantine against Russia, and France is ready to meet any exigency that may arise.

Fisheries Congress Convenes.

Washington, Sept. 21.—Practically all of the leading countries of the world will be represented at the fourth international fisheries congress which convenes in this city tomorrow with a program mapped out for five days. President Roosevelt is honorary president of the congress and will receive at the White House the 500 delegates or more who will participate in the deliberations of the gathering. The congress was organized in Paris in 1900 and has brought about important investigations, discoveries and inventions concerning fisheries.

Curious Attend Bradbury's Funeral.

Alpena, Mich., Sept. 21.—Attended by several hundred curious people, besides relatives and friends, the funeral of George Bradbury, who committed suicide last Thursday after he had killed his sweetheart, Gertrude Priest, was held from the home of Lorenzo Wiggins, a brother-in-law of the dead man, Sunday afternoon.

BURLETSON IS MUM.

But Depositors in Parma Bank Are Less Uneasy.

Jackson, Mich., Sept. 21.—The uneasiness which has been caused at Parma because of the closing of the Farmers' & eMrchants' bank, of which William H. Burletson is cashier, has considerably lessened.

Burletson still refuses to give out any statement regarding the condition of the institution, and with him at Parma is Senator Nichols, who for the present is acting as his legal adviser. Nichols will not advance any information either, and he has warned each stockholder and depositor personally not to talk publicly on the bank trouble.

A meeting of stockholders and depositors was to have been held Sunday, at which time an offer made by Burletson to the effect that he would pay 100 cents on the dollar to every depositor and stockholder if they would take over the bank property at a figure of $4,000 was to have been discussed, but, according to several stockholders who attended an informal gathering in Burletson's home, no deal was talked of.

A stockholders' meeting with the state banking department at Lansing today will, it is thought, throw more light on the bank trouble. The whole situation, as viewed by stockholders, in a nutshell is that Burletson has mixed the deposits of the Parma bank with his two private banks at Hanover and Pittsford, and that the bookkeeping in all three institutions has been faulty.

It was learned Sunday that the Parma Creamery company has had differences with the bank controlled by Burletson of late, its claim being that its deposit credits were not correct. The creamery company, it is said, asserts that it has $1,400 to $1,700 more in the bank than is shown on the bank records.

Burletson, with his attorneys, went to Lansing on the first train this morning.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Socialism is to have its inning in Detroit Sept. 27, when Eugene V. Debs, the Socialistic presidential candidate, will come to that city on his "red special."

As the T. & W. limited car was entering Adrian, a man stepped out on the rear platform. His hat blew off, and it is supposed he attempted to save it. He fell off the rear steps and was picked up dead by the train crew. The man was identified as Edward Larkins, an Adrian carpenter.

William Smith Lamborn is dead at the U. of M. hospital. Mr. Lamborn, who is a man of eighty years and feeble, was taking a walk, and while crossing a culvert he stopped to tie his shoe and lost his balance, falling a distance of fifteen feet. His head struck stones beneath.

The body of the middle-aged woman found floating near the Detroit Boat club, in Detroit, has been identified as that of Mrs. Rosa Slack, forty-one years old, of 1143 Bellevue avenue of that city. Despondency over the death of her husband was the cause of the woman having drowned herself.

The five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John O. Butler of Charlotte, playfully tied a cord around the neck of her six-weeks' old sister, who was lying on a bed, and then either pushed or attempted to lift the baby off the bed. "Baby naughty," said the little girl to her mother, who went into the room to find the infant strangled to death.

GIVES HEARST LIE.

Governor Haskell Challenges His Statements on Platform and in Press.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Governor Haskell of Oklahoma last night gave out a telegram which he said he had sent to William Randolph Hearst. In part he said:

"Sir: You are stating in speech and press in substance that during the year 1899, when Attorney General Frank S. Monett of Ohio had several cases pending in the supreme court of that state against the Standard Oil company, that I sought to influence him to dismiss those suits. I have said, and now repeat, that your statement is absolutely false, and that I never had any relations of any kind or character with the Standard Oil company.

"For the purpose of forever settling this infamous slander which you are circulating in your newspapers and on the stump, I now propose that a committee of five, or any three of them, composed of the editors of the Springfield (Mass.) Republican, the Chicago Journal, The New York World, the Indianapolis News and the St. Louis Republic be selected to hear you and me under oath and all other evidence they may desire as to the truth or falsity of your charge at the earliest possible moment and render their decision to the public in writing."

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Almost any man hates snobbishness until he has environment and opportunity to practice it himself.

One of the worst features of kidney trouble is that it is an insidious disease and before the victim realize his danger he may have a fatal malady. Take Foley's Kidney Cure at the first sign of trouble as it corrects irregularities and prevents Bright's disease and diabetes.

Don't let the old job hamper—that is if you have found a better.

Heaven, according to a small boy's idea, is a place where nobody washes his face.

DeWitt's Carbolized Witch Hazel Salve is recommended as the best thing to use for piles. It is, of course, good for anything where a salve is needed. Beware of imitations Sold by all druggists.

The first requisite to being a good cook is securing a good provider.

Self conceit is like brandy—we don't like to see the effect of it in the other fellow, but it feels good at home.

Many people suffer a great deal from Kidney and Bladder troubles. During the past few years much of this complaint has been made unnecessary by the use of DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills. They are antiseptic and are highly recommended for weak back, backache, rheumatic pains, inflammation of the bladder and all other annoyances due to weak kidneys. They are sold by the druggists.

Anybody can be good, but it takes a genius to be good and not be dull.

Of course all philosophy of life is simply to live, but the question seems to be, Who lives?

Kodal will, without doubt, make your stomach strong and will almost instantly relieve you of all the symptoms of indigestion. It will do this because it is made up of the natural digestive juices of the stomach so combined that it completely digests the food just as the stomach will do it, so you see Kodal can't fail to help you and help you promptly. It is sold here by all druggists

Kissing goes by the board when the chaperon knows her business.

Doan's Regulets cure constipation without griping, nausea, nor any weakening effect. Ask your druggist for them. 25 cents per box.

We would be entirely willing to look for the good traits of the people we don't like if it were not such discouraging work.

For any pain, from top to toe, from any cause, apply Dr. Thomas' Eclectric oil. Pain can't stay where it is used.

Not only is a sucker born every minute; but, once a sucker, always a sucker.

How to get Strong.

P. J. Daly of 1247 W. Congress St., Chicago, tells of a way to become strong: He says: "My mother, who is old and was very feeble, is deriving so much benefit from Electric Bitters, that I feel it's my duty to tell those who need a tonic and strengthening medicine about it. In my mother's case a marked gain in flesh has resulted, insomnia has been overcome, and she is steadily growing stronger." Electric Bitters quickly remedy stomach, liver and kidney complaints. Sold under guarantee at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store. 50c.

The man who gets something for nothing and secures a patent on the process has laid the foundation for another big trust.

The New Pure Food and Drug Law

We are pleased to announce that Foley's Honey and Tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not affected by the National Pure Food and Drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs, and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults.

Poverty is accounted a blessing by some proverb makers, but most of us find or imagine it is one that we could be happy without.

A Sure-enough Knocker.

J. C. Goodwin of Reidsville, N. C., says: "Bucklen's Arnica Salve is a sure-enough knocker for ulcers. A bad one came on my leg last summer, but that wonderful salve knocked it out in a few rounds. Not even a scar remained." Guaranteed for piles, sores, burns, etc. 50. at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store

A Commencement Day Story

By FRANK H. SWEET.

Copyright, 1907, by Frank H. Sweet.

"I'VE no patience with your sky-scrapin' notions about educatin' up girls!" As Silas loosened the baked earth about the strawberry vines with his trowel he gave that emphatic jerk of the head that Elizabeth called nodding his chin. "'Stead of gallivantin' off to college, Kit had a sight better stayed at home helpin' you."

Elizabeth packed away a sigh among the red berries that her quick fingers were laying in precise little rows in their square boxes. "Some girls is spry with their hands, Si, and some with their minds." She looked up, smiling, the glow on her thin cheeks other than that of the sun parching the thirsty ground. "Think of the child keeping books summers, taking only a skimpy two weeks' rest, and yet standing at the head of her class—why, Si, she deserves the handsomest white frock we can buy her!"

"KIT HAD A SIGHT BETTER STAYED AT HOME HELPING YOU."

"Shucks! I'd like to meet the fool woman—I bet a round silver dollar it was a woman—that invented graduatin'. Now Kit's got her le'rnin' why can't she come home peaceable without makin' a brass band circus of herself?" The chin nodded excitedly. "I know them graduatin' shows! They squeeze you into a hotbed crowded with chairs, and there you sit shut up tight in a boiled shirt, your best clothes smellin' of the moth balls that have been in 'em since the last funeral, the sweat streamin' down your face like the creeks in a freshet."

"Perhaps," said Elizabeth shyly, "'tisn't the ups and downs that make life, but the way you take them—the thin ears of corn along with the full." She placed the last filled box in the waiting space of the drawer and slowly straightened her stiff, aching body. "I know it's been a bad year, Si, but fixings for her commencement means so much to a girl, and Kitty couldn't save up for them. It was hard enough to make both ends meet anyway. If you could just strain a point for the frock, if"—

"I told you," interrupted Silas, "I hadn't the money to spend on any such foolishness, and that ends it." The chin wagged vehemently. "I'll not be pestered to death about it, neither—you understand?"

Elizabeth turned to the house in silence. She did understand. She had been Silas' wife thirty years. But the tightly closed lips were not closed in meekness, and the faded gray eyes flashed. The child should have her fixings somehow—yes, even if her mother had to take— Elizabeth sank into a kitchen chair, the corners of her mouth quivering, her hands dropped helplessly in her lap. Then, as though ashamed of a weakness, she sprang to her feet and resolutely hastened upstairs into her bedchamber.

She gave a swift, stealthy glance over her shoulder as she knelt before her opened bureau drawer, pulling out from the toe of a knitted slipper a small wad wrapped in an old glove. Breathlessly she emptied her treasure trove, pennies, nickels and dimes falling softly upon the bills that her proud fingers had counted out on the floor. Nine dollars and eighty-seven cents was the measure of her opportunity for self denial, the means to fulfill her heart's desire, for the radiant purpose to attend Kitty's commencement had been a golden dream bridging in happiness the loneliness, toil and hardships of the past three years, and to that end she had industriously hoarded every cent that she could call her own, rising an hour earlier busy summer mornings to pick wild berries for the doctor's wife, sitting up winter nights to manufacture tomato pincushions for the Christmas trade at the Hillsboro store. She gathered the money in her hands, hugging it to her breast. "Kitty's to speak a piece," she sobbed. "The child's going to speak a piece, and her mother won't be there."

The hot, tedious days lengthened, and Elizabeth went through her routine of duties with the soulless precision of a machine.

"Are you under the weather, mother?" asked Silas an evening two weeks later as he sat absorbed in the drowsy comfort of his pipe, his chair tilted back against the house, his slippered feet crossed upon the porch railing. "You seem sort of tuckered out."

Elizabeth looked away as she answered. She dared not trust too much to the deepening twilight. The next day would be that of Kitty's graduation.

"Shucks," ejaculated Silas, "that was the gate's click! Who can be comin' this time of night? Why, if it ain't the doctor's wife!"

"Mrs. Farland?" Self reproach mingled with tenderness in the questioning. In the stress of her own unhappiness she had forgotten the anguish that her dear little friend must be suffering as she looked forward to the morrow, for during the first years at college Ethel Farland had been Kitty's classmate and only the preceding summer, one of typhoid at Hillsboro, had the sweet young life been called to a higher school. Elizabeth's bitterness shriveled in shame, and, holding out her arms, she ran down the path. No words passed between the two women. The unaccustomed kiss, the outstretching thoughts of each mother heart, was speech enough.

"Don't disturb yourself, Silas," said Mrs. Farland gently as they came up to the porch. "No, Betty, dear, I can't stay." Her voice fluttered nervously. "I came only to give you—this." She slipped an envelope into Elizabeth's astonished hand, pressing it with trembling fingers. "The express passes through Hillsboro at 6:15 and gets to Centerville at 10. The commencement exercises don't begin till half past, you know. It's my own ticket—the one I'd have bought for myself if—if things had happened different. This is the only way you can help me bear tomorrow, Betty."

She turned from the spellbound woman on the porch and darted up the path. The gate clicked. The dark silence was broken by the hooting of an owl. In a patch of sky above the shadowing branches of the trees shone a star.

Sleepless hours of happy planning, fitful dreams of thrilling adventure, and Elizabeth's night had slipped into dawn. For a moment of ecstasy she lingered at her window, eyes uplifted to the glory flushing the eastern sky; then she stole downstairs to a hundred little commonplace deeds of love, from giving the chickens fresh water to cutting a pie for Silas' lunch.

After they had hurried through breakfast, Elizabeth chattering so much that she forgot to eat, Silas glumly acquiescent in his wife's "fool hankerin' after graduatin' shows," came the excitement of dressing. Standing before her cracked mirror, her shaking hands tying the black lace veil with its elaborate border about the dingy straw bonnet trimmed in purple ribbon and red currants, she proudly surveyed herself, glad that she had yielded to Silas five years ago and bought a cinnamon brown alpaca instead of the coveted gray, because it looked more "partyfied" for the present occasion.

She who had for years experienced no more exhilarating motion than a jolting ride in the farm wagon passed through the whirl on the express in a trance. But a shock of awakening came when the express had left her upon the Centerville platform. She had supposed that Kitty, with the other graduates, would be at the station to see the train come in, and, not finding her, she stood bewildered, with the frightened eyes of a lost child.

"I CAME ONLY TO GIVE YOU—THIS."

"Looking for some one, mother?" called a laughing voice.

With a start she turned toward a nearby wagon, where a boy sat smiling at her.

"I was sort of looking for Kitty, though she didn't know I was coming," she explained. "You see, it's Kitty's commencement, and"—

"Oh, you're one of the college crowd, are you? You'd better get a move on you! Your train's twenty minutes late, you know."

"Late!" cried Elizabeth. "Why, we came flying! Is it very far to walk?" she asked, looking helplessly to right and left. "Kitty speaks a piece. I can't miss that!"

The urchin's smile broadened into a grin. Then an impulse of chivalry stirred the thoughtless boy heart. "Say, you climb up beside me. I'll drive you there in a jiffy."

The hall was crowded when Elizabeth entered, but a smiling usher with a rose in his buttonhole found her a seat just as the band began to play

To be continued.

A CEYLON PLAGUE.

The Land Leeches Are Worse Than the Snakes or Mosquitoes.

It is nearly always the case that exceedingly beautiful countries are overrun by different kinds of pests. Beautiful Ceylon has mosquitoes said to be the most adroit and audacious in the world and snakes and a thousand more plagues of poor human beings, but the worst of them all is a species of leech. The Ceylon land leech is a thin creature about two inches long and very nimble and flexible. It will crawl up a man's leg and, traveling underneath the clothing, will climb as high as the throat. These leeches do not crawl like the leeches that are known to medicine, but rear themselves up on their tails to watch for prey and walk off to attack it with amazing rapidity. In walking through the jungle hosts of them may be seen by the roadside, where they wait to victimize cattle. Horses, it is said, are driven half wild by them, as also are palanquin bearers and coolies, whose bare legs are their favorite resort, the men's hands being too engaged to pull them off. The leeches may be seen hanging round their ankles, from which tiny trickles of blood run over the foot.—London Standard.

That Voice.

Before Marriage—"Oh, my darling, your voice is as musical to me as a vesper bell whose tones fall softly on the perfumed air. Speak again and say those words, my beloved, for I could listen to your voice until the stars are extinguished into everlasting night."

After Marriage—"I've had enough of your clapper, old woman, and if you don't shut up I'll leave the house."—London Globe.

His Glasses.

Once that genial comedian Peter Dailey consulted an oculist about his eyes. His nose was small, and he couldn't keep on the glasses with which the oculist was trying to fit him. "You are not used to glasses, Mr. Dailey," said the oculist. "Oh, yes, I am," replied Mr. Dailey, "but not so high up!"

REMINISCENCES

W. P. Stocking Writes Concerning the Early Days of Tecumseh.

On the 17th of last January I left those of the Herald readers, who paid me the compliment of reading my letters, standing on the street corner in Brownville I presume, however, that they have forgotten the incident long before this.

I now ask them to complete our walk over there and let me tell them of some of the people, places and events as I remember them today. I have spoken of some of the men whom I remember. Of my schoolmates I remember the Denel boys and their sister "Tiny," the William Rowland girls, the Chas. Rowland boys, Sammy Southwick, or Southworth a VanTyne boy, Nate Boughton who had a little "sure enough store" in his father's front yard which seemed to some of us younger chaps a wonderful establishment and rendered "Nate" the envied of all of us who aspired to such a high position in life. How plainly I can see the little store so clean and neat inside and out with its row of candy jars filled with their tempting sweets which we so longed to possess but lacking the pennies required to purchase we could only look and long, for "Nate" was "keeping store" for profit and not for fun or for pins. Among the places

I last remember was the old dilapidated two story building across from Brows Tavern west in the east end of the upper story of which school was "kept" before the brick building was built, and when the school was taught by a man whom I so disliked that I became one of the worst truants in town.

This brings me to speak of the places where I spent many hours of many days when my folks supposed I was in school and so successful was I in my truantcy that my father was wise in "catching me at it," and this he did by setting one of the taunary hands to watch me.

Another of my hiding places was Mr. VanTynes cabinet shop where I spent many hours watching the workmen. I have yet in my possession a black walnut box made for me by a German workman in the shop. I had it made for my sister Fannie who kept it until her death when it came to me. Over the inside of the cover there still remains a strip of paper pasted there by me and on which is written in a boyish hand with an attempt to "flourish" my capitals these words. "To Sister Fannie, William. Remember The Giver."

I prize the box as souviner of my boyhood days, and ways. The same man made another box for me which I "traded" to Walace Gray for something, but do not recall what, and the last time I was in Tecumseh some fifteen years ago I saw the box which he then possessed and I presume has it yet. I remember the old railroad bridge, or parts of it spanning the neck of the pond and from which some reckless fellow, whose name I do not remember, used to jump and dive into the pond. I remember the drowning of the Brown boys one Thanksgiving morning through air holes in the ice. I remember the freshet which carried away the road letting the water through, which carried logs from the saw mill yards through the windows of the woolen mill below after under mining it and toppling over on one side, came near serving the old Red mill and saw mill in like manner. When in the work of repairing the road way and dam, a span of fine horses were drowned. I remember it took weeks to repair the damage to the road and to property. To my knowledge the woolen mill was never repaired.

It was during that summer that I had my first experience at farming and worked for a man by the name of Gilbert whose family consisted of himself and wife and three little girls. His farm was east of the then Patchen farm, later owned by Mr. Robberts.

I well remember my first night on the road with a team. About mid night I was called up and sent into town for Dr. Baldwin. Arriving at his house and waking him he told me if he went I would have to take him out and bring him back. That made three trips over the road that night and say, it seemed an awful long road and awfully lonesome. It was the visit of the stork. How plainly I can see the little brick and frame house back from the road on a little knowl, and the little old board shanty at the rear which was my room, how plainly I can hear the owls and the whippoor wills and the circkets which made the nights so long and lonesome to me for I had not been in the habit of living in the country or being away from home nights unless I was staying with Walace Gray or Darius Porter.

That summer I had my first lessons in mowing, raking and binding and cradling. That was the beginning and the end of my farming until I took up ranching, which is only another name for one kind of farming, here in Calif. I think I have said enough about my boyhood days and will close with thanks to the Editor for the space given me in the Herald and to the readers for their patient forbearence

POSTMASTER

AT HOLLOWAY DIED YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Lloyd Bartholomew, Postmaster and Proprietor of General Store.

Succumbed to Ptomaine Poisoning Monday Afternoon.

Lloyd Bartholomew, postmaster and proprietor of the general store at Holloway, died at his home in that village yesterday afternoon after suffering for nearly two weeks with ptomaine poisoning.

About two years ago Mr. Bartholomew married Miss Bertha Machem, daughter of A. D. Machem in Holloway and have since made that town their home.

Mrs. Bartholomew, about two weeks ago, went to the University Hospital in Ann Arbor, for an operation.

Her husband accompanied her, and while there he was taken ill with the disease, which cost his life.

Mrs. Bartholomew, unable to be with her husband at the last, was brought home last night, and was scarcely able to make the journey.

The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon from the house at 2 o'clock, Burial at Holloway.

Pepsin, Saliva and Gastric Juice.

Pepsin, the principal agent in the digestion of food, is a powerful solvent stored up in the walls of the stomach and only poured forth when its assistance is needed. When pure, this fluid is perfectly neutral, neither acid nor alkaline, and appears to be unable to exert any action without the presence of an acid. Such acid is supplied in the gastric juice, secreted by the gastric follicles covering the coating of the stomach. The saliva is merely for the purpose of moistening the food, thus preparing it for the action of the pepsin and gastric fluids.—New York American.

Shawls.

An Indian or a Persian shawl used to be considered one of the finest feminine possessions in the world, and they were handed down from mother to daughter as prized heirlooms. But now if you gave a young woman even a very elegant shawl, costing possibly hundreds of dollars, as many did, she would turn up her beautiful nose at it and if she used it at all would make a portiere out of it for her cozy corner. She would never think of wearing it, even if it were the only thing she had.—Argonaut.

Lighting the Nest.

There dwells in upper Burma a bird with the high sounding name of Newcouris baza, but which is really a sort of blackbird. It is conspicuously clever, at least in one curious particular, for it actually lights up its nest artificially. To do this it works up a lot of clay into balls and sticks these balls all over with living fireflies in such a way that, although the fireflies are held captive, they shine all the same. The Newcouris baza then decorates its nest with half a dozen or so of these balls by hanging them round. The balls last for only a few days and are then replaced by others, and so on all through the nesting season.

writes P. S. Baxter, Kynesville, Fla.

Mr. Baxter writes: "My wife suffered with Sciatic Rheumatism for seven years. She was in a very bad condition. After using "5-Drops" for three months it made a permanent cure. This was several years ago and she is still well caused by Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Kidney Trouble and kindred diseases.

STOPS THE PAINS

"5-DROPS" taken internally rids the blood of the poisonous matter and acids which are the direct cause of these diseases. Applied externally it affords almost instant relief from pain, while permanent results are being effected by purifying the blood, dissolving the poisonous substance and removing it from the system.

A TRIAL BOTTLE FREE

If you are suffering with Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Kidney Trouble or any kindred disease, write to us for a trial bottle of "5-DROPS" and test it yourself.

"5-DROPS" is entirely free from opium, cocaine, morphine, alcohol, laudanum and other similiar ingredients.

ROBERT ROGERS

Robert Rogers died at his home in Onsted Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, after an illness of three weeks, due to a stroke of apoplexy from which he only partially rallied.

Mr. Rogers was 77 years of age. He is survived by his wife and five children, three of whom are residents of Tecumseh. They are, Mrs. H. S. Waring, Mrs. Joseph Smith, and Ira Rogers of this place, Burt and Cecil Rogers of Onsted.

Mr. Rogers was one of the best known residents of Cambridge township, owning a large farm east of Springville, and retiring about five years ago, on account of failing health.

He was a man of excellent habits, fine moral character and a sturdy constitution.

The grief felt over the close of his long career is widespread and sincere. His best monument will be the good report that he has left behind him in the community in which he has lived for so many years.

The funeral will be held to morrow afternoon at the house, and will be conducted by the Adrian Commandery No. 4, Knight Templars, of which body he was a respected member.

MRS. OSCAR THROOP

Mrs. Oscar Throop died at her home in Detroit, Wednesday September 16, after an illness of only a few days, aged 31 years. The remains were taken to Milan on Friday for burial. Mr. and Mrs. Throop were residents of Tecumseh for some time, Mr. Throop being employed by the D. T. & I. railroad company. Many friends here sympathise with the husband in his affliction

CONVENTION

Democrats Met in Tecumseh Saturday.

NOMINATE CANDIDATE FOR FIRST DISTRICT TO LEGISLATURE.

Ex-Sheriff John Ifland Received the Nomination.

The Democratic convention of the First District of Lenawee county met at the Council rooms in this village last Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, to nominate a candidate for this district to the legislature.

The townships in the district were all represented except Clinton.

Rev. Geo. Scarlett of Macon was made chairman of the convention and A. R. Clark of Deerfield, Secretary.

There were 57 votes cast, Ex-Sheriff John Ifland of Riga township received the nomination by a large majority.

Mr. Ifland has been sheriff of the county and supervisor of Riga township.

RAYMOND CROSSMAN,

Son of Arthur Crossman of Omaha, Neb., Established a Great Record in College.

Will Attend U. of M. at Ann Arbor This Fall.

Miss Lucy Train is in receipt of a paper from Omaha, Neb., which contains an article concerning Raymond Crossman, accompanied by his picture.

Raymond Crossman is the son of Arthur Crossman formerly of Tecumseh. The article referred to Mr. Crossman's college days, saying that the attendance at Bellevue college this year promised to be one of the largest in the history of the college, and no small part of it was due to the efficient work of field representative Raymond M. Crossman.

He was born in Atkinson, Neb., where he graduated at the head of his class in the High school. He is one of the young men who will long be remembered at Bellevue for his leadership in social and athletic work, as he took an active part in the different college societies, was a prominent worker in the Y. M. C. A., star catcher of the 'varsity baseball team and captain during part of his college course. He graduated at the head of his class of 1908, and was class orator. He was also a member of the debating team which defeated Doane college in the 1908 contest.

This fall Mr. Crossman will enter the university at Ann Arbor, Mich., where he will study law.

Ill-health and Trade Conditions Causes Closing of Well Known Drug Firm. J. J. Orr.

Regretted by Many Friends.

It is a matter of universal regret that the failure of health of John J. Orr coupled with trade conditions, has caused the closing of his drug store. Mr. Orr has tried to run a strictly drug business, but in this age when other interests have combined almost always with the drug business, it did not prove successful. Although not heavily involved, and wishing to protect his creditors in the best and most honest way he filed an application in the United States court, in bankruptcy.

His many friends extend their sympathy. He has the good wishes of every one in this community, and also of his creditors, all of whom have expressed their regret of his difficulty.

FIRE

HEAVY LOSS AT BRITTON.

Five Stores Burn, Loss Estimated at About $13,000, Partially Insured.

No Fire Protection, but Bucket Brigades Fight Flames.

The village of Britton suffered from a fire last Friday evening, that destroyed the greater part of the business section of town, entailing a loss of 13,000, with a few thousand insurances.

The fire started about 11:30 in the Maccabee hall, above A. C. Drake's drug store, and an alarm turned in immediately. The cause of the fire is not yet known, but the Lady Maccabees held a meeting until 10 30 p m. and used lamps with which to light their hall.

The property destroyed consists of B. J. Beasley's furniture store; Louis Knabush, saloon.

A. C. Drake, drug store. Building owned by W. W. and C. B. Exelby.

G. L. Gripton, hardware store. Store owned by W. W. and C. B. Exelby.

Britton has no fire protection, so a bucket brigade was formed to fight the flames, and save surrounding property. Many from Tecumseh answered the call for help.

HAWKING MACHINES

Catarrh Sufferers are Nothing But Hawking, Spitting and Blowing Machines, Says an Authority.

Is it possible that in these days when cleanliness and sanitary reform is being preached in the churches, schools and at public gatherings, that thousand of people will continue to suffer from catarrh, when there is an absolutely certain remedy always on hand.

Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) is a pleasant, medicated and antiseptic air. Breathe it in and it will cure catarrh. It will stop foul breath, watery eyes, and crusts in the nose, in a few days.

It is guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son's drug store to do it or money back, and such a guarantee ought to be strong enough for anybody.

Entirely Cured by Hyomei.

Having suffered from catarrh for about two years, and having tried numerous remedies without any satisfactory results, I finally tried Hyomei, and am glad to state that after using about one and one-half bottles I am entirely cured I have recommended it to others with satisfactory results.—C. N. Lindsy, 407 East First Ave., Mitchell, S. D.

A complete Hyomei outfit, consisting of a strong, hard rubber pocket inhaler and a bottle of Hyomei, costs only $1, and extra bottles if afterwards needed, cost only 50 cents each at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store or direct, by mail, charges prepaid, from Booth's Hyomei Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Hyomei also cures Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs and Colds, Croup of infants, and any inflammatory disease of the respiratory tract.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold

A. J. Nusbaum, Batesville, Indiana, writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed to only aggravate my case. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package, and it quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success."

When a man's wife tells him what she thinks of him she doesn't do anything of the sort.

He is an undeserving wretch who dodges what is coming to him and keeps roaring for his due.

Dyspepsia is America's cure. Burdock Blood Bitters conquers dyspepsia every time. It drives out impurities, tones the stomach, restores perfect digestion, normal weight, and good health.

When lawyers are minding their own business they are prying into somebody else's.

OF INTEREST TO MANY

Foley's Kidney Cure will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble that is not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more.

The man who knows how to manage a woman, doesn't.

Whatever else you do when you start out to criticise your friend, talk about something else.

Kodal will, in a very short time, enable the stomach to do the work it should do, and the work it should do is to digest all the food you eat. When the stomach can't do it Kodal does it for it and in the meantimes the stomach is getting stronger and able to take up its regular natural work again. Kodal digests all you eat. It makes the stomach sweet and it is pleasant to take. It is sold here by all druggists.

Some people envy the man who pays his bills promptly, and some consider him foolish.

Healthy kidneys filter the impurities from the blood, and unless they do this good health is impossible. Foley's Kidney Cure makes sound kidneys and will positively cure all forms of kidney and bladder disease. It strengthens the whole system.

It would save much guessing and straining if the psychological moment would always wear its label.

The courage of many a man lies wholly in his bank account.

Some girls find the most distressing thing about a broken engagement to be the giving back the diamond ring.

A COMMON ERROR.

The Same Mistake is Made by Many Tecumseh People.

It's a common error
To plaster the aching back,
To rub with liniments rheumatic joints.
When the trouble comes from the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.

Clark Decker, living at 130 West Maumee st., Adrian, Mich., says: "Before I used Doan's Kidney Pills I had such severe backaches that it was often difficult for me to move about and many times when getting up from a chair or a stooped position, I was compelled to place my hands to my hips and rise gradually. At night I could not sleep well and though I using many remedies and plasters my condition failed to improve. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills I procured a box at Wright & Son's drug store and they brought me prompt relief. I continued used them until completely cured."

Plenty more proof like this from Tecumseh people. Call at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store and ask what their customers report.

For Sale by all Dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sole Agents for the United States.

GREAT CELEBRATION.

Philadelphia to Commemorate Its Founding.

Philadelphia, Sept. 21.—Beginning with special religious services in all the churches, this city will, during the week of Oct. 4, be the scene of one of the most pretentious and magnificent celebrations in commemoration of its founding that has marked the history of this or any other American municipality. The entire week from Oct. 4 to 10 has been set aside for the celebration and officially designated "Founders' week." It will be observed as a holiday.

Among the multitudinous events that will mark the celebration will be a naval display on the Delaware river in which a score of United States warships will be seen, a military parade in which more than 25,000 soldiers, sailors, marines, national guardsmen and others will participate; an industrial parade, a parade of police and firemen of this and other municipalities, and a historical pageant that for color, variety, illustrative power and magnificence will probably not be equalled for years to come.

This pageant, beginning with the arrival of the Swedish settlers, the Dutch settlers and the coming into the Delaware river of William Penn upon the ship Welcome, will practically give the entire history of the city.

Bryan and Parker Confer.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 21.—Important conferences bearing on the political situation, both national and state, were held Sunday by William J. Bryan and Alton B. Parker at Esopus, and with former United States Senator David B. Hill at Wolferts Roost, near this city.

Saw Fleet Pass.

Perth, Western Australia, Sept. 21.—The American fleet of battleships passed this coast Sunday morning on the long run to Manila. The fleet was proceeding in two columns, the Connecticut and Louisiana leading. The warships turned to the west about 1 o'clock, and a large number of pleasure craft, crowded with sightseers, followed them for some twenty miles to sea.

Rheumatism

Do you want to get rid of it? If so, take Dr. Miles Nervine modified as directed in pamphlet around bottle. In addition to the direct curative properties it has a soothing effect upon the nervous system by which the rheumatic pains are controlled, and rest and sleep assured. It has made many cures of this painful disease, some of them after years of suffering. If it will cure others why not you. If your case is complicated, write us for advice, it costs you nothing and may save you prolonged suffering.

"I was so crippled that I could scarcely walk. After having my shoes on for an hour or two I could manage to walk by suffering the pain. Then I began to have pains all through my system. My doctor told me I had an acute attack of inflammatory rheumatism. I read about Dr. Miles' Nervine, bought a bottle and I commenced to get better from the start and for the past six months have scarcely any pain, and am able to walk as well as ever."

Women Inclined To Constipation

Great Care Should Be Taken Not to Use Violent Cathartics

Women, owing to their peculiar functions, are more or less liable to constipation and many of them owe their confined ill health to the pill habit. A well known physician says the majority of cases of foul breath, bad complexion, disordered stomach, sick headache and female weakness to constipation and the constant use of violent cathartics to overcome it.

We believe women will be glad to learn of a safe reliable bowel and stomach remedy that is pleasant to take and that the first few doses will certainly produce natural daily movements without pain or gripe and in a short time establish a permanent cure. It is so effective it has cured cases of 40 years' standing and yet so mild and safe thousands of mothers give it to their babies. Jennie Gresham, Nashville, Tenn., says: "I suffered almost death with torpid liver and indigestion and Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin gave me quick relief." Sister M. Berchmans, of Mt. St. Mary's Academy, Oklahoma City, says: "We have found Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin a satisfactory as a gentle laxative and stomach tonic." Mrs. Myrtle Mather, Chicago, says: "My daughter was troubled since birth with constipation and sick headache. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin cured her." Mrs. W. M. Powers, New Philadelphia, Ohio, says: "It is the best remedy for constipation and stomach trouble I have ever used." Mrs. R. H. Brown, Addington, Okla., says it gave her prompt relief from constipation and torpid liver. Mrs. Isabella Wheeler, Freetown, Ind., says: "Twenty-three years ago I was taken with stomach trouble. Three years ago I had become so weak I could hardly walk. I took Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and today am as well as ever." Druggists sell it at 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

We are glad to send a free sample to any one who has not used it and will give it a fair trial. Address Pepsin Syrup Co., 308 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill.

TELEPOST BUYS ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH

Official Announcement Is Made by President Sellers.

New York, Sept. 21.—By purchasing control of the Atlantic Telegraph company the new telegraph company, the Telepost, has acquired the use of a working line over 150 miles long, from Boston to Portland, Me.

President H. Lee Sellers of the Telepost company made the following announcement today:

"It is true that we have acquired control of the Atlantic lines from Boston to Portland and will immediately install our rapid automatic system of telegraphy on this line, accepting business at our uniform rate of twenty-five cents for twenty-five words, five cents for each additional ten words. The Western Union's Boston-Portland rate is thirty cents for ten words.

"Our Boston-Portland service will be an object lesson in the possibilities of 1,000 words a minute telegraphy at lower rates than the public has ever dreamed of. Mr. Delany's invention, which we control exclusively, introduces a new era in wire transmission, both in respect to speed and economy. We are able to utilize the full capacity of the wires by machines which send and receive at speeds of 1,000 words a minute. The old wire companies are limited by hand transmission to a small fraction of this speed. That is the explanation of the superiority of the Telepost system and of our lower rates.

"Portland will be the starting point westward of our transcontinental trunk line, on which we are actively at work. Our plans for the opening up of other territories are well advanced, but we are not now ready to announce details. The fulfillment of these plans, however, will soon become evident to the public, just as in the case of the Atlantic lines, when all our arrangements are completed.

"The Atlantic lines touch Lowell, Lawrence and other Massachusetts cities, besides Dover and Portsmouth, N. H., and several Maine towns. We shall have five offices in Boston and expect to get more than our share of the 10,000 messages that pass daily between Portland and Boston."

Cholera Spreads in Manila.

Manila, Sept. 21.—Fifty-eight new cases of cholera and nineteen deaths are reported for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 o'clock this morning. The infected areas in the city and suburbs are spreading somewhat, but the health officers are still confident that they will be able speedily to gain control of the situation. Governor General Smith has summoned a special meeting of the members of the Philippine commission to discuss the plague situation and to lay plans for an extension of the campaign now waging against the disease.

FORAKER OUT OF IT.

Taft Would Not "Hit a Man When He Is Down."

Cincinnati, Sept. 21.—United States Senator Joseph B. Foraker has cancelled all of his speaking engagements in the campaign, it has been learned. In a written request to National Chairman Frank H. Hitchcock he asked to be relieved from the appointments which had been arranged for him by the national speakers' bureau, and in a communication to State Chairman Williams of the Ohio Republican committee he made the same request as to the engagements which had been arranged for him in Ohio.

As to Senator Foraker's senatorial candidacy, the Associated Press is authorized to state the senator's position as follows:

"Senator Foraker will leave the selection of his successor to the legislature, but will do all in his power to see that a Republican legislature is elected."

In addition to this information, Senator Foraker told his friends that he should at the proper and convenient opportunity make a speech in answer to the Hearst charges and in defense of himself, and then he would campaign the entire state in behalf of his senatorial candidacy.

When the Hearst-Foraker controversy materialized, it developed that Taft at once took the position that the joint engagement in Ohio with himself and Foraker must be cancelled. It has also developed that the candidate received insistent advice to take the initiative in the cancelling of the arrangements and that his reply, it is said, was emphatic in this language:

"If it would win me every vote in the United States, I cannot hit a man when he is down."

COMES BACK AT BRYAN.

Roosevelt Makes Answer to Nebraskan's Telegram.

AGAIN ASSAILS GOV. HASKELL.

Declares Him Unfit to Associate With. Condemns Him For Conduct in Connection with Various Matters—Haskell Replies—Democrats May Dismiss Him As Treasurer of National Committee.

Washington, Sept. 24.—President Roosevelt last night, following upon a prolonged conference with members of the cabinet at the White House, prepared and gave out his reply to William J. Bryan, the Democratic candidate, relative to W. R. Hearst's charges that Governor Haskell, treasurer of the Democratic committee, had represented Standard Oil interests both in Ohio and Oklahoma. Mr. Bryan had demanded proof of the charges, promising that in the event of their substantiation Governor Haskell would be eliminated from the campaign.

Dismissing the Ohio case, which involved an allegation of attempted bribery, with the explanation that he had made no direct charge against Governor Haskell as regards that particular instance, President Roosevelt takes up the matter of the Prairie State Oil & Gas company and argues that Governor Haskell's action in stopping legal proceedings begun by the attorney general of Oklahoma demonstrates conclusively that he was controlled by the great corporation to which the Oklahoma company was a subsidiary.

Utterly Unfit.

After contrasting Mr. Bryan's defense of Governor Haskell as against Judge Taft's repudiation of Foraker in connection with Hearst's charges against the Ohio senator, the president proceeds to declare that Governor Haskell's utter unfitness for association with any man anxious to appeal to the American people on a moral issue is abundantly shown by other acts of his as governor of Oklahoma. The president condemns Governor Haskell's conduct in connection with various matters as disgraceful and scandalous and calls special attention to what he describes as "prostituting to base purposes the state university."

This fresh charge against the governor rests on an article in the "Outlook," from which the president quotes, and which, he says, forms the conclusion that Governor Haskell is unworthy of any position in public life.

The latter portion of Mr. Roosevelt's deliverance is devoted to criticism of Mr. Bryan's plan for regulating the trusts, which he characterizes as a measure that sounds more radical than any advocated by the Republicans, but which in practice would not work. Concluding, Mr. Roosevelt declares that no law defying corporation has anything to fear from Mr. Bryan "save that it would suffer from the the general paralysis of business", which would follow Democratic success.

Submitted to Cabinet.

The president spent almost the entire day Wednesday in getting the letter in shape. An hour was given to make a rough draft of it, which was submitted to Secretary Garfield and Postmaster General Myer, both of who made suggestions as to portions of the communications. About 3 o'clock in the afternoon, all of the members of the cabinet, now in the city, Secretaries Wilson, Straus, Metcalf, Wright and Garfield and Postmaster General Myer, met with the president in the cabinet room at the executive offices for a conference on the subject, which lasted until after 5 o'clock.

Two hours more was required to make certain minor changes before Secretary Loeb gave it to the press.

Deeming the reply too long to be sent by wire, the method of communication Mr. Bryan had employed in his challenge to the president, it was forwarded by mail to the Democratic candidate at Lincoln, Neb.

Guthrie, Okla., Sept. 24.—Governor Charles N. Haskell last night issued a statement to the Associated Press in reply to President Roosevelt's letter to William J. Bryan dealing with charges against Mr. Haskell.

The Prairie Oil & Gas company charges Governor Haskell declared to be a "joke on Roosevelt's sincerity," asserting that he had done "nothing which could reasonably be construed as the Standard Oil subsidiary operating in this state only that it already possessed under a franchise granted it by Secretary Hitchcock."

Governor Haskell said in part:

"The president tried to waive his charge of last Monday aside by saying: 'I will make no allusion to that.' He drops this subject because his original statement was untruthful, and he must know from what he knows and tried to find in Ohio that I spoke the truth when I said that I never in all my life had any interest in connection with, nor service for, that (the Standard Oil) company.

"Mr. Roosevelt, I hope to speak in Ohio soon. May I hope to divide the time with some partisan of yours, or Prince William, who will defend your action in this instance?"

Mr. Haskell, in the course of his statement, accuses the president of favoring the Standard Oil company in certain cases.

New York, Sept. 24.—It became known at Democratic headquarters last night that several national committeemen are preparing to use every influence to bring about the removal of Governor Charles N. Haskell from the office of treasurer of the national committee.

This is a result of publication of charges that Mr. Haskell, as governor of Oklahoma, declined to permit the state to prosecute the Prairie Oil company, a subsidiary company of the Standard Oil company.

Charges that Governor Haskell had been identified with several railroad promotions in this city, which are said to have been unfortunate in the matter of consummation, are said to have also tended to increase the feelings of these national committeemen that the time has about come for Governor Haskell to resign from the committee or be removed.

Columbus, O., Sept. 24.—When the letter of President Roosevelt in reply to Mr. Bryan's telegram was shown to him last night, Mr. Bryan took it, but, without reading the contents, said:

"I'm too tired tonight. It will keep until morning."

TAFT IN CHICAGO.

Big Crowd Greets Him—Made Two Addresses Last Night.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—A crowd which blocked most of the passageways of the Lasalle street station, waved flags with the candidate's picture on them and fairly drowned the music of a band with its cheers greeted William H. Taft on his arrival at Chicago Wednesday. All along the streets on the way to the Auditorium annex the laudation continued. At the hotel Mr. Taft was closeted with Chairman Hitchcock of the national committee and other campaign chieftains for some time.

Mr. Taft stopped at George Ade's farm on the way and made a speech to a big crowd. An urgent telegram from Indiana Harbor, requesting a ten minutes' stop and promising a good crowd from that place and Hammond, was complied with, and the promise of the crowd was fulfilled.

After the conference here with Mr. Hitchcock, Mr. Taft was taken to Republican headquarters in the Harvester building and met the headquarters force.

Mr. Taft, in two addresses last night, opened what his leaders declared would be from now on an aggressive campaign. Speaking before the Railway Men's Independent Taft club in Orchestra hall, Mr. Taft paid his respects to union labor, dealing particularly with decisions in labor cases rendered by him when judge.

A large crowd, forming an overflow meeting in Michigan avenue, surrounded Mr. Taft as he reached Orchestra hall, which was already well packed. Standing in his automobile, Mr. Taft delivered an informal address to the street auditors. He referred to Mr. Bryan and Samuel Gompers as "among those people who are always full of enthusiasm for union labor when they are running for an office." "But," continued Mr. Taft, "you've got to get men like Theodore Roosevelt when you want them to do things."

Old Man Kills Self.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 24.—Neighbors going to the home of William Loden, aged eighty, who lived alone two miles north of Middleville, found his body lying on the floor with the top of his head blown completely off. The aged man had ended his life with a shotgun. He had been despondent ever since his daughter died last winter.

Child Fatally Burned.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 24.—While burning a pile of rubbish in a vacant lot near her home, little three-year-old Myrtle Landis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Landis, 46 Navarre street, was burned so badly that she died a few hours afterwards.

Allegan Fair Opens.

Allegan, Mich., Sept. 24.—The fifty-sixth annual Allegan county fair opened here Wednesday to immense crowds. Aside from large displays in floral hall, the free attractions are great drawing cards.

ROCKEFELLER AN AUTHOR.

Contributes Series of Articles to Periodical.

DEFENDS HIS OIL COMPANY.

Declares Business Was "Done In Fair Spirit, With Due Consideration For Everyone's Rights" and No Attempt Made to Crush Other Concerns — Says Corporations Have Come to Stay.

New York, Sept. 24.—John D. Rockefeller appears for the first time in the role of an author in a series of articles in "Some Random Reminiscences of Men and Events," the first of which will appear on Friday in the October issue of "The World's Work."

Mr. Rockefeller says at the outset that on a rainy morning, when golf is wanting, "I am tempted to become a garrulous old man, and tell some stories of men and things which have happened in an active life." He refers to the extent to which he has been associated with interesting people, especially in the business world.

Mr. Rockefeller speaks of the development of the Standard Oil company and says that the plan of selling direct to the consumer and the exceptionally rapid growth of the business "bred a certain antagonism which, I suppose, could not have been avoided." Of the direct selling to the consumer, he says:

"This was done in a fair spirit and with due consideration for everyone's rights. We did not ruthlessly go after the trade of our competitors and attempt to ruin it by cutting prices or instituting a spy system."

If any of the employes of the company were overzealous in going after sales, he says that they acted in violation of the expressed and known wishes of the company. Further on, he says:

"It is a common thing to hear people say that this company has crushed out its competitors. Only the uninformed could make such an assertion. It has, and always has had, and always will have, hundreds of active competitors."

In discussing "The Modern Corporation," Mr. Rockefeller says:

"Beyond question, there is a suspicion of corporations. There may be reason for such suspicions very often; for a corporation may be moral or immoral, just as a man may be moral or the reverse; but it is folly to condemn all corporations because some are bad, or even to be unduly suspicious of all because some are bad. But, the corporation in form and character has come to stay—that is a thing that may be depended upon."

BRYAN IN COLUMBUS.

Makes No Reference to Haskell Charges While Speaking There.

Columbus, O., Sept. 24.—Twelve speeches to enormous crowds marked the second entry of William J. Bryan, democratic candidate for president, in Ohio during the present campaign. His concluding speech was made here last night to an overflow crowd of 20,000 persons, while just previously he had addressed the largest audience that ever assembled in Memorial hall.

Mr. Bryan's appearance on the platform created a scene of the wildest enthusiasm. Everyone had a chance to hear Democratic arguments. While Mr. Bryan was speaking, Judge Harmon, Democratic candidate for governor of the state, John J. Lentz and others were addressing the crowd outside. In none of his remarks did Mr. Bryan touch on the bribery charge against Governor Haskell. During the day in this city, the Democratic candidate for president spoke to 4,000 precinct committeemen.

RECOUNT AGAIN IS DEFERRED.

Decision of Supreme Court Is Awaited..

BRADLEY ASKS A MANDAMUS.

Would Compel Board to Investigate Allegations of Fraud in Enrollment. Warner Asks Writ of Prohibition to Prevent Board Going Back to Returns—One Township Recounted.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 24.—The Republican gubernatorial recount in which Auditor General J. B. Bradley is seeking to overcome the 1,500 plurality of Governor Warner in the recent primary was again deferred by the state board of canvassers Wednesday until next Monday, pending a decision by the supreme court upon a petition of Dr. Bradley's lawyers for a mandamus compelling the board to investigate allegations of fraud in the enrollment of voters preceding the primary election.

At the same time Governor Warner's attorneys decided to apply to the supreme court for a writ of prohibition to prevent the board from going back of the returns.

The supreme court will hear arguments in the matter Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

Only one township was recounted Wednesday—Oliver township, Huron county. Of 160 votes for governor in this township it appeared that fourteen were cast by voters who had enrolled on Aug. 31, which was not properly an enrollment day. On the advice of Attorney General Bird, these fourteen ballots were withdrawn from the box. The result of the recount in this township was a net gain of ten for Dr. Bradley. The board has notified the 118 election officials now here to go home and remain until notified to appear again.

New Railroad Assured.

Marshall, Mich., Sept. 24.—That a new railroad will be built joining Bay City, Marshall, Lansing, Olivet and other cities and terminating at Mount Eagle, O., is now assured. H. E. Holton, president of the Columbus, Marshall & Northwestern, who is interested in the project, left Wednesday for New York city, where bonds for the new railway are being floated. Before leaving he said: "Work on the new road will be begun between now and May 1, next year. The proposition has been under way for over ten years, and its construction is a surety."

Sentenced For Grand Larceny.

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 24.—B. W. Brown of Milwaukee pleaded guilty to grand larceny before Judge North in the circuit court here Wednesday and was sentenced to Jackson for from two and one half to five years, with a recommendation of four and one-half years. Brown passed a worthless check on the Clifton House management here July 5, and a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses was first preferred against him. In consideration of the less serious charge being made, he pleaded guilty.

Ask Aid For Slain Keeper's Family.

Jackson, Mich., Sept. 24.—Members of the Prison Officers' association are sending out circular letters to legislative candidates all over the state, asking them, in case they are elected, to support a measure which will be introduced in the next legislature providing an appropriation for the family of George A. Ferris, the keeper who was stabbed to death by Archie Woodin, an insane convict, several months ago. The family, who are now at Marquette, are in destitute circumstances.

Blind Girl Back Again.

Marshall, Mich., Sept. 24.—Though ordered by Attorney General Bird to admit Mary Raymond, the blind six-year-old Marshall child, the superintendent of the state school here has refused to do so, and the girl has been sent back to Marshall for the second time. It is charged that the girl's case is refused because she would need extra attention. The rules of the institution exempt it from caring for any blind person. The probate court will likely investigate.

Town Surrounded by Fire.

Standish, Mich., Sept. 24.—Forest fires surround Crump, a little village a few miles southwest of here. Two houses and a schoolhouse have already burned, and one woman, Mrs. J. Barcley, is supposed to have burned to death. A call for help was sent to Linwood and Pinconning. The roads through the woods are a roaring furnace, leading out in all directions, and more fatalities are certain.

The Valedictorian

A Commencement Day Story

By FRANK H. SWEET.

and the graduating class trooped upon the stage.

After much fumbling she threw back her veil and, putting on her "specs," gazed in delight and awe at the young girls seated there, all in a flutter of excitement and fluffy white dresses.

"It looks like the pear orchard abloom," she confided to the lady beside her. She leaned forward, her lips parted, her breath coming in little gasps. "That's Kitty—there in the middle—the one with the sunshiny hair. She's going to speak a piece." Her hand trembled upon the lady's arm. "Why have they hung those pink sashes over the stage? And, see; there's a pink bow on every girl's chest!"

"MOTHER!" CRIED KITTY. "YOU DEAR FRAUD!"

"The class colors," was the smiling answer.

"It looks like"— Elizabeth stopped abruptly. Again she stood at her window, eyes uplifted to the wonder and the beauty of the early morning. That was the meaning behind it all—the commencement of a new day in the sky; the commencement of a new striving and achieving in these young lives; rose colored dreams and ambitions, ribbons of dawn fluttering with hope and promise in every little graduate's heart.

Kitty's "piece" came at last. She had been elected valedictorian of her class. Elizabeth listened spellbound. To this idolizing judge every thought in it was inspired by genius, every sentence a poem in prose, while through the whole reading ran flashlights of the child herself—Kitty with her first doll hugged in her fat little arms, Kitty with her first medal won at the Hillsboro school fastened upon her proudly heaving breast, Kitty with her hair done up for the first time and the last tuck out of her Sunday dimity. And when the good natured house burst into applause Elizabeth longed to stand on her chair and shout, "She's mine, all mine!"

After the benediction's hush bubbled over a reaction of chatter and laughter.

"Look at the freak in front of you"—the carelessly high voice drifted over Elizabeth's shoulder—"red currants, purple ribbons and a dress handed down from the ark! A country mother, I suppose, bobbing up at commencement to humiliate a poor little graduate!"

A crimson [illegible] burned Elizabeth's cheek. There was a mist before her eyes, and an [illegible] gripped her throat. But so strong was her habit of unselfishness that she was scarcely conscious of her pain. Her one thought was to slip away before humiliating Kitty.

The opening of the nearby side door promised instant escape, and she hastened toward it. She did not know that the band was playing. She did not notice the graduates filing down to the same door. She did not hear the muttered protests of the people that she passed.

"One moment, madam." At the door an usher laid a detaining hand upon her sleeve.

She shrank back as though the dazzling white line approaching were an apparition of horror. There she stood, motionless, trapped in a crowd where Kitty could not fail to recognize her—and be humiliated! And yet a sudden joy leaped in her heart as she felt Kitty's eyes upon her. It had been so many months since she had had the child in her arms! With these conflicting emotions she breathlessly waited. The white line flashed on unbroken. Kitty had passed her by.

"Madam, you may go now."

Elizabeth stared vacantly at the usher and tottered out of the hall. Life had ended. Kitty—the pride, the promise of all past years—no longer belonged to her, but to this gay outside world where she was an intruder. "The child" was ashamed of her mother!

She stumbled on. There was a white blur upon her stinging eyes where the graduates flocked on the campus, then a detached white figure with outstretched arms darting toward her.

"Mother!" cried Kitty. "You dear fraud, you pretending you couldn't come! When I discovered you I almost broke ranks and ruined the march!"

"But—but, Kitty," faltered Elizabeth, "people are looking, and"—

"I don't care if the whole world sees me hugging you!" laughed Kitty, with a rapturous kiss. "Oh, muzzer, guess what? I've got the Hillsboro school! I can live at home, and we'll have a servant, and—and you need only twirl your thumbs for the rest of your life! But come, honey, I want to introduce you to all the [illegible]

TOOTHACHE.

About the Worst Torture That Ever Afflicted Mankind.

"You of the younger generation," said the dentist severely, "don't appreciate the importance of the conquest of toothache that dentistry has made.

"Toothache is the worst torture that ever afflicted mankind. Its pains—'lancinating' they are technically called—are worse than the pains of cancer. Worse than cancer; that is the truth. I have heard it from physicians; I have heard it from three old people whom cancer finally killed. They all said that the pain of cancer at its worst was mild beside the pain of the worst toothache.

"Toothache drove De Quincy to opium eating. De Quincy, too, says in his 'Opium Eater'—like all dentists, I have the passage by heart:

"'No stronger expression of toothache's intensity and scorching fierceness can be imagined than this fact, that within my private knowledge two persons who had suffered alike under toothache and cancer have pronounced the former to be on the scale of torture by many degrees the worse. In both there are at times lancinating pangs—keen, glancing, arrowy radiations of anguish—and upon these the basis of comparison is rested, paroxysm against paroxysm, with the result that I have stated.'"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A VERY PRETTY LETTER.

The Story of Byron's Proposal to Miss Milbanke.

Byron's proposal to his wife, Miss Milbanke, was made after sordid discussion and study and lacked all impulse. Lady Melbourne, who stood in his confidence, observing how cheerless and unsettled his mind and prospects were, strenuously advised him to marry. She suggested a certain lady, but Lord Byron fancied the idea of marrying Miss Milbanke.

"No," said Lady Melbourne; "Miss Milbanke will not suit you. In the first place, she has no fortune now, and you want money immediately. In the next place, you want a person who will have great admiration for your genius; she has too great an admiration for herself."

"Well," said Byron, "as you please."

And, sitting down, he wrote a letter to the lady recommended by Lady Melbourne. He received a refusal.

"Now, you see," said he, "Miss Milbanke is to be the person, after all. I will write to her."

As soon as he had finished his friend, still remonstrating, read the note and observed:

"Well, really, this is a very pretty letter. It is a pity it should not go."

"Then it shall go," exclaimed Byron. And, so saying, he sealed and sent the fiat of his unhappy fate.

Rapid Transit.

An express on a certain railroad was tearing away at a wild and awe inspiring rate of six miles an hour, when all of a sudden it stopped altogether. Most of the passengers did not notice the difference, but one of them happened to be somewhat anxious to reach his destination before old age claimed him for its own. He put his head through the window to find that the cause of the stop was a cow on the track. After awhile they continued the journey for half an hour or so, and then—another stop.

"What's wrong now?" asked the impatient passenger of the conductor.

"A cow on the track."

"But I thought you drove it off."

"So we did," said the conductor, "but we caught up with it again."—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Cheapest Way.

"That tobacco ye're smokin' hae a richt bonnie smell, Wullie," said the Caledonian tradesman.

"Aye!" assented Willie. "An' it's guid tobacco and cheap. In fact, I get it cheaper than the tobacconist hissel'!"

"Hoots, mon!" exclaimed the knowing tradesman. "That's an impossibeelity! Ye canna' get it cheaper than the tobacconist hissel'! It isna likely."

"Aye, but I do," asserted Willie, lowering his voice. "Ye see, there happens to be a brither o' my ain wife's in the shop!"

Breaking It Gently.

"I understand, sir, that you are the possessor of a swollen fortune."

"Well," gruffly answered the beautiful girl's father, "what is that to you?"

"I merely thought that I would give you due notice of my intention to help take the swelling out of it. Myrtle and I are going to be married."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Terrible Tests.

"So you are still looking for an honest man?"

"I am," answered Diogenes.

"What is the lantern for?"

"That's to test him with. I am going to lend him the lantern, and if he brings that back I'm going to try him with an umbrella."—Washington Star.

Agreed.

HOLES IN GLASS.

They Are Too Tiny to See, but Air Can Work Through Them.

Ordinary tumblers will hold water because the globules of water are too big to squeeze through the glass. But glass is as full of holes as a sponge, and air blows right through it because the specks of air are smaller than the holes.

Put a bell into a big globe of glass, seal up the vessel, pump out all the air, then ring the bell inside, and you hear nothing. There is not air enough in the globe to carry a sound. But lay the globe aside for a month or so, and, no matter how carefully you have sealed up the neck, you will find that you then can hear the bell when you ring it. Air has got into that globe. Enough anyway to carry a sound has leaked in through the substance of the glass.

The ordinary incandescent lamp is a glass globe with the air pumped out, and after a few months sufficient air leaks through to dim the light which comes from the thread of electrified charcoal inside.

We can make plenty of vessels to hold water, but nothing has been made which will hold air without any leakage. The air sneaks in through holes which are too small for the human mind to imagine.

In fact, everything leaks.—London Answers.

THE END OF THE WORLD.

A Theory That It Will Come by Fire Caused by Friction.

As to the length of time the earth is likely to last, the calculations are that it will not cease to be active for a good many millions of years, such activity not, however, necessarily supposing that life as we know it now will always be possible, the eventuality of a universal ice age being always a contingency that may occur again in the history of the globe.

It is interesting to note that in this connection a Swedish mystic called Stromberg has declared that the world would never know another ice age, but that it was now running out its course to the end. Its existence, he declared, would endure as long as fire burned in the earth's bowels—that is, until the whole mass shall have become solidified. The internal fires, he said, provided the link which maintained the earth in the sun's sphere of attraction. When this attraction shall fail, the earth, according to the Swede, will cease to revolve and will fall away, only to disappear by fire caused by friction, thus verifying the Biblical prophecy. As, however, the process of cooling down entirely will take some billions of years, the nervous person will note that there is really no immediate cause for alarm.—New York World.

Paid Up.

A year or two ago the son of a prominent banker of Iowa undertook, with all the brashness and confidence of youth, the launching of a new morning paper in a town already well supplied with newspapers.

It was understood by his friends that the young man had, in fact, started his enterprise on "a shoestring"—a few hundred dollars advanced by his father. So it was with much facetiousness that the youthful proprietor and editor was approached from day to day by the aforesaid friends. "So you call yourself an editor!" exclaimed one of them, with affected contempt.

"Of course I do," returned the brash young owner. "I'm the whole thing on this paper. And I don't owe a cent therefor."

"Everybody knows," continued his tormentor, "that you got $200 from your father to start the thing."

"Sure!" said the proprietor and editor. "Furthermore, the old man's subscription for the Beacon is marked paid a hundred years ahead on my books!"

Long Flights of Birds.

Birds of passage make their longest flight somewhere near Bering strait. A naturalist says that probably the longest continuous flight made by the feathered travelers in their peregrinations is accomplished by some of the shore and water birds that rest in the islands of Bering sea and spend the winter at Hawaii and Fanning island, 2,200 miles away. As some of the birds live entirely on the shore and are probably unable to rest on the surface of the water, they must accomplish the whole distance in a single flight, yet they make their way to their destination with absolute precision.—Chicago Tribune.

Cheese Crackers.

Cheese crackers are better when made the day they are to be eaten. Use American grated cheese and saltine crackers. For each two tablespoonfuls allow one of creamed butter, rubbing them together till perfectly smooth. Spread evenly on the wafers and set them in a moderate oven to glaze the cheese. Watch carefully to prevent burning. There is nothing nicer to serve with a plain salad.—New York Post.

Obedient English Husbands.

Despite all the admonitions to perfect obedience which have for decades been carefully instilled into the feminine mind, it is an undoubted fact that this is an age not of obedient wives, but of obedient husbands. Some obey through love, some through fear and others through a desire for peace, but all are alike, insomuch that they are docile to a degree undreamed of in the middle ages or even in the Victorian era of Dundreary whiskers and baggy trousers.—London Gentlewoman.

CHURCH AFFAIRS

WORK BEING DONE IN OUR CHURCHES.

What is accomplished through the Social Life.

UNIVERSALIST CHURCH.

Rev. Blanche Young, minister: There will be no morning service during Sept.; but Sunday school will convene as usual at noon. Y. P. C. U. meets at 6 o'clock, Mrs. Getchell leader; Topic, Courage. Subject of the evening discourse, at 7 o'clock, "Every Day Religion." Special music. Bible study at the parsonage Thursday evening.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

C. C. Kemp, rector—Services Sunday at 4 p. m. Sunday school at 11:30 a. m. Service Friday night at 7, followed by choir practice at 7:30.

Teachers meeting was held last Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Louise Phelps.

Miss Minnie Corey has kindly consented to take charge of Miss Alice Combs' class during her absence in Philadelphia, Penn.

The Sunday school looses two of it's teachers.

Saturday the Misses Grace Albert and Jennie Harris leave for Ann Arbor and their work in the University.

The Parish sympathizes with Mrs. Cora Sisson one of its former members in the loss of her mother Mrs. A. Bliven of Blissfield, which occurred last Friday afternoon. Rev. C.C. Kemp took charge of the funeral which occurred Monday afternoon at 2:30 from her home in Blissfield.

Rev. Kemp took tea with Dean Channer in Adrian Monday night.

Mrs Herschburg of Cleveland, O., is the guest of her daughter Mrs. C. C. Kemp of Clinton.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

Lincoln Stevens and wife of Beacon Hill are visiting Dr. and Mrs. North.

We are always glad when Miss Metta McKinney assists in the choir and the duet sung last Sunday morning by Miss Metta and Mrs. Moore was especially enjoyed.

Ed Culver, a nephew of Timothy Mills, spent Sunday at the Bryan home.

James Waldron left Monday for the M. A. C. at Lansing.

Dr. North gave an interesting talk on "health" at the church Sunday evening.

The B. Y. P. U. have been having a contest, with the young men on one side and the young ladies on the other, to see which could raise the most money in a given time, the young men now out and were given a banquet at the church parlors Tuesday evening, it was a thoroughly enjoyable time for all present

Election of officers for the Ladies society for the coming year, resulted as follows:

President—Mrs. Kay.
Vice president—Mrs. Fannie Bryan.
Secretary—Mrs. Dr. North.
Treasurer—Mrs. Feightner.

This is a good list of officers and we hope they will accomplished something during the year.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Next Sunday morning the Bible school will hold its annual Rally day when it is planned to have every scholar, in the school present. An interesting program has been prepared that assures a rousing time. The Rally will be held at the usual hour of Bible school. A souvenir bookmark will be presented to members of the older classes and a pin to primary and junior. An offering will be made toward mission work in Michigan.

The young people's work for this winter will be of a different character than heretofore. The young people are divided into groups for the study of church history, the Bible, missons and social questions the church is facing. A new program for the Sunday meeting is being published that is very attractive.

The messenger boys will meet Monday night at the usual hour.

Mrs. Albert Reason will sing at the Sunday morning service.

At the prayer meeting service a helpful hour was spent in reviewing what many Bible characters gained and lost by serving the true God.

Opportunity will be given next Sunday at the Rally service for the baptism of children. Parents will notify the pastor.

At the evening service the pastor will preach the second of the sermons on practical religion, "Truth, Purity, Love." The chorus choir will sing. Miss Kreidler will sing the solo.

Usual services Sunday. In the morning the pastor will preach on "Weary Christians." Bible school rally at 11:15. The men's class will meet as usual. Election of officers. Dr. North will address the class on "The Care of the Body." Young people's meeting at 6 prompt. Subject, "Children of the Bible." Girls club at the same hour. Evening service at 7.

A Cool Thief.

One summer afternoon an exceptionally well dressed stranger was seen to enter the front gate of a house in a wealthy neighborhood. He walked to the door and tried to open it with a key. As he could not do so he went around to a window and, pushing it open, climbed in through it. It was a suspicious proceeding, but as the man was dressed in the height of fashion the officer on the beat thought that it was the owner of the house, who, having forgotten his key, had used the window as his means of entrance. However, the officer thought it best to watch the place for awhile to see if anything out of the way might occur. A short time later, emerging from the front door, the stranger stopped as if some one had spoken to him from within, and, saying "Yes, Bess, I have my key this time," he lifted his hat and walked slowly away. Some hours later, when the real owner of the house returned, the policeman learned that his first suspicions had been correct, for the well dressed stranger had walked off with the jewelry and everything of value that he could lay his kid gloved hands upon.—Chicago Tribune.

STATE CLEVELAND.

Resolved, That the Common Council of the Village of Tecumseh does hereby require that a new sidewalk be consructed along that portion of the east line of Maumee street in this village which lies along and adjoining the west line of that parcel of land situate in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee County and State of Michigan, and described as follows:

House and north ½ lots 85 and 86 Original Plat.

Said walk to be 4 feet in width, on the established grade, of Portland cement, sand and gravel.

The trench shall be excavated to a depth of 10 inches at least below the established grade except for driveways and street crossings when the depth shall be at least 12 inches below the established grade.

The foundation shall consist of clean cinders or gravel entirely free from clay, thoroughly rammed to a thickness of at least 6 inches, except for driveways and street crossings which shall be at least 8 inches.

On the foundation shall be laid a concrete filling, thoroughly rammed to a thickness of 3 inches.

The concrete shall consist of not less than one part cement to six parts of clean, sharp sand or gravel.

On the concrete filling shall be laid a finishing layer one inch thick, consisting of one part cement and two parts of very clean, sharp sand. The said finishing layer shall in all cases be finished with a granular surface with a wooden float.

To secure a true line for the edges of the walk 2x4 strips shall be solidly staked down parallel to grade and on the true line of the walk, these strips to be removed when the walk is finished for use.

The concrete filling shall be tamped thoroughly till the water comes to the surface, then the finishing layer shall be immediately spread on in thin coats thoroughly rammed into the concrete, each coat being trowled until the water appears on the surface, the top surface being only trowled sufficiently to leave it smooth. The foundation shall be thoroughly wet while being rammed.

The joints for the blocks shall be made in the concrete and then in the finishing layer directly above those in the concrete.

Only Portland cement shall be used in the construction of walks and shall be in every respect the equal of the best grades of German Portland cement. The concrete filling shall be made from the same cement as the finishing layer.

And the owners and occupants of said lots and premises are hereby required to do the necessary grading therefor and to construct said sidewalk according to the provisions of this resolution, under the supervision of the street commissioner, said walk to be completed within 10 days from personal service, upon the owner or occupant of said described land, of a copy of this resolution, and in case of any default in the construction and completion of said walk, as herein directed, the street commissioner is hereby ordered to have said walk constructed, and payment therefor shall be required of the owner of said above described land, and the expense thereof assessed and levied upon said land in the same manner as other taxes.

Moved and supported that the above resolution be accepted and adopted.

Ayes—VanWinkle, Sherman, Magers, Lowry, Teachout, Slater. Carried.

Moved and supported that the bills as read be referred to the Finance Committee. Carried.

The Finance Committee reported favorably on all bills as read.

BLOOD

We live by our blood, and on it. We thrive or starve, as our blood is rich or poor. There is nothing else to live on or by.

When strength is full and spirits high we are being refreshed—bone, muscle and brain, in body and mind—with continual flow of rich blood. This is health.

When weak, in low spirits, no cheer, no spring, when rest is not rest and sleep is not sleep, we are starved; our blood is poor; there is little nutriment in it.

Back of the blood is food, to keep the blood rich. When it fails, take

DAVID BAUER.

The remains of David Bauer, brother of Lawrence Bauer, were brought here last evening, and the funeral was held from the undertaking rooms of Rauch and Williamson at 3:30 this afternoon, Rev. Kamm of the Baptist church officiating.

A PLAY IN A THOUSAND.

"Quincy Adams Sawyer" a unique drama of most telling qualities.

When this famous rural drama is presented at the New Bradley opera house, Monday, Oct. 5, it will be found to be presented by an admirable company, every member of which has been selected with special regard for his or her fitness for the role played.

Herald Office Open.

The HERALD office will be open every Saturday night at 7 o'clock for the remainder of the evening to accommodate those who desire to pay for the HERALD. All accounts must be paid at once. Those who are in arrears kindly call and settle.

GRAPES.

Wm. Smith, 3 blocks north of East branch school house, on Manmee street, will sell grapes in the vineyard at 1½c per pound or 2c per pound delivered.

RAT CATCHERS.

One of the Methods by Which They Make Big Hauls.

"Rat catchers, like horse tamers, try to make a mystery of their trade," said a zoo keeper.

He pointed toward the large gray rats that played about the corners of the carnivora house.

"But they can't mystify me in any phase of the rat question," he went on. "Living as I do, surrounded by an army of the largest, finest rats, I know the animals too thoroughly. I could set up as a successful rat catcher tomorrow.

"This is the way the men work. They go to the infested place late at night with a pair of tongs, a powerful lantern and a lot of bags.

"They walk softly about in the darkness, and they make a low, chattering, whistling noise, like this."

At the sound all the rats in the corners of the big room looked at the keeper inquiringly. He went on:

"This is the signal whereby a rat tells his mates that he has hit on good feeding. That sound made in the dark gathers rats as molasses gathers flies. The catcher, having made it, opens his strong lantern, the rats are dazed by the light, and he picks them up with his tongs and drops them in his bag.

"Of course there are other ways to catch rats, but of the secret, mysterious ones this is the best."—Exchange.

Lucky Future Generations.

There is a saying of Carlyle that the greatest hope of our world lies in the certainty of heroes being born into it. That is indeed a glorious certainty, but the reference might be enlarged. Birth itself, we venture to say, not of heroes only, but of the generations in their succession, is the infinitely hopeful thing. It is the guarantee that the world will never grow old; that it will never stand still; that no halt is to be called in its eternal progress.—Christian World.

Sure Sign.

"Don't sell that man another drink," ordered the boss.

"He's all right," argued the barkeep. "He ain't full."

"No; but he's beginning to tell what a nice family he comes of."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A. Russel Peabody Dead.

New York, Sept. 24.—A. Russel Peabody, one of the attorneys who had a leading part in the defense of Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White, died suddenly Wednesday in Babylon, L. I., of pneumonia. He had been ill only since Saturday.

A Paying Investment.

Mr. John White of 38 Highland Ave., Houlton, Maine, says: "Have been troubled with a cough every winter and spring. Last winter I tried many advertised remedies, but the cough continued until I bought a 50c. bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery; before that was half gone, the cough was all gone. This winter the same happy result has followed; a few doses once more banished the annual cough. I am now convinced that Dr. King's New Discovery is the best of all cough and lung remedies." Sold under guarantee at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store. 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

PUBLIC INSTALLATION

Officers of Tecumseh Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star are Installed.

Tuesday Evening at 7:30, the Hall Was Filled With Members and Friends.

PROGRAM RENDERED AND REFRESHMENTS SERVED.

A public installation of the officers of Tecumseh Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star was held Tuesday evening in the Masonic Hall. The meeting was called to order and Mrs. J. F. Hicks gave a short history of the Tecumseh Chapter.

Mrs. Ella Anderson, past worthy matron of the chapter acted as Installing Officer, assisted by Mrs. Fanny Bryan as Marshal and Mrs. J. F. Hicks as Chaplain. The impressive ceremonies of installation were beautifully done. Mrs. J. Q. Look presided at the piano.

The officers installed were:

Worthy Matron—Anna Cutting.
Worthy Patron—R. A. Heesen.
Assoc. Matron—Cora Teachout.
Treas.—Elsie Orr.
Sec.—Nannie Kyle.
Conductress—Florence Montgomery.
Assoc. Cond.—Edna Belding.
Chaplain—Ella James.
Marshal—Tina Hopper.
Ada—Anna Wilson.
Ruth—Lulu Aylesworth.
Esther—Ollie Hendershott.
Martha—Nellie Adamson.
Electa—May Hiens.
Warder—Dora Bowen.
Sentinel—William Jordan.
Organist—Ethel Keyser.

At the close of the installation, worthy matron, Anna Cutting, said as she took the chair, that as the goat had refused to be present at public meetings she deemed it no more than right that he he should be remembered, and gave a "toast" for him. A short program as follows was then given:

Duet—Percy and Elmer Slayton.
Solo—John Keeney.
Reading—F. J. Temple.
Duet—Mrs. Anna Mead and B. J. Pulver.
Solo—Floyd Slater.

Refreshments were served to the 250 members and their friends, in the dining hall, with Miss Edith Cotton as chairman of the committee.

The menu consisted of ice cream-cake-wafers and frappe.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Tests next week.

School closed Thursday on account of the Fair.

The High school girls pratice basket ball after school every night, there being 16 in the pratice games.

Reah Ballard of Lima, O., and Hazel Crane of Palmyra, visited at the high school Monday.

LeRoy Bramble '08 visited school Tuesday.

Charles Teachout, Vesta Wilson, Eva Allen and Henry Raymond were absent from school on Wednesday.

Elmer Brown played with the Tecumseh band in Adrian Wednesday.

Miss Iva Kane and Marshall Reed visited at their homes in Onsted over Sunday.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE.

As last Tuesday was Mrs. Robert Crosby's birthday, quite a company of her neighbors and old-time friends went in to spend the afternoon with her.

The gathering was planned as a surprise for Mrs. Crosby who lives alone.

The ladies, wishing to express their sympathy and esteem, took advantage of her birthday to invade her home and to leave substantial tokens of their good will. A great many who could not be present sent gifts and greetings, especially the Methodist ladies who remembered the years when she never allowed a Sabbath to pass without brightening the pulpit with beautiful flowers.

Just before the picnic supper was served Miss Lucy Train read a beautiful poem of greeting and presentation.

FOUND DEAD.

William W. Gaston of Petersburg, son of William Gaston of this place, was found dead in Adrian yesterday afternoon.

Deceased leaves a wife in Petersburg, parents, two sisters and a brother who reside in Tecumseh.

The remains were brought here this morning, and a private funeral will be held from the house tomorrow morning. Burial at Brookside.

OLD SOLDIER KILLED BY CAR

DAVID BAUER WAS CARRYING PAIL OF MILK ACROSS STREET.

David Bauer, aged 75, of 84 Randolph street, was killed by a car on Clifford, near Sibley street this forenoon. He was crossing the single track in his shirt-sleeves carrying a pail of buttermilk. He apparently had failed to observe the approach of the car, was knocked down by the fender, beneath which he was carried along for some little distance, receiving a blow on the head from the sharp scraper before the front wheels.

So completely was his body entangled under the front part of the car that the motorman had to back up to free the body. Since there were still signs of life the old man was conveyed to St. Mary's hospital in the East End ambulance.

He expired, however, almost immediately after his arrival at the institution.

Bauer was an old soldier and had only recently been readmitted to the Soldiers' Home in Grand Rapids.

On his person a pocketbook containing $75, believed to be his pension money, was found. The name Anna Whitaker was engraved on the pocketbook.—Detroit Journal.

David Bauer, was a brother of Lawrence Bauer of this place, and who with his son Frank Bauer of Britton went to Detroit yesterday morning to make arrangements for the burial.

A PROGRAM OF UNLIMITED SCOPE

That the heights of instruction and entertainment to be attained in moving pictures are unlimited, is conclusively proven by Lyman H. Howe's new program to be seen at the New Bradley Opera House on Thursday Oct. 1st. It includes a ramble through picturesque Naples; A drive through Rome; An automobile trip through beautiful Savoy (France): A tour through India—Bombay, Calcutta, Benares and Darjelling, and an impressive military review in London. It depicts the dangers of Steeplechasing in England; The weird effects of Physical Phenomena; The stirring sports of Australians; Quaint episodes of animal and bird life; Sulphur mining in Sicily; A new drill by the Reedham Orphans; Niagara in winter, etc.

THE THEATER FORGOTTEN

How The Realites of a Popular Rural Play Stimulate Imagination

To those who followed the career of the great rural play "Quincy Adams Sawyer" to the extent of witnessing a large number of its preformances, the most notable feature of the drama is the power that certain of its scenes exert upon the audiences in compelling illusion. Especially is this true of the famous husking bee scene, in which color and humor of the rural festivity are so vividly presented as to make this portion of the preformance an example of the art which conceals art, and hence perfect. At the New Bradley, Monday Oct. 5.

YOU CAN'T CURE CONSTIPATION

by taking purgatives, salts, or other drugs that act harshly or violently upon the stomach or bowels.

Ask any doctor, and he will tell you that purgatives of any character distend the bowels and weaken the elastic tissue.

To cure constipation, remove the cause. The cause of constipation is indigestion. If your food digested properly it would continue on from the stomach through the bowels, and would be eliminated without effort and with regularity.

Mi-o-na tablets cure constipation by curing your indigestion. It is not a purgative. It is a stomach tonic and more—it tones up, strengthens, invigorates, refreshes and injects new life into the worn out muscles of the stomach, and in a short time makes the stomach hardy enough to digest anything you eat. It is a powerful yet harmless stomach tonic, and its resistless influence on the stomach is astonishing.

Try Mi-o-na for constipation. One box will cure you of indigestion; two boxes will relieve you of constipation; and best of all, Mi-o-na is such an economical remedy. A large box only costs 50 cents, and then, if you are not satisfied with results C. A. Wright & Son, the druggist will give you your money back.

Mi-o-na cures all stomach disorders whether acute or chronic, such as dyspepsia, vomiting, over-indulgence of the night before, sea or car sickness, stomach sickness of prospective mothers, etc.

Read this from the president of a New York corporation:

"I have been a terrible sufferer from dyspepsia and gastritis for two years. The most eminent physicians prescribed for me with no effect. I have been absolutely cured by your Mi-o-na tablets. The first one gave me a relief almost incredible. Very gratefully yours, Herbert H. Taylor, 501 West 143rd Street, New York city."

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold

A. J. Nusbaum, Batesville, Indiana, writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed to only aggravate my case. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package, and it quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success."

When a man's wife tells him what she thinks of him she doesn't do anything of the sort.

He is an undeserving wretch who dodges what is coming to him and keeps roaring for his due.

Dyspepsia is America's cure. Burdock Blood Bitters conquers dyspepsia every time. It drives out impurities, tones the stomach, restores perfect digestion, normal weight, and good health.

When lawyers are minding their own business they are prying into somebody else's.

OF INTEREST TO MANY

Foley's Kidney Cure will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble that is not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more.

The man who knows how to manage a woman, doesn't.

Whatever else you do when you start out to criticise your friend, talk about something else.

Kodal will, in a very short time, enable the stomach to do the work it should do, and the work it should do is to digest all the food you eat. When the stomach can't do it Kodal does it for it and in the meantimes the stomach is getting stronger and able to take up its regular natural work again. Kodal digests all you eat. It makes the stomach sweet and it is pleasant to take. It is sold here by all druggists.

Some people envy the man who pays his bills promptly, and some consider him foolish.

Healthy kidneys filter the impurities from the blood, and unless they do this good health is impossible. Foley's Kidney Cure makes sound kidneys and will positively cure all forms of kidney and bladder disease. It strengthens the whole system.

It would save much guessing and straining if the psychological moment would always wear its label.

The courage of many a man lies wholly in his bank account.

Some girls find the most distressing thing about a broken engagement to be the giving back the diamond ring.

A COMMON ERROR.

The Same Mistake is Made by Many Tecumseh People.

It's a common error
To plaster the aching back,
To rub with liniments rheumatic joints.
When the trouble comes from the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.

Clark Decker, living at 130 West Maumee st., Adrian, Mich., says: "Before I used Doan's Kidney Pills I had such severe backaches that it was often difficult for me to move about and many times when getting up from a chair or a stooped position, I was compelled to place my hands to my hips and rise gradually. At night I could not sleep well and though I using many remedies and plasters my condition failed to improve. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills I procured a box at Wright & Son's drug store and they brought me prompt relief. I continued used them until completely cured."

Plenty more proof like this from Tecumseh people. Call at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store and ask what their customers report.

For Sale by all Dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sole Agents for the United States.

BURLETSON TALKS.

Assures Creditors They Will Be Paid Dollar For Dollar.

Jackson, Mich., Sept. 24.—W. H. Burletson, cashier of the closed Hanover, Parma and Pittsford banks, was placed under arrest Wednesday morning on a warrant issued on complaint of State Banking Commissioner Zimmerman, who charges Burletson with falsifying the books of the banks and other violations of the banking laws. Burletson was taken into custody at his home in Parma and taken out of the village before residents knew of it.

Burletson was brought here and occupies an upper cell in the criminal ward of the jail. He appeared cheerful while being interviewed. This is the first statement he has made:

"I am not worrying one particle about this matter because there is nothing to it. I went away and took my son to college in Virginia, and if I had been at home this matter would never have been heard from.

"None will lose a dollar if the matter is handled rightly even now. If I had been home I could have satisfied the banking officers in half a day and regulated everything which might have looked suspicious. It was my plan to make Parma my home, and for that reason I purchased a fifty-seven acre farm north of Parma, where I intended to live as soon as I had organized the private banks at Hanover and Pittsford in the state institutions.

"I figured that with the three banks going nicely I would have an income of nearly $3,000 a year, and my work would simply be to oversee. To this end I was striving to get about five or six stockholders for each bank, and for that reason I purchased the stock of President C. W. Bullen. It would assist to realize my general plan. I am asking favors of none in this matter and am making no effort to secure bail. My attorney will be here, and my trouble will come out with myself on top of the heap. By that I mean that everyone will be paid dollar for dollar."

Two Young Men Drown.

Caro, Mich., Sept. 24.—The bodies of Floyd Mettleton, twenty-eight, and his half-brother, William Montle, thirty, have been found at the bottom of the river near here by a searching party. The two young men lived with their sister, Mrs. Nettie Nichols, in Caro. Tuesday morning they left to go fishing. When they did not return at night, Mrs. Nichols informed the authorities. Their capsized boat was found lodged on the shore, with a straw hat floating near by. The river was dragged, and their bodies located near the boat, in seven feet of water. Near by, on the bank, was found a bird which had been shot, and its wing broken. It is supposed that the young men shot the bird, and in their excitement overturned the boat.

SQUABBLE ENDS.

West Virginia Lincoln Republicans Withdraw Their Ticket.

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 24.—The bitter feud in the Republican party in West Virginia, following the dual conventions and rival state tickets placed in the field last July, headed respectively by Secretary of State C. W. Swisher and State Auditor Arnold C. Scherr, was ended last night, when, following the withdrawal of Swisher Monday night, Mr. Scherr and his fellow candidates on the Lincoln Republican ticket agreed to retire in favor of the new candidate of the regular Republicans, William E. Glasscock. The other state candidates of the regular faction stand as nominated here last July. The state ticket as it now stands follows:

For governor—William E. Glasscock of Monongalia county.

Secretary of state—Stuart F. Reed of Harrison county.

Auditor—John S. Darst of Jackson county.

Superintendent of schools—M. F. Shawkey of Kenawaha county.

State treasurer—E. L. Long of McDowell county

Attorney general—William G. Conley of Preston county.

The Lincoln Republican candidates who retired are: Arnold C. Scherr for governor, T. T. McDougal for secretary of state, A. R. Stallings for attorney general, C. N. Snodgrass for state treasurer, P. W. Morris for auditor and A. S. Bell for superintendent of schools.

The action withdrawing the Lincoln ticket was decided upon at a meeting last night of the Lincoln Republican state committee, which was attended by prominent Republicans.

Cholera Among Upper Classes.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 24.—The Asiatic cholera is spreading day by day. It is now appearing in the upper classes of society, which up to the present time had considered themselves immune. Twenty-four cases have been reported in Peterhof. The imperial family is expected soon to return to the Peterhof palace from its cruise in Finnish waters. One case has been discovered in the palace of Prince Alexander Oldenburg, a cousin of the emperor. Among the cases in St. Petersurg today is that of Court Councillor Nechiporenko.

Kern Defends Haskell.

Baltimore, Sept. 24.—Before two large audiences in widely separated sections of the city last night, John W. Kern, the Democratic nominee for the vice presidency, took up the cudgels in defense of Governor Haskell of Oklahoma against the charges made by W. R. Hearst of former affiliation with the Standard Oil company and roundly scored President Roosevelt for his letter on the subject. He spoke first at the Princess theater in east Baltimore and later at Cross Street Market hall, in the southern portion of the city.

Falls to His Death.

New York, Sept. 24.—Dr. John A Hegeman was killed last night by falling out of a window of his apartment on the fourth floor of an apartment house in Seventy-ninth street.

Car Kills Old Man.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 24.—David Bauer, aged seventy-five, 84 Randolph street, was walking across Clifford street near Cass avenue when he was struck by a Fourteenth car and sustained injuries which caused his death while in the East End ambulance on the way to St. Mary's hospital.

HOW TO AVOID APPENDICITIS

Most victims of appendicitis are those who are habitually constipated. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup cures chronic constipation by stimulating the liver and bowels, and restores the natural action of the bowels. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup does not nauseate or gripe and is mild and pleasant to take. Refuse substitutes.

Everyone was pleased with the entertainment, and the Congregational church was full and all enjoyed the evening.

Harvey Morse is at Dr. E. E. Richardson's being treated. His health fails very fast.

When you have a cold you may be sure that it has been caused indirectly by constipation and consequently you must first of all take something to move the bowels. This is what has made Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup so successful and so generally demanded. It does not constipate like most of the old fashioned cough cures, but on the order hand it gently moves the bowels and at the same time heals irritation and allays inflammation of the throat. Sold by all druggists.

LIST OF PROMINENT AMERICANS.

Gen. W. H. Parsons, Confederate Army, ex-State Senator, Texas.
Col. Bailey, of Washington, D. C., Labor Organizations and U. V. L.
Col. Patten, of Washington, D. C., Military and Masonic Orders.
Hon. R. S. Ryan, of Alaska, Ex-Member English House of Parliament.
Congressman Cale, of Alaska, well known on Pacific Slope.

Gen. W. H. Parsons.

Gen. W. H. Parsons is ex-State Senator and ex-Special Judge of the Supreme Court of Texas, also Brigadier General in Confederate Army. In a recent letter from 925 H St., N. W., Washington, D. C., this prominent gentleman says:

"Upon the recommendation of personal friends and many strong testimonials as to the efficacy of Peruna in the treatment of the numerous symptoms of the la grippe with which I have been afflicted for four months past, I have been induced to undergo a treatment with this justly celebrated formula. I feel a decided change for the better after using it only one week. It is especially good in toning up the stomach and has had a decided effect upon my appetite. I therefore feel much encouraged that I am on the road to complete restoration.

"My numerous friends in Texas, where I have had the honor to command a brigade of her Veteran Cavalry in a four years' war, may accept this voluntary testimonial to the merits of Peruna as a sense of obligation on my part for its wonderful efficacy."

Col. Wm. Bailey.

William Bailey, 58 T St., N. E., Washington, D. C., Past Col. Enc. No. 89, Union Veteran Legion, and prominently identified with many of the great labor protective associations in Chicago and New York, and Secretary of one of the largest associations in the former city, had for nearly thirty years been afflicted with kidney troubles.

Within a short period he has been persuaded to try Peruna, and his present healthy condition is attributed to his judicious use of that great remedy. Washington climate is notoriously bad for kidney and liver troubles, yet by a judicious use of the remedy he is now quite cured and in excellent physical condition.

This brief statement of facts, without exaggeration or hyperbole, appears to tell the whole story, which the Peruna Company is authorized to use, if it so chooses, believing, as I do, that by so doing it will be for the general good.—Wm. Bailey.

Col. C. L. Patten.

Col. C. L. Patten, 509 T St., N. W., Washington, D. C., a Lieutenant in the Old Guard, an exclusive organization composed of soldiers of distinction who fought in the civil war, and a Thirty-second degree Mason, writes as follows:

"Knowing I used Peruna, and desire to recommend your remedy as an invigorating spring tonic; also one of the best remedies that I ever tried for coughs, colds and catarrhal complaints."

Hon. R. S. Ryan.

Hon. R. S. Ryan, now residing in Nome, Alaska, was formerly a member of the English House of Parliament, and Secretary to the late Irish patriot, Charles Stewart Parnell. His Washington address is New Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C. He writes: "I have used Peruna and can recommend your remedy as a very effective cure for colds and catarrhal complaints."

Hon. Thomas Cale.

Hon. Thomas Cale, elected to Congress from Alaska, is well known on the Pacific slope, where he has resided. His Washington address is 1312 9th St., N. W., Washington, D. C. He writes: "I can cheerfully recommend Peruna as a very efficient remedy for coughs and colds."

DEMOCRATS IN SAGINAW.

Holding State Convention In New Auditorium Today.

LUCKING TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN

Makes Ringing Speech, Vigorously Condemning Republican Administration For Its Extravagance and Robbery of People's Rights—Candidates For Offices Are Lively.

Saginaw, Mich., Oct. 1.—In the magnificent new $150,000 Auditorium, at 11 o'clock this morning, convened the state Democratic convention.

Long before the convention was called to order, the delegates began to pour into the magnificent hall, principally to inspect the new structure and incidentally to chat with one another on the political situation throughout the state and country.

The Auditorium fills a long felt want in Saginaw. Made possible by the philantrophy of W. R. Burt and T. E. Door, well known lumberman, it proved itself today to be all that could be desired of such a building. The platform is ample, and the floor and balconies sufficiently large enough to accommodate all who desired to enter, either as delegate or visitor.

When the convention was called to order, the building was well filled, and a goodly number of prominent Democrats occupied platform seats, conspicuous among them being Lawton T. Hemans, nominated Democratic candidate for governor at the recent primary election.

Temporary Chairman Lucking's opening address was forceful and convincing. His listeners followed his words with close attention, now and again signifying their approval with applause, often forcing the speaker to pause for several minutes.

Mr. Lucking spoke in part as follows:

"The Republican administration, in spite of all its vaunting and boastfulness, ends in failure, collapse and panic. We arraign it before the bar of public opinion and indict it for high crimes, incompetency and disregard of popular rights. We specify:

"It is the most extravagant and wasteful administration in the world's history, while the country is in the midst of panic and depression; extravagance and panic, twin sisters of Republicanism, stalk throughout the land. It is now spending more than $1,000,000,000 a year, which is seventeen times as much as when it came into power, while the population has increased less than three times.

Maintains Spies.

"With millions of citizens suffering from hard times, it has created this last year 24,000 new officeholders, at an annual charge of over $16,000,000. It has created and maintains the most extensive system of bureaucracy in the world—the most oppressive, tyrannous and irresponsible of governments, with an army of spies and inspectors prying into the private affairs of citizens.

"It has created the highest tariff barriers known to history, at the command of greedy trusts, whose wretched servant it has always been, in return for campaign funds with which it has corrupted the elections.

"It has builded and fostered the greatest private monopolies ever known. It carefully protects those trusts and private monopolies so that they may sell their products to foreigners at lower prices than to our own people—an unspeakable outrage.

"It stand for militarism and war; for colonialism and aggrandisement; for the conquest of unwilling peoples and holding them as subjects, against all the fundamental principles of liberty. It has loaded the burdens of militarism on land and sea, on the backs of the people.

"For thirty years past it has elevated business above mankind and legislated for the 'interests' instead of the people. It has shouted violently against 'malefactors of great wealth,' but punished never one—all the time secretly taking their campaign contributions.

"It solicited and received $100,000 from the Standard Oil company in 1904 on the promise of being conservative and later demanded $250,000 more; which being refused, it prosecuted for a $29,000,000 fine—a record of perfidy and dishonor unparalleled. It defeated publicity of campaign contributions both in congress and national convention, thus revealing its set purpose to continue the purchase of elections.

Threatens Courts.

"It abuses and threatens the courts if they dare decide against the wishes of the administration. It has degraded to lower house of congress to a mere machine for registering the will of one man—the speaker.

"It has striven to destroy the independence of the states.

"Not content with regulating all the affairs of the nation and the people, from the size of their families to the way they spell the language, during its term for which it has some warrant from the people, the executive has, with South American daring and audacity, dictated who shall be his successor and is now prostituting the great powers of his office in the active management of a partisan political campaign.

"Nobody charges that the mass of Republican voters deliberately support or even suffer these things to be. It is the Republican organization which is responsible—and the only cure is to vote it out of power.

"Nobody pretends that the Democratic party is spotless, that it has no black sheep, that it is above just criticism. But we do insist that it stands for better things, for higher ideals, for practicable reform and for cleaner government.

"The Democratic party stands for the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people, the gateway to all reforms and all good government.

"For publicity of campaign contributions, thus heading off sinister influences attempting to exploit the government and preventing the use of vast sums of debauch elections.

"For a tariff revision downwards, a genuine reduction of those tariffs which increase the cost of living and which create and build up the hungry monsters known as trusts.

"For a safe and practicable plan of bank depositors guaranty, whereby bank panics and runs on banks shall be a thing of the past.

Destroy Monopolies.

"For the destruction of those private monopolies which control the necessaries of life, crush competition and destroy the small independent dealers of the land.

"For the prevention of future creation of trusts by sending to jail a few trust magnates as an example and a warning.

"For trial by jury in indirect contempts. It stands for trial by jury. It believes that jurors in the main are honest, and that they will stand for good government.

"For economy of administration and a reduction of the frightful burden of taxes.

"For an income tax, that great wealth may bear its just proportion of the expenses of government.

"It stands for the toiling millions; for the men and women who work with their hands, and it promises, if entrusted with power, to give to labor a representative in the cabinet of the president.

"All of these things are opposed by the Republican party. Most of them have been voted down by it. It has had eleven years of uninterrupted power. It has failed. It is stale. It is time for a change.

"And, if we may judge by the panic stricken condition of our enemy; by the sudden change of plans; by the sudden conversion of the of the candidate to tail-end speeches and to phonograph debate; by the deposition of the national chairman in the midst of the battle, and by the vociferous shoutings from the White House, the people are going to make a change."

A ticket, with the exception of governor, will be nominated. At the primaries something like 250 men received votes for lieutenant governor. Edward Ryan got more than any of the rest, but his total was less than 300. He didn't get 40 per cent, so the convention will have to nominate a lieutenant governor. Ryan will undoubtedly be chosen, although the name of C. L. Henry of Alpena is heard mentioned for the place.

Three men are in the field for state treasurer. They are: R. J. Whaley of Flint, Charles V. Taylor of Pontiac, E. L. Tinney of Cass City. For supreme court justice, James O. Hara of Benton Harbor is here seeking the nomination. Ex-Mayor W. W. Todd of Jackson is hustling for auditor general, and George Tierney of Roscommon for state land commissioner. Ex-Judge Tucker of Mt. Clemens and Frank O. Gafney of Cadillac are spoken of for attorney general.

The convention will elect a new state central committee of twenty-four members and also two presidential electors at large and twelve district electors.

KERN ON EVILS OF TARIFF.

He Believes It Has Brought Great Wealth to Few.

SPEAKS TO SAGINAW PEOPLE.

Many Delegates to State Convention Hear Democratic Vice Presidential Nominee Point Out Wherein Country Would Be Benefited Through Reduction of Tariff.

Saginaw, Mich., Oct. 1.—John W. Kern, the Democratic candidate for vice president, spoke here last night upon the evils of the protective tariff system before an audience that fairly packed the immense new Auditorium, just completed at a cost of $150,000. It was the formal opening to the public of the building.

The city is crowded with Democratic delegates and visitors from all over the state. The crowd that filled the hall last night was a thoroughly representative one. The Auditorium was erected by the citizens of Saginaw, aided by the generosity of Wellington R. Burt and T. E. Door, wealthy lumbermen of the city, and was barely completed in time for last night's meeting.

Only Few Hold Wealth.

Speaking of the great fortunes which he declared had been amassed by reason of protected industries, Mr. Kern said: "I could remember when I was a boy that the number of millionaires in the country could be counted upon the fingers of my two hands. At that time the men who had felled the forests, tilled the soil and created the wealth of the country profited by their own endeavors. Wealth was fairly evenly distributed among those who had produced it. As the years have rolled by, the wealth has been slipping out of the pockets of the many into the pockets of the few, until today we have the spectacle of a nation with 80,000,000 people, with 15,000,000 voters, wherein less than 30,000 men own more than half the wealth that has been produced in the last hundred years."

If this state of affairs has been brought about by unjust laws, he said, it is for the voters to remedy the evil by their ballots in the coming election.

For an illustration of the birth of the protective tariff, Mr. Kern harked back to the civil war times, when the needs of the nation called for special taxes to meet the extraordinary expenses of the nation.

"There was only one source of revenue," he said, "and that was a tax on the people. First they put a tax upon the bankers, next upon the incomes of the rich, then upon lawyers—$10 a year. I was old enough to get one year of that myself. Then there was a $10 tax upon doctors; then came a stamp tax, requiring all documents to be taxed. And, when the revenue from these sources proved insufficient, they put a tax upon every article of necessity to the widows of the men who were fighting the battle of the nation. When the war was over, and there was no longer necessity for the tax, it was proposed to remove it. And they did. All gone now but one, the tax on the life of the nation—the great wealth producers."

It was found, he said, that the burden, being spread so thinly over so many articles, it was not so burdensome as the other war taxes, and the people could stand it. It was found, he said, that foreign articles could be taxed 40 per cent of their value in the custom house and the tax added to the price the people had to pay, and the people would pay it.

Took Advantage of Tariff.

"Then these gentlemen discovered that, taking advantage of the tariff wall, they could raise the price of the goods manufactured by them to a point just below the price of the imported article with the tariff added, and the difference in price would go from the pockets of the consumer into their own pockets. They became very rich. Then it was that the money began slipping from the pockets of the many into the pockets of the few, and they favored legislation that would perpetuate the system and opposed any effort to take the tax off the great body of the people."

Lawton T. Hemans of Mason, Mich., Democratic candidate for governor, spoke at the close of Mr. Kern's address on state issues.

Mr. Kern left early this morning for his tour of the southern states.

SAYS HE SEEKS TO EVADE ISSUE

Haskell Gives Out Long Letter to Roosevelt.

HE CREATED VESTED RIGHTS.

Oklahoma's Governor Declares Chief Executive Granted Franchise to Oil Company Before Statehood—Accuses Him of Enlarging on Magazine Article and Other Things.

Guthrie, Okla., Oct. 1.—Governor Charles N. Haskell, formerly treasurer of the Democratic national committee, has given out a long letter to President Roosevelt, repeating his published defense to the charges made against him. The letter in part reads:

"Your attack upon me finally rested upon my conduct toward the Prairie Oil & Gas company in this state. I have said that you were responsible for granting a franchise before statehood, thereby creating vested rights. You seek to evade the issue and create wrong impressions. You said the interior department had no power, except where crossing an Indian reservation. You would have your readers believe that Indian territory was then conducting its own government and that only parts of the same were Indian reservations.

"Mr. Roosevelt, you know it is not true; you know that all the land was Indian land, without county, township or territorial government. What halo of integrity surrounded you last week, like the mist, has faded away, and the interior department holds the record which convicts you.

"You granted the franchise at the solicitation of Senator Depew, and a few days thereafter received $260,000 in cash for your campaign fund.

"You charged me with having attempted to bribe the attorney general of Ohio. That was presumably nine years ago. You have abandoned that position.

"In touching on the state university question you pretended to quote from the Outlook magazine, but how dishonestly you enlarged on the magazine article.

"Your charge that I vetoed a child labor law you have not apologized for, notwithstanding you knew that I did it with the approval of union labor, and that our constitution, which you said was 'so bad your opinion of it would not look well in print,' contains more detail and child labor legislation than all you have recommended to the New York legislature as governor or the congress of the United States as president."

TAFT IN LINCOLN.

Received Hearty Welcome in Bryan's Home Town.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 1.—William H. Taft made eleven speeches in Nebraska Wednesday before reaching Lincoln, and five speeches in Lincoln last night. His audiences throughout were large and enthusiastic, and his reception in Lincoln, Bryan's home town, was made particularly gratifying to him by the enthusiasm and friendliness exhibited by the immense crowds which greeted him at all points. Excursion trains came to Lincoln from any places in the state during the day, and the city was alive with bands, marching clubs and general campaign exhibition and excitement.

Mr. Bryan, whose plan was to reach the city Wednesday forenoon, had changed his schedule so as to bring him in at 1 o'clock this morning. This change precluded any possible meeting between the candidates. The one disappointing feature of the Taft demonstration in Lincoln was the bad condition of the voice of the candidate. He had talked continually throughout the day in the open air, and this, added to the strain he has been under for the last eight days, made him decidely hoarse. The main meeting last night was held at the Auditorium, which was crowded.

Bryan Ends Western Campaign.

Creston, Ia., Oct. 1.—Traversing the southeastern and southern portions of Iowa all day, in an ordinary coach, William J. Bryan last night concluded his wirlwind speaking tour of more than three weeks at this place, where a big open-air meeting was held. When he took a late train for Lincoln, Neb., he had delivered during the day fifteen speeches to immense crowds. In all of these talks he devoted himself principally to a discussion of the platforms of the two parties, with special reference to publicity of campaign contributions, election of senators by direct vote and the tariff.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's catarrh is the only positive cure now known to the fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strenght by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo O. Afraid of Ghosts

Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are afraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a fancy and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be magnified to a size equal to its terrors it would appear more terrible than any fire-breathing dragon. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe, the water we drink.

The germ can only prosper when the condition of the system gives it free scope to establish itself and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, languor, restlessness, a sallow check, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to guard against the germ. You can fortify the body against all germs by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the vital power, cleanses the system of clogging impurities, enriches the blood, puts the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in working condition, so that the germ finds no weak or tainted spot in which to breed. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients printed on its outside wrapper. It is not a secret nostrum but a medicine of known composition and with a record of 40 years of cures. Accept no substitute—there is nothing "just as good." Ask your neighbors.

A Parlor Car Puzzle.

By HOWARD FIELDING.

Copyright, 1907, by C. W. Hooke.

IT is important to know how the people were placed when this thing happened. The pretty girl sat in seat No. 7 and was thus about midway of the car, on the left side looking forward. Directly in front of her, in seat No. 5, was a lean, tall, lithe man of forty years, with scanty dark hair and gray eyes. He was dressed in a style of quiet elegance. A panama hat hung from the gilded peg over his head, and a neat traveling bag was on the floor beside him. He seemed to be dozing.

I occupied seat No. 9, and behind me were a woman and her son, an unpleasant child, of a very dull countenance, but as restless as a scared jackal in a cage. Opposite me, in No. 10, was Mortimer Belden, whom I have known some years. He is a rich man and looks the part. Before and behind him, in seats 8 and 12, were young men of much the same type as himself. They were strangers to each other and to us.

The pretty girl had boarded the train at Albany, had immediately opened a book and, except for an occasional glance out of the window, had not for a single moment ceased to read. We were some miles beyond Utica when she closed her book and laid it upon the window ledge. A few minutes later I heard her utter a faint cry. She bent forward and studiously regarded the floor. Then she stepped out into the aisle for a more comprehensive view, and I thought that she had spied the object of her search, for she knelt quickly beside her chair. But when she raised her head her glance encountered mine, and I perceived instantly that she had not succeeded. A pretty bewilderment was in her big brown eyes, and as she turned them again to the floor I saw her wink rapidly, as a child does when its vision seems at fault.

At this juncture the young animal from seat No. 13 arrived upon the scene with a startling suddenness and yet not running.

"Lost anything?" said he in that flat and whining voice, as of the educated pig talking through its snout, which is rapidly becoming the typical speech of New York.

"LOST ANYTHING?" SAID HE IN THAT FLAT VOICE.

The pretty girl looked up with something like a shudder, and I observed that she deftly changed her position so as to exclude the boy from a too intimate participation in her search.

"Yes," she replied, and, oh, the heavenly difference of her tone, so round and rich and human! "I have lost a ring."

"Le' me help yer find it," whined the boy, and at this we all interfered simultaneously.

She received our attentions graciously and simply.

"It's very odd," she said. "I dropped the ring right down in front of me. Can it have rolled back under my chair?"

Mortimer Belden arose from the floor at this, and his face was the color of a ripe tomato as a result of scanning the carpet at close range.

"It's not there now," said he.

Nevertheless we all repeated Belden's performance, and then with equal particularity we examined the region under and around chair No. 5. The result was entirely negative.

For my own part, I was thoroughly convinced that the ring had gone in the direction of No. 5, for, though I had not been looking at the young lady at the exact moment of her mishap, I knew what her attitude had been, and this seemed to preclude the possibility of the ring having rolled in any direction. It could not have caught in her gown, for the skirt was absolutely plain.

I had noticed the trinket on her finger. It was a pretty little diamond of about a carat and a half and had been worn on what is called the engagement finger—doubly precious, no doubt, and surely not to be lost in this ridiculous manner. There was not a cranny in which it could be hidden; there were no dark shadows, for the hour was 4 of a summer afternoon and the day very bright. Six of us—not to count the bad boy, who was viewed with suspicion by all and had been kept upon the outskirts—had searched twenty square feet of floor space in vain. The situation began to be painful, for if the ring was not on the floor it was in somebody's pocket.

Already I had observed my friend Belden to be eying the three strangers critically, and now he edged away toward the forward end of the car with the distinguished looking gentlemen who had occupied seat No. 5. Obviously they were about to hold a consultation, and at the sight an idea came into my head.

I turned toward the pretty girl and was much gratified to perceive that my desire for private conversation was shared by her. She must have been perfectly sure that the ring was not on the floor, for she abandoned the spot without hesitation and followed me to the rear of the coach, where she graciously consented to accept my sympathy and my card. I learned that she was Miss Myrtle Leigh and that she lived in Syracuse.

"Do you suppose that dreadful little boy could have found my ring?" she asked. "And yet how could he? I don't understand it at all."

"My suspicions incline in another direction," said I, "and for rather an odd reason."

She begged me to be explicit.

"There happens to be on this train," said I, "a detective from New York, really quite a celebrated fellow in his way. His name is Anderson. I know him quite well. He passed through our car just after we left Albany, but I did not make any sign of recognition because he didn't. That's the etiquette with detectives. They share with ladies the precedence in the matter of bowing to their acquaintances. He saw and recognized me, of course, and he also saw and recognized, with quite a different feeling, the man who sat in front of you, in seat No. 5."

"Oh, my!" she exclaimed in a hushed voice. "You don't mean he knew him for a—a criminal!"

To be contnued.

Liberty.

The spirit of liberty is indeed a bold and fearless spirit, but it is also a sharp sighted spirit. It is a cautious, sagacious, discriminating, farseeing intelligence. It is jealous of encroachment, jealous of power, jealous of man. It demands checks, it seeks for guards, it insists on securities, it intrenches itself behind strong defenses and fortifies itself with all possible care against the assaults of ambition and passion. It does not trust the amiable weaknesses of human nature, and therefore it will not permit power to overstep its prescribed limits, though benevolence, good intent and patriotic purpose come along with it. Neither does it satisfy itself with flashy and temporary resistance to illegal authority. Far otherwise. It seeks for duration and permanence. It looks before and after, and, building on the experience of ages which are past, it labors diligently for the benefit of ages to come.—Daniel Webster.

The Blue Sky.

The blue sky which reveals itself as the hemispherical vault of the firmament in the absence of clouds is the far depths of the air sending back to the observer some part of the solar illumination which they receive. The light thus returned to the eye is "blue" simply because the particles of the air are of such exceedingly diminutive size that they can effectively deal with only the smallest of the luminous vibrations—that is, with the "blue" undulations. There are a few faint intermingings of the other colored rays in the blue of the sky, but they are in such trifling quantity that the blue swallows them up.

Freezing Flesh.

It is a curious fact that, although dwellers in northern climes must have known for ages that a low temperature preserves flesh from putrefaction, it never seems to have struck any one that this natural fact could be turned to artificial advantage until Lord Bacon stuffed the historic chicken with snow and thereby caught a chill which killed him. It is perhaps even more curious that an experiment resulting in the death of one of the most eminent men in the world should not have called any attention to an already well known principle which might have been readily turned to great advantage. As a matter of fact, it was not until the year 1875, 249 years after Lord Bacon's fatal experiment, that freezing was practically employed as a method of preserving flesh. This was the commencement of the frozen meat trade between America and England. Four years later a dry air refrigerator was perfected.

INITIAL SERMON, SUBJECT GOD'S FOURSQUARE IDEAL.

Text Rev. 21:16. The city lieth four square. The length is as great as the breadth. The length, breadth and heighth are equal.

We are living in an age of untold wealth and abounding opportunity. In an age of leisure and manifold luxury and fashion. In an age of invention, novelty and pleasure. In an age of mammoth ambitions and gigantic achievements. We are in an age of unbounded prosperity. Our own land is a land of inconceivable wealth. The God who giveth all increase hath been exceeding lavish with his bounty. From prairie and from valley from the rugged hills of New England and the cotton fields of the south, from the valleys that stand thick with corn and the prairies that wave with the golden, wheat, mighty harvests have just been gathered and now crowd the storehouses of the nations. Even the waste places in the latter days of fulfilled prophesy, bud and blossom as the rose. Our vast irrigation system has made the water to touch the secret vitality of dust and sand and turned the arid wastes into fruitful fields.

And then what a teeming population we have, with an addition of nearly a million and a quarter of immigrants every year.

And what industry! Factories whose whirr and hum seem to begrude the weekly pause for sabbath rest. Laboring men are better paid today than the average clergyman and according to secretary Wilson they eat better food than was the privilege of Queen Elizabeth to enjoy.

Then what mighty public undertakings! The panama canal, the deepening of the Erie canal, a projected inland waterway to parallel the eastern seaboard, every effort possible being put forth to enable manufacture and transportation to make use of the mighty labor forces of our land.

There can be no question but that we rest on splendid foundations a foundation that would permit of the building of a structure as high as the very heavens. America is God's last experiment with the human race and if America fails, the race has failed. Now God built the republic on the solid foundation of righteousness. That foundation was inlaid by such diamond men as the pilgrim fathers, the heroes of the colonial days. Geo. Washington and the fathers who bought our liberty and framed our constitution. A. Lincoln and the men who gave their lives to save the union and free the slave, William McKinley and the jewels that flashed beneath the shimmer of the spirit of 98, and gave to Cuba her liberty and to the Philippines her opportunity and within all these men, and underlying all these mighty movements was the spirit of a firm faith in God. O historically we have fine foundations! The under lying strata upon which we are builded is alright. But what about the superstructure we are raising? What about our height. The four square ideal by which God measures the nations demands that we be as tall as we are long or broad. How near to heaven are we builded? Near enough to breath her atmosphere, get the ozone from her crystal seas and the bracing breeze from the eternal hills?

Well let us see. During the last two years, men of America have stood bewildered and amazed at the long list of conspicuous exposures of human character. We have seen the uncovering of hidden dishonesties and infidelities, a revelation of the most disgraceful standards of commercial honor and an almost incredible abuse of financial responsibility by men whom we had thought were above reproach.

We have seen the moral delinquincies of those one time trusted men subjected to the pitilessness of publicity and the whole structure of modern society has experienced a most cruel shock a most unwelcome blow.

Then when we bweep the world with our vision, what a wonderful thing to think that there is not an army in all the world that is firing a shot against an organized foe. From the viewpoint of a man, looking through the lens of American prosperity, one might be tempted to believe that the golden age was almost here.

But the man who looks beneath the surface of things, the man who hears the vast fumblings in the commercial world and the angry murmurs of organized labor and has seen the sin and degradation of millions of our citizens whose cries and moans are drowned by babel sounds of the workers upon our mighty tower of material progress, the man I say who is cognizant of those forces and listens to those discords, knows that there is something wrong somewhere. The hum of the world's progress lacks rythm. We don't conform to God's ideal.

Now God has an ideal for us. John caught a vision of it when he saw the New Jerusalem descending from God out of heaven and in describing his vision he said, "the city lieth four square, the length thereof is as great as the breadth; the length, breadth and heighth are equal." In other words there is a foursquare ideal to which this world must conform before it can be said to have attained that splendid culmination that God has set before it.

Now the task that I have set before myself for this morning is to interpret that foursquare ideal and apply it to our nation, our church and ourselves. As a nation we must be foursquare. As a church we must be foursquare. As individuals we must be foursquare.

That noted English divine, F. B. Meyer says that length refers to humanity's power of advance, the energy with which men throw themselves forward in the line of progress That breadth may be interpreted as the expansion of the heart of man, which is capable of the most cosmopolitan sympathies and heighth I believe may be interpreted as man's reach heavenward and his power of spiritual appreciation and appropriation.

This undoubtedly is explained by the fact that we live in an age of splendid culminations. We have been in the habit of speaking of progress in both the organic and the inorganic world as being made by the slow stages of a constant evolution. But modern science has entirely exploded that theory. Advance is not made by long drawn out evolutionary processes, but rather by great convulsive leaps. It is true perhaps that ages have been spent in storing up forces and getting ready for the leap forward. But when the time arrived the leap was sudden God dropped the spark that ignited the assembled materials, and a mighty power was generated that broke the old bands asunder and the world leaped to a higher stage of completeness. This is beyond all doubt the story of the earth's upbuilding. There have been long periods of quietly storing up forces, then suddenly came the earthquake, the avalance, the glacier, a mighty world convulsion and when quiet was again restored the earth found herself in a new epoch

Now this is likewise true of humanity's progress History is but the story of her great convulsive leaps forward. Decades, generations and even centuries passed and humanity apparently stood still, but at last came the day when God saw that all things were ready, he dropped the spark that ignited the accumulated forces and humanity jumped to a higher stage of existence.

Why the very movements of our streets is a symbol of our progress. We have electric cars elevated in the air, on the surface and below the surface of the ground, electric haulage on the streets, automobiles, auto cycles, baloons racing above our heads and now come the announcement that soon we will be speeding along a single rail at the rate of 150 miles an hour. The world is mad with a mania for speed. If they want a thing they want it quick. If they want to go any place they want to annihilate both time and distance.

Nor is this progress along the line of the mechanical alone but in every sphere, social, religious, political, and in every land, humanity is leaping forward. We live in a marvellous age. Japan has on modern clothes. China is at the tailors getting fitted. India is catching a vision of self government, while Russia grows louder and louder in her demand for the toga of free citizenship. The pent up forces of civic liberty and political freedom are breaking the old bands the world over. Politically and socially the world is leaping forward.

And the same thing is true in the religious world. Both pulpit and pew have felt the tremor of a new life and are alert and on the wing, and as a consequence, to harmonize with the spirit of the new age, theology is reshaping its dogma, recasting its formularies and restating its message. We must keep in touch with the progressive revelation that God is giving in history and in science. But the theology of today is sane and conservative. Thank God we have taken a leap forward of late that has left the destructive critic of a decade ago entirely in the rear and in the new position we now occupy we see more clearly that ever, that the Divine Christ is the world's only hope, and this Divine book the world's greatest legacy.

We have the length, but what about the breadth. We interpret breadth to mean, the expansion of the heart. How big is America's heart today? Well let us see. Let earthquake, famine pestilence or calamity of any kind, touch any race or nation beneath heavens dome and like magic America's purse strings relax and our people share their brother's burden.

When our brother irritate each other, and the fires of passion rise into the flames of war, with paining heart we watch their conflict till the right opportunity presents itself, and then we let the man famed for his use of the big stick which he wields so mightily against corporation greed and political chicanery stepin with his big heartedness, which is but typical of the big heart of his big country offer his services to effect a reconciliation. Our nation is always conspicuous in conventions called for the promotion of peace. * * *

Now as I am a Methodist, speaking in a methodist church to methodist people, it will be pardonable if I restrict myself to our own church. I love the M. E. church and am proud of her record. I am in sympathy with her institutions and rejoice in her success. But while I love my church I want everybody else to love the church of their choice. I don't want to turn Baptists into Methodists, nor congregationalists into Presbyterians. Every one of the great historic denominations has its place. Each has been entrusted with either its own special truth or its special way of emphasizing it and I think we dishonor ourselves when we pretend that conscientious differences are of no account. We must not expect uniformity. It is an impossibility in America for the American spirit loves above all things the free play of individual forces and men will always demand the right to band together for religious purposes as conviction may guide them. But while union is not probable and possibly not desirable, still federation is, and while denominations are many, religion is one and no one has a right to belong to a narrow church. I claim to belong to the church of all good men every where by whatever name they may be known. But I am proud of my own church. I want everybody else to be proud of theirs and I want my church to be long and broad and tall.

The sermon closed with a strong appeal for the local church to measure up to this foursquare ideal. It must still have power to advance, breadth in its sympathy and a firm grasp in spiritual entities. D. STANLEY SHAW.

Where Bullets Flew.

David Parker of Fayette, N. Y., a veteran of the civil war, who lost a foot at Gettysburg, says: "The good Electric Bitters have done is worth more than five hundred dollars to me. I spent much money doctoring for a bad case of stomach trouble, to little purpose. I then tried Electric Bitters, and they cured me. I now take them as a tonic, and they keep me strong and well." 50c. at C A Wright & Son's drug store of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites should always be kept in the house for the following reasons:

Scott's Emulsion

First—Because, if any member of the family has a hard cold, it will cure it.

Second—Because, if the children are delicate and sickly, it will make them strong and well.

Third—Because, if the father or mother is losing flesh and becoming thin and emaciated, it will build them up and give them flesh and strength.

Fourth—Because it is the standard remedy in all throat and lung affections.

No household should be without it.

Gulls and Clams.

The discussion continues between those who think that all the acts of the lower animals are satisfactorily explained by the hypothesis of inherited instinct and those who hold that there is an element of intelligence, if not of reasoning, in these things. W. L. Finley, in a work on American birds, mentions an observation of his which may perhaps be explained either way, but which in any case is interesting. A gull seized upon a clam and, rising to a height of about fifteen feet, allowed it to fall upon hard ground. The clam kept its mouth shut. Again the gull rose with it to the same height and dropped it once more, with the same result. This operation was repeated fifteen times, when at last the shock had the desired effect, the shell was opened, and the gull enjoyed its dainty contents.

The Bachelors' Excuses.

At a wedding breakfast the bachelors were called upon to give their reasons for remaining single. The following were among the reasons given:

"I am like the frog in the fable who, though he loved the water, would not jump into the well because he could not jump out again."

"I am too selfish and honest enough to admit it."

"I prefer, on the one hand, liberty, refreshing sleep, the opera, midnight suppers, quiet seclusion, dreams, cigars, a bank account and club to, on the other hand, disturbed rest, cold meat, baby linen, soothing sirup, rocking horses, bread pudding and empty pockets."

"I have a twin brother, and we have never had a secret from one another. He is married."

Suspicious.

A man entered a Tenderloin drug store the other day and asked for a telephone, says the New York Tribune. He was evidently from out of town. "Do I pay you first or afterward?" he asked the clerk when the instrument in question was pointed out to him. "You call your number, and then put your dime in the slot," snapped the clerk. The stranger was suspicious. "In that hole there?" he asked, looking all around the telephone and fingering the slot dubiously. "Yes." "I guess not," said he, turning away, with decision. "I ain't lookin' fer no savin's bank."

Saw Him With Her Own Eyes.

"It is too bad," said Mrs. Oldcastle, "that our curate seems likely to be a valetudinarian all his life."

"Why, he ain't, is he?" replied her hostess as she toyed with her diamond studded lorgnette. "I'm almost sure I seen him eatin' beefsteak at the dinner in the parish house night before last."—Chicago Record.

NO D., T. & I. TRAINS.

Traffic on D., T. & I. Will Not be Resumed.

Wednesday an Official Bulletin Was Sent out to that Effect.

Wednesday it was officially announced along the D. T. & I railway that trains would run over the Toledo route as they have been doing for the past year. The company have been running a through passenger and freight trains via Toledo having the Wabash and Toledo Terminal right of track during the past year.

A short time ago it was rumored that the D. T. & I people would resume the use of the road between Napoleon and Dundee, which has been practically abandoned during the past year, but the announcement of Wednesday kills all expectations in that line.

It is not known now, if the road ever intends to do anything again.

Utilizing Sharks' Teeth.

The natives on some of the Pacific islands, being provided with neither metals nor any stone harder than the coral rocks of which the atolls they inhabit are composed, would seem badly off, indeed, for material of which to make tools or weapons were it not that their very necessity has bred an invention no less ingenious than curious and effective. This is nothing less than the use of sharks' teeth to give a cutting edge to their wooden knives and swords. The mouth of the shark contains 300 teeth arranged in five rows, all closely lying upon each other, except the outer row, and so constructed that as one tooth is broken or lost another takes its place. The teeth are not only pointed and keen edged, but are finely and regularly serrated, so that the cutting power is greatly increased. Indeed, so great a faculty have these teeth for wounding that the implements and weapons upon which they are used have to be handled with great care. The Kingmill islanders make many strange articles of sharks' teeth.

A Monster of Learning.

The famous Cardinal Mezzofanti knew an amazing number of languages and dialects. Perhaps he is best known to the modern English reader from the eulogy to be found in one of Byron's memoranda, published by Moore.

"Your literary everyday man and I," says Byron, "never went well in company, especially your foreigner, whom I never could abide. I don't remember a man among them whom I ever wished to see twice, except perhaps Mezzofanti, who is a monster of learning, the Briareus of parts of speech, a walking polyglot and, more, who ought to have existed at the time of the tower of Babel as universal interpreter. He is indeed a marvel—unassuming also. I tried him in all the tongues of which I knew a single oath (or adjuration to the gods against postboys, savages, Tartars, boatmen, sailors, pilots, gondoliers, muleteers, camel drivers, vetturini, postmasters, posthorses, post houses, post everything), and, egad, he astounded me, even to my English."

His Plan Was Simple.

Frederick the Great once requested his generals to submit to him plans of campaign for a supposititious case. Hans Joachim von Ziethen, the famous cavalry general, produced a queer diagram in black ink. It represented a big blot in the center, intersected by two black lines, whose four terminals ended each in a smaller blot. The king was furious and upbraided his old comrade in arms bitterly for what he considered disrespect.

In explanation Von Ziethen said: "Why, your majesty, I am the large blot in the center. The enemy is any one of the four smaller blots. He can march upon me from the right or left, from the front or rear. If he does I simply advance upon any of the four lines and lick him where I find him."

Frederick was satisfied.

Statistics.

In all probability the first administrative act of the first regular government was to number its fighting men and to ascertain as nearly as was possible what amount of taxition could be levied on the rest of the community. As human society grew more highly organized there can be no doubt that a very considerable body of official statistics must have come into existence. We know that such was the case in Greece, Rome and Egypt, but it was not until within the last two or three centuries that systematic use of the information available began for purposes of investigation rather than mere administration.—New York American.

Businesslike England.

The English are not a revengeful people. They forget everything after a fight in their eagerness to trade with their late enemy. It is not so much the spirit of forgiveness of sins which prompts them as the spirit of pushing trade. That is the central impulse in their being.—Dublin Irish Homestead.

Where He Was Slow.

"Alexander the Great conquered the entire world."

"Yes," answered Mr. Dustin Stax, "He conquered it, but some of us moderns could have shown him a thing or two about making it pay dividends."—Washington Star.

Her Adored One.

Father—You can't have him! Daughter—Oh, papa, you once said you could deny me nothing! Father—Well, he comes as near being "nothing" as anything I know of.

A Paradox.

"Since Footlight inherited a fortune he is a paradox."

"What's the answer?"

"He is both the richest and poorest actor on the stage."

The Submarine Crew.

Not until you have gone down in a submarine and seen the crew at work can you say you have seen the limit to which it is possible to drill human creatures. No crack company of a regiment, no fire company in any of our big cities, not even the engine force on a man-of-war, is under such discipline as the crew of a submarine. The navy department and the men themselves realize that months are required before even the most capable group of ten can be made to work as a unit, perfect as clockwork. There is no time to "break in" crews when once war is declared, and for this reason the submarine service is continually and incessantly in war practice. Practice runs in the ordinary sense do not exist. Each time the boat stands out to sea she goes as if for business, the scenes you see being exactly like those that would be enacted were the vessel bent upon actually sinking an enemy.—St. Nicholas.

No Help Wanted.

Scene, a courtroom. A big, burly artisan is brought in by the bailiff and placed in the dock. He is a regular Hercules in point of stature and is brought up on a charge of assault. It is evidently his first appearance in court.

When he enters the magistrate is busy with his papers, but presently looks up hurriedly and, turning to the prisoner, exclaims:

"Have you engaged any one to defend you?"

"What's that?" asks the prisoner; then, collecting himself, he adds: "I don't want anybody. Come on, any half dozen of you!"—London Answers.

Origin of "Pall Mall."

"Pall Mall (pronounced pell mell) comes from palle maile, an ancient game supposed to have been played on the present site of Pall Mall by Norman monks, by whom it was introduced into England.

The observant Pepys in his famous diary makes mention of it thus:

"April 2, 1661. Into St. James' park, where I saw the Duke of York playing at Pelemele, the first time that ever I saw the sport."

How Britain Trains Her Sons.

Home life in England lacks the intimacy and the charming sentimentality of German family life. The sons of England have to leave home early in life to go out into the wide world and fight for themselves. They become independent, responsible men much earlier than our sons do.—Berliner Tageblatt.

Two Sides.

She—If a man loves his wife as much as she loves him he will stop wasting his money on cigars if she asks him. He—Yes, but if his wife loves him as much as she ought to love a man who loves her enough to stop if she asks him she won't ask him.—Puck.

Gave Him Up.

"The doctors have given Johnson up."

"Dear me, is he as ill as that?"

"No; he's quite well. That's why they've given him up."

Quite Refined.

Mrs. Caller—Are your new neighbors refined? Mrs. Nextdoor—I should say so! They never borrow anything but our silver and cut glass.—Chicago News.

"Flattery is like a fairy tale. Even though one does not believe it, one listens willingly to it."

A GOOD STOMACH

Means Good Health, Cheerfulness, Ambition, Persistency and Success

Relief is not cure; opium will stop the most excrutiating pain, but it won't cure the disease.

And it's just the same with alleged dyspepsia cures which contain pepsin. The pepsin will help to digest the food, but the stomach is left in worse condition than it was before.

You don't want pepsin to digest your food; you want the natural juices of your stomach to digest your food. If you have dyspepsia or any stomach trouble, you want to make your stomach so strong that it will digest its own food.

You can make your stomach so strong that you can eat what you want and all you want any time you want it, without distress

Mi-o-na will cure your dyspepsia or any other stomach trouble by building up the flabby walls, and making the stomach so strong that it will digest food without artificial aid.

In other words, Mi-o-na cures dyspepsia by removing the cause.

C A. Wright & Son are the agents for Mi-o na in Tecumseh and they say to every reader of Herald whose stomach is weak, who has indigestion or dyspepsia, that Mi o-na is guaranteed to cure or money back.

The price is only 50c a box, and one box is all you need to prove that you are on the right road to health and happiness.

"I can't say enough for Mi o-na tablets; they have done more for me in one week than all the doctors have for the two years I have been under their care, and I will do all I can to recommend it to my friends. You can also use my name in your ad, if you like, for Mi o na is better than gold to me. I am like a new man, and am able to work once more for the first time in over a year."—W. A. Ennis, 328 Green st, Syracuse, N. Y.

Potato Diggers

IT PAYS THE FARMER TO BUY THE O. K. CHAMPION DIGGER

BECAUSE It is built with the view to lessen the expense of maintenance, by having only a few wearing parts and these are so constructed as so cause the least possible friction, making possible for two horses to do the work where other diggers need four.

The fact that the O. K. Champion Digger is easily handled by one team and does the work as well, sufficient cause for any farmer to consider before buying any other but the O. K. Champion.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Home of Swamp-Root.

Do not let anyone tell you that something else is just as good as DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills because there isn't anything just as good for weak back, backache, rheumatic pains, inflammation of the bladder, or any Kidney and Bladder disorder. A week's trial will convince you. Sold by all druggists.

They are raising melons in Alaska. Great! Now, perhaps, we'll be able to get them cold enough.

Foley's Honey and Tar cures coughs quickly, strengthens the lungs and expels colds. Get the genuine in a yellow package. Sold by all druggists.

But "common sense" sounds so hopelessly middleaged!

After a heavy meal, take a couple of Doan's Regulets, and give your stomach, liver and bowels the help they will need. Regulets bring easy, regular passages of the bowels.

One cook in the kitchen is worth two dozen who promised to "consider the situation."

Married Man in Trouble

A married man who permits any member of the family to take anything except Foley's Honey and Tar, for coughs, colds and lung trouble, is guilty of neglect. Nothing else is as good for all pulmonary troubles. The genuine Foley's Honey and Tar contains no opiates and is in a yellow package. Sold by all druggists.

Men can forgive a blue stocking if she lath a pretty foot.

Many ills come from impure blood. Can't have pure blood with faulty digestion, lazy liver and sluggish bowels. Burdock Blood Bitters strengthens stomach, bowels and liver, and purifies the blood.

We aren't even looking at the lovely scenery we're passing today in our impatience to get to tomorrow.

A JEWELER'S EXPERIENCE.

C. R. Kluger, The Jeweler, 1060 Virginia Ave, Indianapolis, Ind., writes: "I was so weak from kidney trouble that I could hardly walk a hundred feet. Four bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy cleared my complexion, cured my backache and the irregularities disappeared, and I can now attend to business every day, and recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy to all sufferers, as it cured me after the doctors and other remedies had failed. Sold by all druggists

OF UNTOLD VALUE.

The Information Contained in This Citizen's Statement is Priceless.

The hale, the hearty, the strong can afford to toss this paper to one side impatiently when they read the following, but any sufferer in Tecumseh who has suffered hours of torture caused by kidney complaint will stand in his own light if he does not follow the valuable advice offered here.

Mrs. Sarah Austin, living on Pearl st., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills and think very highly of them. For sometime I was bothered with kidney trouble. I had distressing pains in my hips and could not get my proper sleep at night on account of the frequent action of the kidneys. I passed a great deal of gravel in my secretions, and at times it was almost impossible to stand the pain. I doctored with different physicians, but only received temporary relief, and when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention, I began taking them. The results of their use were most satisfactory, in fact, they effected a complete cure. I am glad to endorse such a reliable remedy as Doan's Kidney Pills"

Alleging she was tricked into a bogus marriage on the beach at St. Joseph, Mrs. Belle Talkington, who claims to be a relative of the late Potter Palmer of Chicago, has obtained the arrest of Edward Donohue, a wealthy Chicago meat packer. The man she accuses of posing as the justice of peace is also under arrest.

A petition has been filed in the probate court asking that Mrs. Nellie Bishop, a widow, be committed to an asylum. Mrs. Bishop is the woman who some time ago tried to swear out a complaint in the police court against Rev. Frank Fitchett of the Simpson M. E. church in Detroit, whom she alleged had winked at her in church. Her complaint was not entertained, and since that time it is said she has been annoying the minister, and it is said she made threats against him.

Will Combat Attack on Railroads.

New York, Oct. 1.—Manufacturers of railroad material, representing hundreds of millions of dollars in capital, met at the Waldorf Astoria hotel Wednesday to form an organization to combat the attacks on railroads from legislative and other sources. As a direct consequence of the general attacks which have been made on railroads, it was stated that some of the firms manufacturing railroad material have suffered losses amounting to 75 per cent.

CORRESPONDENCE.

HOLLOWAY.

Lloyd Bliss Bartholmew of Holloway, was born in the house in which his parents were married, in Naples, N. Y., January 21, 1878. He came to Michigan to reside in 1891. He attended the Holloway school and later was a student at the Tecumseh high school for a while, before entering upon a business career. He married on June 27, 1907, Bertha, the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Macham of Holloway. Mr. Bartholmew was a young man of uncommon ability, of sterling integrity, genial and courteous, he won the love and esteem of all who knew him. In his home life he has ever been dutiful, kind and thoughtful far beyond the average. He leaves to mourn his demise his wife, grandmother, Mrs. Crittenden, his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Lewis, one brother Charles J., and two sisters, Jennie L. of Holloway, and Mrs. Johnson of Kalamazoo, and numerous other relatives.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and was one of the largest funerals ever held in Holloway. Rev. J. C. McKee of Quincy, who officiated at his wedding, conducted the funeral services, assisted by Rev. H. B. Dunning. A peculiar and touching coincidence was that he died from a similar complaint and at the same age as his father. Many beautiful floral tributes of love and esteem covered the casket including tributes from the knights and ladies of the Maccabees, of which order he was a prominent member. Among those from out of town to attend the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Johnson of Kalamazoo, Mrs. Osborne and son Don, of Toledo, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Eagan of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Osgood of Deerfield, and many from Adrian, Tecumseh and Britton. The sorrowing ones have the heartfelt sympathy of all in their affliction.

PE-RU-NA RECEIVES PRAISE

For Relieving Such Symptoms as Debility, Backache and Headache.

Mrs. Tressie Nelson, 609 North 5th Ave., Nashville, Tenn., writes: "As Peruna has done me a world of good I feel in duty bound to tell of it, in hopes that it may meet the eye of some who has suffered as I did.

"For five years I really did not know what a perfectly well day was, and if I did not have headache, I had backache or a pain somewhere and really life was not worth the effort I made to keep going.

MRS. TRESSIE NELSON.

"A good friend advised me to use Peruna and I was glad to try anything, and I am very pleased to say that six bottles made a new woman of me and I have no more pains and life looks bright again."

There are a great many phases of woman's ailments that require the assistance of the surgeon.

But by far the greatest number of such cases are amenable to correct medicinal treatment.

A vast multitude of women have been relieved from the ailments peculiar to their sex through the use of Peruna as prescribed by Dr. Hartman.

He receives many letters from all parts of the country relating to subjects of vital interest to womankind.

Of the vast multitude of women Dr. Hartman treats annually, only a small per cent. of them consider it necessary to write to the Doctor at all.

While it is not affirmed that Peruna will relieve every case of this kind, it is certainly the part of wisdom for every woman so afflicted to give Peruna a fair trial.

Mrs. Joseph Lacelle, 124 Bronson St., Ottawa, East, Ontario, Canada, writes:

"I suffered with backache and headache for over nine months and nothing relieved me until I took Peruna. This medicine is by far better than any other medicine for these troubles. A few bottles relieved me of my miserable, half-dead, half-alive condition.

"I am now in good health, have neither ache nor pain, nor have I had any for the past year. If every suffering woman would take Peruna, they would soon know its value and never be without it."

Mrs. M. Kilner, 2643 E. 86th St., S. E., Cleveland, Ohio, writes:

"I am enjoying good health since taking your medicine. I had suffered for a good many years previous to taking Peruna, and ever since I can say that I do not know what headache or neuralgia is. I can most assuredly say that anybody afflicted with catarrh in any form can be cured by taking Peruna."

Mrs. D. G. Wilson is entertaining her mother, Mrs Dr. R. T. Reynolds and a sister, Mrs. J. H. VanHoughton of Geneva, N. Y. and a neice, Mrs J Harrington and son of Buffalo, N. Y. Mrs. Harrington has returned to Buffalo, but the other ladies will remain sometime.

A Healthy Family.

"Our whole family has enjoyed good health since we began using Dr. King's New Life Pills, three years ago," says L. A. Bartlet of Rural Route 1, Guilford, Maine. They cleanse and tone the system in a gentle way that does you good. 25c. at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store.

More Questions for Supreme Court.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 1.—In Wednesday's recount proceedings before the state board of canvassers the returns from five townships in Huron county were examined. Warner lost seventy-seven votes and Bradley thirty-two.

The ballots from Caseville township were thrown out, and three legal questions were raised upon which the decision of the supreme court will be asked. Haggling over technical legal details took up much time. The supreme court will be asked to decide whether ballots on which inspectors have placed their initials with a lead pencil may be counted, also as to whether directions of law must be followed by election board in sealing boxes, if the ballots are to be recounted, or whether if boxes are so sealed as to prevent their being tampered with, but not as explicitly directed by the law, they can be recounted. The court will be asked to direct the board regarding these propositions without an issue being framed.

A MICROSCOPE.

How It Opens Up the Wonders of the World of Nature.

If you want to keep your boy out of mischief, give him a microscope, not one of the elaborate, intricate, expensive affairs that the bacteriologists use when hunting for germs, but a common one with two or three lenses that revolve on a pivot and fold into a cover which protects them from injury when carried in the pocket.

There is no better way of interesting the boy in the wonders of the natural world than this simple contrivance, which opens to his eyes visions of a universe of which he knew nothing. Seen through the microscope, the most insignificant flower becomes a thing of wonderful beauty. The interior of a nasturtium is a fairy cavern, showing a dozen different tints and hues of color, with dainty white stalactites and stalagmites almost touching each other midway between floor and roof.

He will find monsters, too, for the head of an ant seen through a microscope is a terrible object, and he cannot help thinking what an awful aspect such a creature would present if it were as big as a horse. He has heard about the creatures that are to be found in water from a stagnant pool. He will find them for himself and show them to other boys, and all his crowd will become interested and bring in things to look at and wonder about. He may not develop into a Darwin, but if he has any faculty of observation at all it will be sharpened by what he sees, and he will learn that there is more in nature than what we discern on the surface.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

SILENT CRANES.

The mountaineer glanced complacently at his hard calves.

"We climbers," he said, "up there on the white heights see lots of things worth seeing. I tell you we could if we wanted to outdo the nature fakirs without deviating from the truth. For instance, take the Mount Taurus cranes. Do you know the cranes of Mount Taurus?

"Well, these birds are great chatterers. They chatter, chatter, chatter, as they fly. Hanged if they're not worse than women! Up on the heights the eagles lie in wait for them, hidden behind crags or ice blocks. They don't have to show themselves at all. Their ears, not their eyes, tell them of the cranes' approach, and, swooping down on those bundles of feathers and noise, they take home a mess of crane for dinner.

"With their chatter and babble and gossip the cranes of Mount Taurus give themselves away in that still air to the eagles, and in all eagle households crane is the staple dish.

"But the old cranes fly without a sound—never a word out of them as they sail and wheel in the blue air. That seems against nature, and it is against nature. The old cranes restrain their innate love of talk fly with large stones in their mouths.

"Shoot one of these crafty and silent birds and you will find his beak tightly closed upon a large stone."—Exchange.

AUTO STEARING GEAR BROKE.

One Killed and Four Others Hurt Near Holland.

ALL FROM GRAND RAPIDS.

Prominent Clothier, Richard Brink, Was Taking Wife and Friends Out For Ride—Machine Turned Completely Over—Unfortunate Man Was Pinned Beneath Car—One of Best Known Men in State.

Holland, Mich., Oct. 5.—While on an auto trip from Grand Rapids to Holland Sunday, Richard Brink, proprietor of a large clothing store in Grand Rapids, was accidentally killed.

He together with his wife, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Midland and Mrs. W. B. Penbrook, all of them residents of Grand Rapids, were in the auto, and, while driving down hill near Holland, the steering gear broke. Mr. Brink lost control of the machine, and the auto turned bottom side up in a ditch. Mr. Brink was almost instantly killed, but the rest of the party escaped with slight injuries.

The party with one exception was buried beneath the machine. Brink was pinned between the wreckage, the steering gear preventing him from extricating himself. His ribs were crushed in, and he was heard to mutter, "Turn off the gasoline and get me out from under this." He was dead when pulled from beneath the car, ten minutes later.

Mrs. Brink managed to escape injury and, crawling from under the splintered car, she ran to a farmer's home and summoned help. Mrs. Penbrook and Mr. and Mrs. Middleton were released from their uncomfortable position beneath the car, and it will stand that the farmer had sustained slight injuries. She was able to walk unaided, however.

The body of Brink was removed to Holland by Coroner Maabs, who had been called, and it was shipped to the family home in Grand Rapids today. Death, according to Coroner Maabs, was accidental.

The spot at which Brink lost his life was almost within a stone's throw of where he was born some forty-nine years ago.

Brink was probably one of the best known men in western Michigan, he having been engaged in business in Grand Rapids for many years. He was commonly known as "Dick" Brink and was considered the best friend the laboring class of the western part of the state had.

Besides a widow, he leaves one son, aged eighteen years.

Jury Deepens Mystery.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Oct. 5.—The coroner's jury in the case of Elizabeth Baker, the Three Oaks woman who came to her death after taking carbolic acid under unusual circumstances, in rendering a verdict has deepened the mystery in the case. The verdict, after being delayed several days, was to the effect that the deceased came to her death by taking carbolic acid or some other poison. The phrase "some other poison" is what is bothering the prosecuting attorney and officers. Physicians who administered to the woman testified that they observed symptoms of opiate poisoning, but were unable to determine whether the acid was the direct cause of death.

Body Washed Ashore.

Harrisville, Mich., Oct. 5.—The dead body of a man was washed ashore about a mile south of Harrisville. He was about five feet five inches in height, weighed about 130 pounds and had light hair and mustache. He had not been in the water long. There was nothing on his person to identify him.

Dies of Tetanus.

White Pigeon, Mich., Oct. 5.—The wife of J. Mark Harvey, Jr., postmaster at Constantine, is dead of tetanus. A child was born to Mr. and Mrs. Harvey about a week ago. Blood poisoning set in, and later lockjaw developed.

Masquerraded As Man Fifteen Years.

New York, Oct. 5.—Mary Johnson of California is a prisoner at Ellis Island for violating the laws of New York in wearing men's clothing. For fifteen years she has masqueraded in male attire under the name of "Frank Woodhull" because she felt that as a "man" she could better earn her living.

PHILADELPHIA'S BIRTHDAY.

Historic City Celebrates Anniversary of Its Founding

BY FAMOUS WILLIAM PENN.

Observances Began With Ringing of Bells and Services of Praise—Fleet of War Vessels There—City Beautifully Decorated — Attractions of Wide Scope to Be Produced.

Philadelphia, Oct. 5.—From out the historic old belfry of Independence hall, where once the liberty of a newborn nation was proclaimed, there came Sunday the peals of a bell to signal the opening of the most unique and significant civic celebration the country has ever witnessed. Bells and chimes in all of the city churches joined in the bronze-tongued chorus, and Philadelphia was aroused at dawn to a realization of the advent of Founders' week, the 225th anniversary of the founding of the city by William Penn.

Profound services of praise and thanksgiving held in the churches Sunday are being followed today and will be followed throughout all of the week by a succession of great pageants which promise to eclipse anything of the kind heretofore attempted. Not since the famous centennial celebration of 1876 have the citizens of Philadelphia been aroused to such a pitch of enthusiasm. The history of the city, too, is so closely allied with the history of te American people as to give national scope to the commemorative features of the celebration.

Penn's Statue Illuminated.

The down town streets are thronged with thousands of visitors, and the buildings, which by day are a mass of waving colors, are at night brilliantly outlined in the fire of countless electric bulbs. The immense city hall building is the center of interest and the most spectacular of all the decorated structures. This great architectual pile has been fairly smothered in flags, bunting and ingenious electrical devices, while as a climax to the plan, at night half a dozen powerful searchlights are trained upon the colossal statue of Penn which surrounds the tower. The heroic bronze figure of the city's founder stands out in dazzling brilliance.

The Founders' week celebration as a whole is the most pretentious undertaking this city has ever attempted. The program is crowded with interesting and spectacular events. The attractions are of the widest possible scope, but all have been arranged with the central idea of showing the progress of the city from its founding, nearly a hundred years before the signing of the Declaration of Independence, down to the present day.

The historical pageant of Friday next is being looked forward to as perhaps the most interesting of the parades which will be held daily. Thursday has been set apart as naval day, and there are now anchored in the harbor practically every naval vessel in commission on this side of the world.

An outdoor historical drama, "Philadelphia," is to be presented each evening on Franklin field.

Leaped Into Canal.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Oct. 5.—Afflicted with an ailment which doctors had pronounced incurable, Charles Zimmerman, a carpenter, fifty-five years old, ended his life by jumping into the canal here. Zimmerman had told friends of his plight and often said he "guessed it would soon be over." A coroner's jury will investigate the circumstances surrounding his death.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

C. W. Owen, one of the most prominent farmers living near Bellevue, is dead in the University hospital at Ann Arbor, from the shock of an operation. Owen was kicked by a horse last summer, and his injury was such as to make an operation necessary.

"I am sick and cannot work, so must die." After writing this note, Frank Vogli, twenty years old, of Kalkaska, went to the barn and shot himself with a shotgun, pulling the trigger with his toe. He lived with his mother and a sister.

Albert Stahl narrowly escaped death while driving across the tracks of the Fort Wayne branch of the Lake Shore railroad, one mile south of Montgomery, Hillsdale county. Stahl's team was killed, his wagon wrecked, and he was thrown about thirty feet, but was uninjured. About one year ago, at the same crossing, he lost a team which was struck by the same train.

WAR IN THE NEAR EAST.

Prince Ferdinand to Proclaim Bulgarian Independence.

WILL TAKE TITLE OF CZAR.

Emperor Francis Joseph Lays Claim to Two Austro-Hungarian Provinces. Either Action Violates Treaty of Berlin—Armies Swiftly Mobilizing Near Borders.

London, Oct. 5.—Events which threaten to change the political face of Europe are crystallizing with lightning rapidity. Almost overnight the horizon of the near east, which seemed gradually to be assuming a peaceful appearance, has become crowded with war clouds.

News has reached here from several sources that two definite strokes are impending which cannot fail to bring matters to a crisis and perhaps force an immediate war. One is a proclamation by Prince Ferdinand of the independence of Bulgaria, which will include Rumelia taking for himself the title of czar. The other is an announcement of Austria-Hungary of the practical annexation of the provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina as appanages of the Austro-Hungarian crown.

Either action will be equivalent to the tearing up of the treaty of Berlin, while Prince Ferdinand's course seems almost certain to precipitate a war between Bulgaria and Turkey.

Both armies are reported to be quickly and swiftly mobilizing near the borders. Bulgaria is said to be busy buying up munitions and horses on an extensive scale.

HURRICANE SWEPT OVER MANILA.

Battleship Fleet In Gale Blowing 100 Miles an Hour.

Manila, Oct. 5.—The Atlantic battleship fleet has safely outridden a hurricane which swept Manila bay for twelve hours and did much damage ashore.

Typhoon signals were displayed early Sunday morning, but the storm broke over the bay suddenly and unexpectedly at noon. It was impossible to hoist the cutters and the launches belonging to the fleet because of the danger of smashing them against the steel sides of the battleships, and the little craft were sent scurrying inside the breakwater into the Pasig river, where they remained all night. The storm quickly increased in intensity, and the torrential rains shut in the ships.

At 8 o'clock Sunday night, the storm had reached its height and gradually calmed down until midnight, when it was comparatively calm, although heavy seas swept across the harbor. During the storm all the battleships had steam up, ready for any emergency. Rear Admiral Sperry finally ordered the flagship Connecticut and the Kansas, Minnesota, Vermont, Virginia and Ohio under way. They were close to the breakwater, and Admiral Sperry feared they might drag anchors. The six vessels steamed down close to Cavite, where they anchored.

At times the wind blew at the rate of 100 miles an hour. All communication ashore was cut off. It was impossible during the height of the storm to see the warships through the haze of rain and spray. On shore it was dangerous to go about. Several carriages were overturned by the wind, trees were blown down, wires were prostrated, and several buildings were unroofed.

PRESIDENT SCORES AVERY,

In Open Letter Declares Him Unfit For Office.

Washington, Oct. 5.—Following the order of President Roosevelt removing Lincoln Avery, collector of customs at Port Huron, Mich., and Charles A. Bailey, special agent of the treasury at that place, for pernicious political activity, a letter has been made public by Secretary Cortelyou which may be taken as a restatement of the policy of the administration in cases involving violations of the civil service regulations from partisan motives.

The letter says in part:

"To the Secretary of the Treasury:

"I desire that my action be given as wide publicity as possible. This so that all other collectors and heads of bureaus or offices may be warned in the matter.

"I regard the offense as gross. The hardship and suffering entailed on people of small salary is set forth in touching manner in the letter of complaint. A government employe in the classified service who is deprived by lawful authority of power to exercise political activity is entitled to absolute immunity for failure to pay assessments or perform political service.

"He (Avery) is unfit to discharge the duties of his office, and I shall forthwith remove him. (Signed)

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

Negro Perished In Detroit Fire.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 5.—Fire which broke out in the Lewis block, on Griswold street between Larned and Congress, shortly before midnight almost completely gutted the building and resulted in the loss of one life, John Moss, a colored man. How the fire started is unknown. Moss had entered the building a short time before, and it is thought that he had been sleeping. He had evidently been aroused and attempted to escape, but was overcome by the smoke. The body was found near the door, quite badly burned.

Much-Wanted Man Arrested.

Vassar, Mich., Oct. 5.—Jack McKeen, for whom officers have been looking since Aug. 7, has been arrested here by Deputy Humes and Marshal Dennis. McKeen is wanted on two charges, wife desertion and assault on an officer at Park Lake. He put up a stiff fight when the officers went to take him, but was overpowered. Sheriff Kidder of Rose City took the prisoner back to the county where he will be tried.

Thomas Lawson Injured.

Egypt, Mass., Oct. 5.—Thomas W. Lawson, the well known financier, was thrown from his carriage while driving near North Scituate late Sunday and severely injured by the fall and by being kicked by the horse.

VISITS DETROIT.

Ancient and Honorable Artillery Arrived There Today.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 5.—The Ancient and Honorable Artillery company of Massachusetts, an organization older that the nation itself, arrived in this city this morning for its semi-annual meeting, which will last until Tuesday night, when a banquet will be given, the members leaving early Wednesday morning for home. The charter of the organization calls for two meetings each year, one on the first Monday in June and the other the first Monday in October. The spring meeting is always held at home, while in the fall the artillerymen visit other cities.

The men, numbering 275, accompanied by a band of thirty-five pieces, came on a special train equipped with with a commissary car. From the depot they were escorted to the Hotel Pontchartrain by the Detroit regiment, M. N. G., and by the Detroit post, G. A. R. This, with the march to the depot at the time of their departure, will be the only parade given.

In the marches many seeming irregularities are seen. For instance, a man in colonel's uniform marching in the ranks with a private, or a sailor walking beside a volunteer infantryman. This is made possible by the fact that the charter allows the members to wear the uniform of any branch to which they or any of their ancestors have belonged.

In the ranks is also seen a man eighty-three years old, carrying an old musket. He is Sergeant Wentworth of Boston, and he has been in military life for the last sixty years. He is a civil war veteran, as is Colonel Weldon, also of Boston.

The organization elects officers every spring, using what they call the drum head election. It is held on Boston common, and all the ballots are deposited on the drum. Then they are counted and the winners announced.

A Parlor Car Puzzle.

By HOWARD FIELDING

Copyright, 1907, by C. W. Hooke

"The idea flashed through my mind," I replied. "You see, I've been about with Anderson and others of his profession quite a bit for the interest of it, and I know their ways. Of course this is rather a wild accusation, for, upon my word, I don't see how the fellow could have got the ring without your seeing him, and yet I think I'd better hunt up Anderson and try to get a word with him. He's still on the train, for I've seen him since we left Utica. He went forward just after we pulled out."

Miss Leigh was naturally indisposed to accuse any one or even to begin a police investigation under such circumstances, but she agreed with me that Mr. Anderson's advice would certainly be helpful.

The man whose reputation I had so recklessly assailed was not in view when Miss Leigh and I returned to our seats. Belden told me that he had gone forward, and he added, with a laugh, "He thinks you got it."

"I? Blast him!"

"What do you think?"

"I think he got it."

"Well, you're even on that," said Belden, and the idea seemed to amuse him.

"Now, look here," said I; "I have my reasons, but there's no time to tell you what they are. I may give you a surprise presently. You keep your eye on that panama hat and the grip over there. This train stops at Glendon, and we're within two minutes of the place now. If that fellow tries to get off, stop him."

"What?" gasped Belden.

"Well, if you don't dare do that, delay him. Keep your eye on him. I'll be back inside the two minutes."

I hurried forward through the train, which was already slowing down for the Glendon station, but I did not find Anderson. Annoyed by this failure, I returned more slowly, keeping a sharper eye upon my fellow passengers, but the detective had disappeared. Obviously he must have got to the rear of the train without my seeing him, perhaps while I and the others were pawing around on the floor and bumping one another's head.

The train had come to a stop by the time that I reached our car, but the bag and the panama hat were still in view, and Belden was on guard. Miss Leigh, however, was not visible. Belden said she had gone "aft." I also went "aft." I went to the end of the train, but I did not find Anderson nor Miss Leigh nor the man from seat No. 5. It seemed to be a day when not only diamond rings, but people, were able to lose themselves with unexampled facility.

When I re-entered our car, Belden had vanished. I glanced hastily toward seat No. 5. The hat and grip were still there.

"Your friend's gone to find the conductor," said the man in seat No. 12. "At least I think so. He asked me if I remembered which way the conductor went. He seemed rather excited."

At this moment the man in seat No. 8 rose hastily. In fact, he came up as if propelled by a spring. He turned toward us, leaning with one hand upon the chair back. The other hand was at his breast. His mouth hung open; his eyes stared.

"My pocketbook!" he gasped.

Instinctively I thrust my hand inside my waistcoat, where in a pocket which I had always thought to be beyond the reach of thieves I had been accustomed to carry the bulk of my immediate funds. The pocket was empty.

The man in No. 12 looked from one to the other of us, and he grinned. His hands were in his trousers pockets.

"My money's all right," said he. "I didn't have much, but"— He paused and then suddenly clapped his hand to his tie. "By jingo! My pin's gone!"

"He touched me for better than a thousand," said No. 8, and I saw him moisten his dry lips with his tongue.

"I suppose there's no doubt"— I began, and finished the sentence by pointing to seat No. 5.
